Misbehaving Drunks Must Face the Music

It is a poor week that does not see some judge in this broad land of ours getting his name in the papers by handing down a weird decision. This week the distinction seems to go to the jurist in Cambridge, Mass., who ruled that a drunken driver whose car killed two people could not be held for manslaughter because he had been too drunk to know what he was doing.

The judge's reasoning is perfectly clear, once you examine it. A charge of manslaughter, he explained, must be based on "willful, wanton, and reckless" conduct. At the time of the accident the driver in question was drunk—and not just drunk, but awfully drunk. Consequently, said the judge, he was "not in a position to form a judgment or exercise his will"; hence he could not be willful, wanton, or reckless in his conduct, and so the manslaughter charge fell through.

It must be added that the judge did see his way clear to send the man to jail for six months and fine him $200 on a series of drunk-driving charges.

We get all sorts on the bench, in our somewhat untamed democracy, and we have to take the bitter with the sweet. And while there is little danger that any other judges will follow the reasoning of this Massachusetts jurist, his cock-eyed decision needs to be picked to pieces for the benefit of the casual drinkers who feel that being drunk relieves a man of a measure of responsibility for his acts.

Those people aren't quite as much a nuisance now as they were during prohibition, when it was considered smart to get awry-eyed. But there are still plenty of them.

They evolved the custom of morning after apologies to the hostess. A guest might have committed any of an infinite variety of misdemeanors, ranging from poking his hostess under the fifth rib with extended forefinger to upsetting a corrosive highball into the innards of her grand piano; he blithely assumed that if he simply begged pardon next day, explaining that he had had one too many when it happened, all would be well.

What gets overlooked in this sort of argument, of course, is the inescapable fact that although a man may not be responsible for what he does while drunk, he is most certainly responsible for getting drunk in the first place. No one holds a gun at his head and makes him drink. If, having drunk, he can't behave, he ought to take the responsibility.

Which gets us back to the Massachusetts judge. What he says about willful, wanton, and reckless conduct may be quite true. Yet it should hardly take the learning of a judge to see that a man who, about to drive an auto, takes a large quantity of alcohol into his system, is by that very fact guilty of willful, wanton, and reckless conduct—whether he subsequently runs over anybody or not.

WINGS OVER WASHINGTON

Aid For Youths Is One of America's Biggest Problems

DALLAS, Tex.—The gap between completion of school and the beginning of employment is the heart of America's Youth Problem. J. C. Kellam, State Youth Director, said in a speech delivered here.

"Bridging this gap from youth to adult responsibility, the National Youth Administration serves as an aid for thousands," he said. "On one hand the NYA provides part-time employment in high schools and colleges for needy youths who have passed their 16th birthday, this arrangement enabling thousands to continue their education."

Mr. Kellam said that the NYA had found that thousands of out-of-school youths had no idea of how to work as part of a group, and that many were unable to take direction from a foreman. "As the program got underway, it became even more apparent that youths on work projects needed special training," he added. The training program which is part of and parallel to the NYA work projects is being extended and enlarged in scope, Mr. Kellam said. Through instruction given in spare-time classes conducted in cooperation with public schools, the State Department of Education, adult education program and by NYA representatives, training opportunity in addition to that provided on the actual job is made available to the youths. More Resident Work and Training projects, similar to those conducted last summer on which about 500 rural Texas boys and girls were afforded opportunity to receive instruction in agriculture are being planned, Mr. Kellam said.

Bank Customers Are Replying To Letters Sent Out

Hall Walker, vice president of the Commercial State Bank, today stated that a good response was being received from depositors and those who owe notes at the bank, who have been asked to verify their accounts in order that the bank can become eligible for Federal Deposit Insurance provisions.

"About 70 per cent of the customers have verified their accounts," Walker stated today, "while 90 per cent is required before the government will insure accounts. The strange thing about this response is that those who owe notes are replying more rapidly than the depositors, which officials tell me is really unusual. The officials stated that in most instances the depositors have replied readily, while those who owe the bank money are slower in answering."

Walker stated that he believes enough verifications of accounts can be received to have the deposits guaranteed not later than Feb. 1.

Behind the Scenes in Washington

BY RODNEY DUTCHER
NEA Service Staff Correspondent

WASHINGTON.—The National Labor Relations Board, created to enforce labor's right to organize freely and bargain collectively through its own selected agents, is under attack—especially by the American Federation of Labor, which charges it with favoritism toward the C. I. O.

On that charge the Federation largely bases its opposition to the pending minimum wage-maximum hour bill.

Meanwhile it has gone unnoticed that an NLRB decision involving an A. F. of L. C. I. O. fight has just revealed the board's first split and first dissenting opinion, with a 2 to 1 vote in favor of a fundamental A. F. of L. principle.

