Britain's War Stand Bares Peril to U. S.

The traditional big-heartedness of the British statesman, who is always willing to give full moral support to any other nation which wants to help save the British empire, was never better illustrated than by dapper Anthony Eden's little speech, made just before he set out to attend the Brussels conference.

Great Britain, said Mr. Eden, will be very happy to go "just as far as the United States will go" in measures to end the Chinese-Japanese war.

She will not rush out in front, he said—but she will not be left behind, either. She will follow Uncle Sam's lead whole-heartedly, and if the old gentleman gets up on the firing line, John Bull will be right at his elbow, or reasonably close to it.

This sounds very fine until the moment when you stop to analyze the Chinese situation and see just who owns most of the chestnuts that are resting on the coals. Then it begins to look different.

The real estate that is being shot full of holes at Shanghai is not owned by Americans—not very much of it, anyhow. It is largely British.

The foreign trade that is stagnating while Chinese and Japanese slug one another in the mud is not very American. It is mostly British.

The heavy investments that are dwindling and dying because of the war are not principally American. They are reckoned more often in pounds sterling than in dollars.

Most important, the world-wide imperialistic system which is threatened to its very core by this sudden uprising of oriental peoples, who are grimly proving that the white races can be denied with impunity and that the exploited east can find the strength to look after its own affairs—this system is not American, but British. More exactly, it is the British empire itself.

America has a stake in the Chinese situation of course—but it is a relatively small one. Britain has an incalculably large one. More than any other nation on earth, it is to her interest to see peace restored and Japanese military might restrained.

It goes a little against the grain, therefore, to see the British foreign secretary declaring that England will "go just as far as the United States will go" in trying to bring about a settlement.

It serves, too, as a very timely warning to the American government. Reversing a policy which has existed since the Versailles peace conference, that government is now seeking to co-operate with other nations to restore international order. Here is an indication that Uncle Sam's co-operation is expected to result in his getting out in front and taking the lead.

