Kimmel was shot in the head and chest. He was reported to have little chance for recovery.

BROAD FARM, RANGE PLANS WILL BE MADE

By United Press
WASHINGTON, Nov. 9.—Farm administration officials planned today sharp reductions in 1938 cotton acreage to prevent, if possible, a repetition of this year's record crop.

As tentatively outlined the new farm program will not solve the problem, however, because of the increased yield per acre which largely is caused by the agricultural adjustment administration's soil conservation program.

AAA officials said this year's record production resulted from "better farming practices and unusual favorable weather."

Manfred von Killinger, German consul-general in San Francisco, shown above as he appeared as a Nazi official in Dresden before coming to the United States, is the subject of an attack by a committee of the Los Angeles American Legion. CISCO PLANS A BIG DAY ON NOVEMBER 11

Cisco is planning a big celebration for Thursday, Nov. 11, when Ranger Bulldogs and the Cisco Lobos clash at Chesley Field, Cisco, in their annual gridiron contest.

J. E. Meroney, secretary of the Chamber of Commerce, and Fire Chief G. A. Murphy attended a banquet of the Cisco Junior Chamber of Commerce Monday night, at which time an invitation was extended to everyone in Ranger to attend, and for as many as possible to have entries in the big Armistice Day parade, to be staged at one o'clock.

Murphy promised to have his team of goats and wagon in the parade as well as the new booster fire truck, and it was stated that the Cisco post office would borrow the old time mail wagon used in the Homecoming parade in Ranger on Oct. 21. Others who want to enter floats or cars in the parade have been invited to do so. The Ranger High School band and pep squad will also take part in the parade.

The football game will be played on the new Cisco field beginning promptly at 2:30.

Both the Bulldogs and Lobos have been pointing for the Armistice Day game, as it presents the last remote chance the Bulldogs have of winning a game this season, and appears to be the Lobos' last chance of winning without staging an upset.

According to statistics on other games the Lobos have a much better defensive team than the Bulldogs, and though they have scored but three times this season, have a much better scoring machine now than they had earlier in the season.

The records of the two teams this season are as follows:

CISCO	RANGER
0-Lubbock 40.	13-Strawn 0.
6-Bald 0.	6-Breckenridge 67.
0-Stephenville 45.	12-Abilene 62.

W. T. MOATES AND A MEXICAN WOMAN KILLED

Car Overtakes On Thurber Hill, Killing Two, Injuring Six Others.

A Mexican woman was instantly killed and Willard T. Moates of Cisco was fatally injured in an automobile accident at Thurber Hill Monday afternoon above five o'clock in which two other Mexican women and four children were injured. Moates died in a Ranger hospital at 10:30 Monday night.

The injured, who are in the West Texas Clinic and Hospital, are Jazo Amada and her four children and Lillie Cantreras of Cisco, who was given first aid treatment at the hospital and released.

One of the Amada children sustained a broken shoulder and the others and their mother received lacerations and severe bruises. The name of the Mexican woman who was killed was not known by any of those in the hospital, though they said she lived at Cisco.

According to witnesses of the accident the car, driven by Moates, went out of control on Thurber Hill as it rounded the second turn going down the hill. The car turned over several times, scattering the occupants over the road and over the guardrail down the steep incline on the left hand side of the road.

The Mexican woman was killed almost instantly, dying within a few minutes after the accident, while Moates sustained severe head injuries from which he died after reaching the hospital. The four children were thrown through the top of the car, witnesses stated, and at least one rolled down the steep embankment.

It was reported that Moates was an employee of the Humble Oil & Refining Company at Cisco, and was taking the three women and four children to Mingus at the time of the accident.

The car in which they were riding, a Chrysler coach, was badly damaged.

No cause for the accident was determined, but it was said that the car, apparently traveling at a high rate of speed, failed to negotiate the turn and one wheel slipped off the pavement into the softer shoulder at the side of the road, and then turned over, rolling down the highway.

