Vicious Weather of Tropics, or Cold of Arctics Made to Order

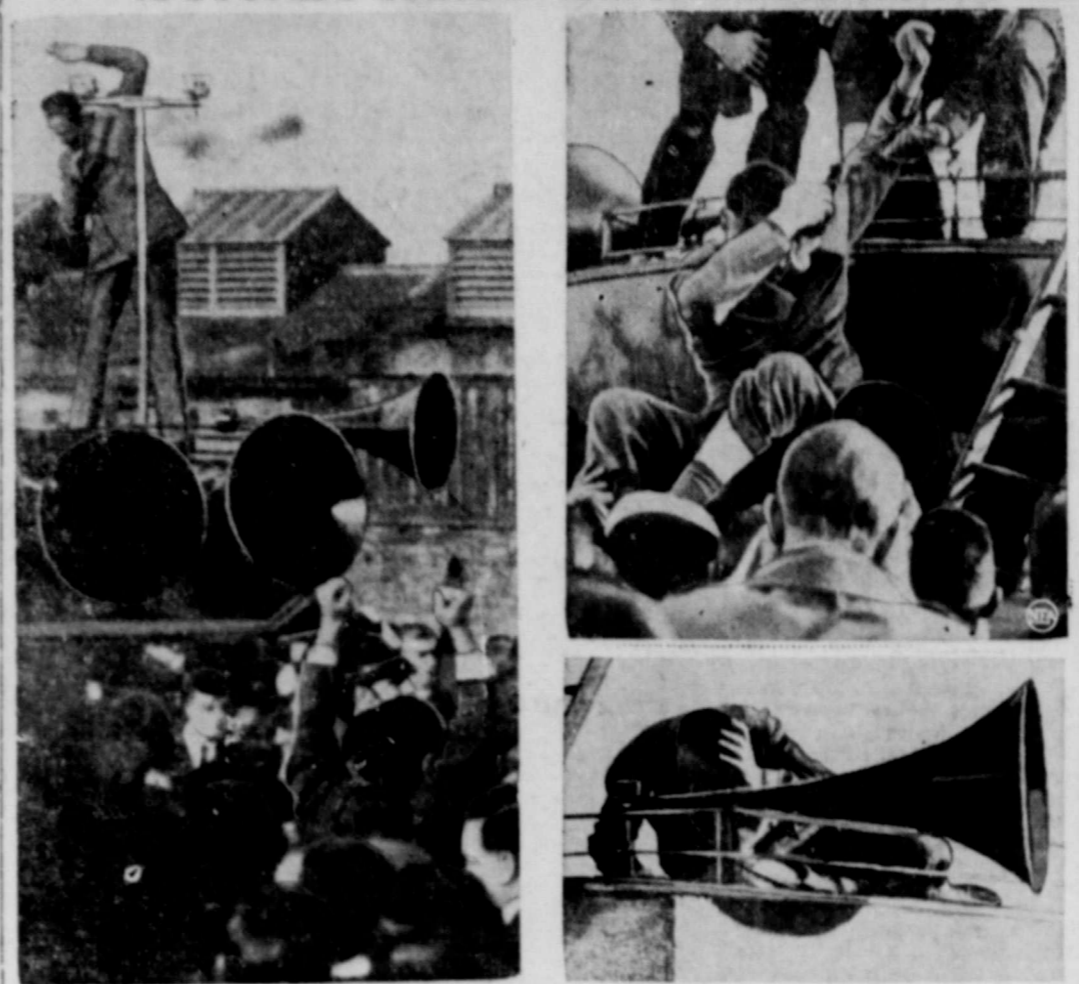

Above is the unique contrivance known as the "humidifier" in which Philco makes weather ranging from vicious humidity of tropics to dry heat of deserts and bitter cold of Arctics to assure serviceability of its radio in any part of the world.

