How About Ducking 'Next' Depression

For a long time the people of this country had one question which they were constantly asking: "When will the depression end?"

There seems to be general agreement now that the depression is pretty well over. So the old question has been dropped, to be replaced by an equally anxious one: "When will the next depression begin?"

There seems to be no particular confidence anywhere that we have mastered the problem of preventing depressions. We got out of the last one, by hook or crook, and we are now enjoying a fair measure of prosperity.

Figures on industrial production are ordinarily dull reading. But Elmer C. Bratt of Lehigh University has presented some, in the current issue of The Annalist...

A business decline, remarks Mr. Bratt, follows a period in which industrial production gets out of adjustment. In good times, production of durable goods—buildings, factory equipment, railroad engines, and so on—tends to exceed the production of consumer goods.

The country's need for durable goods is met, workers making them are released, their release causes the demand for consumer goods to fall—and down we go in the unpleasant spiral of a depression.

Right now, continues Mr. Bratt, no such situation is in sight. The country still needs a great many more things in the durable goods bracket. The railroads have only begun to make up for the long period in which they bought little equipment.

All of this is very encouraging—as far as it goes. But must we accept the old depression-and-prosperity cycle as an immutable law of nature?

To know that we shan't have a depression for several years is good, but not good-enough. It might be a good thing for us to stop thinking about recovery and start thinking about prevention.

Germans are giving up their gold fillings to the Fatherland. Hitler needs them to repair the teeth in his peace treaties.

Blanton Announces He Will Appeal In Privilege Hearing

ABILENE, Oct. 9.—The defendants, Congressman Clyde L. Garrett and his secretary, J. W. Cokerill, were favored in a report Friday of the jury that heard testimony in a hearing on their plea of privilege hearing in Thomas L. Blanton's suit for $100,000 libel.

Blanton announced he would appeal the case to the 11th court of civil appeals at Eastland, when answers to the 14 special issues on which the case was submitted to the jury were read.

Judge Milburn S. Long, who presided at the 11-day trial, said he would render a judgment next week. Answers given by the jury to the special issues were to the effect that: Blanton had resided in Taylor county from July 16, 1936, through Aug. 23, 1936.

The defendants had not entered into a conspiracy to defame the plaintiff, and that there had been no malice in any such conspiracy. Some material an seven specified exhibits of the plaintiff (newspaper advertisements and circulars circulated in opposition to Blanton), were untrue.

IT'S IN THE News!

There are two classes of news in these columns every day:

- (1) Interesting stories about events all over the world; and (2) The advertisements. Yes, the advertisements are news, and in many ways the most important of all, because they affect you more directly and personally than any other.

A new and better method of refrigeration is devised—and you learn about it through advertisements. Improvements are added to automobiles which make them safer than ever—again advertisements carry the story. Styles change in clothing—and advertisements rush the news to your doorstep. A manufacturer finds a way to lower the price on his products—he advertises to tell you about the savings.

You'll find that it pays to follow this news every day. Reading the advertisements is the sure way to keep abreast of the world... to learn of new comforts and conveniences... to get full money's worth for every dollar you spend.

bring her back . . . something which the doctors haven't thought of. The trouble came so sudden-like, you see. There must be something to bring her back . . . if we could only find it."

There were tears in his eyes, which he hastened to brush away with a work-roughened hand. Cilly's heart went out to the man. "I won't mention what you have told me, Mr. Johnson," she promised.

"I hope you won't, Miss Pierce," he said, appealingly. "I never spoke to anybody about this before. I don't want it to get around. When my wife gets better, it won't help any to have it known that she's been away all these years."

Well, if there's anything else I can do, Miss Pierce . . . He started to leave.

"Oh, yes, Mr. Johnson, here is something else. Remember what I said this morning, down at police headquarters, about Mr. Hunter?"

"You mean about seeing him walk last night?"

"Yes. That was the truth, Mr. Johnson. I went over on the roof across the way just to watch the Bayview. What I really hoped to see was somebody in one of the empty apartments. It just happened that I met Mr. Corbett first—he was drunk, and very unpleasant . . ."

Johnson nodded. "He looked that sort of a man."

"However, I did see Mr. Hunter walking about his bedroom just as sure as I see you now. He's faking this paralysis, for some reason. What time do you usually take him up on the roof, Mr. Johnson?"

"He's up there now. I took him up about 15 minutes before you came along."

"Then Mrs. Hunter is alone now, probably washing the supper dishes. I think I'll go up to see her."

A FEW minutes later, Mrs. Hunter came to the door of her apartment in answer to Cilly's ring. When she saw who it was, she stepped back, startled. Cilly entered, shutting the door behind her.

"I'd like to talk to you about your husband, Mrs. Hunter," she said unhesitatingly.