Father O'Brien In Forceful Message At Ranger Church

"Lord, that I may see." With these words of the blind beggar of Jerico as his inspiration for a comparison with much present-day moral blindness, Father O'Brien of the Sacred Heart church in Texarkana, speaking at St. Rita's church in Ranger last night, delivered one of the most forceful and timely sermons ever brought to a congregation in Ranger.

Father O'Brien, who has a state-wide reputation for his active interest in civic and moral affairs, was clearly well-versed on his topics, and displayed splendid ability to convey his points to his listeners. He had wide experience in both civilian and military circles as well as in the scope of his calling as a clergyman, he looks at things largely from the layman's point of view and in so doing speaks from a practical standpoint in a language easily understood by anyone who listens to him.

Attendance at the lecture was fair, even in view of the inclement weather, and it is anticipated that Father O'Brien's audiences will increase in size as his lectures continue. One will be given each evening of this week, through Friday, at 7:00 o'clock. The public is cordially invited.

Maverick-Jacket Game Transferred

Eastland School officials this afternoon voted to transfer the Eastland-Stephenville football game from Eastland to Breckenridge, with the game scheduled to be played at Buckaroo Stadium at 8 o'clock.

The move was explained by the board members as being made in order that fans might attend both the Breckenridge-Abilene and Eastland-Stephenville games. Originally they were scheduled to be played at the same time. It was explained that the game was not being transferred for financial reasons.

Breckenridge officials believed the game would attract more crowds and remove the opposition attraction of Eastland playing Stephenville Thursday afternoon at Eastland and Breckenridge playing Abilene the same afternoon.

Obstacles in the Way of Boycott Plan

One of the most entertaining bits of business this winter ought to be the attempt to persuade the American to stop wearing silk stockings in order that the villainous Japanese may be foiled of their designs on China.

From the shapely legs of American womanhood to the muddy battlefields of Shanghai may seem like a long jump. But there is a connection, spelled simply in the one word: boycott.

The argument runs something like this. Japan is making war on China in plain violation of all existing treaties. If one nation can treat another nation so, no nation is safe from the threat of force; America, accordingly, must do her part to restrain the Japanese.

But the Japanese don't restrain easily. They have, in fact, shrugged off all protests. And no American cares to see his country go to war to make the protests effective. There remains, then, only the boycott. If all lovers of peace and good-will will stop buying Japanese goods, the Japanese will see the error of their ways and the dove of peace will flutter once more over war-racked China.

Which brings us back to silk stockings. Japan's principal export to this country is silk. If we are going to boycott Japan, we have got to stop buying silk. And if we are going to stop buying silk, we have somehow got to persuade the American woman to encase her nether limbs in something besides silk stockings—in lisle, in rayon, or perhaps in the plain old-time cotton article.

And that, when you stop to think about it, is going to be something of a job. Never has there been a country as leg-conscious as modern America. The American woman, you might say, struggled for generations to win recognition of her right to wear silk hose day in and day out, regardless of her station in life. Anyone who imagines that she is readily going to surrender that right, even for a noble and altruistic cause, may well have another guess coming.

All of which compels one to wonder just how effective these international boycotts—talked of so freely, these days—are ever going to be.

There seems to be a school of thought which would substitute the boycott for war, which would make of it a padded club by which an erring nation may be clubbed bloodlessly back into good behavior. On paper it is all very simple. In actual practice it may be quite different.

For we buy goods in international trade, not because we admire the people who make them, but because we like to have the goods. It is going to take deep and strong emotion to make such boycotts successful. Is our desire to see Japan restrained, for instance, quite as sincere and universal as our wish to have the American woman continue to wear silk hose?

Maybe it is. If so—watch out, Japan. But then again, maybe it isn't.

SISTER MARY'S KITCHEN

By Mrs. Gaynor Maddox, N.E.A. Service Star Writer

THOUGH pork comes high it is the darling of most American menu makers. Roasts and chops from the fresh hams and loin are the most costly parts.

There are relatively cheap cuts of pork. A shoulder makes a delicious roast. When smoked it turns into a smoked butt or cottage ham and can be used cold, for sandwiches, fried with eggs, or served hot.

