Dreams Can't Charm Away Human Traits

In the path of sentimentalist there is always one big, if unforeseen, stumbling block. People just don't seem to change their characters overnight...

Nothing could have been lovelier than the sentimental marriage-in-a-reform-school which was arranged last summer for a feminine inmate of such an institution in Oklahoma. And nothing could have been more disheartening—or more human and natural—than the way the thing flivvered.

Last summer the superintendent of Oklahoma's state, industrial school for girls decided that a bit of wholesome social life would do her charges good. Carefully supervised dances were arranged; and at one of them a boy "from outside" fell in love with and proposed to one of the girls.

The boy was investigated and found to be a decent, law-abiding lad; the girl swore she was genuinely in love. A marriage was arranged. State officials graced the ceremony with their presence; other girls in the school contributed little gifts, someone baked a cake, and the state's present to the bride was a parole.

Here was a sentimentalist's field day, if there ever was one; and it ought to have been followed by a romantic happy-ever-after story, with the sewing of tiny garments to follow in due time. But somehow it wasn't. In something under a month the thing went sour.

And today the girl is back in the industrial school and the boy has sued for divorce, complaining: "She only married me to get out of the school, and she did not intend to live with me."

Sentimental souls are forever stubbing their toes over something like this. It usually leads them to decide angrily that "it's no use trying to do anything for people like that"—for no one can be so cruel or unjust as a sentimentalist whose dream has gone blue.

But the trouble in these cases is with the sentimentalist, not with the unredeemed sinners who were the objects of the sentiment.

There is a large and ornery streak of the old Adam in all of us, and it can't be charmed away by graceful gestures or honeyed words. The person who thinks it can is simply begging for trouble.

This Oklahoma experiment might have worked, at that. The authorities might have talked turkey to the young woman, explaining that marriage wasn't just a way to get out of the reform school, but was instead a challenge to the best that was in her—a chance to rebuild a broken life, a thing that would demand all the grit and wisdom and sticking power she had.

Intelligent sentiment never forgets that life is hard and that people are frail. It carries an "or else" in its handbag. It insists that those who would be helped must also help themselves.

But sentimentalism forgets all that, bathes the landscape in a haze of romance—and then wonders why, in the end, things didn't turn out well.

THE SCENES IN WASHINGTON WITH RODNEY DUTCHER

BY RODNEY DUTCHER
NEA Service Staff Correspondent

WASHINGTON.—This is not one of those periods when anyone whose function it is to prophesy what's going to happen next in government, politics, business and other national affairs finds himself having very much fun.

Yet there probably is no more confusion inside the government as to the future than there is on the outside—and probably nowhere near as much. The question of who or what started this depression has given way to debate on which forces are now most feared—the administration's or those of "Big Business"? Faith in the curative powers of tax revision, budget-balancing, attempts to stimulate building and other measures is ebbing.

There appears to be real worry in New York that the situation can't be saved simply by tearing down the New Deal, that private capital can't and won't take over during a depression, and that no one really knows the answers. Conservatives who believed in an "independent Congress" and a balanced budget are now not quite so sure, especially after observing Congress in its special session.

Proposals from the National Association of Manufacturers that government co-operate with business toward recovery caused hardly a ripple in Washington, perhaps because of a deep-seated conviction that the N. A. M. is an incorrigible enemy of the New Deal. There are tugs of war between various sets of administration advisers as to the nature and extent of "concessions to business" but these only accentuate confusion.

Probability that Chairman Joe Kennedy of the Maritime Commission will be made ambassador to England has started. Specimens guessing whether this is a good sign, inasmuch as it gets perhaps the President's closest conservative adviser far away from the White House, or whether it isn't a good sign when Roosevelt demonstrates his faith in his closest conservative adviser.

Almost simultaneously Roosevelt has thrown a package of mingled good news and bad news to both conservatives and progressives by appointments of Jerome Frank, liberal lawyer, and John W. Hanes, Wall Street broker, to the SEC.

Dr. Rex Tugwell has just visited Roosevelt at the White House (for lunch) for the first time since he quit the New Deal. Arch-conservative Congressman Bruce Barton of New York, advertising magnate, has advised the N. A. M. to get interested in low-cost housing on the ground that one gesture of "social consciousness" will do more good than all the resolutions in the world.

The political picture continues to be complicated by the third-term specter, and there are rumors that High Commissioner-to-the-Philippines Paul McNutt will seek a coalition nomination for 1940.

The Republican executive committee meets at St. Louis to name a program committee which will be just as much mixed up on the program question as everyone else. Meanwhile the Rev. Gerald L. K. Smith, who will rabble-rouse over 40-odd radio stations every Sunday as long as he can raise money to pay for it, has moved into the Hay-Adams House in a room where he gazes daily across the park at the White House and thinks of new polemics to hurl at its most celebrated occupant.

