Helping Unions Drive Out the Racketeers

The touchiest subject any politician can be asked to bandle is the matter of out-and-out racketeers in labor

It's a subject that comes up pretty often, unfortunately. In a good many big cities thugs and musclemen have moved in on certain old established unions and turned them into rackets. Ruling by bomb and gun, they give labor a fearfully costly black eye; yet the average officeholder is afraid to touch them for fear that he will be labeled "anti-labor."

This sort of timidity is just what enables the racketeers to stay in business. It ought to be obvious that the rank and file of any labor union would be tickled to death to have the authorities get the racketeers off their necks; and once in a while some nervy public official comes along and

Somewhat less than two years ago, a special prosecufor named Thomas E. Dewey went into New York City to try to break up assorted rackets. It was not long before he turned his attention to the unions; and immediately he was loudly assailed as a unionbuster and a oe of organized labor.

Unperturbed, he went right ahead with his work. He found one of the worst messes in the various restaurant unions, where gangsters were in complete cotnrol. Another mess, almost equally bad, was uncovered in the

During the succeeding months Dewey sent the restaurant unions' racketeers to prison and enabled the rank and file in the painters' union to do their own housecleaning. And just the other day he was called in to witness the signing of a contract between the Childs Restaurant chain and a joint committee from the waiters,', waitresses' and cafeteria workers' unions.

"It was a happy moment," he said afterward, "when was privileged to witness a contract between these unions and one of the nation's largest restaurant chains, and to know that through that document a union I was accused of trying to wreck was about doubled in memberghip. What I had done was to release that union from the domination of the racketeers, so that those men in it who had been fighting racket control might once again take its affairs in Hand."

And on the following day. Dewey appeared before $000 members of the painters' union and was cheered to the echo as a true friend of labor.

The point of all of this is obvious. When racketeers get control of a labor union, no public official is going to lose abor's friendship by putting the racketeers in prison; on the contrary, he is going to win it. For when gangsters do ake over a union, they do it against the will of the honest cank and file; and the officeholder who is too dumb to realize this or too timid to act on its merits-and getsabor's deep contempt.

Float Committee Outlines Work On Section of Parade

The parade float committee for the 20th anniversary homecoming to be held in Ranger on Thursday, Oct. 21, met this morning in the office of the chamber of merce, with A. N. Larson, chairman, presiding, and outined plans for contacting merchants, civic organizations and others to secure floats for the parade.

A committee composed of Edwin George, Jr., and Felton Brashier was appointed to solicit entries from merchants on the north side of Main street and a committee composed of Floyd Kikings-worth and J. L. Ambler will solicit entries from merchants on the south side of the street. Larson will work to secure floats from those east of the Texas & Pacific Railway tracks.

In addition to the committees amed today, Larson will appear before the Lions club at their meeting Thursday to have a committee appointed from the club to ontact clubs in Eastland, Cisco and Breckenridge to secure floats and Brashier will contact the Rotary club today to have a similar ommittee appointed.

Larson today appealed to every club in Ranger to have an entry in the parade, and urged those who planned floats to notify the chamber of commerce in order tha provisions could be made for the entry being listed.