Roast Shoulder of Pork

(4 to 6 servings) Six pounds fresh shoulder of pork; 1 cup dried bread crumbs, 2-3 cup boiling water, 1 tablespoon butter, 1 tablespoon bacon fat, 1 cup shelled peanuts, 3-4 teaspoon salt, 1-2 teaspoon paprika, 1-2 teaspoon grated onion.

Have bone removed from pork shoulder, wash, dry and stuff. Mix crumbs with boiling water, bacon fat and butter, add seasonings and chopped nuts. When shoulder is stuffed season with salt and pepper and dredge with flour. Bake in a moderate oven (350 deg. F.) for 2 1/2 hours. Serve with spiced apple sauce.

Roast Spare Ribs

(4 to 6 servings) Six pounds spare ribs, 1 teaspoon pepper, 1 teaspoon salt, 3-4 cup boiling water, 2 tablespoons butter, 1-2 teaspoon powdered sage, 2 tablespoons flour.

Put spare ribs in a pan dredged with pepper, add salt to water and pour in bottom of pan, rub salt and pepper. Cook in a hot oven (400 deg. F.) for ten minutes, reduce heat to 350 deg. F. and cook two hours, basting frequently. When done rub with a little powdered sage. Add flour to drippings and make brown gravy.

Tomorrow's Menu

BREAKFAST: Sliced bananas, creamed dried beef, hominy muffins, apple jelly, coffee, milk.

LUNCHEON: Lima beans and Vienna sausage casserole, cabbage and orange salad, nut cookies, tea, milk.

DINNER: Roast spare ribs, brown gravy, mashed potatoes, buttered carrots, apple sauce, cottage pudding with hot chocolate sauce, coffee, milk.

Lima Beans and Sausage Casserole

(Serve about 5) Two and one-half cups cooked lima beans (No. 2 can), 1-2 teaspoon salt, few grains pepper, 1 teaspoon prepared mustard, 1 small jar of Vienna style sausage (7 oz.), 2 tablespoons butter.

Combine the lima beans, salt, pepper and mustard. Line a well greased shallow heat resistant glass baking dish—1 quart size—with the sausages cut in halves crosswise. Pour the seasoned beans into the casserole. Dot with bits of butter. Bake in a moderate oven, 350 deg. F., for about 25 minutes until hot throughout.

Pork Chop Baked with Potato

(4 to 6 servings) Six shoulder pork chops, 6 medium sized potatoes, 1 teaspoon salt, 1-2 teaspoon pepper, 1-2 tablespoons flour, 3-4 cup boiling water.

Peel potatoes and cut in thin slices, wash and drain, lay in a baking dish and season with salt and pepper. Cover with pork chops and season them with salt and pepper and dredge with flour, add boiling water and bake forty minutes in a hot oven (400 deg. F.). At the end of twenty minutes turn chops.

FRECKLES and HIS FRIENDS—By Blosser

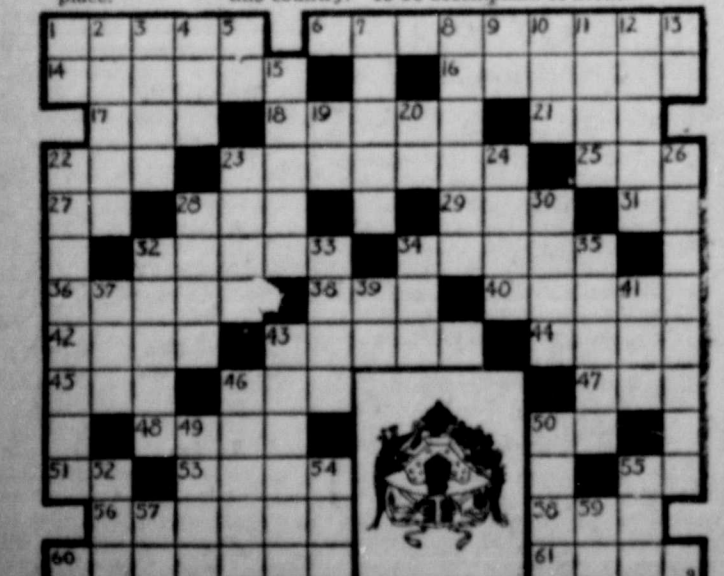

IT REALLY HAPPENED IN FOOTBALL!