And if anyone asks you "Where do we go from here?" the best answer is: "I'll bite!"

WASHINGTON NEWS

FROM CONGRESSMAN CLYDE L. GARRETT

Merry Christmas

I wish to extend to all my constituents and to the publisher of this newspaper, cordial and hearty greetings at this holiday season for a most Merry Christmas and a Happy New Year. This hearty greeting conveys my sense of appreciation to all my good friends at a time when the air is full of good cheer and of holiday activities. At such a time, I am wishful to do and say the things that are in my heart. The best I can think of is an echo of the past—at first an indistinct whisper, then gaining in volume and cadence until it bursts forth in a thunderous Peace on Earth, Good Will Toward Men and I take up the theme with a joyous shout of "Merry Christmas" to all of you, and with a sincere and hearty hand-clasp for 1938. I wish to say GOOD LUCK TO YOU.

Farm Tenant Plans
The first county in the 17th district to be chosen for organization under the Farm Tenant plan is Jones County. The choice was made on the basis of percentage in tenancy. Jones County ranked sixth in the State at the census with a percentage of 6%. Only thirty counties were allotted to Texas under the setup for the first year. On the same basis about seventy more will be added next year sometime.

Aid to Unemployed.
After the First of the Year, the unemployed in 22 States and the District of Columbia will be assured of compensation if thrown out of a job. After that date, if a worker loses his job he goes to the State Employment Service where he puts in an application for work and then files for a claim of unemployment insurance. The worker has to wait about three weeks before this given compensation. If at the end of this time, he is still out of work, he is given his first check for unemployment insurance.

Relief.
350,000 people will be put on the WPA Relief Rolls because of the increase in unemployment due to slump in industrial activity and regular winter decline in activity. There is, according to Administrator Hopkins enough funds in the amount already appropriated for relief to take care of the extra number. A bill, however, has been introduced for additional relief appropriations of a half a billion dollars.

World Business Also Slow
Not only has business dropped in the United States but throughout the rest of the World. Great Britain is showing a slack in business, and a rise in unemployment. Italy and Germany show a fall also. South America is having difficulties due to declines in prices of commodities produced over there. Japan, of course, and China, we know their situation.

U. S. Savings Bonds
Secretary of the Treasury Morgenthau announced that United States Savings Bonds cash sales passed the billion dollar mark. This billion investment represents a sale of approximately 4,500,000 bond units, which were purchased by about 1,200,000 people. As U. S. Savings Bonds are sold on a discount basis, and mature at the end of ten years for 33 1-3 per cent more than their purchase price, this sale, expressed in maturity value, amounts to $1,334,088,242.60, or a daily average maturity value sale of $1,571,364.24 for each of the 850 business days, which have elapsed since March 1, 1935 when these bonds were first offered.

S. S. Leviathan.
Approved of the sale for scrap of the S. S. Leviathan by the United States Lines Company for $732,000 to the British ship breaking firms of Metal Industries, Ltd. of Glasgow, Scotland, and Thomas Ward of Sheffield, England, was announced by the U. S. Maritime Commission. The Commission's approval of the sale was necessary under the terms of the blanket mortgage which it holds on the line and nine other vessels operated by the United States Lines Company. The Leviathan, formerly the S. S. Vaterland, was seized from Germany by the United States during the World War. The vessel is now 24 years old and has been laid up at Hoboken, N. J., for over two years.

Poor Crops on Poor Land
Planting poor crops continuously on poor land may eventually lead to the poor house, according to Soil Conservation Service men. Soils subjected to continuous cropping of corn, cotton, tobacco, and other clean cultivated crops are impoverished by erosion, become thin from the standpoint of fertile topsoil and often are unable to produce profitable yields. When this happens farmers are apt to try the next best thing: They choose a less desirable crop and try to make at least something off the land. Usually this is the first step in a downward cycle. Usually it is not long before the impoverished soil fails to produce anything. That's when farm lands are abandoned and when soil erosion is allowed to complete the ruin. The remedy for excessive cropping is to retire the badly eroding areas to grass before the damage has gone too far.

CHRISTIAN CONSECRATION

Text: Philippians 1:12-26.

BY WM. E. GILROY, D. D. Editor of Advance

A LESSON on Christian consecration comes, most appropriately, on the day after Christmas, when we have been celebrating God's gift to the world in Jesus Christ.

We do not learn the meaning of Christmas or its lesson until our own hearts have been opened in the spirit of giving. Though we have not the words recorded in the direct sayings of Jesus, Paul's report of the words of Jesus, "It is more blessed to give than to receive," expresses the very heart of the Christ life and the Christ message.

Our lesson sets before us the trust and most real form of giving, the gift of a man's life in consecration to the gospel, and in loyalty to Christ.