Mark Twain once remarked: "Everybody talks about the weather, but nobody ever does anything about it." Philco has bottled up Mosquito Coast climate in a steamy cabin where inside humidity for one particular test is 96 degrees, just a little short of saturation. Temperature is 100 degrees, a formidable blend when sustained continuously for days. Denver, Colo., is the established guide for conditions of extreme aridity of air, and one cabin room produces 100-degree heat matching climate performances of Arabia, Sahara or Iraq. Zero cold conditions, suddenly shifting to 35 or 40 degrees below a frequent middle Northwestern performance in the United States are created in refrigerator testers. Needless to say if the Philco can sustain these tests, it will perform under any adverse conditions.

BRITISH FASCIST CHIEF FINDS HE'S ONLY A STONE'S THROW AWAY FROM AUDIENCE

This series of dramatic pictures shows how foes of Sir Oswald Mosley, leader of British Fascists, put him out of action at a Liverpool mass meeting. Atop the loudspeaker bus above, he raises his arms to ward off a barrage of stones hurled by spectators near his "platform." But Mosley's defenses were ineffectual. Down he goes, at top, felled by a large rock that hit his head. A few moments later, the unconscious form of the British "Hitler" is lowered to waiting ambulance men. He suffered a fractured skull, will have to rest several months.

Church Subpoena is Almost Too Real

MANSFIELD, Ohio. — Will G. Herrold, superintendent of the South Main Street Evangelical Sunday School, had an idea for drawing a record crowd on Rally Day. He issued 450 "subpoenas," besprinkled with legal terms, and commanding the recipients to appear at Sunday services. Everybody said they looked remarkably authentic. In fact, they were so good they threw one woman into a fright. It took considerable explaining by Herrold to calm her.

THE CONSEQUENCES OF DRINKING

"I Am a Prohibitionist"

The use of alcoholic drinks stimulates man to crime. It blunts his perceptive faculties. When a man is drunk he does not perceive the character of his acts. Drunken men have insulted women and consequently lost their lives, who all ways when sober treated women with the greatest respect.

Drunkenness destroys man's reason. Reason is one of the fundamental things that distinguish man from the beast. When reason is destroyed, man sinks below the brute for he has not the animal instinct to guide him. For the being who was made in God's image to voluntarily become a maniac, or a fool, is sufficient to make an angel weep.

Alcohol is ruinous to man's moral nature. The drunkard will take the last dollar from his wife, given to her by her dying mother and use it to buy this inflammable hell. There are records where men have been willing to sell the virtue of his wife and daughters for satisfaction to this appetite.

Drink also stimulates amative-ness. The saloon and the brothel have always been intimately related. Among the ancients those who worshiped Bacchus, the god of wine, nearly always worshiped Venus, the goddess of sensuality. We can never get rid of the brothel until we banish the saloon.

When we consider the deleterious effects of alcoholic drinks upon human society, it is passing strange that there are men who persist in contending for the wide open sale of such. The only remedy that has been in any sense a success, has been prohibition.

Would you like to hear what the ministers of this city have to say on this crime. Then attend one of the church services next Sunday, Oct. 24. Tomorrow's subject will be "Whom Does the Liquor

No. 8 Shoe Now Is Average for Women Instead of No. 4

By United Press

RALEIGH, N. C.—Milady's foot, once distinctive and smart only if appearing ultra-small, has grown an average of four sizes in the past two decades and is growing still.

Furthermore, modern, well-dressed women no longer object to wearing larger-sized shoes.

They ask for them. They have renounced the tiny foot as a criterion of feminine loveliness and are going in for comfort in their footwear, according to Roscoe Griffin, president of a North Carolina shoe store chain.

"The average size of women's shoes 20 years ago was a 4," Griffin said. "Today it is an 8."

Women's feet will continue to grow larger for several years, Griffin believes, now that shoes actually fit and permit proper pedal development.

"Most important of all, women today don't worry about their feet being large. They are willing to be fitted, instead of demanding certain sizes, usually too small," Griffin added.

He explained the increasing size of women's feet as due to a gradual change from too-small, cramping, styled-for-style and not for comfort shoes to narrower, longer and made-to-fit shoes which the women of today insist on buying.

"It allows normal foot growth," Griffin explained. "Women say, too, that corns and bunions are much less frequent."

