America Has No Need for Rabble Rousers

Walter B. Pitkin's plea for "a rabble rouser of the right" would seem to be about the least helpful of all the many suggestions that have been made for the preservation and regeneration of this great nation of ours.

Prof. Pitkin voiced this plea in an article in the current issue of Advertising Agency. He was complaining that those who have most reason to want to see the traditional American values preserved in this era of changes are not being vocal enough about it; and he wound up with the following exhortation:

"The hour has come for words which smell, for words which set fire to men and things, for words which loosen avalanches back in the mountains. The pat phrase, the polite patter and the unctuous argument will never save America. Heaven send us a rabble rouser of the right!"

One would suppose that a man with Prof. Pitkin's broad outlook would realize by this time that of all calamities which can descend on a nation these days, none can easily surpass that which is embodied in the person of a really rabble rouser.

When you get such a person uttering "words which loosen avalanches back in the mountains," you never know just what those avalanches are going to sweep away. The post-war history of Europe offers some shining examples.

For the rabble rouser is a man who calls on men to think with their emotions rather than with their minds. His "words which set fire to men" are, by definition, the kind of words which men use when they have grown tired of trying to solve their problems by intellectual effort. And when men get into that state of mind, they are headed for trouble just as surely as night follows day.

Hitler went up and down Germany for years, his entire stock in trade consisting of just the sort of words Prof. Pitkin is talking about. In the course of time, conditions being bad and the outlook dark, he persuaded the German people to listen to him and to confide their future to his hands. He "loosened avalanches back in the mountains"; does any sane American want similar avalanches loosened in this country?

Hitler is not the only example, of course. Every dictatorship in Europe got its start in precisely that same way. And when you stop to think what democracy really means, the fact is not hard to understand.

Democracy is based on the assumption that people will use their gray matter rather than their feelings to solve their problems. It takes for granted that there will be enough coolness, patience and good sense to permit issues to be argued out, and that things will be settled rationally rather than emotionally.

Of all the things that our America does not need, a rabble rouser—whether of the right, the left or the dead-center—stands at the head of the list.

Touchdown Fumble Starts Grid Season

A fumble by Johnny Rabb, Ohio fullback, after he had plunged over the goal line in the first quarter provided a heart-stirring thrill for 70,000 fans in the opening game of the football season at Columbus, O., with Texas Christian University. The ball hovers inches above the ground in this picture. Rabb, in black jersey, is in the center of the pile at right. A teammate looks on, fearful of disaster. On the ground at left is Maggied, Ohio guard, who recovered. Then the referee ruled the fumble occurred after the ball was downed. Ohio won, 14 to 0.

Hound Is Famed For Wildcat Hunts

HOUSTON.—"John Dillinger," is public enemy number one to mountain lions and "sach animals" in South and West Texas. John, a crossbred Walker and July hound, owned by Ira Wood, famed federal predatory animal hunter, because of his work during the past season, is going to get a vacation trip in the Carmen mountains of Mexico.

Said to be the best "cat-dog" in the Southwest, the hound was whelped during the time John Dillinger's name was on the front pages of the nation's newspapers.

Ex-wife of Slain Jilter "to Talk"

"I can tell plenty," was the ominous promise of Mrs. Mae McCann, above, former wife of George Frank, slain Wall Street teller, whom she divorced because of his romance with Gertrude O'Keefe, 37-year-old typist he jilted, now held for questioning about his death. Mrs. McCann had divorced her first husband to marry Frank. Miss O'Keefe, she said, financed her second divorce.

WAY up state in New York there's a gal who can toss a doughnut—toss it better than anyone else I know. And she isn't a Salvation Army lass, either. Her name is Lucy Maltby and in the judgment of thousands of people she is one of the best cooks and food thinker-uppers of grand victuals in these hungry United States. And she's big hearted, too, which will explain why she has given me some of her pet doughnut recipes for this column. So here you are for Miss Maltby's private doughnut recipes.

