LARGE CROWD HEARS SINGER FOR REVIVAL

Joe Trussell, the south's greatest evangelist singer, was welcomed by an unusually large Monday night crowd at the revival meeting in progress at the First Baptist church. Bro. Trussell rewarded all those present as he swept them off their feet with his special song, "Stand By Me."
The congregational singing was another enjoyable feature of the night's services. Having a marvelous voice, and a great personality, Trussell gave full proof of his position as leader in the field of evangelistic singing, and the church looks forward with eager anticipation from one service to the next to hear him. He will direct the singing and bring special messages in song at each of the services of the revival, at 10:00 a. m. and 7:30 p. m.
The pastor, Rev. Charles T. Tally, Jr., brought an inspiring message, basing it upon the passage of scriptures found in I Sam. 7:5, showing "God's Plan for a Revival."
"The first thing necessary is to 'put away the strange gods from you'. Some of the gods of the present day which must be put away are: Self, Family, Money, Pleasure, etc. Then we must separate ourselves unto the Lord—or separation. Separation first, then service, is God's plan for us through all the major characters of the Old Testament. When we separate ourselves from evil pleasure, worldly living, selfish indulgence, then we prepare ourselves unto service for our Lord.
"Preparation is essential in Christian service as well as in all professions of this life. Then we must serve 'God only'. Not the church, home, self or the community, but God. By serving God we directly help all these, but the major emphasis must be upon pleasing God. 'Not my will, but thine,' must be the sincere prayer and desire of each Christian. When we have accomplished this, the word promises that God will deliver us from the enemy, giving us victory."
Rev. Tally's subject for tonight is "The Prodigal Son," one of the greatest characters written about in the Bible.
Good singing, unusual spirit and fellowship, with a special message in song by Joe Trussell, are the features of tonight's service, along with the message by the pastor. All are invited to come. "Come once, and you cannot stay away," being the pastor's invitation to the public.

4-H DAIRY DEMONSTRATION TEAM OFF TO NATIONAL SHOW

Government Peanut Warehouse Is Discussed At Meeting Of Chamber of Commerce Directors

Possibilities of a government peanut warehouse for Ranger and most of Eastland county was discussed at the regular meeting of the directors of the Ranger Chamber of Commerce Monday night, and after the discussion a committee composed of A. J. Ratliff, W. F. Creager and J. E. Meroney was appointed to investigate and make recommendations.
Dick Weckes spoke briefly on the plans for the government warehouse, pointing out that in this district of five counties there is an estimated surplus of 6,000 tons of peanuts. Of this amount, approximately 450 tons are expected to be purchased and stored in the Ranger warehouse, if it is sponsored locally. This would mean an additional $30,000 to $65,000 in peanut money that could be secured locally and paid through the local bank.
The setup calls for payment of $25 a month for rent, $9 a month for the bond to make it a bonded warehouse, about $17.50 a month maximum for insurance, with the amount varying according to the amount of peanuts in storage.
The government will pay 35 cents a ton for storage, which would bring in a maximum of $167.50 a month if the entire 450 tons was stored, and the grader and weigher would be allowed 25 cents a ton, with $1 a ton allowed for loading and unloading and handling the peanuts.
It was pointed out that the peanuts in the district, which comprises one-tenth of the nation's crop, was far superior to peanuts raised in eastern sections, and that the peanuts would probably be purchased and shipped rapidly, while crops from the eastern sections would be kept in storage for shipments to the mills next Spring.
Weckes was tentatively appointed as classifier and weigher, if the warehouse is sponsored, and will attend a classing school. It was

WARNING OF ATTACK MADE BY PRESIDENT

CHICAGO, Oct. 5.—Warning that the United States may be attacked if developing "international anarchy" thrives unchecked, President Roosevelt today delicately aimed a bristling speech at nations involved in Spain and China and proposed a concerted effort by peace loving people to maintain justice in the world.
Mr. Roosevelt's target scarcely could be mistaken and they seemed to be Germany, Italy and Japan.
He suggested a quarantine of offending nations raising instant conjecture as to whether the administration would join in any method of sanctions against aggressor nations.
Asserting that "the epidemic of world lawlessness is spreading," Mr. Roosevelt said:
"When an epidemic of physical disease starts spreading, the community approves and joins in a quarantine of the patient in order to protect the health of the community against the spread of the disease."
The president in this address avoided isolationist principles and seemed to question the effectiveness of neutrality, explaining that if the deluge came there could be no escape from it.
"Without a declaration of war," the president said, "and without warning of any kind, civilians, including women and children, including ruthlessly murdered with bombs from the air."
"In time of so-called peace ships are being attacked and sunk by submarines without cause or notice."
"Nations are fomenting and taking sides in civil warfare. Nations claiming freedom for themselves deny it for others."
His address emerged with explosive force from a West Coast journey.
"There must be positive endeavor to preserve peace," Mr. Roosevelt said.
"America hates war. America hopes for peace. Therefore America actively engages in the plea for peace."
He spoke at the dedication of Chicago's outer link bridge.