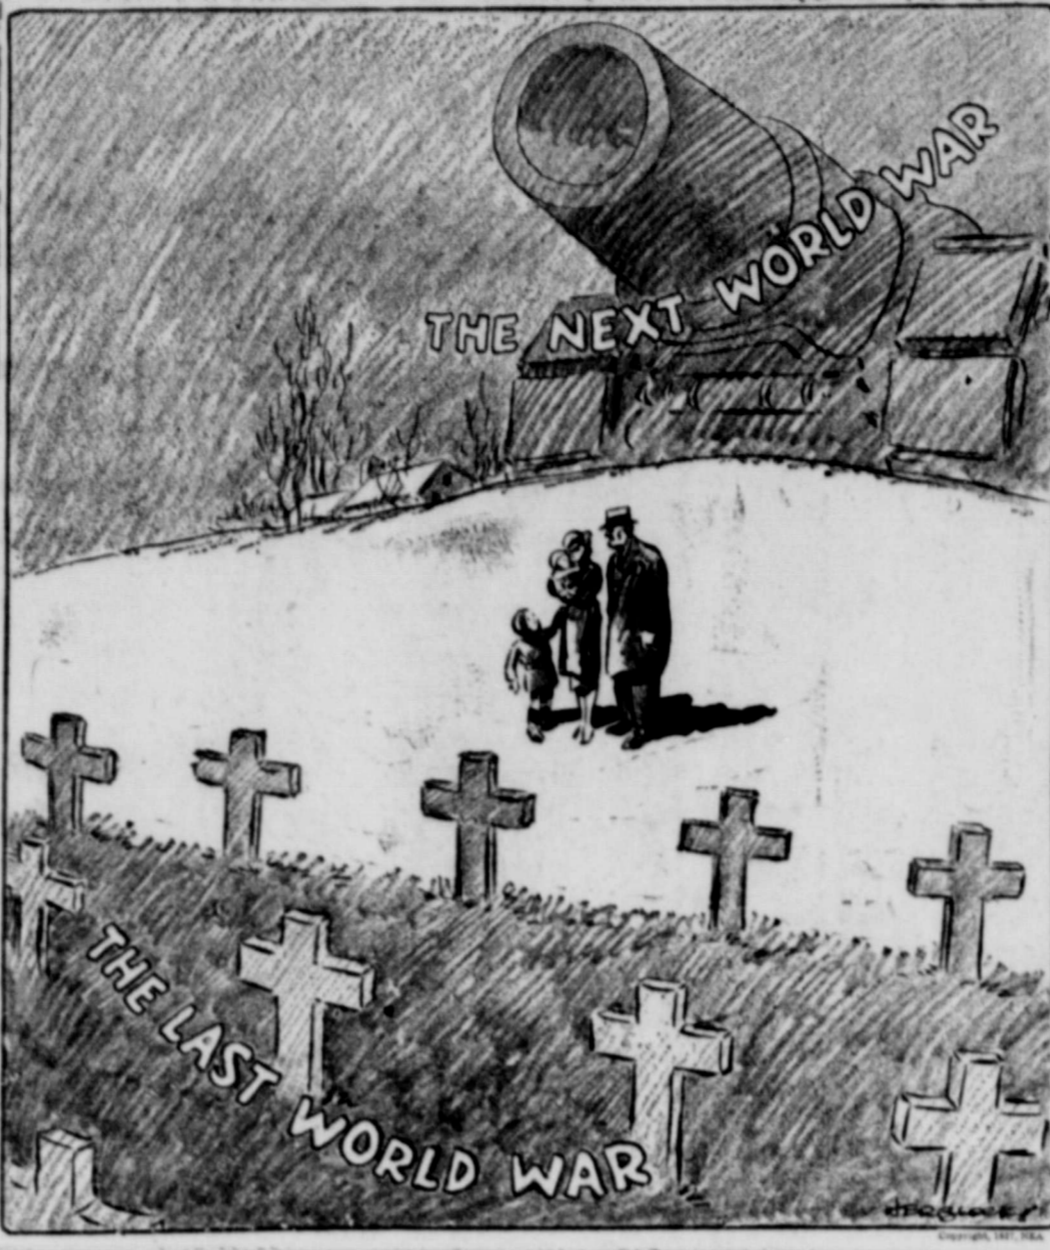

The warning must be heeded, unless we want to find ourselves engaged in the thankless game of raking British chestnuts out of a very hot fire.

THE ARMISTICE

Cantaloupe Fed to Litter of Kittens

By United Press
CLARENDON, Texas—Mice are mighty fine for a litter of kittens...

...In most cases, but "Inky," a black cat owned by Dr. T. H. Ellis has substituted melons. Instead of bringing to her brood, she comes in each evening with a cantaloupe. "Inky" found it difficult to climb the backyard fence with a melon, so she scratched a hole under the fence and pushed the melon under. Dr. Ellis reported the kittens apparently thriving on their new diet.

...The pros wanted to back Wifty Cox against Montague two or three years ago to the extent of $5000, but the Wonder Boy reneged after demanding and being given a handicap. Somehow these reports didn't get around. Hollywood had built its own star, and didn't intend to have him knocked down. Montague turned in a fine job of posing for seven years, and maybe he can successfully continue to do so out there in the land of make-believe. He already clearly has demonstrated that all of the saps do not come from Syracuse. But the professionals advise him to stay in his own league—in golf. You can't pose in an open tournament.

Sport Glances. By Grayson Grandfathers We More Particular The Tax Quest

NEW YORK.—Now that John Montague is looking for cameras in place of running away from them, what about his golf game? What do the professionals think of him?

Taking all those fantastic yarns out of Hollywood at their face value, you would suspect that the money players would be running for cover. Didn't supposedly competent critics say that Montague could outdrive Jimmy Thomson and output Horton Smith?

But the professionals refuse to be stampeded. Indeed, those among them who know and like the charming fellow advise him to remain mysterious in golf while and if it is possible for him to further capitalize on the Montague myth.

"Wasn't it rather ridiculous—that Paul Bunyan business some of the reporters fell for head over heels?" asks Horton Smith. "Has Montague proved his ability as a golfer? Not by my idea of a test. Has he beaten the topnotch pros? I've seen Montague play and I've seen better. He's good, all right. He has pretty good form—better than I expected—and power."

"It was not the rave reviews of his trick shots—it was those about his golf game that got me. It's one thing to shoot hot rounds when they mean nothing. It's another thing when you're under pressure. Wait until you see what Montague can do against topnotchers when the chips are down before you go ga-ga about him. Montague, in my opinion, is not the super-golfer."