Griffin said that in the 20 years he had sold women's shoes sizes increased to the No. 8 average.

"The new demand for a style that fits the foot, instead of the fancy, is shown by the fact that many shoes from 5 A's to triple E's—are sold now, a thing undreamed of years ago."

"Today by far the greatest number of shoes are size 8, while requests and fittings in 9s and 10s are nothing unusual."

"More women are working and on their feet today than 20 or 30 years ago, and continual standing on feet or use of them tends to make them spread."

Griffin emphasized, however, that the "most healthy sign" is that women no longer are "ashamed" of big feet and therefore want the size they should have for normal growth and comfort.

Jacksonville Gets Fingerprint Outfit

Corpus Christi Oil Refining Business Growing Rapidly

CORPUS CHRISTI — Corpus Christi's growing popularity in the field of oil refining has recently brought announcements by three companies that they will establish refining units here in the near future. The new plants will augment the eight refineries now in operation, which are using up approximately 60,000 barrels of crude daily.

Soon to be completed is the new refinery of the Barnsdall Oil Company, located on Corpus Christi's industrial canal. The plant will use approximately 12,000 barrels of crude daily. Permit for construction of a $50,000 refinery on the ship channel here was recently let to the General American Tank Storage Terminal Company, which has operated a tank farm in Corpus Christi for the past four years.

The Barnsdall Company and the Humble Oil & Refining Company will soon begin construction of an absorption plant in the Flour Bluff oil field, nine miles southeast of Corpus Christi. The plant will have a capacity of processing from 15 to 20 million cubic feet of gas daily, producing a daily run of 10,000 to 20,000 gallons of gasoline.

The absorption plant will be similar to one now operated here by the Southern Minerals Corporation. The Southern Minerals plant, with an original daily capacity of 25 to 30 million cubic feet of gasoline daily. It recovers waste gas from wells in the Sacket field and processes the light oils from the gas into gasoline.

The Humble Oil & Refining Company's refinery at Ingleside is the largest in the Corpus Christi section and uses an average of 21,000 barrels of crude daily. Other refineries operating in this vicinity are the Amoco Refining Corporation; the Corpus Christi Refining Company; the Terminal Refining Company; the Houston Oil Company; the Pettus Refining Company and the Clarkwood Refinery.

Although her 60,000-barrel refining production today may look small as compared to other oil centers, Corpus Christi is looked upon by oil men as a great po-

Progress Is Seen In War on Cancer

By United Press

BERKELEY, Cal.—Scientists of the university of California are increasing greatly the use of radioactive substances produced by the cyclotron in the experimental treatment of both human and animal malignant growths, most deadly of which is cancer.

Dr. John H. Lawrence, member of the medical faculty of Yale University and Dr. Joseph Hamilton are coordinating the facilities of the university's radiation laboratory and the school of medicine in the work.

The cyclotron magnet, which imparts radio-active qualities to substance, recently underwent a five-week overhauling. Since that time, Dr. Lawrence has been conducting experimental work with the cyclotron. With several major concerns now preparing to enter the local field and others contemplating establishing plants here, Corpus Christi shows promise of soon becoming one of the major oil refining centers of the Gulf coast region.

ducting experiments with one of its products, radio phosphorus.

Another cyclotron product, radio-sodium, has been used by the department of roentgenology of the medical school to determine its effect on certain malignant growths in human beings. It has developed enough clinical merit to justify further experimentation, experts believe.

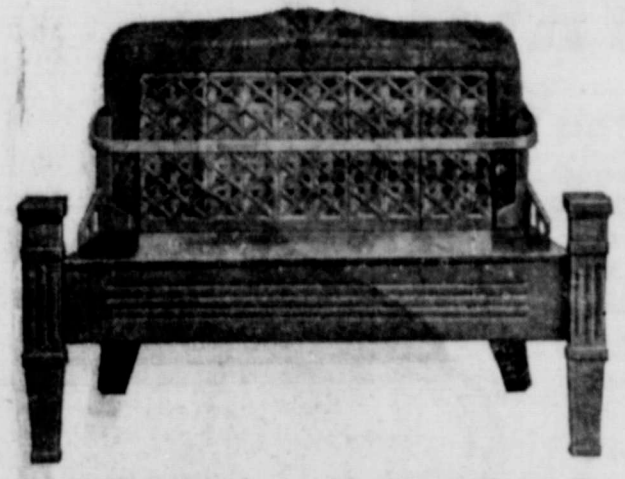

The radio-active elements have been experimentally in the control of poultry disease and in a number of experiments that open a new field of biologic and medical test activities.