Paul was so sincere about the spreading of the gospel that he could rejoice even in his own imprisonment and persecution, knowing that the word of God was being spread abroad.

He realized also that his own fortitude under tribulation was an inspiration to others. He could say truly that for him to live was Christ, that his whole being was devoted to his Master.

This loyalty and devotion had so dominated Paul's every thought, word and action that he had no fear of anything in life, and no fear of death. He lived in a world of spiritual realities that death could not destroy. He had the profound faith that even in death he would gain through a closer relationship to his Lord.

It should be remembered in this lesson that Paul was writing to Christians who were in the midst of discouragement and persecution, in a city where he himself had been cast into prison. It was in this city of Philippi, in his missionary journey to Europe, that Paul had been arrested and thrown into the inner prison with his feet fast in the stocks, and it was here that the prison door had been opened and the jailer had thrown himself at the feet of Paul, inquiring, "Sir, what must I do to be saved?"

We need to read this lesson in Paul in the light of the places and backgrounds and experiences of his missionary journeys. These Philippians understood perfectly well what he meant when he spoke of the things that had happened to him, making for the progress of the gospel.

In reading all Paul's Epistles, we should consider carefully the city and the particular Christians to whom they were addressed. A good plan is to read the Book of the Acts at the same time as the Epistles, tracing Paul's missionary journeys and his experiences in the founding of the churches to which he later addressed his letters.

Dollar Bill Lost For Six Months Is Found by Its Owner

Howard Stevens, Ranger Times carrier, believes that if you look for a thing long enough you will find it.

Six months ago Howard lost a $1 bill somewhere between Anderson-Pruet and the Times office. He retraced his steps several times seeking the bill, without success.

Christmas Eve Howard again made the trip to the Times office, but without much hope of finding his dollar bill. But, in an alley not far from the office he found the bill, somewhat weather beaten, somewhat soiled and slightly torn, but a good dollar bill, nevertheless.

And was he tickled?

Aged Woman Who Has Never Studied Art, Is An Artist

A remarkable picture was brought to the Times office Friday morning by Joe Calder.

The remarkable thing about the picture is that it was painted by a 65-year-old woman who lives in Ranger and who has never had an art lesson in her life.

The woman, Mrs. F. L. Kelly, reproduced the picture from a small calendar she was given last year, and it is an exact enlargement, the coloring and detail work being so perfect that, at only a short distance, it appears to be printed in color instead of being hand painted.

The picture is one familiar to many, being five dogs sitting around a poker table, with all but two having thrown in their hands, and these two studying their hands closely.

The playing cards, some face up and some face down, the pictures of the walls, the chairs, table, lugeses of drinks and the drapes are all faithfully and carefully drawn.

It has been suggested by several who have seen this picture, and others Mrs. Kelly has painted, that a suitable place be found in the business section where her pictures can be properly displayed.

Rare Pictorial Drama: As Youth First Used His "Gift Eye"

WHAT a Christmas this one is going to be for Frank Chabina, 19, of New Orleans! His is one of the greatest gifts of all—that of restored sight. When the surgeon removed the bandage from Frank's eyes to test the success of the operation for transplanting a cornea "given" to him by John Amos, fellow patient, whose sight was failing, he asked: "See anything, Frank?" "Two fingers," replied Frank. "That's right!" the surgeon said. Then came the drama-fraught instant picture above. The surgeon extended his five fingers. "Now what do you see by blindness because of lime dust burns. Frank, whose vision had been threatened a see?" "Why, I see your whole hand!" exulted

The Awful Truth Hits High Mark In Screen Hilarity

"The Awful Truth"—and the only thing awful about it is that it ends too soon—is so terrifically entertaining it is a menace to those with short wind and weak stomachs. You can't laugh uproariously for seventy-five minutes without being able to take it.

Mainly responsible for this situation is the madcap Irene Dunne whose deft clowning as Lucy Warriner tops her Theodora for laughs.

Superlatives as a rule are a risky business. Nevertheless "The Awful Truth's" reception at the Arcadia theatre where it opened a two-day run yesterday, fully justified them.

It is based on the Arthur Richman stage success of the same name in which Ina Claire starred. The story is as meaty as it is funny, and happily stays on this side of the "screwball" sort of screen fare.

ST. LOUIS.—St. Louis smoke pills are so thick that aviators have been grounded on especially bad days. A new regulation of the Bureau of Air Commerce, effective since Nov. 1, requires privately owned planes to stay on the ground when visibility does not exceed three miles and the ceiling is limited to 1,000 feet.

