ALLRED'S TAX TALK ANSWERED BY HOLBROOK

AUSTIN, Sept. 28.—Sen. T. J. Hoolbrook of Galveston, outspoken critic of the new deal, assailed Gov. James V. Allred's demands for new taxes today in the Texas Senate.

The Governor, Hoolbrook said, must share with the legislators the blame for appropriations in excess of income, and accused him of failure to perform his budget duties.

Hoolbrook's speech, a prepared reply to the Governor's tax message, was made as chairman of a State Senate economy committee.

Alfred, Hoolbrook said, by failure to submit itemized budget recommendations as directed by law, had left the legislature to "grope in the dark without chart or compass as to what really was in the Governor's mind, if anything, concerning the state's most serious business, the expenditure of its tax money."

"I tell you frankly we are not going to need any more taxes. I think the taxpayers of this state are entitled to a break for a change."

Hoolbrook read from an account of Allred's second campaign speech.

"Notwithstanding he is elected for a second term on statements made during his campaign, he already has signed bills increasing the tax burden more than $10,000,000 and now asks for another $30,000,000 more during the next two years," Hoolbrook said.

"Pointing to a $22,000,000 increase for the preceding two years, Hoolbrook said, "it is not necessary for us to stop here and lay the blame on this legislature for presenting appropriation bills to the Governor for approval, nor is it part of wisdom to stop and dissertate on whether the Governor acted wisely in signing when he could have vetoed."

Hoolbrook suggested an effort to collect back taxes and re-adjustment of the present distribution of tax receipts.

Yankee Movie Rescue Ruled Out in China

There is always a big thrill in a movie which shows the United States navy arriving in the nick of time to rescue hardpressed American citizens in some war-torn port on the other side of the world. You know the kind—the refugees huddled in some compound or concession, with villainous foreigners laying it on them with machine guns, bombs and the threat of a fate worse than death for the heroine.

This sort of thing puts a thrill down the spine of the most pacific of citizens. And because we are all familiar with such drama, it came as an unpleasant shock to learn that the United States navy was not going to do much defending, as far as American refugees in China are concerned. On the contrary, the State Department has warned all such refugees to stay in China at their own risk, and has intimated that the most the navy can do is take them away if they want to leave.

What is going on in China has not the faintest resemblance to that. If this government set out to protect American lives and property there in the old-style way, it would need the entire United States fleet and several divisions of soldiers. The result almost certainly would be war with a first class power—bloody and ruinously expensive.

A combination bath-house and concession building, a bathhouse and guest cabins, are included in tentative plans, following completion of the roads and trails, comfort stations, camp-sites, shelters and picnic units.

AUSTIN—Texas highway commissioners explained apologetically to visiting delegations at their recent hearing that someone had to be disappointed when an applicant for a project asked for three dollars and got one. One delegation after another demanded to know, politely, how and why their roads were not included in the 1938 program, which was announced recently.

First, the commission sweated over the list of applications for a couple of months and got it down to $9,000,000 that we thought had to be spent. That still was $3,000,000 more than we have. So we worked and prayed for two more months and got the list down to what we thought was

Many Loans Made In State to Build or Purchase Homes

LITTLE ROCK, Ark. (Special) Insured savings and loan associations in Texas, made 759 home loans aggregating $1,433,400 in the month of August, according to figures just compiled by the Federal Home Loan Bank of Little Rock with which insured Texas associations are affiliated.

The proceeds of approximately half of the loans averaging about $2,000.00 each were used in the construction, repairs, and modernization of Texas homes, while 307 loans aggregating $410,000 were made to assist Texans in the purchase of their dwellings. In the states of Arkansas, Louisiana, Mississippi, New Mexico and Texas, comprising the Ninth District served by the Federal Home Loan Bank of Little Rock there were 662 loans made aggregating $3,849,211 and as in Texas half of them were for new construction.