The intense activity of neutron rays in destroying biological materials, including both normal and neoplastic or tumorous tissue. It has been proved that neutrons are more biologically effective than the X-ray, but they do not as yet provide as valuable a weapon in the combating of cancer because they are not as well known.

Reviving an Issue That 'Died' in 1920

President Roosevelt's Chicago speech compels Americans to take another look at a question which was supposedly settled once and for all in the League of Nations election in 1920.

For although this speech contained not the slightest hint that this country should enter the League, it did point unmistakably in the direction of international co-operation along the lines laid down by Woodrow Wilson.

In 1920 the country turned that idea down flat, and imagined that its ghost was laid forever. But the ghost proved restless. It stalked abroad from time to time during the twenties, leaving its imprint on the Dawes plan, the Young plan, the German moratorium and the series of World Court fights. Now it is back again, as robust and substantial as ever.

And it is about time for us to ask ourselves whether the idea of complete national isolation is a sound idea to follow in a world where the ties binding nation to nation is as strong as they are today.

The last few years have been grimly educational. We have seen the collapse, one after another, of the treaties and unwritten laws by which national security is buttressed. We have seen the triumph of dictatorial gangs opposed to every ideal we cherish. We have seen the world building up for a new war that would be more dreadful and calamitous than the last one.

Through all of this we have tried to mind our own business; for we want very earnestly to be allowed to work out our domestic problems, to find our way out of the recurring cycle of boom and depression, to establish prosperity and justice in our land so that they cannot be shaken. But to do this we need a stable and peaceful world to work in.

So we are forced to ask ourselves, now, whether this peaceful and stable world will take shape of itself, in the condition things are in now, or whether we will have to do something to help it along.

The question answers itself. The world is getting less stable and less peaceful every day. Pious expressions of disapproval don't mend matters any more than they kept Italy from overwhelming Ethiopia, kept Italy, Russia, and Germany from interfering in the Spanish civil war or kept Japan out of China. If the world goes on drifting it will eventually drift straight into disaster.

The alternative, of course, is to take definite and positive action, in collaboration with other nations, to insure peace and stability. It involves taking risks and making enemies. It means concerning ourselves more directly and vitally than ever before with the quarrels and intrigues of the old world.

Do we want to do it? Probably not. And yet we may have to. For if it is risky to do this, it is just about as risky to do nothing at all.

We must decide which of the two risks we are to take; and we may well find that when the world is catching fire, we can be safe only by helping to put the fire out.

The weight of an eagle alone, as it drops with terrific force from a great height, is enough to break the back of a good-sized animal.

Three Games Will Be Broadcast By Humble Company

The Southwest Conference championship gets underway in earnest Saturday afternoon, with three intra-conference games scheduled in which two of the contestants—Rice and S. M. U.—make their first starts against conference competition. All three of the games will be broadcast over an extensive network of Texas stations by the Humble Oil & Refining Company.

Headliner of the afternoon features a meeting between the undefeated Baylor eleven and the Texas A. & M. team. This game will be broadcast by the Humble Company from College Station over KPRC, Houston; WOAI, San Antonio; KRIS, Corpus Christi; KRGV, Waco; WACA, Waco; and WFAA-WBAP, Dallas-Fort Worth. The game begins at 2:30 p. m., the broadcast 10 minutes earlier at 2:20.

Rice vs. Texas is the renewal of a rivalry which of late years has furnished the Southwest with some of its most colorful, most spectacular and most exciting football games. This game will also be broadcast by the Humble Company at 2:20 p. m., with Cy Leland handling the play-by-play and Jack Mitchell the color. The game will be carried by stations KNOW, Austin; KTRH, Houston; KTSB, San Antonio and KTAT, Fort Worth.