America Contributed War Ideas to Japan

Any American who feels that the Japanese have shown themselves up for a crew of greedy and unprincipled muscle-men by their unprovoked assault on China ought to remind himself that a pretty fair part of it is America's fault.

Along with the rest of the western world, America made Japan what she is today. The war in China and all the horrors that go along with it are not native growths. The orient imported them, and we Americans did our share of the shipping.

The whole recent history of Japan, for that matter, is by way of being a sharp, ironic commentary on our civilization.

Until the middle of the 19th century, Japan was living like a silkworm in a cocoon. She neither knew nor cared what was going on in the outer world. She was the "forbidden kingdom" in sober truth. Nobody could get in and nobody could get out; as a result, Japan was living in the middle ages.

Then the dikes were broken. If you remember your history, you may recall that it was the United States navy which broke them. Japan came out of her cocoon and confronted a world which had got about six centuries ahead of her.

And it was right there that the western world, including America, handed out a stone in place of a loaf of bread.

For the Japanese seem to have looked around and decided that the more advanced white nations were relying on a policy of force, pure and simple. No matter which nation Japan took for an example—America, England, France, Germany, Russia—she could not fail to see that national expansion, prosperity and greatness were being sought and won at the point of the bayonet. And the power of example is the most forceful of all arguments.

So Japan followed suit. She modernized her army along western lines. She built a great navy along western lines. She adopted a policy of imperialism along western lines. She saw what kind of game was being played, called for the same sort of cards, and set out to get all she could out of them.

So what is happening in China today is happening because Japan learned her lesson from the western world too well. The very airplane with which Japan is scourging Chinese noncombatants is an American invention; the idea of using it on defenseless cities came from Europe; and the notion of taking another nation's territory by force may well have come—in part, at least—from our own excursion into Mexico in the 1840's.

SISTER MARY'S KITCHEN

By Mrs. Gaynor Maddox, NEA Service Staff Writer
CARROTS for health is not news, but carrots for a caramel pie is sweet news. And it comes from California where they used to talk only about the climate.
Carrot Caramel Pie (6 to 8 servings)
One and one-half cups carrot pulp or 5 medium size coreless carrots, 1 cup evaporated milk, 1-2 cup water, two eggs, 1-2 cup brown sugar firmly packed, 1 cup chopped dates, 1-2 cup chopped walnuts, 1-2 teaspoon salt, 1 tablespoon mixed pastry spices, 1 unbaked nine-inch pastry shell.
Wash, scrape and cut carrots. Cook until tender in boiling water to cover. Drain and force carrots through a sieve or ricer. Scald milk and water. Beat eggs only enough to mix. Gradually add scalded liquid. Then add sugar, spices, salt, carrot pulp, dates and walnuts. Pour into unbaked pastry shell. Bake in hot oven (450 degrees F.) 15 minutes. Reduce to moderate oven (350 degrees F.) and bake 30 minutes longer, or until a silver knife inserted in the center comes out clean. Cut when cold. Serve plain or with whipped cream.
It may be the influence of Hollywood that makes carrots dress for dinner. And dinner, to the carrot family, consists of a lot more than pie.
Salinas Carrot Casserole (6 to 8 servings)
Two bunches carrots, 4 medium size potatoes, 1 onion, 2 cups medium white sauce, seasoning, grated Italian cheese for dusting top. Wash, scrape and cut carrots in rounds. Pare and cut potatoes in rounds. Make medium white sauce and season well. Place white

FRECKLES and HIS FRIENDS—By Blosser

CAST OF CHARACTERS
PRISCILLA PIERCE—heroine, young woman attorney.
AMY KERRICK—Cilly's roommate and murderer's victim.
HARRY HUTCHINS—Amy's strange visitor.
SERGEANT DOLAN—officer assigned to solve the murder of Amy Kerrick.

Yesterday Cilly decides to do a bit of "scouting" from the top of her apartment. On her way to the roof she meets the Corbetts and decides she doesn't want to stop long in their apartment.

CHAPTER XVIII

"MON, baby! One more I'll drink with papa!"
 Tom Corbett swayed as he hung over Cilly. Would he never let her go? She'd been there half an hour, and one by one the lights across the street were going out. She stayed much longer, there he should be nothing to see from the roof.