SISTER MARY'S KITCHEN

By Mrs. Gaynor Maddox

Monday's Menu
BREAKFAST: Pineapple, orange and lime juice, popovers, crisp bacon, grape jelly, coffee, milk.
LUNCHEON: Red kidney beans with peppers and tomatoes, raw cabbage salad, buttered rye bread, fruit bowl, tea, milk.
DINNER: Grapefruit juice, loin lamb chops, creamed potatoes, buttered beets, lettuce and celery salad, left-over cake with soft custard, coffee, milk.

The so-called "pasteurizing" keeps it in perfect state for an indefinite period.
 Then, too, there are a lot of new juices, including pear, nectarine, plum and peach. These fruit nectars are milder than citrus nectars and combine very well with them. To those women and men who have allergies for citrus fruit, these milder nectars are a blessing.

Whole Day of Liquids
 If you have never tried going on a "liquid day" for the sake of your health or your figure, try it now. After the Christmas over-eating and over-excitement, your system will welcome it. Begin early in the morning with a glass of grapefruit juice. About ten, take at least 5 ounces of another juice. Then at one, try a glass of skim milk. At four in the afternoon, try still another fruit juice combination. For dinner have no more than a raw vegetable salad and a glass of grapefruit juice. Before retiring, take one more glass of fruit juice. In the morning you will feel delightfully peppy and ready to spring out of bed. And there is a large possibility that your liquid day may have cut your poundage.

Proportions to Suit Taste
 It is difficult to give exact proportions, because tastes vary. So combine the juices in amounts that please you most. How about a crystal goblet filled with a softly tinted mixture of apricot juice and the milk from a fresh coconut? Or the juice from fresh or quick frozen raspberries, pineapple juice and a bracer of grapefruit juice? Fresh pineapple juice, with a little orange juice and a squeeze of fresh lime is a delight, and likewise a delight is the clear green juice pressed from honeydew melon combined with a little grapefruit juice and a little fresh lime.
 All the juices used at the beauty salon bar are, of course, freshly pressed. But if you go in for this healthful and vitamin-mineral-rich habit at home, you may prefer to use a few canned or bottled juices to save the trouble of squeezing. There is a new brand of pasteurized fresh fruit juice in glass bottles which will amaze you with its fresh taste. It costs just a little more, but you will understand why. Not a drop of water, sugar or any preservative.

Find Her Among Dolls in Store

This 20-month-old girl was found wandering among the toys in a Buffalo department store, and no one has appeared to claim her. Tenant Farmers to Buy Own Farms On New Credit Plan

DALLAS, Texas—Tenant farmers in 23 Texas counties will receive loans with which to buy their own farms, it has been announced by the Farm Security Administration.

Dallas officials said that upon recommendation of a State Advisory Committee, Secretary of Agriculture Henry A. Wallace had selected one or more counties in each type of farming area for the placing of tenant farmers. Selections were made as follows: Bexar county, eight farms at $2,500 each. Hidalgo county, five farms at $4,250 each.

Reeves county, five farms at $1,200 each.
 Nueces and Baylor counties, 10 farms at $7,500.

LET US JOIN IN A HAPPY CHRISTMAS MELODY ... A NEW SONG

The Christmas musical instrument is a harp strung with the heart strings of happy people. The melody is an old-fashioned one... joyous cries of little children, strong deep notes of mothers and fathers, with a calm and peaceful amen by those whose hair is white. Taken as a whole it is the thanksgiving song of pure joy, lifting a world higher and blessing all hearts who will attune themselves to the holiday music.

May we express to you our thanks for the past patronage given us, and look forward to the same happy relations in the future.

FIRST METHODIST CHURCH

G. Alfred Brown, Pastor
 The pastor wishes to take this opportunity of extending Christmas greetings, and of wishing a very joyous and profitable Christmas season to all who may read this message. Taken as a whole, with most of us, but even those who have met with misfortune and reverses, can join in the spirit of rejoicing that more than nineteen hundred years ago, the Saviour came to Bethlehem, and that as a result we are now heirs of Christ, and entitled to share in all of the blessings that Christ brought into the world.

In our spirit of celebration, let us remember that this is the birthday of Jesus Christ, and conduct ourselves accordingly. One way to honor him, is by being in the Church Services on Sunday.

Our services will be at the usual time; Church School 9:45, Morning Service 11:00; Young People's Fellowship Hour at 6:00 and the Evening Service at 7:15. Even though we are to have company over the week-end, the pastor and his family expect to be in each of these services, and we invite others to do likewise.

75 Per Cent of All Texans Get Water From Underground

By United Press
 AUSTIN, Texas—Seventy-five per cent of the state's population depend upon wells or springs for their water supply, records compiled by official sources show. The surveys are being made by the U. S. Department of Interior co-operating with the State Board of Water Engineers.

Sixty-two per cent of the city population and 84 per cent of the towns are dependent upon wells and springs for public water supplies. Field work has been completed in 41 counties. It has been discontinued, partly complete, in six and field parties now are working in three counties.