The third conference game is the debut of Southern Methodist University's Mustangs against the defending champions of Arkansas. This game will be broadcast from Fort Smith, Arkansas, beginning at 2:20 p. m., with Gene Cagle at the microphone for play-by-play and Tom Jacobs for color. It can be heard over station KRLD, Dallas.

Bulldogs Stubborn

After the kickoff Whitefield passed to McKelvin from his own 30-yard line, McKelvin going to the Big Spring 45 before he was downed. Just short of another first down Ranger fumbled the passback from center and Big Spring got possession of the ball on their own 45, and two first downs carried to the Bulldog 25 and Cunningham got away for a 20-yard run around the left side of his line for another touchdown, but Womack was held when he tried to score the extra point.

The game was the best the Bulldogs had played, even after Hall Byers and Frazier, first string linemen, had been forced out of the game and the Steers had a much closer struggle than they had anticipated. The Bulldog line was particularly effective, from end to end, with few yards being gained directly through the line or any one play, though that was the route Big Spring took to finally batter down their lighter opponents to get in scoring position.

AUSTIN.—"One-eyed" automobiles and those without working tail lights will be classed as public enemies in the state highway patrol's campaign for road safety.

The campaign will be started as quickly as 125 fledgling patrolmen have finished their training and can augment the seasoned force.

"All traffic law violations will receive equal attention," promised L. G. Phares, patrol chief, "but from the standpoint of safety, improperly lighted vehicles are considered extra-important.

"There will be no 'drives,' but pleted Bulldog Stadium was dedicated in an impressive ceremony with Dr. Harry A. Logsdon introducing Tom Yonker, who acted as master of ceremonies. Short talks were made by Rayburn, Big Spring captain and Elton Boney of Ranger, who substituted for Jack Hall, Ranger captain, who had been hurt a few minutes before the half ended and was unable to appear. Hall, however, went back into the game in the third quarter after he had recuperated and played a good game afterwards.

W. T. Walton, superintendent of schools, made the dedicatory address, followed by a selection by the Ranger High School Band.

Particularly effective defensive work for the Bulldogs was done by Elton Boney at guard, Hall at the other guard slot, Frazier at center on offense and at right half on defense, J. H. McKelvin as a linebacker and the entire Bulldog line, which turned in by far its best game of the season and one that gave the Steers trouble throughout the game, every yard of ground gained by the Steers being given grudgingly.

Behind the Scenes in Washington

BY RODNEY DUTCHER
NEA Service Staff Correspondent

WASHINGTON.—Numerous Catholics, Negroes and Jews who might otherwise forever have been obscure are now coming more or less into the news because the New Deal was embarrassed by revelation that Roosevelt's first Supreme Court appointee once belonged to the Ku Klux Klan.

Jerome A. Cooper, Jew, has been chosen by Black as his law clerk. Miss Anne Butt, Catholic, is the new justice's secretary. Leon Smallwood, designated by the court as his messenger, is a Negro and a Catholic to boot.

Assuming no religious arguments break out in the Black offices—which would be just too bad—this set-up would seem to help bear out Black's radio assertion that there is no intolerance in his soul. At any rate, those groups, the hatred of which won infamy for the Klan, will have representatives in a strategic spot where they can keep careful eye on the justice in case he should ever again yearn for a white robe.

There is also a list of eight Catholics and four Jews for whom Black has obtained or helped obtain federal jobs in Alabama and Washington, one paying $9000 a year. To date none of these public servants has resigned.

President Roosevelt, meanwhile, has had luncheon with Cardinal Mundelein at Chicago. Arzd down to the Virgin Islands as a federal judge goes William Hastie, an able Negro who will take the place left vacant by Albert Levitt, who sought to get the Supreme Court to expel Black. If you overlook these incidents, one gathers, the administration will be disappointed.