Tomorrow's Menu: BREAKFAST Orange juice, French toast, maple syrup, coffee, milk. LUNCHEON Kidney bean, rye bread, ginger pears, soured cream doughnuts. DINNER Grapefruit, beef liver larded with bacon, mashed potatoes, grilled tomatoes, green pepper and cabbage salad, caramel custard, coffee, milk.

Scout Uniform Is Ticket for Youth On a Long Trip

By United Press

SEATTLE.—Robert A. Porter, 19-year-old Eagle Scout and scoutmaster of Jackson, Mich., arrived here after a 3,500-mile journey across the nation — and he owes it all to his scouting uniform.

The young scout left Detroit on Aug. 20, incidentally, in a new Packard automobile that carried him to Salt Lake in one stretch. He arrived there on Aug. 23, reached San Bernardino, Calif., Aug. 24, thence to Los Angeles, and on into Seattle Aug. 30.

Mothers Are Told College Sons Need Letters from Home

CLINTON, N. Y.—American mothers were urged to take time out "between cigaret puffs and cocktail sips" to write helpful letters to their son at college in an address before the New York Historical Association.

Basing his remarks on 50 newly discovered letters written in 1848 and 1849 by the mother of Roscoe Conkling, famous orator, Ellis K. Baldwin, dramatic critic of the Utica Observer-Dispatch, said: "If modern mothers would establish a letter writing hour and take it as seriously as they do their cocktail hour present day youth would reach manhood with higher ideals than they now possess."

Mothers, he said, should not allow the bond between them and their sons weaken while they are away at college.

"It can be strengthened through helpful letters," Baldwin declared.

LEIPZIG.—Reflecting the general activity in world trade, the Leipzig Fair concluded its 1,978th session with increased exhibits

The fair attracted 150,000 buyers from 74 countries, including 6,000 from foreign countries, as compared with 3,700 last year.

A score of countries sent 5,500 exhibits of their newest art and industrial products, including 361 from abroad, an increase of 35 per cent. American participation was more than doubled. The increased activity was attributed to the world-wide demand for both raw materials and finished products.

CAST OF CHARACTERS
MICHELLE FLEET—heroine, young woman attorney.
AMY KERR—Fleet's roommate and confidante.
DR. JOHNSON—Fleet's physician.
FRANK—Fleet's chauffeur.
BRIGANT—Fleet's maid.
MISS MORGAN—Fleet's secretary.

Yesterday, Mr. Johnson, the doctor, found out that Michelle Fleet, who had been out of the house for two days, was back. He had to go to the hospital to see her, and he had to go to the hospital to see her, and he had to go to the hospital to see her.

CHAPTER XIV

It was a cold, gray morning. Michelle Fleet was sitting up in bed, looking out the window. The room was dark, and she felt a little lonely. She had been out of the house for two days, and she was still not feeling quite right. She had been out of the house for two days, and she was still not feeling quite right.

papers to be explained. Apparently she cleared the superintendent, as they cleared Jim, of any connection with Amy's death. The funeral service for Amy Kerr was scheduled for two o'clock, so when 12:30 arrived and Sergeant Dolan had not put in his appearance, Cilly relinquished the hope of seeing him. She went into the bedroom to change into the dull black dress. It might be that the sergeant would stop at the funeral parlors, if only to look over the friends and acquaintances assembled. Through the window, Cilly saw a taxi draw up to the house and stop in front of her window. She hurried across the room to pull down the shade. Vaguely she was conscious that the car's motor continued to run as she combed her hair and changed her dress. Someone in the house must have called and asked him to wait. Few people from the apartment ever phoned for a taxi; it was easier to walk down to the corner and hail one from the regular stand. You only phoned when it rained—or if you had heavy bundles. Curious, Cilly raised the shade and looked out. A woman was getting into the car; the driver struggled to adjust two bags which he put in after her. Two large suitcases, to be exact. Cilly recognized the woman as one of the tenants from above. She did not know her by name, however. She thought it rather unusual for her to be leaving the house at this time with suitcases. Hadn't Sergeant Dolan insisted that they all remain on hand for further questioning? So he instructed Cilly.