Locations, descriptions, water levels and water samples have been taken on 12,865 wells and 432 springs. Test wells totalling 101,753 feet have been drilled with Works Progress Administration labor. The footage is distributed among 5,872 wells.

Results of the surveys have been distributed about the state in county and college libraries. The tabulation show that in 10 communities cisterns supply water.

Preaching by the pastor 7:15 p. m. Arthur Shelton and his orchestra will be in charge of the music at the evening service. These youngsters are presenting an interesting program of music at the evening services and you would enjoy it. Come and worship with us.

The pastor and wife wish to take this opportunity of expressing their very deep appreciation for the many expressions of love and sympathy during these days of good cheer and good will. We wish for everyone the very best of everything during the holidays and for the incoming new year. Come and worship the Lord in his sanctuary.

Before Grounded Hoover Broke Up

Silhouetted against the darkening background of the almost unknown island of Hoishoto, off the southeast coast of Formosa, the $8,000,000 Dollar Liner President Hoover is pictured here after she went aground and before she was broken in two by pounding waves. The vessel's 435 passengers were landed on the island and later taken to Manila by another Dollar liner, the McKinley. The strange course taken by the ship to avoid Shanghai battle areas was blamed for the wreck.

Color Scheme Urged For Nervous People

By United Press
 HOUSTON—The Texas Council of Painting and Decorating believes it could help prevent nervous breakdowns, keep morals on a high standard and prevent crimes.

H. Kaetzer of Houston, secretary, said that the decorators could contribute toward a more even nervous tension on the part of the public by sponsoring proper and pleasing color schemes in homes.

"It is our responsibility to guard against nervous breakdowns blamed on improper surroundings, to make homes inviting to folks, mainly children, want to stay at home, thereby keeping morals on a high standard and preventing crime," Kaetzer said.

Dinner Party Pays Honor to Bride-Elect Miss Mamye Robinson

Arrietta Davenport assisted by her sister and co-hostess, Mrs. E. F. Latham entertained with a seven o'clock dinner party at the home of the latter hostess, Gulf camp, Thursday evening, honoring Miss Mamye Robinson, bride-elect of the Rev. Wilson Akins.

The Christmas theme was carried out in all decorations. Tables laid in white had for centers silver and blue Yuletide blossoms. Place cards read "Engaged—Mamye to Wilson. When opened the wedding date of January 7th 1938 was revealed. The hostesses were assisted in the living room with the serving of tomato juice cocktails, by their mother and aunt, Mrs. Alice Davenport, and Mrs. Christine Ware. Three courses were complete with black and white fruit cake and wine cups.

Guest list named close friends of the bride-elect.

Soon following the dinner party members of the W. Y. A. of First Baptist church of which the bride-elect is a past president and now serves as program chairman gathered in the home of Mrs. W. A. Lewis, 608 Cherry street. The group went caroling climaxed their journey with a return visit to the Lewis residence.

A Christmas tree invited many admiring glances, aglow with its glistening Yuletide colors. Amid games Santa Claus arrived and all attention was centered about the tree. As each gift was taken from the tree Santa presented it to the bride-elect.

Drawing to a close a delightful courtesy the hostess passed refreshments of hot chocolate and fancy cookies to honoree, Miss Mamye Robinson, and Misses Doris and Mildred Fern Mitchell, Mary Jane and Jimmie Beth Toole, Elizabeth and Odelle Jay, Frances Usery, Edith Mae Taylor, Mona Robinson and Messrs. R. V. Robinson and Dell Cox. Regrets were sent by Misses Mary Davis, Hazel Barker, Eula and Eunice Preslar and Chrystal Jackson.

Miss Geraldine Pirkle Hostess To Piano Students of Mrs. Weldon Webb

With parties marking the calendars of many during the holiday season, one of delightful fashion was given at the home of Miss Geraldine Pirkle, 601 Young street in compliment to piano students of Mrs. Weldon W. Webb, and associate class members of the hostess.

Smartly employed were the artistic decorations. The festive and profusion of cedar together with a typical East Texas pine tree made beautiful the background for the playing of musical games. Winners presented prizes in these clever games were Francis Eulbank and Dorothy Lee Brimberry. The dining table was a picture of rare beauty laid in a lace cloth, and carrying for its centerpiece Yuletide blossoms symbolic of the season. Flanking either side stood silver candle holders set with tall red tapers.

Present were: Mrs. Weldon W. Webb, and Margaret Jo McCleskey, Mary Jane Hicks, Dorothy Jean Williams, Dorothy Lee Brimberry, Francis Ann Eubank, Francine Hatley, Mettamae Woods Lynn, Mercedes and Electra Pearson and Mrs. Nath Pirkle, mother of the hostess.