ONE of the very first if not the first case which Justice Black will hear argued before the court will be argued by a distinguished Jewish lawyer named Jerome Frank. It so happens that Frank, who was an outstanding figure here in earlier days of the New Deal, is a friend of Black's and believes he should be on the court because of his liberal record in the Senate.

Frank, in a duet with Solicitor General Stanley Reed, will be presenting the government's end of the Duke Power case involving PWA's right to lend and give money for the erection of municipal power plants.

Incidentally, if it hadn't been for the Supreme Court's previous handling of this same Duke Power case, Roosevelt might never have made his sensational proposal to enlarge the Supreme Court, the whole bitter fight a resultant mess might never have occurred; Senator Black might not have been appointed in a snafu move to out-fox the opposition and the Klan issue might have remained dead and buried.

On December 14, 1936, the Supreme Court remanded the case to lower courts on the basis of one-word technicality.

The case involved PWA's right to lend money to Greenwood County, S. C., contested by the Duke Power Co. Power company litigation as to this right already had delayed 56 such power projects for two years. The New Deal power policy was involved and Roosevelt, always consistent on that issue, decided right at that point on an early showdown with the court. Perhaps it would have made the decision later anyway. Perhaps not. The Duke case probably will be argued early in November.

CAST OF CHARACTERS
JILL WENTWORTH, heroine, attractive debutante.
JEFFREY, hero, rising young artist.
BARRY WENTWORTH, Jill's stepbrother.
JACK WENTWORTH, Jill's brother.
SYLVIA SUTTON, old friend.

Yesterday Mrs. Wentworth lured her guests for Barry and Sylvia and has too that Jill will marry one of the banker Montanans.

CHAPTER III
 THE summer lodge was perfect in its sylvan setting. Great trees towered above it. A blue lake, curving with the sky, washed lightly against green banks, close by.

High-powered speed boats skimmed the lake's serene surface. Lazy-looking canoes bobbed at intervals, sturdy skiffs tugged at ropes near the pier.

Mrs. Wentworth glanced now at the cocktail and highball glasses. There was no use to overlook the fact. Young people these days expected to be served drinks. They'd dub a party a washout if you didn't. She hoped Barry would be sensible. If only he were like Jack and Jill, who didn't drink at all.

Presently, with a glass in his hand, Barry was singing snatches of the St. Louis Blues. Jill glanced across at Sylvia Sutton. Sylvia was wearing a simple white sports dress, which made her look like a patrician angel Jill thought. Not the cherubic kind. Sylvia's nose was straight and slender. Her moral lines might have been carved by a sculptor bent upon perfection in line and expression. Her eyes were wide and blue and appealing. She was small and slender and beautifully molded.

She should be labeled: "Handle with Care," Jill mused.

DOOR Sylvia. She would probably find life a bit rough, if she

A man leaped from the car. As he came toward the porch, they could see he carried someone in his arms. "He's bringing in Sylvia," Tommy cried.

Jill's. "Don't waste words on obstinate people. Well, so long. I'm betting on Sylvia."

MRS. WENTWORTH met them at the door. "Where is Barry?" she queried anxiously.

"He and Sylvia took two of the boats, planning to race," Jill answered.

Mrs. Wentworth's eyes were focused on the lake. It's surface was rougher. There was a chill in the air. Some ominous looking clouds were massing overhead.

"I don't like the look of that sky," she said.

"Neither did I," Jill said, slowly.

"Thar's wind in them thar clouds," drawled Tommy Lane.

"Tommy, don't be funny, you'll frighten Mrs. Wentworth," Lucia Willis warned.

"He's not being funny." This from Landy Brent. "Those thunderheads carry a lot of wind."

"Landy! You sound so dramatic. Do take me out on the lake, and we can rescue Sylvia and Barry."

"No, please!" Mrs. Wentworth spoke sharply. "You would be two more to worry about. Surely, they will be sensible and come in soon."

"Of course, they will, Mrs. Wentworth," Tommy said, cheerfully. "Hey, Jill. How about you and Milo taking on Lucia and me for a mah jong tussle? Landy, suppose you stroll down to the pier and see if you can spot those goofs anywhere."

"What's that?" Lucia cried.