Montague isn't even the super-trickshotter, according to both Smith and Harry Cooper. Along that line, they contend that the squatty man so widely ballyhooed as the Goliath of Golf can't touch Joe Kirkwood.

Montague is no stranger to many of the professionals. A few of them knew who he was all the time. Those who met him and didn't know his identity, respected the fact that his private career, if any, rightfully belonged to himself. They sensed that there was an unmentionable chapter or two in his past.

MONTAGUE virtually grew up on golf courses, and, in 1928, when he was 21, served briefly as a professional.

But in Hollywood nothing was said about Gene Sarazen playing Montague for 5, 5, and 5 last year and finishing the afternoon with $15 of the supposed Miracle Man's money. Olin Dutra beat Montague on virtually every occasion.

The pros wanted to back Wifty Cox against Montague two or three years ago to the extent of $5000, but the Wonder Boy reneged after demanding and being given a handicap.

Somehow these reports didn't get around. Hollywood had built its own star, and didn't intend to have him knocked down. Montague turned in a fine job of posing for seven years, and maybe he can successfully continue to do so out there in the land of make-believe. He already clearly has demonstrated that all of the saps do not come from Syracuse.

But the professionals advise him to stay in his own league—in golf. You can't pose in an open tournament.

Behind the Scenes in Washington

BY RODNEY DUTCHER
NEA Service Staff Correspondent

WASHINGTON.—The newsprint, milk distribution, fertilizer and automobile tire industries are all being secretly investigated by Department of Justice officials who suspect that consumers are being ripped through violations of the anti-trust laws. The automobile finance company "racket" is also being investigated by a Milwaukee federal grand jury. The Aluminum Company and various big oil corporations already are being directly prosecuted under the monopoly laws.

It's all part of a campaign to try to apply anti-trust laws to industries whose products are bought by large masses of consumers. Newsprint prices were boosted $5 a ton the other day and the D. J. is interested in the how and why.

It also is suspected that farmers are paying unjustified, artificial prices for fertilizer. Federal Trade Commission evidence that "milk trust" companies fixed prices with so-called producer groups in order to soak consumers are being carefully sifted.

And 14 tire companies which submitted identical bids to a government purchasing agency—and then resubmitted them after they were tossed out—have had the shock of their lives to learn that their bidding methods, too, are being investigated with a view to prosecution.

Whether anti-trust laws mean anything and, if so, what, is an interesting—and important—enigma which may soon be solved. Assistant Attorney General Robert H. Jackson, head of the D. J.'s anti-trust and business regulation section, is going right ahead on the theory that those laws mean what they say. This is a rather perilous assumption, as it is commonly believed the Supreme Court at one time and another has shot them full of holes and that the monopoly laws must be amended if they are ever to be enforced. Nevertheless, the present Supreme Court is not the same Supreme Court which held that the "steel trust" and other trusts were not illegal combinations in restraint of trade. An anti-trust law, as Charles Evans Hughes—now chief justice—once said of the Constitution, is what the justices say it is.

Justices often disagree or change their minds and it is quite possible that a Supreme Court which has persuaded itself to validate some of the most controversial laws passed under the New Deal may also come to decide that the venerable statutes designed to curb monopoly aren't so toothless after all.

Furthermore, friends of anti-monopoly laws are edified to find that industrial groups prosecuted or investigated, even if they think they can beat the government's case in the courts, automatically become perturbed and sometimes scared to the point of mending their ways. Until quite recently there hadn't been any anti-trust prosecutions for nearly 15 years and such suits as the aluminum and oil actions have come as a shock.

Finally, there is the likelihood that if Jackson and Attorney General Cummings lose all their present and prospective anti-trust suits, the publicity will spur Congress on to providing stronger legislation.

Grandfathers We More Particular The Tax Quest

LOCKHART, Texas—Grandfathers were a little concerned over the public in the early nineties.

Back in 1839 when the well County commissioners prepared to float a bond in the present court house, hundred citizens rose up and signed a petition asking court to refrain from the new building because county had $2,326 on the quest tax list.

The petition stated in part believe it would be an insane policy to burden our land with any additional gages to make a useless one (the proposed court house) county for the purpose of giving a few people who are front to the real welfare masses of our people of county."

The petition was signed by men from all parts of the county. Nevertheless, the court house erected.

the hopes that opportunities may be found in the Cisco game to use them with considerable success. Bigger and better pep rallies have been held, both in the school auditorium and on Main Street, and more enthusiasm has been noted in all the student body than prior to any other game, because most of the students believe the Bulldogs will win, and all of them are hoping they will.