Miss Veda Winsett Is Bride Friday

A telegram received in Ranger late Friday afternoon announced the marriage of Miss Veda Winsett and Mr. Hubert Capps at New Orleans, La., at 3 p. m.

The bride will be remembered as a teacher in the Ranger school system for the past several years and is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. J. M. Winsett of Winsett, Springs. The groom, up until his resignation from the school system, was a teacher in the high school and he has recently been employed with the federal government, making his home at Biloxi, Miss.

The many friends of the happy couple wish them much happiness.

Forty-Six Children Made Happy With Christmas Party

The P. W. A. nursery school, under the direction of Miss Edna Moade, was the scene of a happy occasion on Thursday afternoon when some forty-six underprivileged children of Ranger were paid a visit by Santa Claus.

The entertainment, a beautiful one, not only in decorations but in spirit, comes as one of the most outstanding happenings at this Yuletide. Mrs. Saunders Greege, in her fine way, went about arranging for this school a number of months ago, and since her untiring efforts have continuously been given over to the success of its operation.

Eyes brightened and hearts beat faster when old Saint Nick made his appearance and from the brightly trimmed tree found gifts for every little tot attending the party.

There were refreshments to make perfect this splendid occasion.

Former Ranger Girl Marries Fort Worth Doctor

Mrs. O. M. Grant, Strawn road, announces the marriage of her daughter, Lucille, to Dr. E. H. Charn of Fort Worth, which took place at the home of the bride's sister Wednesday, Dec. 22. Mrs. Charn has many friends in Ranger who will be interested in this announcement. The mother of the bride was among wedding party members.

MILLION DOLLAR PEACH CROP POSSIBLE STATES FARM AGENT E. V. COOK

By Elmo V. Cook
County Agent

Fifty thousand peach trees are producing fruit on 1000 acres in Eastland County with an average annual production of 30,000 bushels of peaches. This statement is based on the estimate increase in plantings since 1935, which time the census showed 22 farms with a total of 33,000 bearing trees. In addition there are an estimated 20,000 young trees on 15000 acres of land, based on a spacing of 30 feet between trees. Estimating that peach trees make up half of the total fruit trees, approximately 3000 acres of Eastland County crop land are in orchards capable of producing 100,000 bushels of fruit an average year.

There are approximately 133,000 acres of cropland in Eastland county, at least one fourth of which is adapted to peach production. This means that 33,000 acres of crop land in the county are adapted to profitable growing of peaches, or eleven times the present acreage of fruit. This does not consider woodland that could be put into cultivation. Therefore Eastland County has a potential possibility of producing at least a million bushels of peaches worth a million dollars per year. This is more than the combined value of all crops now produced in Eastland County and leaves three-fourths of the land for crop production.

At least 90 per cent of the land in the County is composed of Windthorst and Nimrod sandy loam soils. The Windthorst find sandy loam, which is (according to a recent survey made by the Texas Agricultural Experiment Station) "amazingly adapted" to peach growing, has a sandy loam surface layer from 6 to 12 inches in depth for the development of feeder roots with a subsoil layer of reddish clay mixed with enough sand to permit the percolation of water and the growth of roots through it. The clay holds water to carry the trees through the summer drought.

The Nimrod sand is a light colored deep sand with a light colored clay subsoil. It is also well adapted to all fruits, including peaches and apples, although is not considered quite as productive a peach soil as the Windthorst.

Careful consideration must be given water and air drainage in selecting the orchard site, as, according to an old saying, peach trees cannot stand wet feet. Air drainage is necessary to insure against frost damage to insure considerable slope, preferably towards the North or East, with at least twice as much territory below as is being considered for the orchard acreage. will assure both water and air drainage. In frost weather the layer of cold air near the ground literally slips out from under the warm layer if there is lower ground handy. This warms the air among the trees and lessens frost damage.

A subsoil is necessary which is friable, or has enough sand mixture so that it will break apart when crushed in the hand. This assures root penetration and water-holding capability.

Examine roots of weeds growing on the proposed orchard site for knots caused by nematodes. These microscopic animals infest cold, wet sand and kill or reduce the production of fruit trees.

Land where crops die badly in dry summer weather is not adapted to fruit.

Fruit growers and nurserymen are rapidly learning the importance of terracing land before setting fruit trees. Eastland County has sufficient rainfall but it is badly distributed and there is nearly always a summer drought. Terraces hold the moisture until needed. Some successful fruit growers place their trees on the terraces while others place all the rows between the terraces. Both methods are good, the important point is to terrace.

Prospective locations for each tree should be marked, allowing at least 10 feet between trees. Several shovels full of manure should be worked into the soil at each location as long before planting as possible or one to two pounds of commercial fertilizer can be spaded in a few feet from the tree at planting time or just before the trees start out in the spring.