"A put-out as I live," Tommy replied. "They're coming in. And in good time, I'd say."

Without warning the storm broke. Great, gusty waves of water were rolled over the shore. The lake was suddenly a boiling mass, lashing back under the swift onslaught of wind.

A MAN'S figure was balanced precariously on the rocking pier, and then, head down, came running toward the lodge. The group on the porch moved to meet him. Mrs. Wentworth had opened the door and was down the steps to greet the hurrying figure.

"Barry! Barry!"

"Don't be an idiot, mother," Barry cried. Dripping with water, wild-eyed, he had reached the porch.

A chorus greeted him: "Where is Sylvia?"

"Sylvia! Good heavens, hasn't she come in?"

"What do you think?" Landy drawled, coldly.

"We were on the way toward the point when the storm came up. It was getting dark. I didn't see her or hear the noise—so I thought—"

Barry broke off. The porch had filled suddenly, as groups from the living room joined the anxious group around Barry.

"Oh, goodness, is anybody hurt? Where's Sylvia?" Milliecent Whitney asked in an excited tone.

"We don't know," Lucia answered.

"Some of you fellows will have to help," Landy said. "We've got to get a boat off and search for her. We may all go into the soup—"

"A boat couldn't live in that water now," Tommy spoke grimly. "But if you go, I'll go with you. Say, wait a minute, someone is coming."

An automobile horn sounded, and two lights loomed up near the porch.

Landy reached for a switch, and an electric lantern that swung by the door poured light out into the gloom.

A man had leaped from the car. As he came toward the porch the watchers could see he carried someone in his arms.

"It's Jack Wentworth!" Tommy cried. "He's bringing Sylvia in. My God!"

Y. W. A. Welcomes To New Members

The Y. W. A. of First Baptist church met at the church Tuesday evening at 8 o'clock for the purpose of honoring the new members. The meeting was opened with the Y. W. A. hymn, "O Zion Haste," followed with prayer. A very inspirational program on the Y. W. A. ideals was given with the program chairman, Miss Manrye Robinson, in charge. Prayer, the first ideal, was discussed by the leader, Mission study, Mary Jane Todd; observance of Sunday, Hazel Barker; stewardship, Eula Preslar, and other Y. W. A. ideals, by Doris Mitchell.

During the social welcome was given eight new members, Anna Belle Wright, Jimmie Beth Todd, Elizabeth Jay, Nauwana Stafford, Huberta Mitchell, Geraldine Finkle, LaVerne Duncan and Crystal Jackson. Dainty refreshments were passed through members mentioned above and a group of members.

Be Present Sunday Morning
Mrs. Charles T. Tally, Jr., the teacher of the Gleaners' Sunday school class of First Baptist church, urges her class personnel to be present for the coming Sunday morning lesson promptly at 9:30 o'clock.

President and Alternate To Represent P. T. A. At State Convention
Included in plans made by the Cooper Parent-Teacher association at the meeting held at the school auditorium this week, it was voted the association should be represented at the state convention to be held at Beaumont in November, by the president, Mrs. W. H. Warner, and alternate, Mrs. Charles Hummel.

Dr. Harry A. Logsdon spoke to the members on a timely subject, "The Halloween carnival to be staged the 28th of this month, will offer as decorations grinning Jack o' Lanterns, black cats, goblins and other eerie creatures of the Halloween world to add color to the party.

Twenty members attended.
Mrs. E. F. Latham Hostess To Gulf Ladies' Safety Club
The Gulf Ladies' Safety club, whose study is proving profitable and constructive, added another program to a series of others holding many notes of interest, when the personnel met with hostess Mrs. E. F. Latham, Gulf camp, Country Club road, Wednesday evening.

"How to avoid accidents while driving" was given by Mrs. Joe Hull, and mutually agreed one of the most splendid contributions since the opening lesson. The club is entering its seventh month of activity and promises interesting topics for the months to come.

At the conclusion of the meeting members were joined by their husbands, who also held a safety meeting at Gulf pipeline office. A steak fry was enjoyed on the recreation grounds across from the camp houses afforded diversion later in the evening.