In a flash the truth dawned. The woman was running away! She was deliberately going away to escape Sergeant Dolan's further questioning. Quickly Cilly raised the window. "Taxi!" she called. "Taxi!" But she was just a minute too late. The car was already moving. The woman turned round, startled by the call, and scanned forward and then the driver to greater haste. Cilly watched the car disappear around the corner, annoyed at her own stupidity in letting the woman get away so smoothly. A few minutes later, she was standing at the last stand on the corner, waiting for some one to return. She waited several minutes, growing a little nervous, but she had to go for the Sheriff.

was Vicerey of Mexico in 1776. Q. How did the word "Texas" become the permanent name of the country? A. The name of "Texas" gradually grew out of the end-avor of the Hasainal Indians to express to Father Manzant and Capt. Domingo Ramon their friendliness, good will and cooperation in the efforts of the priest and officer to establish a mission and presidio among them in 1690. The Indians made frequent use of the word "Texas," having the sound of "Texas" to the Spaniards. In this way the Hasainal may be credited with unintentionally naming the country. Q. Who was the chief spokesman of the Hasainal Confederacy when Father Manzant and Capt. Ramon entered the country in 1690? A. Captain Grande Bigote was the grand chief, but it was regarded by the Indians as discourteous to address him by the name. It was not until his influence, power and consistent faithfulness later came to be fully recognized and both the Spanish and French sought to do him honor, that the name Captain Grande Bigote was publicly applied to him. Q. What are the two most attractive scenes between San Antonio and Monterrey? A. The Rio Grande and its valley, as seen from an upper room or other high point at Laredo and Manulique Pass, about 40 miles north of Monterrey.

CLAUDE E. THORNHILL, coach of the Stanford Indians, really belongs to the football immortals. Not because he's a successful mentor, but because he is one of the few truly great grid tutors who actually believe football is a game and that the boys should have some fun out of it. Considering the big business and show-must-go-on philosophy of other wise men of the gridiron, Tny's fun-for-the-players borders on rank heresy. This game stuff is the McCoy with Thornhill. It was evidenced by his associates last year when, after three very successful seasons, his Indians had a losing year. His genial self was the same as when his team was winning, his sole concern being the reaction of the players long used to success. Tny's teachings that football is a game were not in vain and this season finds the Californians ready to resume where they left off in 1935 on victory boulevard. Tny is a huge, grinning man who likes to talk, has definite ideas about football, and how to teach it. He's 6 feet 1 1/2 inches tall, but no one, not even his best friends, knows just how much he weighs. That's Tny's business and he's not telling a soul. If you get him in a right mood he'll grinfully tell you 229 or 230 pounds, but his friends and players believe he tips the Toledo upward of 260. BEHIND THE SCENES IN WASHINGTON WITH RODNEY DUTCHES

BY RODNEY DUTCHES
 NEA Service Staff Correspondent
 WASHINGTON—Men closest to the Roosevelt "throne" always are subject to sharpshooting from those not so close, but wishing they were. Conservative hosannas greeted Tugwell's departure as a Roosevelt "shift to the right." Promptly, however, it became obvious the President was cooking up the most radical of his programs—the Supreme Court change plan. And it took little time for the opposition, the would-be favorites and the ex-favorites to get their fire centered on two lawyers, Thomas G. Corcoran, 36, and Benjamin V. Cohen, 42. "Tom and Ben" are the opposites' latest candidates for the sausage-grinder. Neither functions as a general adviser of the Tugwell or Moley type. But their scalps, for anyone who would strike at Roosevelt, are well worth getting. Corcoran, ubiquitous, super-energetic, brilliant, is the President's favorite trouble-shooter, liaison man, coordinator, conciliator, ghost-writer and salesman. Cohen, his roommate, has drafted laws—none of which has yet been found vulnerable by either Wall Street lawyers or the Supreme Court.