As it costs no more to set good producing, frost resistant, adapted varieties than off brands, careful consideration should be given varieties. An orchard should not have too many varieties, possibly not more than four or five. The later varieties should be placed on the deeper soil as they require more food and over a longer period of time during the growing season. Varieties which are adapted to commercial fruit production in

Eastland county are:
Ripening June 1-15th.
Early Rose (Must be thinned on tree.)

June 15-30.
Fairies Beauty.
South Haven
Golden Jubilee
July 1-30.
Leona, Lena, Elberta.

August 1 to September 1.
Frank (must be thinned on tree.)

Indian Cling.
Fruit trees should be grown at home or bought from reliable nurserymen although few nurserymen sell inferior stock, street sellers who are not well known for their reliability should be avoided. It is best to visit a nurseryman and select trees. A reliable nurseryman encourages this and will replace doubtful trees. The cost of trees is a minor investment as compared with the value of the land and a few extra dollars are well invested if they insure good trees.

Although reasonable care should be taken in setting out trees, methods of digging holes and size of the holes vary. One should only be careful to dig a hole slightly larger than the root system, trim off all broken roots, place the tree two or three inches lower than it grew in the nursery, and pack the dirt well around the roots. If the soil is dry the trees should be watered when planted. The roots should not be exposed to the air any longer than is absolutely necessary. It is recommended that trees be leaned slightly towards the Southwest so that prevailing winds will straighten them up.

Small trees should be topped 18 to 24 inches from the ground to insure a low crown and prevent possibility of sun-scald damage to the trunk. The fertilizer mentioned is a paying investment at planting time.

Unfortunately, too many fruit growers plant trees, then forget them and expect a profitable return. This is the greatest mistake being made by fruit growers in Eastland county. Peach trees are not short lived trees if properly cared for.

Trees should not be pruned heavily but enough to keep the trunk protected from sun scald, to keep out dead limbs which harbor insects, to keep limbs from getting too long for heavy bearing, and allow the bottom limbs to rest on the ground when heavily loaded.

It is poor management to raise a cash crop between fruit trees as they need all the moisture and food possible during the growing season. Summer cultivation shallow hold moisture in the soil and planting a winter cover crop on small grain or vetch are recommended.

Million Dollar Peach Crop Possible States County Agent Cook

mended. The winter cover should be plowed under in the spring but deep plowing should be avoided as it destroys feeder roots.

Cultivating too close to the trees is dangerous as it is very easy to damage the limbs with plow or harness.

Jackrabbits are a hazard to young trees in Eastland County. They can be poisoned economically with strychnine poisoned grain or salt but the trees should be protected up from the ground for 18 inches. The following methods are recommended:

(1). Wrap the body of the trees with heavy paper to a height of 18 inches, leaving 2 or 4 buds above the point where the tree is wrapped.

(2). Heat cottonseed oil, linseed oil, or peanut oil until it begins to smoke. Do not boil. Stir into the hot oil 1 to 1 1/2 lbs. of sulphur. Cool and apply with a paint brush over the entire surface of the trees as they are set out.

Rabbits should be poisoned by placing poisoned grain in small piles (1 tablespoonful) along the trails at intervals of a few inches to the side of the trail. Poisoned grain can be home mixed or secured from the County Agent. In hot weather mix 1 ounce of strychnine with 1 1/2 lbs. of salt. Bore 1 inch holes about three fourths through wooden blocks. Fill the holes with the poison salt and dumped to make the salt crust. Place these along the trails. Strychnine thinly dusted on quartered apples placed on sticks also make good rabbit baits.

Eastland county is surprisingly free of diseases that usually attack peaches but these are rapidly becoming more common and at least one insect, the ciralis, does much damage to the fruit, spoiling at least 25 per cent and lowering the market value of the rest. A few will find it necessary to spray for San Jose scale in the winter but ordinarily the following schedule will suffice and this is only necessary on bearing peach and plum trees:

1st spraying should consist of a mixture of 50 gallons of water, 1 1/2 lbs. arsenate of lead, and 6 lbs. dry lime sulphur and should be applied when most of the blossoms have shed off the young fruits.

2nd spraying using the same mixture should be applied 14 days later.

Spraying should be done at a pressure of 200 lbs. or greater. This requires a good barrel sprayer as a minimum investment or a power sprayer for those who have sufficient acreage in orchard. A good barrel sprayer costs about $13.00 with 30 feet of hose necessary to spray around the entire tree. The chemicals to spray an average bearing peach tree cost about 10 cents for both sprayings and the investment is profitable.

With the increased interest being shown and a rapid increase in fruit production being expected in the West Cross Timber section, including the Counties of Eastland, Erath, Comanche, Brown and Callahan, soon a definite marketing set-up will be necessary. At present the demand far exceeds the supply and during the harvest many trucks leave empty after trying to buy fruit.