As a further indication of the return to thrift and home ownership in Texas, officials of the bank pointed with interest to the large amount of new savings funds, totaling $866,593 which came into the Texas associations during the month, and aggregated $1,774,564 in the five states.

The First Federal Savings & Loan Association of Ranger is a member of the Federal Home Loan Bank System and the Federal Savings and Loan Insurance Corporation and are caring for the needs of local investors and borrowers. Its loans and investments for August are included in the totals compiled by the bank.

"It is gratifying to note the continued growth and progress of the insured Texas associations," said B. H. Wooten, President of the Federal Home Loan Bank of Little Rock. "The fact that every account in these associations is insured against loss up to $5,000 by an instrumentality of the Federal Government doubtless accounts for much of the steady increase in the volume of savings attracted to them. Their direct reduction lending plan whereby loans on homes can be repaid over a long period of time in small, monthly installments is proving increasingly popular, as is reflected in these figures just compiled."

Chinese Aviator Is Working In Cafe Helping His Father

By United Press
HOUSTON, Texas—Joe Bow was a lieutenant in the Chinese Air Forces three months ago, but now he helps his father, Joe Cit, operate a cafe here.

Illness forced Joe Bow to obtain leave of absence from the air force for a year. The Japanese have blocked the Chinese coast and the United States forbade passports for American citizens to the Orient.

"There is nothing I can do but wait," said Joe Bow. "I have seven months more time before my leave ends. If I can not return home then, I will lose my commission."

Joe Bow is 27 and he left his wife, mother and two small children in the village of Noem On Lee, 100 miles south of Canton in South China.

Joe learned to fly in Houston five years ago when he was a student of John Henry Eagle, son of Joe Eagle, former congressman.

"I wanted to join the Chinese air force," Joe said. "My father told me I could go. When I arrived in China I enlisted in the Chinese Central Aviation School at Hangechow.

"For eight months we went through military training methods like they teach at Randolph Field, and fifty-five of us graduated."

Joe Bow believes that China will withstand the Japanese offensive "for a long time."

"Now we have 1,200 modern American planes, 600 for war service and the remainder for training," he said, "but Japan has almost 1,700 ships."

The Chinese lieutenant who said his squadron shot down three Japanese in a battle six months ago, regards his conversations with Madame Chiang Kai-Shek, wife of the Chinese generalissimo, as one of his most interesting experiences.

Bow, a Cantonese, speaks little Mandarin, the tongue of North China and that of Madame Kai-Shek, who is greatly interested in the Chinese air force.

"The first time I talked with her I tried to speak Mandarin," said Joe, "but I could make her understand little. I knew she was educated in the United States, so I said something in English."

"Madame Kai-Shek did not mind, so after that we talked about the ships and strength of the force in English. She is a very gracious woman."

Joe fears that the illness he contracted in the bitter cold of North China may keep him "grounded" but he has not despaired of returning to his family.

Tractors Boost Price For Farm Lands

DALLAS, Tex.—It has been estimated that 7,000 Texas farmers this year will be unable to rent land.

Premiums offered by large tractor farmers for land has made it difficult for small farmers in the south to obtain fertile farms. It has been reported that tractor farmers in many instances pay a premium of $1 an acre above the usual half or three-fourths of a crop for rent, in order to contract large acreages.

Texas last year saw 6,685 of its farm families cross the plains to California. California reported 7,621 home seekers from Arizona and Oklahoma families led the immigration for all states with 13,984 crossing the California line in automobiles.

You Can't Advertise Today and Quit Tomorrow

You're Not Talking to a Mass Meeting . . . You're Talking to a Parade!

BRUCE BARTON

Ceaseless hammering on the same spot helps win prize fights . . . it is the essence of advertising success. Not until enough individuals in the same neighborhood have been sufficiently saturated with a certain slogan, say, to cause them to react on one another does advertising become a social phenomenon.