A number of signs have been painted around the school, some of the sign-painters being optimistic enough to predict, and paint, signs showing a large margin of victory for the Bulldogs. Scores in the Ranger-Cisco games in the past have been uniformly close, with the exception of the 42 to 0 win by the Bulldogs in 1934, their last successful Oil Belt season, and the last time the Bulldogs have defeated the Lobos.

In the 14 games played between the two teams since 1923, Cisco has won six games, Ranger has won six and two have been ties, which makes the scores of the games close and the count in games won, lost and tied exactly even, so the winner of the game today will be the team with the best record over the 14-year period.

The records of the two teams since 1923 is as follows: 1923—Cisco 6, Ranger 0. 1924—Cisco 7, Ranger 0. 1925—Cisco 24, Ranger 0. 1926—Ranger 13, Cisco 6. 1926—Ranger 3, Cisco 0. 1927—Cisco 22, Ranger 0. 1928—Ranger 13, Cisco 0. 1929—Ranger 14, Cisco 12. 1930—Cisco 3, Ranger 0. 1931—Ranger 13, Cisco 13. 1932—No game played. 1933—Ranger 7, Cisco 6. 1934—Ranger 42, Cisco 0. 1935—Cisco 14, Ranger 7. 1936—Ranger 6, Cisco 6.

Texas Highway Is Economical But Has Durability SAN ANTONIO, Texas—A new highway extending 25 miles north of here is attracting attention of motorists and highway engineers because of a technique which made it possible to build a heavy-duty asphaltic concrete pavement at a cost of about $10,500 a mile—less than half the usual expenditure for equally smooth and durable pavements.

The new pavement represents the modern "black top, black base" technique and consists of an asphaltic or bituminous surface 1 1/2 inches thick on a bituminous base 3 inches thick. The pavement itself is supported by a 12-inch sub-base of crushed stone and caliche.

along its entire length. The added width is a safety feature engineers have been seeking to build into the modern highways. While the pavement was under construction the Texas Highway Department maintained a test laboratory near the highway in which hourly tests were made of the materials used in the pavement. The close attention to the mixture of limestone, mineral filler and the asphalt cement, made it possible to construct a heavy-duty pavement at less than half the usual cost.

JILL

BY MARY RAYMOND

as she got in her car. "God bless us!"

Jill looked back as she started the motor. The old beggar—she must be a beggar, for who else would be out at this hour—was staring at her with a dazed expression on her face. Both hands clutched the bright red scarf.

It was after the car rounded the corner that Jill's cheeks unheeded. She was conscious of many curious eyes. But she was past caring. Her world, a beautiful dream world though it had been, had crashed. Her idol had not been found with feet of clay, but with feet of mud. Alan and Ardath. An ugly romance between them.

She must stop thinking of him. She must go back home, and greet everybody at breakfast with a nice morning face. The face of a girl awfully happy over being engaged to Milo Montagne.

Jill shuddered. She couldn't go back now. She would go to Patty and stay until she could face the family with more composure.

She wouldn't wake Patty for awhile. She would drive for awhile and then go home.

DURING the time Jill was driving aimlessly about the streets with her white, strained face, Alan had reached his apartment and let himself in with his latch key. The place was now quite empty. The stripped easel met his eyes, and then a bit of blackened canvas on the hearth.

"Hello there, old chap!"

The voice had a familiar ring. It was—of course it was—Vic Ainsworth, whom he had last seen heading for the grind of an English bank.

"Vic! Where are you? I'll take a taxi!"

"I'm sorry as the deuce, Alan. But I'm leaving for Louisville in a few minutes. Missed my train last night, all because a beautiful girl wanted your life's history. But it's just as well I didn't get off. There's something I think you should know—"

"Not bad news. Surely—"

"I'm afraid so. Lord Jeffrey isn't ness would swing clear again—beyond what he now saw was a vicious financial circle. He had got himself in this plight by depending too much on the friendship of three men. And friendship had failed him.

Or rather, it would have failed him if Jill had not become engaged to Milo Montagne. He was troubled about Jill. He had never believed she cared anything for Milo. Could it be possible that she had realized the strain being put upon him?