Across the room, Mrs. Corbett was beginning to nod in her chair. Her words, as she babbled on, were thick, and every few minutes she trailed off to a vague nothingness.

"No, no more, really!" Cilly inquired. She still sipped the first drink he had made for her. She stood up abruptly. She'd made a mistake coming here, all right, but she didn't want to stay. She didn't come on in here with a drink. Quickly she walked to the door and unlocked it.

She opened the door, but not quite fast enough. Sensing her action, Corbett was there first, arms outstretched, blocking the way.

"So! You wanna run out on me, do you?" He enfolded her in his enormous arms. "Oh, no you don't."

"Cilly struggled to free herself. "Corbett!" she shouted. An shrump, "Whazzat, deary?" she inquired. "Whajuz say?"

Mr. Corbett let Cilly go. "Scuse me, I don't try to go yet. It's early. Lemme fix that drink."

THOROUGHLY annoyed now, Cilly went back to the living room. Here was a nice predicament, she thought. Whatever possessed her to ring the Corbetts' doorbell? She might have waited downstairs until someone from the apartment came along, and then explain that she'd forgotten her key.

She sat down beside Mrs. Corbett. The woman was not going to sleep, not if she could help it. "Mrs. Corbett," she said, "I wanted to ask you something about Sunday night . . ."

"Sun-nay night? Oh, my Gawd!" She straightened, shuddered. "Don't remind me. Sunday night. Tom was out west. Tom's always out west. Travelin' man, that's my Tom." She giggled foolishly now. "Travelin' man. Tom, tell her about that time . . . that time out west . . . tell her, Tom . . . that time you—"

"Shut up! Keep your mouth still!" Tom, standing in the kitchen doorway, looked menacingly at his wife.

Mrs. Corbett waved her arms in a pathetically dramatic expression of submission.

"O. K.," she grinned fatuously, but with condescension. "If you won't tell her, I will. I'll tell about that time you were out west—way, way out west. In . . . where was it, darlin'? Where were you that time . . ."

In three quick strides her husband was at her side. "Shut up, I told you!" he shouted. "Shut up! You talk too much. Why don'tcha go to bed? Go to bed!"

"No! I'm gonna tell . . ."

Cilly jumped to her feet. In another second, she could see, Corbett might strike his wife. She wanted to escape and now. "Mr. Corbett," she said with determination, "I'm going home, and if you try to stop me, I'm going to scream until every policeman in Brooklyn gets here. And there have been altogether too many policemen around here lately."

The man's mouth dropped in sulky displeasure. He slumped into a chair, waved his drink in the air.

"Gwan home," he said gruffly. "Who asked you over anyway? Gwan home. Who cares?"

CILLY breathed a deep sigh of relief as she closed the Corbett door behind her. What people! And what a curious contradiction Mrs. Corbett was—a mild, nervous little woman one day; coarsely drunk the next.

She wondered what the story was that the woman had tried to tell her—the story of Mr. Corbett's experience out west—"way, way out west." And why was he so intensely set on not having it told?

She unlocked the door to the roof and stepped out. Slowly she closed it behind her, careful lest it slam. She took a deep breath, before she stepped forward toward the edge.

Suddenly, as she stood beside the three-foot wall enclosing the roof, she wondered just what she expected to discover. Now that she was here, the whole trip seemed utter folly.

Nevertheless, she brought forth the opera glasses and adjusted them to her vision. First, she focused them upon the empty apartment 5-B. This was where she really hoped to find something. A flash of light, perhaps, or the flicker of a candle . . . anything to indicate that someone might be using the apartment as a hideout. But there was nothing. The windows of both empty apartments—5-B and 3-B—loomed black and vacant.

Down she looked into the living room of 2-B. Mr. and Mrs. Smith sat at opposite ends of the divan. Mr. Smith reading a magazine, Mrs. Smith knitting. Next door, Mrs. Elliott's apartment was dark. The light from a street lamp showed nothing unusual here. Mrs. Elliott was still in Connecticut, visiting her daughter.

Above, in 3-A, there were no lights. That was the Carruthers' apartment; they were in Bermuda.

IN 4-A, Cilly saw the Downeys, mother and daughter, getting ready for bed. Trusting souls, they did not draw the shades. They appeared to be arguing, but what mother and daughter do not argue?

No murder clues in that homely scene. Cilly shifted the glasses to the apartment above, the Hunters'. Here was another intimate bedroom scene, with the shades up. Did nobody pull down the bedroom shades any more? Perhaps it was only necessary for those who lived on the first floor. Honest people did not consider the fact that prying neighbors might peer into their lives through opera glasses.