The modern business man realizes that his best customers wear out at a rate of nearly 3 per cent a year. Advertising - made prospects disappear far faster. Casual impressions, however, favorable, dry like dew in the heat of competition.

"Cumulative" effects of advertising come not from one advertisement paving the way for another. This is negligible, to say the least. Cumulative effect, on the contrary, comes from salvaging as customers half-finished prospects.

Each advertiser is in much the same plight. If he quits successful, he loses money. If he quits unsuccessful, he tosses away an equity in public recognition far more valuable than the money: So many thousand partly manufactured customers. The second group are spending as little money as they can and still keep their names before the public. They believe themselves wise spenders because they spend so very cautiously—or perhaps reluctantly is a better word . . . THE BALD TRUTH IS THAT THESE RELUCTANT SPENDERS ARE, AS A CLASS, THE REAL OVER-SPENDERS IN ADVERTISING!

OUT OF THE NIGHT

Her eyes were like... She pulled at it grimly, it bugged a trifle. She could tell that something was caught in it. Something thrown from above, probably, which had in some way landed on this side-chute. She tugged harder. Gradually the slot widened, and she could look inside and see what caused the sticking. She hoped it would not be garbage. No... it was a newspaper. An enormous pile of newspapers, rather, and they had become wedged into this slot as they fell down the shaft. Why did someone have to throw such a bunch at one time? Anyone could realize that it would get stuck.

SHE tried to dislodge them, one at a time. Finally she managed to work most of the pack either down the shaft, or out on the floor at her feet. She picked up her own brown paper bag and threw it down. Then she stooped to gather up the remaining sections of newspaper. As she did so, she glanced at the masthead of the papers. She stopped, clutching the paper in her hand. It was headed: "Bluefields, Utah."

Quickly Cilly picked up all of the remaining sections and carried them into her own apartment. So there was someone in the house who knew about Bluefields. Someone upstairs who had been keeping track of developments there through the out-of-town newspapers, but who feared to keep the papers in his apartment now that the police were checking more thoroughly.

Here was something to interest Sergeant Dolan, Cilly thought. Here was something which would take his mind off the case he was trying to build around Jim Keegan. Here was absolute proof that someone in the house had murdered Amy!

Why had she so impulsively destroyed the piece of newspaper clipping which had fallen from Amy's lifeless fingers? Cilly wished she had it now, to mark it "Exhibit A" and tie it up with these newspapers from upstairs. But perhaps the timetable which Dolan had found in Amy's bag so definitely marked to indicate the same place, would be sufficient.

Cilly caught a whiff of burning oatmeal: she hurried into the kitchen. She could sit down to dinner now with less of the heavy dread which had dulled her digestion all day. She could enjoy the oatmeal and the cantaloupe. For Jim was free of the encircling web of circumstance and suspicion!

Tonight she had better eat something.

Cilly changed the black dress for a thin cotton wrap-around, and began her preparations for dinner.

One by one, she broke four eggs into a mixing bowl...

Cooking, she realized suddenly, was a splendid tonic for frayed nerves. The monotonous, mechanical detail of it was soothing and restful. She whirled the eggbeater efficiently. It was easier to think now.

She tried to analyze the situation calmly.

Amy had kept a secret hidden in her heart... someone feared lest that secret become known. He feared it so terribly that he was prepared to kill her to prevent it.

Whose secret was it? Surely Amy had no connection with the type of underworld racketeer who stoops to murder casually. In the few months she had been living in New York, where could she have come in contact with such people? Not at the despairingly respectable residence club. Not at the conservatively correct offices of Ames & Wakefield.

Yet there was Harvey Ames. Cilly reconsidered his startling reaction to the news of Amy's death. How could he have known of the tragic death of a girl in Brooklyn, when he lived in a Park Avenue apartment in Manhattan? Why had he deliberately lied about reading it in the morning papers?

