The 88th court also adjudged that the order of Judge Atchison directing the clerk of the 88th court to issue temporary injunction is null and void and the clerk was directed to refrain from issuing such writ of injunction in accordance with such order and that this case remain in status quo until all intentions and purposes as if order had not been granted by the said Honorable B. H. Atchison, judge of the 90th judicial district of Texas.

The judgment of 88th court stated that be, B. W. Patterson, and George L. Davenport, judge of the 91st district court, both resident judges of the county, were neither absent, sick, inaccessible, nor were they unable, nor did they refuse to act upon the petition.

Big Brother Role Fails to Hide German Aims

The "Scrap of Paper" incident of early World War days remains too fresh in the memory of the world to permit such credence in Germany's "big brother" pledge of Belgium's neutrality in event of western European war.

Echoes of war machines rumbling across devastated Belgian fields drown out the peasant platitudes Reich spokesmen voice in proclaiming lasting friendship and undying faith with their western neighbor.

Tacitly, seeking every advantage to protect herself, Belgium has accepted the pledge—somewhat tongue-in-cheek—but awaits developments to test its fulfillment.

Not wholly altruistic was Germany's promise to respect the territorial rights of a neutral nation and to defend her unthreatened sovereignty.

Hitler eyes covetously the lands of western Russia. If Germany is to be deprived of colonial possessions, on other continents, more attractive lands are nearer, more accessible. With Belgium a neutral buffer between French and British armies and her own western border, De Fuhrer sees opportunity to concentrate his gowing military machine on eastern objectives.

Steadily a wedge of Nazism is being driven toward that goal. Theatrics with Poland and Austria assure neutrality, if not co-operation, in moves against the Soviet.

Treaties bind France and Russia in case of aggression, but Hitler discounts French assistance if his ancient enemy is forced to fight along the narrowed battle line between Belgium and Switzerland. France's powerful Maginot line of fortresses is designed to halt invasion, not to press an attack, and already Germany is constructing her own defenses along the western border.

To check France and throw the main weight of his army against an eastern front is Hitler's all-too-apparent aim.

Turning to a policy of strict isolation in future European conflicts, Leopold III, worthy successor to a heroic king, sees little return from a devastating war that cost Belgium more than 93,000.

Last April he asked and was granted release from the Locarno pact, by France and Great Britain, retaining however obligations of the League of Nations against aggressor nations.

And herein lies the danger. For as a member of the league, Belgium might be obliged to enforce sanctions against her newly found friend, in which case Germany—according to the terms of the latest agreement in case "Belgium should participate in military action directed against Germany"—may again regard this treaty as so much waste paper.

Placed in such a precarious position, Belgium can well remember the ancient warning of Greeks bearing gifts. Germany has been tested before and found wanting.

The telegraph companies' decision to eliminate charges for punctuation and do away with the old "stop" in telegrams will ruin a lot of antique radio gags.

Drouth and weather conditions never effect the propaganda crop.

SISTER MARY'S KITCHEN

By Mrs. Gaynor Maddox
SEA SERVICE BUS WRITER

WE, as a nation, pay a large national dentist bill each year because we are wisely more tooth conscious than any other nation. We should be even more so—we should realize that daily foods rich in calcium and vitamins make strong teeth and keep them that way.

Here's a check list of calcium rich foods: whole milk, buttermilk, orange juice, spinach, turnip tops, Swiss chard and other greens, almonds, hazel nuts, molasses, dried figs, egg yolks, cauliflower, endive, shell fish, whole-wheat bread or cereal, cheese and meat from young animals such as veal and lamb.

With a little study, you can include calcium rich foods in all your meals. The following day's menu is a suggestion:
Breakfast: Large orange juice, oatmeal with cream, wholewheat toast and butter and a glass of milk.

10 a. m. Glass of buttermilk.
Luncheon: Little neck clam cocktail, vegetable plate of spinach, cauliflower and grilled tomato with poached egg and crackers and cream cheese.

4 p. m. Orange juice.
Dinner: Fruit cup, broiled lamb chop, Swiss chard, endive salad and floating island.

Parsley Soup (4 to 6 servings)
One and one-half cups parsley, 1-2 teaspoon salt, 1 cup water, 4 tablespoons fat, 4 tablespoons

Tomorrow's Menu
BREAKFAST: Sliced bananas and dry figs, cream, wholewheat cereal, nut bread, plum jam, coffee, milk.
LUNCHEON: Parsley soup, halves of hard rolls dusted with grated cheese and toasted, canned pineapple, peanut cookies, tea, milk.
DINNER: Lamb stew, potato balls, spinach with egg, endive salad, prune soufflé, coffee, milk.

flour, 1 quart top milk or thin cream, 1-4 teaspoon tabasco sauce, 1 teaspoon celery salt, few grains pepper, 1 tablespoon butter, paprika.