"I've nothing to tell you!" the woman cried in terror. "You should be ashamed of yourself, making trouble for decent people. You've no right in my apartment. I'll tell my husband . . ."

Cilly walked boldly into the living room and sat down.

"There's been a murder committed in this house, Mrs. Hunter," she reminded the woman. "And the murderer is one of the men living here. Your husband was the nearest to the roof last Sunday night . . ."

Mrs. Hunter began to cry hysterically. "Mr. Hunter is no murderer," she sobbed. "He never killed that girl. He never hurt anybody in his life, no matter what else . . ."

"No matter what else he did?" Cilly finished for her. "What is his other crime then, Mrs. Hunter? Cheating an insurance company?"

It was a blind stab in the dark; at the moment Cilly did not know herself what prompted the words. They hit home, nevertheless.

MRS. HUNTER wailed. Beseechingly she held her hands out to Cilly. "Don't testify, miss. I'll tell you about it, but I beg of you, don't let them think my husband is a murderer. He was in his bed when it happened. I swear it!"

"Why does he pretend to be a helpless cripple when he isn't?" Gradually the woman's sobs subsided; she began to speak more calmly. "My husband was out of work, and we were up against it. One week we hadn't had food for three days. He was frantic. Late that third night he was coming home, when right in front of our house a big car came tearing down the street. All of a sudden, it hit a dog and killed him. The driver swerved, and kept on going. He hit my husband. I saw it from the window. I screamed and ran out. Somewhere down the street, the police got the driver of the car. He was so drunk he couldn't stand up. It made my husband wild with anger. We hadn't eaten for three days, and this man could go around in a $10,000 car endangering other people's lives and property."

"Mr. Hunter had studied medicine, so when the young intern on the ambulance arrived, it was easy to make out that he was paralyzed. So easy, in fact, that he kept up the pretense. The young fellow who ran his dog settled for $50,000. He'll never miss it—his father left him $4,000,000. We live here quietly, because the man's lawyers still check up on my husband. But sometimes we go away on little trips and my husband doesn't have to pretend. . . . Oh, I know it's wrong . . . but what does it matter to that man? He should have been taught a lesson."

THE OWL'S FEATHER. 10-9

SISTER MARY'S KITCHEN

By Mrs. Gaynor Maddox
NEA Service Staff Writer

TWO answers to two totally different questions—Mrs. Edgar Blower, San Francisco, wants a day's menu for a person with a cold. Here it is, and just what the doctor ordered.

For a person having both a fever and a cold:

Breakfast at 8 a. m., 8 ounces orange juice, coffee with cream and sugar, cream of wheat and cream.

At 11 a. m. there should be an 8 ounce glass of pineapple juice, and at 2 p. m. some milk toast with fruit sherbet.

At 5 p. m., another 8 ounce glass but this time with grapefruit juice.

Dinner will consist of tomato juice with lemon, a poached egg on toast, and at 10 p. m. before going to sleep, another 8 ounce glass of orange juice.

Remember, that is for a cold and fever combined.

A bad cold without the extra woe of a fever, permits a little more food during the day. Breakfast consists of 8 ounces orange juice, a poached egg on toast, dry toast and coffee. At 10 a. m. an 8 ounce glass of orange and pineapple juice mixed, and for lunch there is tomato juice, fresh vegetable salad with french dressing and cottage cheese balls; also Melba toast and melon. Grapefruit juice appears at 5 p. m. and for dinner, there is vegetable soup, broiled lamb chop, string beans, grilled tomato, hearts of lettuce with French dressing, fresh fruit cup.

Drink plenty of water in both cases and fruit juices, such as pineapple, grapefruit, lemon and orange which tend to alkalize easily. Better put 1-2 teaspoon of lemon juice in each glass of water. Omit all sweets and pastries while the cold is on.

Mrs. John W. Easton of Catteraugus, New York, wants a recipe for sweet dill pickles.

Sweet Dill Pickles

Nine pounds medium size prepared dill pickles, 4 1-2 pounds sugar, 1 tablespoon allspice, 1 table spoon cloves, 2 whole garlics, 2-4 cups tarragon vinegar, 1 cup olive oil.

In glass containers or stone crocks, place a layer of dill pickles, then a layer of sugar, until container is filled. Mix vinegar, oil and spices and pour over pickles. Stir daily for 4 days. Then your dill pickles are sweet enough to eat, Mrs. Easton.

Prices Fixed on Purchasing Buicks

Mich., Oct. 9.—Harold Curtice, president of the Division of General Motors, said today that increases of all Buick closed cars kept to a maximum of 5 per cent.