There were twin beds in the Hunter boudoir. Mrs. Hunter turned down one, then she disappeared into the hallway.

Mr. Hunter sat dreamily on the foot of his bed, running his fingers through his hair. Soon his wife returned, placed a thermos jug on the night table between the beds and kissed him goodnight. She climbed into her own bed.

Then Mr. Hunter rose, walked over to the hall and disappeared. Cilly stared in wonderment. Mr. Hunter, paralyzed from the waist down, was walking about his own bedroom!

Eagerly she watched for him to return. In a moment he was back, walking erect and firm. He crossed the room to a bureau, picked up an alarm clock and wound it. Then once more, he walked over to the doorway and switched off the light. Cilly saw no more.

BEHIND THE SCENES IN WASHINGTON

WITH RODNEY DUTCHER

BY RODNEY DUTCHER

NEA Service Staff Correspondent

WASHINGTON—The latest important judicial appointment, that of Senator Hugo Black of Alabama to the Supreme Court, has been attracting plenty of attention. The next one appears to be something that nearly everyone overlooks.

This appointment will fill the present vacancy on the District of Columbia Circuit Court of Appeals. Those who know how genuinely important it is include the President and the attorney general of the United States, and nearly all astute lawyers inside and outside the administration. Backstage maneuvers are in full swing.

THE District Appellate Court has been much more friendly to the New Deal than the Supreme Court, though its decisions have leaned toward the conservative side. Its more elderly conservative members, however, have not hesitated to depart.

As a result, two vacancies already have been filled by appointments of New Deal liberals, a third vacancy exists now following resignation of Chief Justice George Sutherland, and a fourth vacancy is expected through another early resignation.

Here consequently, since it's a five-man court, is a bench to which Roosevelt will be able to name a controlling majority.

New Deal lawyers are distinctly delighted because the District Court of Appeals is the one and only federal court in which federal agencies and officials can be sued if they insist on their right to bring litigation within local jurisdiction. Heretofore this court has been shunned by government lawyers because of its conservatism.

THUS the District Court of Appeals, which potentially is the most important of courts aside from the Supreme Court, apparently is about to become the second most important court of the land in actuality.

Roosevelt filled the first available vacancy with Assistant Attorney General Harold M. Stephens, who had been arguing for New Deal laws in the Supreme and other federal courts. The vacancy caused by the recent death of Justice Josiah Van Orsdal was filled by appointment of Justice Miller, a liberal and former dean of Duke University Law School.

Partly as a result of disclosures alleging Supreme Court Justice Hugo Black's affiliation with the Ku Klux Klan, Roosevelt's next appointment to the district court is fairly sure to be the nomination of a Jewish or a Catholic lawyer. Politics being what they are and Catholic voters being more numerous than Jewish voters, it is a fair bet that a Catholic will be appointed to fill the current vacancy, and a Jew the next.

AMERICAN Communists, professing to have information from Moscow, are doing what they can to offset the bad effect of the Russian trials and supposed executions on American public opinion. They are now saying that leaders who disappear from the scene in Russia and are commonly supposed to have been executed have only been sent away for "periods of contemplation" on the errors of their ways.

The one thing you can be sure of is that Stalin and his friends, whatever the Russian internal situation may be and whatever may be the merit of their elimination of "old Bolsheviks," have begun to indicate a genuine concern as to the rest of the world's reaction. RALPH GULDAHL found his ball, as was to be expected, in the middle of the fairway, 250 yards from the tee. He drew a No. 2 iron from his bag and whacked the ball, a-whistling, onto the green. "You know," said the National Open champion as he strode along after the shot, "Harry Cooper is just about the finest golfer of all time. Yes sir, he's the best ever. And I'm not forgetting Bobby Jones and Walter Hagen and all the rest when I say that."

"Every time I make an iron shot I think of Cooper. He's the greatest guy with an iron I ever saw—greater even than Tommy Armour, and, you know, the boys have always considered Tommy the tops with the irons."

"Cooper can't quite get the distance that Tommy gets, but he's far more accurate. He's a sharp-shooter with those clubs."

THE husky, hulking Texan walked briskly across the green to his ball, studied the 22-foot putt for a moment or so, and then ran the ball up to within a few inches of the cup. He pushed it in for another par.

"Harry's only weakness," said Ralph, "is right here on the green. His putting could be better. He loses strokes here that keep him from winning first place in more tournaments."

"But, even so, I say that he's the greatest golfer that ever lived—absolutely the greatest."

Guldahl flipped his ball to his caddy and said, "Give it a wash, will you, kid?" Then he resumed the monolog. . . .