BATTERED by Navy's powerful attack... Great Lakes Naval Training Station was pushed back to its own goal line in that famous game of 1918. With only a yard to go, Navy's Bill Ingram, later to be Midshipman coach, smashed through center and fumbled! From the pile of players emerged "Dizzy" Ellison, Great Lakes back, one ball in his hands as he dashed toward Navy's goal, 100 yards away. Not a man stood between him and a touchdown. Suddenly, as he reached midfield, an excited Navy substitute jumped from the bench, ran onto the field and brought Ellison down with a flying tackle. Navy's coach, Gil Debie, immediately declared the touchdown should be allowed, and Great Lakes kicked goal, winning 7-6.

MRS. SUTTON, art mistress.

CHAPTER XVIII
The shining scarf had given Ardath a subtle allure. But Jill was wrong. Those flat curls which had been painstakingly pressed down over her head, held in place by thick braids.

He frowned, and crossed the threshold to his dressing. He came back a comb.
"I'm afraid I've been selfish," Alan said compassionately. "I'm fearfully sorry. I'll make this up to you. Models are well paid, you know."

"Oh, skip it," Ardath said. "I don't want any money. It isn't so bad, really. Let's see what you've done."
Alan threw a cover over the canvases. "Wait until it's finished. I'm afraid you wouldn't understand now what I'm trying to do. I'll call a taxi for you now."

"A taxi?" Ardath breathed. "I couldn't be walking in on my landlady at an hour like this. She's awfully strict, you see."
ALAN did see. She had believed this was one of those cheap adventures. Only it wouldn't be. He tried to keep the contempt out of his voice, to make it sound casual.

"You want to stay here, then?" "If you don't mind. I could just curl up in a big chair somewhere."
"I wouldn't be comfortable at all sleeping in my bed. I've a better idea. I'm going to let you sleep there, while I go out for a walk."
Ardath persisted. "It seems silly for you to leave. If you're thinking about my reputation—you needn't. I'm not a conventional person."

"No," Alan said, his eyes meeting hers steadily. "I wasn't thinking of that. Besides the night is already over. It's close to 5 o'clock."
He went out, closing the door behind him.
Ardath went back into the bedroom slowly. The covered canvases met her eyes, and angrily she turned back the cover.

For a moment she stood regarding it blankly. Her own face, her own features. And yet it wasn't her. The soft, shining radiance on the face of the woman on the canvas bewildered her. Her lips had never curved in the sweet and gentle way this woman's did. Getting a soul, he had said!

The arrogant fool! He had used her to paint this silly picture. He had been making fun of her all the time.
In a blind fury, Ardath struck the canvas violently.
All he had wanted was to paint like this. Well, he wouldn't have the picture.

She would leave before he came back. Just as soon as it was light. But she would leave a little reminder of her visit.
With quick, savage fingers, she tore the picture from the easel, rolled it tightly and went over to the fire.
For a moment, smoke curled about the canvas. Then, greedy flames leaped up.

A TAWNY glow was streaking the early morning sky when Jill drove away from the big, shadow-wrapped mansion.
Some of her dark mood began to drop from her like a too-heavy load. She was going to the man she loved. That was all that mattered for the moment. He would forgive her and understand. When big hurts come, petty considerations were washed away, like small ripples lost in the heavy roll of the sea.

Here she was turning into 67th street, with its sleepy morning face powdered heavily with snow. And—Jill had stopped her car at the curb with a funny little quiver of nervousness—this was the address Patty had given her.
Behind that closed door was Alan. It was natural to feel this frightened clutch at her heart. She couldn't remember calling on a man she loved at this hour before!