Wash and chop the parsley. Place the parsley, salt and water in a quart glass or enamel saucepan, cover and boil gently over low heat for 10 minutes. Melt the fat in a 1-2 quart heat resistant glass saucepan; stir in the flour and gradually add the top milk or thin cream. Cook the milk mixture over a low flame until slightly thickened and thoroughly cooked, about 10 minutes.

Add the tabasco sauce, celery salt and pepper to the cooked sauce. Remove from the fire, add the parsley and the water in which it was cooked. Pour the hot soup into soup cups and place a cube of butter and a dash of paprika on top of each dish of soup. Serve immediately while the odor and flavor are the finest.

Treat Colds Proved Way

This double-proved treatment relieves colds without "dosing." Proved in world's largest colds-clinic; further proved by use in more homes than any other medication of its kind. Just massage VapoRub on throat, chest, and back at bedtime. Its poultice-vapor action starts bringing relief almost at once. Loosens phlegm, eases coughing, helps break local congestion. Often, by morning, the worst of the cold is over. VICKS VAPORUB

JILL

BY MARY RAYMOND

Copyright, 1937, NEA Service, Inc.

CAST OF CHARACTERS
JILL WENTWORTH, heroine.
ALAN JEFFREY, hero, visiting artist.
BARRY WENTWORTH, Jill's brother.
JACK WENTWORTH, Jill's father.
SYLVIA STETON, old heiress.

Yesterday Jill meets Alan when she goes with her mother to a party.

CHAPTER VI
 WHEN a girl falls in love, the first thing she does usually is to go on a spree of shopping.

"He may be heaven's own gift to the art world, and I'd still bet he hasn't a chance to earn three square meals a day unless he gets in a better place, where Mr. and Mrs. Money-bags can peek in. I won't help much if you and I and maybe the folks across the hall drop in to cheer him on, will it?"

"No," Jill admitted, slowly. "The thing to do, Patty, is to sell a picture."

"How long do you think $100 or even $200—and I'm boasting the possibility—would last?"

"But Patty," Jill exclaimed, "good pictures bring thousands!"

"Not from any unknown painter. My dear, when did you matriculate in Kindergarten?"

PROPERLY subdued, Jill became inarticulate. But her brain was functioning. A plan was growing. It had started out as a germ planted in her mind by a chance remark of her own. The thing to do is to sell a picture!

The next time she saw Alan was a date.

He had invited her to lunch and they had gone to Miss Lancaster's. She had gone to meet him in a taxi. There were no night shadows to hide a swank roadster, that was damning evidence against her.

She was glad, now, that Alan had not remembered the name "John H. Wentworth," which she had so carelessly given him the day she arrived home. It was a name that stood for the ultra in the order of things he despised. Some day he would have to know. Meanwhile, he must sell that picture.

After the luncheon, Jill went straight to her father's office.

"What's on your mind, young one?"

Jill thought her father's voice sounded a little tired. How gray his hair was, with the light from the window falling on it. Under his keen eyes there were new wrinkles.

"Why," Jill thought with a surge of tenderness, "dad's getting old."

"I was wondering, dad," Jill said, going directly to the point, if I could be terribly extravagant—

She saw the surprise in her father's eyes.

"It is very special," Jill went on. "Dad, I want to buy a picture. A really grand picture, and I want to pay a big price for it."

"You WANT to pay a big price for it?"

"Yes."

"Hm. Is this artist a friend?"

"Yes."

"A man?"

She nodded. "Dad, could I have $3000?"

John Wentworth studied Jill's face. Brains and beauty. Yes, he could trust his lovely girl.

"AFTER all," Mr. Wentworth said, "it's your own money. Some day, Jill, you'll be a very rich young woman. I have never told you, but all my fortune, and it's very large, will be equally divided between you, Jack, Barry, and Evelyn. So I guess $3000 is not so much to spend on something you want."

"Don't let's talk about leaving money to people," Jill said with a lump in her throat. "I couldn't bear to think of not having you, dad."

"Sometimes," he said, soberly, "I'm afraid I don't talk over business matters enough with my family. You know, Jill, all this money is bound up with the company, dependent upon its success; dependent upon the good will of bank heads who negotiate loans; dependent upon markets and trade relations; affected by the fluctuation of world affairs."

"There have been bad times in the past few years. It has been a battle Jill, but I think the worst of the fight is safely behind. Just the same, we never relax vigilance. Something, some unforeseen crisis, might topple the whole works."