If someone had said to him: "I live in Brooklyn, and last night a girl in the neighborhood was killed by a fall from the roof," that would have been commonplace. He would have said to Cilly then: "Yes, I heard that a girl was killed last night in Brooklyn." But he would not have lost his head and said: "I read it in the morning paper." What was there in the occurrence which had terrified him? Why did he lie?

Cilly gathered the egg shells and put them into a brown paper bag, to throw down the incinerator. She scooped up some cantaloupe seeds also. She picked up the brown paper bag, and went out into the hallway.

The incinerator door was stuck. Ordinarily it opened out quite easily, like a mail-box slot. You threw the refuse into the slot, from whence it fell into the incinerator shaft. The shaft rose directly through the house, between apartments A and B on each floor, and emptied into a fiery pit in the basement where all refuse was burned. Cilly had never found the door stuck before.

Q. When was the first school established in San Antonio in which English was taught?

A. The Bexar County Records of July 5, 1828, refer to the "McClellan School," evidently then recently opened for the benefit of the Anglo-Saxon colonists. There is no record of the continuance of this school and it probably soon closed for lack of support.

matching through Georgia to play the University of Georgia and stopped off at Atlanta. There they were met by reporters.

In the resultant conversation, Bierman was asked pointedly how he figured the game would turn out. The boys anticipated a pessimistic answer, but he fooled them.

"We should be able to take them by two or three touchdowns," replied Bierman, much to their amazement. "We have a pretty fair team this year, and I understand that they haven't so much. They shouldn't bother us."

That was just too much, coming from "Bemoanin' Bernie." The writers, apparently figuring that Bierman was foxing them or was engineering a joke at their expense, just couldn't and wouldn't believe it. They didn't print the story. And Tulane won by four touchdowns!

That proves that Bierman does not always employ the well-known crying towel all the time.

One reason why Bierman employs pessimism is to tone down his boys. There is nothing more fractious than a college football player who thinks he's good.

"There is no worse pre-game psychology for a team than going into a game convinced that it can't lose," says Bierman. "That is even worse than a team starting a game convinced that it can't win." The best psychology is for a team to feel that it will win but that it must get at top speed all the while."

At present, Bierman is his pessimistic self.

Bierman launches his sixth season at Minnesota in defense of a record of 32 victories, four defeats, three of them in his initial year, and four ties.

He starts with 27 lettermen, 16 sophomores from 1936, and a class of reserves who as freshmen had not as many outstanding players as the Minnesota pregame have had in past campaigns.

MINNEAPOLIS—Few football teams reflect their coaches to the extent of those of Bernie Bierman.

His Minnesota squads and his Tulane teams before them, as a rule, have been cool, calm, and collected under the severest kind of pressure.

A story told of Bierman and one of his earlier Tulane teams gives out a good line on the famous style of the Gophers.

Fired by an unusual situation, the Greenies started sprinting from the dressing room for the field of attack, and were headed down the amp when Bierman shouted: "Stop, you fools! Walk to the field! You may need all that energy when you get there!"

One of the few Bierman teams to appear rattled was the splendid one of last season in the final period of the Northwestern game. Something was about due to happen to the Giants of the North at the time, however. They had gone through 1933, '34, and '35 without a defeat, and had moved toward the windup of the 1936 schedule when a heart-breaking penalty helped snap their string.

Bierman generally is credited with having done the finest job of evenly balancing a running game with the lateral or so-called razor-edge. But the Gophers met with so much success in pulling games out of the fire with laterals last season that chucking the ball about promiscuously finally got the best of them.

Bierman admitted this following the Northwestern disaster.

"BEMOANIN' BERNIE" BIERMAN is what they call him. There was a time, however, when Bierman did not mean, and writers refused to believe him.

Bierman was at Tulane then and had one of his more engulging "Green Waves." The Greenies were

BEHIND THE SCENES IN WASHINGTON WITH RODNEY DUTCHER

BY RODNEY DUTCHER
NEA Service Staff Correspondent

WASHINGTON—There was a queer period of New Deal history in 1934-35 when Roosevelt was giving his best super-colossal exhibition of traveling "right" and "left" at the same time.