It is instructive to examine two recent decisions of the board which have held in effect:

That imposition of an A. F. of L. union on employes by action of employers is no more legal than imposition of a "company union."

That craft unions should be permitted to carve themselves out of industrial unions, even in predominantly industrial production plants.

The board recently ordered the Consolidated Edison and affiliated companies in New York not to give effect to contracts with the International Brotherhood of Electrical Workers (A. F. of L.) which gave that union exclusively collective bargaining rights, to end its alleged use of labor spies, to cease persuading employes to join the IBEW, to cease discouraging employes from joining the United Radio and Electrical Workers of America (C. I. O.) and to reinstate six employes allegedly fired for union activity.

The board concluded that the companies had engaged in unfair labor practices by interfering with, restraining and coercing their employers; that the great IBEW contracts were employees' unlawful conduct and that they were hence invalid.

Chairman Floyd Condon said the board's findings are "utterly unprecedented" and promised to observe the provisions of the act. Now it's the C. I. O. turn. In the case involving 10,000 company workers the Member Edwin S. Smith, has held that the white employes may vote whether they wish to be represented by the A. F. of L. or by the United Brotherhood of Workers (C. I. O.) to the whole plant. The union is the International Brotherhood of Oilers.

Smith's dissent has been a majority decision in a small employe group determining whether to produce plant, a story from which one of the had been severed, to bargaining.

The decision had group known to be a industrial organization wishes of the great to ignored. Small cras said, would be ena thousands out of ing and hamper to achieve stable through collective bargaining.

He is a member of the Veterans of Foreign Wars, the Disabled Veterans of the World War and the American Legion. He has over 35 scrap books of newspaper clippings and souvenirs of the towns and Legion posts he has visited in his extensive travels. Since the war he has been in and out of government hospitals and military homes several times, but the lure of the road always calls him back to his wanderings as soon as he is able to be on his way.

He was a member of the 18th Infantry, Medical Detachment, during the World War and received the Croix De Guerre for saving a French officer under fire.

"The main thing in veterans' organizations now," Loewenstein stated today, "is membership. Everyone who can do so should belong to at least one such organization."

"At this Christmas time," he continued, "it would be a fine thing if all comrades who are able would send Christmas cards to displaced veterans in the hospitals, as the general public has forgotten these unfortunates who have been there since the World War."

Loewenstein in spite of, or because of, an active war record, is a strict advocate of peace and heartily endorses the movement launched in Kansas City, Mo., by Scott P. Squyres, commander-in-chief of the Veterans of Foreign Wars in starting a campaign to preserve peace for the United States.

At present Loewenstein, who has had experience in acting for the moving pictures as well as a newspaper and magazine work, is growing a beard. He explained his three-week stubble by saying that he had an opportunity to enact a part in a picture, but was required to wear a beard.

"I think the chance of being given a role in the picture is worth growing a beard for, don't you?" he asked as he stroked his short beard, which is streaked with gray.

HELP 15 MILES OF KIDNEY TUBES

To Flush out Acids and Other Poisonous Waste

Doctors say your kidneys contain 15 miles of tiny tubes or filters which help to purify the blood and keep you healthy. Most people pass about 3 pints a day or about 3 pounds of waste.

Frequent or scanty passage with astringent and burning shows there may be something wrong with your kidneys or bladder.

An excess of acids of poisons in your blood, when due to functional kidney disorders, may be the beginning of nagging backache, rheumatism pains, big pains, loss of pep and energy, getting up night, swelling, puffiness under the eyes, headache and dizziness.

Don't wait! Ask your druggist for Duane's Pills, used successfully by millions for over 40 years. They give happy relief and will help the 15 miles of kidney tubes flush out poisonous waste from your blood. Get Duane's Pills.

Here's a way to AVOID two tyrants—common constipation and cathartics.

Simply put back in your diet two of Nature's own laxatives that are lost by eating soft, "refined" foods: Those NATURAL laxatives are the intestinal-tissue vitamin "B-12" and "bulk."

Kellogg's All-Bran is a good source of vitamin "B-12"—to tone your intestinal tract and promote regular elimination. All-Bran has "bulk"—it absorbs water and softens like a sponge. This water-soaked mass aids elimination.

All-Bran is a crunchy, toasted cereal. Eat it with milk or cream and fruit. Delicious in muffins. But, however you eat it, use it REGULARLY: eat two tablespoons of All-Bran and drink plenty of water. If you do this every day you can avoid common constipation—and cathartics, too! Every grocer sells All-Bran. Made by Kellogg in Battle Creek.