"Dad!" Jill cried, her eyes misty. John Wentworth's voice was husky, as he patted Jill's slim hands. "Don't worry your pretty head a moment. The old Rock of Gibraltar could be smashed, I guess. But I have an idea it never will. Our company is just about as strong. And it will be as long as men like Oscar Montagne believe in it."

He left the room. Jill sat soberly for a moment. She was ashamed of the little uneasy prickle along her spine. It was natural for Dad to like Mr. Montagne, who was always ready to come to his aid financially. Just as it was natural for her not to like Mr. Montagne's son, who counted on his father's money to make friends for him.

She managed to lift smiling eyes as her father entered the room. He handed her a roll of bills, which Jill stuffed into her purse.

"Jill, be careful," her stepfather warned. "No one ever yet bought happiness."

"This will," Jill boasted, "because it's somebody else's happiness I'm buying."

Afterward, she remembered that boast.

Q. What are the geographical divisions of Texas?

A. It is difficult to define the different sections of Texas as they are commonly referred to. Sectional chambers of commerce divide the state into East, West and South Texas, but these have overlapping boundaries hard to fix definitely because of the shape of the state. Reference is made often to North Texas, Northeast, Southwest, Central, Heart of Texas, etc., all of these being inapplicable to any exact geographical location.

Q. How old is the East Texas oil field and what has been its production.

A. The first flowing well in what is known as the East Texas oil field was brought in by C. M. (Dad) Joiner, Oct. 3, 1930, about six miles west of Henderson, in Rock county. In its first seven years the field, extended from time to time, produced 1,059,460, 135 barrels of oil, with estimates safely made that there are three billion barrels or more in its hidden reservoirs.

Q. How many flowing wells were brought in during the first seven years of the East Texas oil field?

A. Producing wells numbered 23,520, of which 17,000 are still flowing. At present an average of six wells a day are coming into production.

Sport Glances. . . . . By Grayson

PITTSBURGH—Very few football squads have been able to maintain full stride throughout an entire season. Keep an accurate check on the performances of top teams and notice how their form varies. A team that is up and hitting on all cylinders one week is likely to slump to mediocrity the next.

The mental attitude of the players usually changes from Saturday to Saturday.

It is easier to get them high for one game than another, and they can't be brought to a peak too often during a campaign.

Each season piles up additional evidence of the vast variance in the play of clubs from game to game.

For example, in its second appearance this season, Illinois was just another team as it was held to a scoreless tie by what was supposed to be a breather in DePaul.

Along came proud Notre Dame to Champaign. It looked like a breeze for the Irish, but the fighting Illini rolled one complete season into an afternoon and jogged off the field with another scoreless tie and plenty of reason to celebrate.

OHIO STATE looked extremely good downing Texas Christian and Purdue on successive Saturdays, but the Buckeyes traveled to Los Angeles and were nosed out by Southern California due to their failure to convert following two touchdowns. The Trojans were supposed to have lost some of their morale as the result of bowing to Washington.

The Huskies appeared well nigh invincible against Iowa and Southern California on successive Saturdays. Oregon State seemed to be something in the way of a set-up for the 1936 Pacific Coast Conference champions, but a cracker-jack of a back named Gray enjoyed a big day, and Washington was nosed out in the last minute of play.

Stanford, twice beaten, repulsed highly regarded U. C. L. A.

Nebraska appeared very much accomplished the day it defeated Minnesota by five points. Along came Ames, which had been trounced decisively the previous week by Northwestern, and the Huskers had to do some tall hustling to score two touchdowns and win in the fourth period.

Michigan State, flushed by its fourth consecutive victory over Michigan, was turned back by Manhattan the other afternoon.

A SPLENDID Duquesne team caught Pittsburgh between the Ohio State and Notre Dame games a year ago, and beat the Panthers on a long run.

Pitt repelled the Dukes, Oct. 9, under almost the identical unfavorable weather conditions that prevailed a year ago, and on a run by Marshall Goldberg that was similar to the run by George Matisic that turned the Panthers back in 1936. You may rest assured that the Pitt team of 1937 was higher for the Duquesne game than was the one of 1936. It had learned its lesson.

But, as you no doubt have gathered by now, my point is that past performances do not give a fair line on the ability of any team every Saturday in the season.

Beware of Cold Is Seasonable Advice Of Health Officer

AUSTIN, Texas.—"Beware of the common cold," Dr. Geo. W. Cox, State Health Officer, cautions the people of Texas. "This is the season of the year when colds are most prevalent, and their consequences more far reaching. The organism causing the disease is not known, but every individual is acquainted with its effects."