Outstanding presidential advisers in that period were Donald Richberg, Frank C. Walker, Rexford G. Tugwell and Felix Frankfurter. Of these, Richberg rose to and fell from the highest peak of power.

Richberg, now practicing law in Washington, came first as NRA's general counsel, and had won the President's complete confidence by the time General Hugh Johnson left NRA. Richberg helped write his grand vizier to make too many speeches, grew tired of seeing Richberg's name in so many headlines.

But Richberg today again is very close to the throne.

Out of office he has made "educational" speeches critical of the Supreme Court, earned plenty of money as a lawyer-lobbyist, was a "liaison man" with business men in the presidential campaign and apparently was one of but three or four men who advised on the Roosevelt Supreme Court plan which emerged last February. Richberg wrote most of Roosevelt's message to Congress presenting that historic proposal.

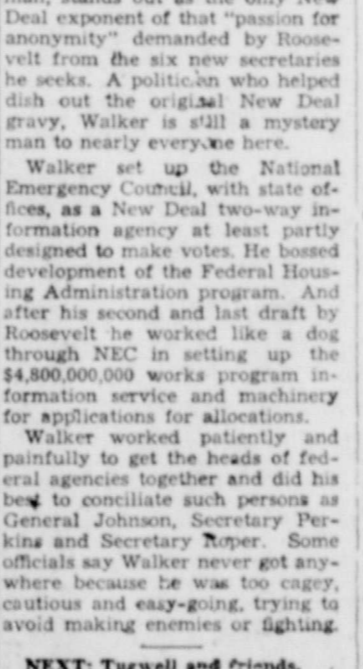

FRANK WALKER, successful New York lawyer-business man, stands out as the only New Deal exponent of that "passion for anonymity" demanded by Roosevelt from the six new secretaries he seeks. A politician who helped dish out the original New Deal gravy, Walker is still a mystery man to nearly everyone here.

Walker set up the National Emergency Council, with state offices, as a New Deal two-way information agency at least partly designed to make votes. He headed development of the Federal Housing Administration program. And after his second and last draft by Roosevelt he worked like a dog through NEC in setting up the $4,800,000,000 works program information service and machinery for applications for loans.

Walker worked patiently and peacefully to get the heads of federal agencies together and did his best to conciliate such persons as General Johnson, Secretary Perkins and Secretary Naper. Some officials say Walker never got anywhere because he was too cagey, cautious and easy-going, trying to avoid making enemies or fighting.

Q. To what extent are lemons grown in the Lower Rio Grande Valley?

A. There are now about 15,000 lemon trees in the Valley, producing this year an estimated 15,000 cases. It is claimed that the Valley lemons contain 50 per cent more juice than any other domestic lemons and that the demand for them in Texas alone is greater than the supply.

Q. When and what was the first government effort made to establish a system of public education in Texas?

A. A decree was issued May 13, 1829, for establishment in each department (Bexar, Brazos and Nagardoches) of a school on the Lancaster or monitorial plan, providing for the payment of school expenses by creating a fund in each department and supplementing this with municipal loans, but requiring parents able to do so to pay tuition for their children. No worthwhile results came from this decree.

Q. Were the customs and lives of Texas Indians changed by early missionary efforts?

A. Not to any great extent; the Indians were slow to adopt any good training offered them and quick to follow evil practices.

Q. When was the first school established in San Antonio in which English was taught?

A. The Bexar County Records of July 5, 1828, refer to the "McClellan School," evidently then recently opened for the benefit of the Anglo-Saxon colonists. There is no record of the continuance of this school and it probably soon closed for lack of support.

Q. Why and by whom was "Phantom Hill" Fort so named?

A. "Phantom Hill" was named by Col. Robert E. Lee. In locating a chain of military posts for frontier protection, in 1851, Lee established one in a grove on an eminence near the confluence of the Clear Fork and Elm Fork of the Brazos River, and named it Fort "Phantom Hill" because of mirage seen from that point.