HE could not bear to think that. It couldn't be true that Jill had sacrificed herself for him. She had come in too radiant and proud. She must have become fond of Milo. He hoped she was not dazzled by Milo's great wealth.

He got up suddenly, glancing at the clock. Twenty minutes to six. Great heaven, he had been here for hours going over the same ground and getting nowhere beyond the fact that his business trials were over, for the present at least.

He walked heavily toward the hall. When he had gone to his study the place had blazed with lights. The entrance was a gloomy cavern now, but a faint glow came from the music room.

His faint smile was erased as he reached the door of the music room. The light there was blazing down from a glittering chandelier. It revealed the figure of Barry, his head buried in a pillow. The lines of worry deepened on John Wentworth's weary face as he studied the sleeper, taking in the flushed face and tousled hair.

The fool. The besotted young fool. He should have a real raking down. Yet it would probably do no good. A hard, impenetrable sheet of callousness and ruthlessness had grown over any many qualities Barry might once have had. He hated to believe Barry had never possessed those qualities.

He moved and Barry opened drink-dulled eyes, meeting the quiet brooding gaze of his stepfather.

"SO it's my thoughtful parent. Might I inquire the reason for the suddenly fatherly interest that would fix me a night car and tuck me in bed?"

"Come into my study, Barry," his stepfather said, sternly. "I have wanted to talk with you a long while. But I kept hoping—"

"Oh, can the chatter," Barry retorted. He stumbled to his feet and followed his father across the hall and into the room where the fire had burned down to ruddy embers.

along "Hungry Hill," a depression-founded street, to petition their city councilman for a better name.

When times were hard, "Hungry Hill" seemed an appropriate title. Now that business is better, the street's occupants decided they needed something up-to-date. The city council requested its engineer to find out what name the "Hungry Hill" people would prefer.

Behind the Scenes in Washington

BY RODNEY DUTCHER
NEA Service Staff Correspondent

WASHINGTON—The C. I. O. says to the A. F. of L.: "Bare your head, and we will tap it with a sledge-hammer. You will then go down and out and stay out."

The A. F. of L. says to the C. I. O.: "Walk right back into our mousetrap and have a dose of our highly effective lethal gas."

That's the effect of the proposals of the two labor groups and it explains why the unity negotiations are not getting anywhere. The proposal of C. I. O. that it return to the A. F. of L. as an autonomous department under its own name simply means, if its claims of a larger membership are true, that John L. Lewis and his colleagues would at once dominate the federation if its members were to be given proportionate voting strength at A. F. of L. conventions. The federation proposal, on the other hand, means that craft unions desire to absorb hundreds of thousands of workers organized by C. I. O. and insist that C. I. O. unions come back as a minority under the effective control of A. F. of L. convention machinery.

Each side attacks the other's membership figures. The A. F. of L. claims 3,250,000 workers and C. I. O. 3,830,000. It's impossible to find out the real strength behind these statistics.

The proposal that disputes between rival affiliated unions be settled at the next federation convention calls attention to the A. F. of L. voting system. One vote is allowed an international union for each thousand members whose per capita tax of 1 cent a month is paid to the federation. The carpenters' union had 3000 votes at the Denver convention, although C. I. O. people declare its membership probably has dwindled to 125,000. In former years John L. Lewis paid for a voting strength of 3000 when it was well known the membership of the United Mine Workers was far below 3,000,000.

It is now being taken for granted in Washington that Jim Farley will be a candidate for governor of New York in 1938. It is also generally believed that he can have the Democratic state convention's nomination and that he will be elected.

Farley hasn't said a word to anyone about it, apparently. But the assumption has been greatly strengthened by his decision to campaign for Jerry Mahoney in the New York mayoralty fight. The White House has kept hands off, but its real sentiment is believed to be more accurately represented by Secretary Ickes, who recently went to New York and gave Mayor F. H. LaGuardia a public pat on the back.

Anyone who wants to run for governor of New York on the Democratic ticket is practically compelled to play ball with the New York Democratic machine politicians, all of whom have been behind Mahoney. In case Roosevelt was consulted at all and approved Farley's leap into the local battle, the President at least was aware that nothing at that stage of the campaign could put Mahoney over.