An executive said that the new represent increases from $7 over 1937 prices, and are no more than one per cent to last year. The increases, he said, are in the priced lines of cars. That the 1938 prices are generally anti-

CHRISTIANS IN GOD'S CARE

Text: Jude 1-4, 17-23

BY WM. E. GILROY, D. D., Editor of Advance

CHRISTIANITY made its way in an ancient world of evil. The pure souls who heard the voice of Jesus and turned to His way of life, and the early converts who came after that first generation of Christians were at once face to face with all the difficulties and temptations and dangers of a surrounding pagan world.

To be a Christian meant to be in constant danger of persecution because the world at all times has been very critical and hostile toward those who have not conformed to its ways.

The menace that besets the Christian, however, does not all come from without. In every such situation there are those who take some compromising and expedient way. They do not bluntly and frankly yield to temptation, but they find some means of justifying their conduct to themselves and others.

It is this situation that is described in this lesson from the one-chapter book of Jude. Jude is described as the brother of James, and it is supposed that they were brothers, or half-brothers, of our Lord.

Apparently the brothers of Jesus were slow at first to believe in His divine mission, but James and Jude became zealous disciples. Our lesson reveals Jude as a man of pure and beautiful character, zealous to save the early Christians from corruption and from the debasing influences of their environment.

Those Feuding City Folk Take to Old Hillbilly Customs

By United Press

FORT WORTH, Tex.—A feud between two Fort Worth neighbors was halted by police after a 48-year-old housewife set fire to the house next door.

One neighbor complained of the noise in the house adjacent to her home. The accused family came over ready for action. The complainant armed herself with a hammer and met them at the door. That night, rubbish was piled against the hammer wielder's door and ignited.

FORT WORTH, Tex.—Armed with two dogs, a shotgun and two pistols, a 60-year-old Fort Worth man took a few swigs and set out to find a neighbor.

Police sent him home. A few hours later he set out again to find the neighbor, and ended up in a hospital for treatment for a lacerated scalp and eye cut.

He had neglected to load his weapons.

Behind the Scenes in Washington

WASHINGTON.—The Republican National Committee is certain to call a national convention of the party for 1938.

G. O. P. leaders and workers throughout the country are insisting they want "action." Only a few of the older hands, it appears, are worrying as to what the convention will be like and what will come out of it.

The party will have to agree on a statement of party principles and back over its presidential possibilities for 1940. The possibilities range between that of a glorious rejuvenation and that of a headache before, during and after. Two or three months ago, Herbert Hoover's private battle for this national convention appeared to have been squelched by ex-Gov. Alfred M. Landon's coldness toward the project.

But Hoover's influence with the national committee remains strong. The Roosevelt court plan was beaten down, the Black-Klan incident has popped up and party workers are raring to go—even though they're not sure where Ex-Governor Landon will now accede to the convention proposal.

Fundamental issues cover relief, farm legislation, labor, the Constitution and some others. The idea now is to have a few outstanding Republicans—who would include Hoover, Landon, Frank Looney, Senator Vandenberg of Michigan and Senate Minority Leader Charlie McNary of Oregon —sit down as a planning committee to exchange sentiment and work out a rough draft of policy. Their real function would be to steer the convention and keep it from chaos.

RECENT Republican conferences have produced as much informal nomination talk as you might expect. Vandenberg is by all odds the outstanding man in such discussions. There's some sentiment for Bridges of New Hampshire. Most Republicans who don't know young Lodge ask about him, although expressing the opinion that he will still be too young for a presidential nomination in 1940.

Westerners look to McNary for leadership. Hoover has strength in the national committee machinery which is reflected to some degree among the rank and file.

John D. Hamilton appears to have solidified his position and influence as national chairman. This fact was partly indicated by resignation of once powerful National Committeeman Charles D. Hilles of New York. The two had been consistently at odds. Hilles, who had been raising the big money in New York for the party for many, many years, had found his old power steadily dwindling. He hadn't been raising much money for the party treasury lately and other Republican leaders felt he could if he tried. There was some pointed criticism and Hilles quit.

Mrs. J. W. Ducker and M. H. Hagaman to Represent Club at Federated Meet
When Ranger's two socially prominent groups, the 1920 and New Era clubs launch plans the study season is considered under way. Attractive year books have been distributed and already members are familiar with the routine of study to cover the years of 1937-38.

Thursday afternoon at 2:30 o'clock members of 1930 club gathered in the Colonial room, Ghobson hotel and heard a program offered under the leadership of Mrs. L. N. Griffin, as better speech leader, in the absence of Mrs. L. C. G. Buchanan, whose membership has been withdrawn due to her moving to Clovis, N. M.

Mrs. J. E. Fletcher, as leader introduced Mrs. Bob Hodges, whose topic was Geography of Texas. Mrs. J. F. Drienhofer followed discussing the subject, "Inhabitants" Mrs. Fred Warren, gave Mrs. Lula Riddle's paper, "Local Place Names." Music sounded the concluding note with "Texas, Our Texas."