MYRA NORTH. Special Nurse -- By Thompson and Coll

Time Stands Still As Snake and a Boy Meet In Corner

HOUSTON, Texas — Wesley Moffett, 16-year-old Boy Scout, knows how to stop the flight of time.

All you need is a monster rattlesnake and a tight place—like Wesley had on a scouting trip west of Columbus, Texas.

Wesley was looking for birds' nests when he came face to face with "Old Coffinhead," as he called him. The snake was coiled two feet away and a barbed wire fence was at Wesley's side and back.

Seconds passed. Wesley took a soft step backward. Old Coffinhead didn't move. They boy took another step to the fence.

His shirt caught on a barb. While a "week or 10 days" dragged by, Wesley freed himself and slipped under the fence.

Bill Webb, 14, a Houston Eagle Scout, killed the snake with a rifle. Old Coffinhead measured 6 feet 3 inches and had 16 rattles.

SISTER MARY'S KITCHEN

By Mrs. Gaynor Maddox
NEA Service Staff Writer

GRANDFATHER liked his dumplings. So do his grandson and his great-grandson. Which will explain why old-fashioned dumplings are in high favor with the smartest young things today.

Take the case of chicken dumplings, for example. Or to be more to the point, take the recipe and see for yourself.

Chicken Dumplings
(4 to 6 servings)

Three cups chicken broth, 1 teaspoon salt, 1-4 teaspoon pepper, 1 cup flour, 1-2 teaspoon baking powder, 1-8 teaspoon salt, 2 table-spoons chicken fat, 1-3 cup milk.

Season broth with salt and pepper. However, if broth has been seasoned, don't do it again. To make dough for the dumplings, sift dry ingredients together, then cut in the chicken fat. Add milk only a little at a time. Drop by rounded spoonfuls into the gently boiling broth. Cover tightly and continue to boil over very low flame for 15 to 20 minutes. Serve at once.

Egg Dumplings
(6 dumplings)

One egg, 3 tablespoons milk, 2-3 cup flour, 1-2 teaspoons baking powder, 1-4 teaspoon salt. Beat the egg until light, mix in the milk. Sift the dry ingredients together, and stir in the egg and milk mixture to form a heavy batter. Drop by spoonfuls into boiling water, cover sauce pan tightly, and boil gently fifteen minutes without removing the cover. Serve immediately.

Tomorrow's Menu
BREAKFAST: Stewed pears, creamed dried beef on toast, rice muffins, coffee, milk.
LUNCHEON: Toasted cheese sandwiches, lettuce-tomato salad, chocolate ginger bread, tea, milk.
DINNER: Tomato juice, veal steve with vegetables, chicken dumplings, boiled potatoes, corn on cob, fresh fruit gelatin, coffee, milk.

Apple Dumplings
(6 dumplings)

Two cups sifted flour, 4 teaspoons baking powder, 1 teaspoon salt, 1-3 cup shortening, 1-2 cup milk, 6 small tart apples, 1 cup sugar, 1-4 teaspoon cinnamon, 2 tablespoons butter, 1-2 cup boiling water, 1-4 cup melted butter.

Sift the first three ingredients together. Cut in the shortening and add milk a little at a time. Roll out dough to 1-8 inch thickness. Cut dough into 6 circles each large enough to enclose an apple. Core and pare apples, place one on each circle of dough and fill the cavities in apples with some of the sugar and cinnamon mixture. Dot with butter. Bring dough up over apples, pressing all edges together carefully. Place in well greased heat resistant glass utility dish. Pour water and the remaining sugar mixture and butter around the dumplings. Bake in a moderately hot oven (375 degrees F.) from 30 to 45 minutes, basting occasionally with the syrup in the pan. Test the apples with a fork to make certain that they are tender. Serve with cream or lemon sauce.