The war situation is about the most absorbing topic of the day. I said when I presented myself to your consideration last year that I was opposed to war in any form and would not vote to send any of our boys overseas to fight again. I still am of the same opinion and do not think there is any need for us to get mixed up in a foreign war if the neutrality laws are enforced as Congress intended them to be. We do not want war and will not have it if we do not go seeking it by meddling in other nations' affairs. To keep out of war at this time will be far cheaper and mean more for the future than to fight a winning fight and spend millions of lives and billions of treasures.

I believe that there should be some means devised to increase the income of our people and unless something better is found in a very short time there is going to be a minimum wage and maximum hours law passed. I believe that seasonal labor, such as agricultural work and processing, continuous process work such as oil field work and emergency work should be exempt from too rigorous a law of this kind. I do not think that a federal board should have the power that it is proposed to invest them with in the present bill but I am of the opinion that it should be a flexible law with the courts being the ones to handle the issues on the basis of right and wrong and not on the inflexibles of the rulings of a board of five men. However, a large part of the need for the law will be obviated when, and if, business continues to improve and the wage earners of the nation once more become busy with their tasks.

I am in favor of the abolition of many boards, bureaus and commissions within the department of the government. However, I am in favor of surrendering any of the prerogatives of the government to any group who will have the last word to say on such changes. It should be done by laws enacted by Congress and done in the open after full and complete public hearings.

I believe that there should be a comprehensive and complete flood control plan worked out by Congress. By the use of dams and flood by-ways and other means there should be some manner whereby the huge floods of the past can be prevented. Then if power comes as a by-product of such work that power should be used for the development of industry to the fullest. However flood control should be the primary purpose with irrigation as a second consideration and power, with its wrangling and bitterness of the past should be the very minor consideration. Water should be controlled to keep down its destructive agency and then put back on the land for the enrichment of the soil and the prosperity of the land owner or user.

I am in favor of some crop control measure which will insure the farm the maximum price for the crop which it will produce. If this be through the debenture plan or the domestic allotment plan then I am for it. I do not believe that the land should be abandoned nor the farmer forced from it by curtainment of production. We once controlled the world market on cotton and wheat. We can do so again if we will use one or the other of the plans above and insure our farmers that the crop they raise will bring them an income commensurate with their efforts. Then put the surplus on the world market to bring the world price.

I expect to leave Eastland soon and will be in Washington and if you have thoughts along these or any other lines that might be of help to me in helping you solve your problems feel free to write them to me. They might be the force that would turn the tide for the very thing which would benefit all of us to the greatest extent.

wholly withdrawn from political and military activities and shun any attention which might earn for him the fate of Generals Koutepof and Miller. Ludendorff lives in retirement in Munich, where he heads the German paganist movement.

None of the five chief delegates who signed the Armistice is alive—Foch, for France Admiral Wester Wemyss, then Britain's First Sea Lord; Erzberger, secretary of state, General von Winterfeldt and Count von Oberdorff for Germany. Erzberger was executed a few years later. France's General Weyand, Germany's naval Captain Vanselow and Staff Captain von Geyer, and Britain's Captain Marriot, who were aides-de-camp in attendance at the signing of the Armistice in Foch's dining-car in a clearing in the forest at Rethondes, are the only survivors of those who witnessed that historic ceremony.

Of the major personalities who signed the consequent Versailles Treaty, only 11 are alive, including David Lloyd George, Col. Edward M. House, Andre Tardieu, South Africa's two generals, Jans Smuts and Botha, Belgium's Max Hymans and Emil Vandervelde, Ignace Paderewski and Dr. Edward Benes.

Of the great field commanders, Hindenburg, Von Bulow, Von Moltke, Von Kluck and Von Tirpitz, of Germany, have died, as have Foch, Joffre, Nivelle, Fayolle, Lyautey and Mangin, of France; General Jacques, Belgian commander in chief; General Diaz, who led the Italian army into the war; Haig, Byng, Beatty, Jellicoe, Kitchener, Allenby and French, of Britain; Poland's Pilsudski; Austria-Hungary's great chief of staff, Hatendorff; Russia's Grand Duke Nicholas, Wrangel and Brusilov.

HELP 15 MILES OF KIDNEY TUBES

To Flush out Acids and Other Poisonous Waste

Doctors say your kidneys contain 15 Miles of tiny tubes or filters which help to purify the blood and keep you healthy. Most people pass about 3 pints a day or about 3 pounds of waste. Frequent or steady passages with smarting and burning shows there may be something wrong with your kidneys or bladder.