"Not a little of the susceptibility of catching colds can be overcome by a gradual acclimating to lowering temperatures incident outdoor weather. This hardening should begin now, and consist of regular exercise—walking is good—to be continued throughout the winter in weather of every kind. One should be careful to avoid wet stockings, drive on the feet, non-slavy clothing and year-beated coats."

"There are two broad principles to observe in the treatment and prevention of colds." The first says: "Let every person with a cold consider it seriously. Every cold should be regarded as the possible beginning of a serious illness. That means seeking a physician's advice and explicitly following his directions. If he orders bed, then bed it should be. Complete rest is a fine way to overcome a cold in short order."

"One's resistance to many diseases, including colds, can be raised by increasing one's vitality through observing the fundamental rules of health: plenty of fresh air, good wholesome food, neither too much nor too little, sufficient rest and the avoidance of habitual over-indulgence of de-vitalizing stimulants, including alcohol, tobacco and the like."

"The cold is a common disease," Dr. Cox repeated, "but every cold is important enough to justify careful attention and treatment for its immediate cure. Death-dealing pneumonias and tuberculosis may begin with colds that do not receive care and attention."

IT REALLY HAPPENED FOOTBALL

WHEN Georgia Tech and Howard College were playing at Birmingham, in 1911, Howard was backed up to their own goal and wanted to punt. But the field was short and there was no room for the punter to fall back behind the goal.

"Will you lend us 10 yards," asked Howard's captain of the Tech leader, "we'll gladly repay you." Although unusual, the deal was made and Howard kicked out safely. Astonishingly everyone forgot the debt as the game went on.

Then Tech worked the ball down to the 11-yard line. "How about those 10 yards, now?" Tech's captain demanded. Howard objected, but the "debt" was payable on demand, the referee ruled, and the ball was moved to the 1-yard stripe. Tech scored on the next play.

Saturday night the Ranger Country Club loomed with bright colors giving suggestion to the Hallow'en theme when Mr. and Mrs. T. J. Powell entertained, honoring both the Men's and Women's Safety clubs of the Gulf Pipeline company.
To make more real the pre-Hallow'en spirit, guests were garbed in costumes with gaudy

A hayloft occupied one corner of the clubroom, where the kiddies had much fun, together with spills, during the gay hours.
Clever games and contests were directed by chosen members and terminated in Mrs. L. Kirkpatrick, Mrs. G. H. West, Mrs. H. R. Thorpe and Mr. Cleo Gray winning prizes.
Climaxing what proved one of the merriest social notes of the fall the hosts passed a plate of weiners, chili beans and pumpkin pie with coffee to Messrs. and Mrs. Glen W. West, Joe Hull, L. Kirkpatrick, Cleo Gray, Willard Gray, D. H. Martin, Ross Staton and daughter, Martha Ann, Ernest F. Latham, Ben Odom and daughter, Sharon, and Mrs. H. R. ## Tom-Toms Call Indians to Meeting For Fifty Tribes

By United Press
TULSA, Okla.—The rhythmic beat of the tom-toms that for ages have called Indian tribesmen to council or to battle will resound again this week, calling Indians of Oklahoma and the Southwest to Tulsa for the second annual American Indian Exposition.

Smart clothing of the white man will vie with the beaded robes of tribal accoutrements as Indians from more than 50 tribes arrive for the three-day show.
Objectives of the exposition are three-fold: To establish a permanent American Indian center and shrine, to build a museum for housing and preservation of the best of Indian art, and to bring together the most interesting and authentic of archaeological lore.
William B. Way, exposition president, said.

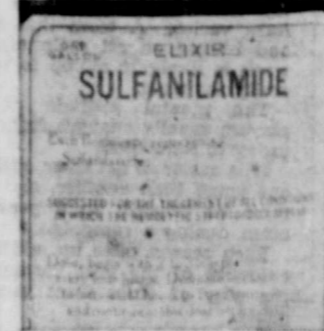

"It is the outgrowth of years of thinking and planning, fostered and inspired by men and women, both Indian and white, who have desire to perpetuate and preserve all those customs and talents of the American Indian which have had any lasting influence on what the modern generation is pleased to call 'our civilization.'"
Dances will form a colorful part of the three-day program. Led by Woodrow Grunbe of Anadarko, the widely known Kiowa group will perform ancient tribal dances. Feature of the Saturday Statehood Day will be performance of the brush dance, scalp dance, wolf dance, buffalo dance and snake dance.