ACTUALLY the "Tom and Ben" team also includes a "Bob and Bill," Assistant Attorney General Robert H. Jackson and SEC Commissioner William O. Douglas. These four liberals, all promoted from obscurity in New Deal ranks because of jobs well handled, are expert in certain fields—Jackson on taxation, monopoly laws and successful argument before the Supreme Court; Douglas in corporate finance, reorganizations and other Wall Street devices; Cohen in legal draftsmanship and Corcoran in many fields. Corcoran and Cohen rank as special assistants to the attorney general, in addition to important legal jobs under RFC and the National Power Policy Committee respectively. They seem to get the toughest White House assignments. Much of the anti-Corcoran and Cohen attack is based on the delusion that they were responsible for the badly licked, perhaps fatal, court plan. Attorney General Cummings plotted that one exclusively with Roosevelt. In the last campaign Corcoran, Stanley High and Judge Sam Rosenman—who was on the presidential train—were collaborators on Roosevelt's campaign speeches. In the previous administration Corcoran and Cohen had fought the lobbies of the stockbrokers, investment bankers and public utilities. (Copyright, 1937, NEA Service, Inc.)

 MORE people seem to know about oysters. I recently met the oyster in his own home. He lives well. In clear water he thrives, growing flavorsome and plump, adding more flavor as the time goes on, beginning with the first of September. With several other food writers and noted chefs, I sailed out on the twelfth annual inspection of the Long Island Oyster grounds. All day long oysters were fished up from their beds, operated by an expert and we ate them right there out of the shell. Which makes me urge more women to serve them on the half shell as a first course for dinner. Here's a professional secret for better and more natural flavor: serve your oysters with just a little lemon juice. Catsup, spiced sauces and such additions are not in favor with the true oyster lover. Gathered by Machinery On that cruise over Long Island Oyster grounds we saw a new method of hauling the unsuspecting oyster up nearer the family table. It works much like the snow cleaning apparatus used in the oyster business. Instead of the dragnet method which is old as history, this new machine keeps the oysters coming up in a constant stream by a revolving belt. It is thrilling to watch this belt drop a constant stream of oysters at our feet on the clean deck of our boat. We were told that this method also helps keep the beds safer because it brings up more of the oyster enemies that make life quite uncomfortable for the little baby oysters on their way to school. We went ashore long enough to try out a genuine shore dinner. This is what we nibbled at waiting to return to our boat: Olives, clam chowder, radishes,

Franco Devaluation Worse Than War In Eyes of the French

EL PASO, Texas—Devaluation of the franc is the major concern of the French people, who are more alarmed over this monetary problem than over the possibility of a war with Nazi Germany or Fascist Italy, believes Dr. Richard Olmsted, assistant professor of modern languages at the College of Mines and Metallurgy here, a branch of the University of Texas. Dr. Olmsted has recently returned to El Paso following a two-months' residence in Paris. "Americans in Paris are pestered by news of war preparation, whereas the French have a blasé philosophy of ignoring it completely, rarely reading newspaper articles on the subject," Dr. Olmsted said. "No display of military preparation or power is ever flaunted before the French people." Dr. Olmsted was accompanied to Paris by his father, Dr. E. W. Olmsted, who recently retired as head of the romance language department at the University of Minnesota.

Trained Ship Officers Are Needed In Japan

TOKYO—Japan is under going a serious shortage of trained ship officers. In the past few years the nation has rapidly expanded its shipping activities, mostly in the line of freight vessels. Nautical schools and technical training institutes have not been able to turn out graduates fast enough to fill available jobs. Recently newspapers have run stories sharply illustrating the lack of men. Lists of engineering schools and the number of men in their graduating classes were printed, and immediately following the number of graduates who are already spoken for by various concerns, as far as jobs are concerned, as far as three years in advance.