An excess of acids or poisons in your blood, when due to functional kidney diseases, may be the beginning of nagging backache, rheumatic pains, leg pains, loss of pep and energy, getting up nights, swelling, puffiness under the eyes, headache and dizziness.

Don't wait! Ask your druggist for Doan's Pills, used successfully by millions for over 40 years. They give happy relief and will help the 15 Miles of kidney tubes flush out poisonous waste from your blood. Get Doan's Pills.

A Three Days' Cough Is Your Danger Signal

No matter how many medicines you have tried for your cough, chest cold, or bronchial irritation, you can get relief now with Creomulsion. Serious trouble may be brewing and you cannot afford to take a chance with any remedy less potent than Creomulsion, which goes right to the seat of the trouble and aids nature to soothe and heal the inflamed mucous membranes and to loosen and expel the germ-laden phlegm.

Even if other remedies have failed, don't be discouraged, try Creomulsion. Your druggist is authorized to refund your money if you are not thoroughly satisfied with the benefits obtained from the very first bottle. Creomulsion is one word—not two, and it has no hyphen in it. Ask for it plainly, see that the name on the bottle is Creomulsion, and you'll get the genuine product and the relief you want. (Adv.)

Mrs. Vernon Deffebach, P. T. A. Guest Speaker: Hodges Oak Park Parent Teacher association meeting held this week at the auditorium was presided over by the president, Mrs. Mamie Ruth Hamrick. Mrs. Vernon Deffebach, guest speaker gave a splendid talk, "How the School Program Affects Home Life."

Special musical numbers by the Boys and Girls Glee clubs under the direction of Mrs. Homer D. Smith, with Miss Marguerite Adamson at the piano, was especially enjoyed.

Informal Courtesy Planned for Ranger School Teachers: The City Council of Ranger and its branches, Parent-Teacher associations and Child Study club associations, are to be entertained with an informal party at the Recreation building, Friday evening at 8 o'clock, in honor of Ranger's school faculty.

Each year the Council pays honor to teachers and the gathering for Friday evening has been given such consideration by hostesses members under the guidance of the Council president, Mrs. Saula Perlestein.

Mothers are Honor Guests at Y. W. A. Party: Tuesday evening members of the First Baptist Church, with their mothers, enjoyed one of the most successful and unique of all their social events of the year. The affair was in the form of a "calico party." Each girl invited a mother and everyone wore print and wash dresses. For a lively and colorful beginning of the evening, Miss Doris Mitchell directed a "sing-song" of old fashioned songs, including "Put on Your Old Grey Bonnet," "Silver Threads Among the Gold," and "I Want a Girl Just Like the Girl that Married Dear Ole Dad" and also a few songs in connection with Armistice Day. After interesting games were played dainty refreshment plates were passed. Attractive plate favors were tiny bonnets made of colorful prints. Present were: Meses, Glenn West, Nath Pirkle, Hubert Mitchell, R. F. Duncan, J. W. Stafford, Lee Mitchell, Cora Presslar, H. D. Smith, R. E. Barker, Col. Brasher, Alex Robinson and members, Betty Patterson, Mona Robinson, Hazel Barker, La Verne Duncan, Nauwana Stafford, Bessilou Robinson, Huberta Mitchell, Geraldine Pirkle, Eual Presslar, Jimmie Beth Todd, Elizabeth Jay, Annabell Wright, Doris Mitchell, Eunice Presslar, Odell Jay, Helet Dawson, Chrystal Jackson, Drucilla Perry, Mary Jane Todd and Mamie Robinson, with the sponsor, Mrs. W. A. Lewis.

Shakeeb Dakour of Beysour, Syria has arrived in Ranger for a visit at the home of his uncle, D. Joseph.

Mr. and Mrs. T. L. Potter of Dallas visited Wednesday in Ranger. Mr. Potter an employe of the Lone Star Gas Company pays visits to this field at intervals in the interest of his department. Since their home was formerly here, Mrs. Potter visits friends.

E. C. Byars of Brownwood was a business visitor in Ranger Wednesday accompanied by Frank Matheny of San Angelo, and W. D. Vinson of Houston.

O. G. Lanier of Fort Worth, who for many years lived here is a business visitor in Ranger.

Mrs. Vera La Belf of Abilene remains in Ranger to supervise duties at the Western Union Telegraph company until a successor to Miss Thelma Walling is named.