And she never could again!
Inside, Ardath was aroused by the jangle of the doorbell. She came out of sleep slowly, with last night's anger and irritation creeping back with consciousness.
It must be Alan coming back to make peace, changing his mind about being so high and uppity. He would be angry about that picture. There was only one thing to do. Brazen it out. She might get farther with crying.

She had slipped into her dress, tugged on her slippers and started to the door.
The bell rang again and Ardath muttered: "Coming, coming!" Her eyes were a little scared. He really had an awful temper. You could see it.
She opened the door a little, and then wider, as she recognized the early morning caller.
"Oh, it's you!" Ardath said, smiling defiantly at Jill.

Sport Glances. By Grayson

NEW YORK—Frank Frisch still carries the program of the Duke-Colgate game in his pocket.
With his 19-year-old nephew, Johnny Lucy, playing plenty of guard for the Red Raiders, the manager of the St. Louis Cardinals is a violent Colgate fan.
Frisch ran his finger down the Duke roster.
"These schools make no attempt to be accurate," said the old Fordham Flash. "Take this fellow here, for example," and his finger stopped at the name of a Duke lineman. "He's listed at 193 pounds and is being 20 years old. Now anybody who has seen him knows he weighs more than 193 pounds, and that nobody could possibly grow that big in 20 years. Poor Johnny Lucy. All I hope is that he doesn't get hurt!"

But the Dukes are little more robust than the Colgates, and Bill Edwards, the young coach of Western Reserve, unbeaten in 28 games and perhaps the finest of the second-flight arrays, tells me his line averages 198. From Augusta, Me., to Santa Ana, Calif., few football combinations are underweight.
FRISCH weighed just 145 pounds when he was an elusive halfback for Fordham 20 years ago, and can't understand how the colleges get them so mountainous nowadays.
"They don't come in those sizes in baseball," he asserted.
The answer to that is that baseball is a more highly specialized form of athletics.
The reason why there are so many young giants on the gridirons today is that there are twice as many boys in college now than there were in 1920.

A boy who can play football hasn't the slightest difficulty in going to college. As a matter of fact, he's rushed off his feet. Thus, coaches have vastly more material from which to select varieties. There is a superior grade of talent because practically every high school now has a team, and boys are well trained before they even report for freshman squads.
MANY high school players now attend a preparatory school for an additional year before entering college. There they acquire experience and 15 pounds or so. Many stay out of college a year and work for enough money to start their higher education. Meanwhile, they pick up poundage.
The premium on size now is so great that boys make it a point to take on weight.
Coaches see that their charges eat the proper food, get the right conditioning during the off-season, etc. Any boy can take on five or 10 pounds throughout the summer if he so desires.
They, too, were developing a larger race of men. Ten years ago, the average-sized American male stood 5 feet 9. Now he stands about a foot 9 1/2.
And kids now toss footballs all year 'round, where they formerly tossed baseballs.

BEHIND THE SCENES IN WASHINGTON

WITH RODNEY DUTCHER
BY RODNEY DUTCHER
NEA Service Staff Correspondent

WASHINGTON.—In Washington, at least, enthusiasm over the coming American tour of those two great lovers, the Duke and Duchess of Windsor, falls well this side of the bonfire-burning stage.
The great heart of America may go out to these twin in the form of mob demonstrations, society brawls over the entertainment and antics of local politicians. But insofar as federal government officials are concerned, the frost is on the pumpkin. There is even a suspicion among them that the fanfare over the royal visit may be interspersed with one of two sour notes.
The State Department professes vagueness as to the Duke's status en tour and thus far there hasn't been a peep out of the British embassy. Later, possibly, this will be all fixed up and a happy, cozy time will be enjoyed by all. Just at present, however, there's a noticeable tension in the air at the embassy.
The flippant press conference remarks of Secretary Ickes aren't his cool response to the request of Charles E. Bedaux—who has full charge of the Eddie-Wally invasion—for a suggested itinerary of projects appears to have pitched the official key. For the time being, at least, Ickes let the cabled request go unanswered for about a week. Bedaux representatives then put him on the spot by letting newspapermen know he had the cable. Ickes cabled a list of FVA and other projects collect and said to correspondents, among other things: "He will have to work out his own itinerary and handle his own publicity." The reference was to Bedaux, not the Duke of Windsor.