"You know, the U. S. G. A. ought to get together with the Royal and Ancient Golf Club of England and the Canadian Golf Association and dope out a uniform ball."

"I personally like the American ball, which is larger, for putting because it holds its line better. But, of course, the smaller ball is good for driving because it bores into the wind better. I guess it all depends on what you're used to."

HE stopped talking long enough to whom a drive into the wind. It was a lousy smack. . . . "Those British courses are longer than ours," said the champion as he stooped over and picked up his tee, "but the toughest thing about them are their greens. They're flatter than the American greens, but I'd rather play ours. You see, over here the roll is pronounced, but over there it's so slight you can't notice it and you're caught off-guard. . . ."

Ralph just had a short approach shot to make. He lofted the ball over a trap and onto the green. It rolled up to within a few feet of the cup. . . .

"That Montague fellow—you know, John Montague of Hollywood, is all they say he is. He may not knock birds off wires—although I won't doubt that he did it once—but he sure does knock those birds off on the greens and fairways. He has a marvelous short game and is good coming out of traps. He's really a good golfer—why, you know, he shot a 66 at Pebble Beach—yeah, a 66!"

Allred Challenged By S.T.C. of C. Head

AUSTIN, Oct. 5.—Ray Leeman of San Antonio, vice president and general manager of the South Texas Chamber of Commerce, today challenged Governor James V. Allred to join that organization in a mutual disclosure of all contributions.

The challenge followed a press conference statement of the Governor that he hoped Leeman would bring a list of contributors to the organization to a hearing on the tax bills.

The Governor said court records show that in 1936 the Texas Gulf Sulphur company was contributing $500 a quarter to the South Texas Chamber of Commerce.

Whooping Cough Dangerous to Very Young Says Doctor
AUSTIN.—"To the very young there is no other disease as dangerous as whooping cough," states Dr. Geo. W. Cox, State Health Officer.

"In addition there is no other disease causing an equal amount of suffering of which parents show so much inexplicable disregard, not only for the safety of their own children, but also for that of their neighbor's children."

"There does not exist a natural immunity against whooping cough during the first six months of life as there does for measles. It is at this age that whooping cough strikes its hardest blow, and over fifty per cent of the deaths occur in children under one year of age."

"Whooping cough is usually transmitted by direct contact with the secretions of the mouth or nose, and only a very short exposure is required to contract the infection. Handkerchiefs, drinking cups and toys may also transmit the infection."

The infection is communicable from the appearance of the first symptoms and is most contagious at this early period when the nature of the affection can only be suspected. The incubation period is commonly seven days. A slight fever, running of the nose, and a cough make their appearance so gradually and insidiously that a diagnosis is practically impossible unless a history of exposure is obtained.

"When the whoop appears there is no mistaking the disease. If there is whooping cough in your community, keep other children away from your little children and keep your children at home. Call your family physician early. Isolation of all cases for at least two weeks from the development of the characteristic whoop should be rigidly enforced."

PEEPING THRU The KNOTHOLE

WITH BILL MAYES

Apparently they were all steamed up over making those two touchdowns against the Abilene Eagles, because the Bulldogs were really putting out Monday afternoon and trying hard to perfect some of the points of the game on which they have proven to be weakest.

Several of the linemen have learned something in the two conference games and are trying to master the technique of taking out opposing linemen and making holes for the backs to scamper through. And the backs are beginning to get that drive that is essential, hole or no hole, before a play can click.

Bill Houghton, though light, apparently had more drive than anyone else in the backfield, though McKelvin showed that he can really put out when he tries and when the line will give him an opportunity.

Backfield Coach Jennings had lots to say. Among other things he said that apparently some of the linemen thought that what they should do was lean against the ball carrier knock them both out of the way and make his own hole and advance the ball.

He also said that some of the backs seemed to think that the linemen should make a wide hole, then reach back and drag the ball carrier through it for a gain.

The coaches then demonstrated how line plays should be made and the team did them rather satisfactorily and as the scrimmage ended there was more cooperation and more drive than any time this year.

The ground attack is being polished up considerably and it is hoped that it can be made to function against Brownwood. A number of the players are so new at this game of football that they have had to learn by actual experience why plays do not click or why they do. Many learned in Abilene what had been demonstrated over and over again, but which had not thoroughly soaked in, and they are trying now to put to the best possible use the things they have learned.

The Bulldogs have the makings of a good team this year and a better team next year if they can just get instilled into them the manner in which plays should be made. They already have the spirit to win and as Johnny Poe, once famous as a Princeton captain, remarked in his playing days, "A team that won't be beat can't be beat."