On exhibition with the arts and crafts of American Indians will be those of prehistoric men, brought to light by recent explorations in the Spiro Indian Mound. Crumpled vases and bottles, plaques, bits of fabric, pipes, many of them in an almost perfect state of preservation, will be shown.
The prehistoric relics, valued at more than $50,000, link the present with century-old civilization of ancient men who roamed a land vastly different, even in topography, from that which exists today.
Old fiddle contests, Indian Papoose shows and bronco busting will be features of the show.

On the third day of the exposition Indian chiefs and tribesmen will meet in a congress to form the League of Indian Nations to work toward a solution of mutual problems. Call for the Congress was issued by the chiefs of the five largest Oklahoma tribes—Osages, Choctaws, Creeks, Chickasaws.

These housing studies are all right for the Duke of Windsor but he ought to find himself a country first.

Key to Elixir Deaths Sought

While federal and state authorities investigated over a score of deaths of users of a proprietary elixir of sulfanilamide, the American Medical Association, whose "Journal," in an article by Dr. Morris Fishbein, had previously warned doctors to exercise caution in the use of the new commercial drug, is continuing tests to determine the toxicity of the preparation. Upper photo shows a chemist at a micro-chemical study of the preparation in A. M. A. laboratories in Chicago. Lower photo shows the sulfanilamide label as it appears on bottles of the elixir.

ruling New York's 7,000,000 inhabitants, is revealed in the current March of Time screen presentation which is now playing at the Arcadia Theatre.
La Guardia himself, in accordance with March of Time precedent, enacts his own role in the film which features the dynamic personality of the ex-war time Army major who is four brief years rid New York of more than three score racketeers, overcame a deficit of $41,000,000 annually to balance a more than $7700,000,000 budget.

With Special Prosecutor Thomas E. Dewey, now Fusion candidate for district attorney, La Guardia is shown cleaning out the rackets that once preyed on the city's legitimate business—a drive that resulted in 72 convictions out of 73 major racketeers indicted.
Yet all this did not lift La Guardia into national prominence. It was his consistent checkmating of Tammany, indicating his independence of thought and constructive action against the evils of machine politics, that has brought him to the attention of other national leaders who are fighting similar conditions in nation and state.

Chemicals Seen As Natural Industry For State of Texas

DALLAS.—Chemical industries are seen as an advantageous and "natural" field for Texas industrial expansion in a report of the All-South Development Council which, in noting many physical qualifications of the Lone Star State for this type of work production, urges a stable state policy toward industry to accelerate the logical trend.

Not only is Texas in a favorable position for attracting these industries by reason of its wealth of leading mineral raw materials, used in chemical manufacturing, processing and by-products, the report points out, but it also ranks high in non-mineral raw products such as cottonseed, peanut oil, pulpwood—which are gaining importance in the fast-growing field of creating new materials by chemical processes.

Recognizing the growing economic significance of recent chemical "miracles" in industry, and the deep interest in farm chemistry, the report reviews salient "facts and figures" set forth in a special issue of "Chemical and Metallurgical Engineering."
That this type of industry would be eminently worth cultivating here is shown, the report says, by these general indices cited by its leading journal: Employment in chemical industries is regular, well paid and under favorable conditions of hours and safety, intensive research being largely responsible for this stabilization (the chemical industry is spending $20,000,000 in research this year); 82 per cent of workers are in plants of less than 1,000 workers, 56 per cent in plants of less than 500; there is an average of $8,260 in capital investment behind each worker.

The ratio of salaries to hourly employees is high (18.1 per cent salaried against 12.7, the general average for all American industry), despite rapid increase in output of chemicals per worker—which is the essence of technology—there has been no technological unemployment; and these industries beget new industries, the "offspring" of discoveries of new processes and new products and by-products.
Despite Texas' favorable raw materials status—her petroleum, sulphur, gas, salt, lime, clays, carbon black, coal tar and potash are among the most essential bases of the chemical industry—the state now holds a relatively insignificant place in actual chemical manufacture, accounting for little more than one-half of one per cent of United States chemical values in the 1935 census. Her output of $3,849,071 was almost doubled by that of Louisiana, with $7,324,036; it was about one-seventh as large as Tennessee's ($24,870,886), and was even topped by little Connecticut and by Alabama, each of which bettered the six million figure. Such industrial states as New Jersey and New York, of course, were the leaders with $138,128,726 and $123,496,822, respectively.

"Facing these facts," the report declares, "Texas should redouble its efforts to develop its latent advantages. The first step, already being taken in many other states, must be the establishment of stable state policies toward industry,

Young Ministers Setting Record Travel Over Circuit

DALLAS, Texas.—Rev. Becker, assistant pastor of First Methodist Church of Dallas, is one of the 25 young men in the School of Theology Southern Methodist University who are serving as student in churches from Hunter Amariello while enrolled seminary.