Patrolman Gets $100

Junior College News Notes

BY DOROTHY BYAS

This morning as I went up front steps my eyes fell upon some very new and bright blue paint.

First the score of the football game, to be played Nov. 11, was predicted: Ranger 37, Cisco 6.

Next in order came the following:

- "Beat Cisco Bad!"
- "Work on Cisco!"
- "Beat Cisco!"
- "Show 'em You Can!"
- "Do we want to beat Cisco?"

All of these slogans show one interest and excitement that has been going on since last Thursday.

Last Thursday the chapel period was taken up by pep talks, made by Coaches Wright, Jennings and Rev. Chas. T. Tally, Jr. Such a peppy pep meeting dear old R. H. S. has not had for many a day.

On Wednesday all students met for the first time this semester, to organize clubs. The following new and old clubs were started:

- Dramatic, under Miss Black.
- Journalism, under Mrs. Denny.
- Job-Deb, under Mrs. Hamrick.
- Junior Athletic, with Coach Jennings as head.

The Hobby club, which has since been changed to the Safe Driving club, meets with Mr. McGahay.

The Home Ec club's head is Miss Spinks.

Other clubs and their heads are as follows:

- Music, Mr. Tulloch.
- Tennis, Mr. Wilson.

Alberta Seeks a Link In Airways

By United Press

EDMONTON, Alta.—The provincial government of Alberta will take a hand in furthering the proposed international air route between the United States, Alaska, and the Orient, following the inland airway north and south across this province, it was learned in official circles here.

A concerted move has started in British Columbia to have the route pass up the Pacific coast to Alaska and as a counter move to that effort, a meeting of aviation officials and representatives of Alberta cities with United States delegates has just been held in Lethbridge, Alta., to urge the advantages and practicability of the inland course for airships engaged in mail and passenger service.

Aviation authorities have declared the inland route through Alberta the most feasible since planes will not be hampered by fogs and lack of emergency landing fields as along the coast, or even further inland in the mountains of British Columbia.

The proposed route, it is expected, eventually will link up with the direct air route to the Orient pioneered a few years ago by Col. Charles A. Lindbergh and Mrs. Lindbergh. At Alaska it will turn westward along the Bering Sea and follow the coast of Siberia to Yokohama and Shanghai.

On this great circle route, it is pointed out, there are only 183 miles of ocean to cross over the Bering Sea.

At the meeting of aviation authorities and representatives of cities interested in the proposed air route were delegates from Edmonton, Calgary and Lethbridge in Alberta, and from the biggest and best pep rally of the year. There will be about 75 pep squad girls, the band, the members of the football squad and students all gathered around a great bonfire. We shall see you at the meeting and at the big game Thursday.

Meet us in Cisco Thursday at the game.

Seasonal Low On Poultry Shipments Noted In September

AUSTIN, Tex.—Poultry and egg shipments from Texas to interstate points during September reached a seasonal low, it has been reported by the University of Texas Bureau of Business Research. Poultry shipments totaled only 33 cars, but this total was substantially above the 18 cars shipped during September last year. Egg shipments of 26 cars was exactly equal to those of September last year.

Receipts of eggs at Texas markets from out-of-state points amounted to only five cars, compared with 26 last year. This year two cars originated in Kansas and three cars in Missouri. A year ago nine cars were received from Kansas, nine from Missouri, one from Oklahoma and seven from Nebraska.

Development of the Great Falls, Mont., to Lethbridge, and Calgary to Edmonton branch of Whitehorse and Fairbanks route would in the opinion of delegates, give a complete service from all parts of the United States to Alaska as soon as the north and south branch of the Trans-Canada Airways goes into operation next year.

Premier William Abernethy of Alberta said the province is strongly in favor of the plans for this route and would give prompt consideration to any suggested means by which the project could be promoted.