Vernon Eady of Dallas has arrived to be associated for a time with the Ranger high school.

A. J. Johnson of Lubbock was among business visitors in town, Tuesday and Wednesday.

J. R. Melton of San Angelo visited here this week.

A. C. Harper has returned to Dallas after a business visit of two days.

L. P. Patterson of Fort Worth is spending this week here.

The mother of Mrs. G. J. Davis, is reported to be ill at her home 1216 Young street. During a recent visit with a daughter at Mineral Wells she fell, sustaining a fractured hip which is attributed to her present condition.

Legionnaires Will Have Big Dinner For Armistice Day

A special meeting of Legionnaires will be held at the Legion Hall today at noon, which time a big turkey dinner will be served.

Each Legionnaire is urged to bring along one friend for the dinner as his guest, as plenty of turkey, dressing and "everything that goes with a meal of this kind" is to be prepared.

"This will be the best feed the local post has ever served," it was stated Wednesday by Mack Dutton in calling attention of local Legionnaires to the feed, "and we expect all members of the Carl Barnes Post to be present."

Lions Not to Meet On Armistice Day

No Lions Club meeting will be held today at noon, it was announced Wednesday by R. E. Garner, president of the club.

The decision to hold no meeting today was reached because of the Armistice Day holiday, when so many of the members would have other activities, including attendance at football games nearby, that would hinder their being present.

Bruce, secretary and treasurer, Francine Hatley, corresponding secretary.

A complete report of the district meeting of Federated music clubs held at Abilene last week engrossed the interest of members. Miss Geraldine Pirkle, represented the local club Junior club day by rendering a beautiful piano number.

Mrs. Webb, passed a dainty refreshment plate at tea time to: Frances Ann Eubanks, Rosemary Bruce, Mary Jane Hicks, Lynn Pearson, Dorothy Jean Williams, Mercedes Pearson, Francine Hatley, Dorothy Jean Bruce, Electra Pearson, Dorothy Lee Mitchell. Members unable to be present were: Margaret Jo McCleskey, Geraldine Pirkle, Meta Ann Woods, and Mary Claude Blacklock.

Obedience Subject Of Lecture at the St. Rita's Church

Father O'Brien of Texarkana, who is conducting a series of lectures this week at St. Rita's Catholic church in Ranger, spoke Tuesday night on necessity of obedience to constituted authority if our civilization is to continue on its march of progress. Constituted authority, he pointed out to his listeners, should prevail in the school, the church and the home, as well as in the state and nation, and he stressed the equal, if not greater necessity of obeying laws of God as well as the laws of men. Scripture quotation taken for his subject was contained in the gospel of St. Luke and included Christ's instructions to His disciples as He sent them out into the world to carry His message to all mankind: "Who heareth you heareth me, and who despiseth me, and who despiseth my Father who sent me."

Father O'Brien clearly illustrated his remarks with reference to present-day and recent occurrences which revealed the absolute necessity of constituted legitimate authority in all things for the general welfare of all mankind. This series of lectures, which are growing in public interest, will continue each evening this week through Friday, at 7:30 o'clock, with Father O'Brien speaking each evening on a different subject. His lectures are highly educational as well as interesting, and with his wide background of experience he is bringing to Ranger a message of value and excellent good will in each of his sermons.

DON'T BE A NUMB-BELL!

GENTLEMEN, it's silly to be chilly! Climb into a HANES Heavyweight Champion and feel the snug, velvety warmth knit into its downy ribs. The minute HANES touches your skin, you'll know that you and gooseflesh won't be on speaking terms all Winter!

But you need something more than warmth in your underwear. You want to move around without thinking you'll break the stitches.

HANES gives you that kind of comfort, too! These suits match your trunk-length as well as the width of your chest. You can sit, bend, stoop or reach—nothing either bulges or binds. Buttons, buttonholes, cuffs, and seams are sewed to put the wear in this underwear. See a dealer today.

A nearby dealer has HANES Union-Suits, 31 up... Shirts and Drawers from 75c... Boys' Union-Suits, 75c... Mericoid Sleepers, 75c. Also WIND-SHIELDS (the new shorts and midweight drawers illustrated at right), 50c to 75c each. P. H. Hanes Knitting Co., Winston-Salem, N. C.