A marketing organization, to be successful and satisfactory, must be organized and operated by the growers themselves. When this happens the fruit will be sold on its merits and the poorer grades will go begging for a market. Then the fruit growers will be forced to produce a quality product and those who do this now will be that much ahead of the demand.

Far-sighted farmers can grow their own nursery stock, save expense, and assure healthy, disease-free trees. Peach seed should be saved for this purpose.

Peach seed should be planted not later than November 1. The soil should be of a sandy nature if possible, and well drained. The garden is a satisfactory place for planting peach seed if no nematodes are present. This can be determined by examining the roots of vegetables growing there at this time. The seed should be planted in rows at least four feet apart, sowing them in the row at the rate of four seed per foot, and covering two inches deep. One hundred feet of row space planted in peach seed will make a good demonstration. One to three bushels of peaches with the flesh on should supply about 400 seed which will plant 100 feet of row. The seed should come up in April and by June will be large enough to be budded to proven varieties. Eastland County needs a nursery and there is a possibility of a profitable undertaking along this line.

Barber Kills a Doe Without Paying Fine

KERRVILLE, Tex.—R. Marshall Dixon, Kerrville barber, killed a doe deer, but he didn't pay the usual $61 fine.

Dixon reported to the game warden that the female deer attacked his automobile one night and ended second best. The doe was distributed by the warden to the city's needy families.

Chapel Trailer Is On Two-Year Trip

By United Press
HUNDRED OAKS, WINCHES-TER, Tenn.—Two Papist priests are making a two-year trail of the Tennessee mountains in a cathedral on wheels—a modern auto trailer equipped with an altar.
The missionaries, the Reverend Thomas M. Hallogan, and the Reverend James F. Cunningham, began their trip in September in their 23-foot $5,200 trailer. The trailer chapel, named the St. Lucy Catholic motor chapel in memory of the donor's 5-year-old daughter, contains beside the altar, a motion picture projector and screen, an electric phonograph and a public address system.
Traverse Rural Areas
The priests stop in rural communities, play hymns and sacred music on the phonograph and show religious motion pictures. Their sermons are intended to afford non-Catholics an opportunity to understand the doctrines of the church.

The chapel-trailer was designed by Father Cunningham in co-operation with George Chaplin, trailer engineer, and Maurice Lavanaux of the Liturgical Arts magazine. The trailer rides on two sets of wheels, and is 23 feet long outside. The rear door opens, making a speaking platform illuminated by floodlights. Above the speaker's head two loud speakers carry his words for many blocks and are capable of reaching 20,000 people.
Inside the chapel-car is an altar, a vestment case containing all necessary equipment for Mass, a lending library and the motion picture equipment for showing "The Life of Christ."
Comforts are Provided
Sliding doors separate the chapel proper from the living quarters,

FRECKLES AND HIS FRIENDS—By Blosser

which contain a kitchenette, sink, wardrobe near the door holds stove, table and a divan which opens up to make a double bed. A Each night the program opens with 15 minutes of recorded music. The announcements and a question box program follow. A short 12-minute sound picture is shown and a 20 minute sermon delivered. The whole service takes an hour and a half.

The first Mass was celebrated at Cowan, Conn., with Peter Har- per and his two sons, Peter, Jr., and William, making up the con- gregation. At the second service, at Tullahoma, 15 attended. From 250 to 300 attend the services at present.

A MERRY Christmas TO EVERYONE

MAY THE DAWN OF ANOTHER CHRISTMAS BE BRIGHT AND FAIR!

For all our friends and patrons we trust that this Christmas brings only happiness and joy.

Our big wish for you is a real old fashioned Merry Christmas.

Phi Beta Kappa Key Is Awarded to A Sightless Girl

By United Press
 NEW YORK—Helen O'Connell's education seemed doomed when she lost her sight at the age of 13. Now, Helen, a senior at Hunter College, has been initiated into Phi Beta Kappa.

When she was graduated from high school her grades were too low for entrance to Hunter College. Determined to go to college, she attended the New York Institute for the Blind and passed her Regents there. Now she is completing a full college course in three and one-half years. When she is graduated soon she hopes to be accepted at the New York School for Social Work since she is a member of the first class to be graduated in the field of Pro-Social Specialization at Hunter.

"I don't know yet just what I will be able to do in the field of social work, but I am tremendously interested in it, so I hope there is a place for me," she declared.

Helen was born in Ireland, the youngest of 13 children. Now she lives at 457 Bainbridge Street, Brooklyn.

She has been able to do her college work through the help of readers provided by the special fund for that purpose by the state. Helen is the envy of her classmates in her Shakespeare class for she doesn't have to read the plays. She lets the talking books read them to her. She takes her class notes in Braille.

For 10 years she has been a member of the Blind Players Club, a dramatic group in Suffern, N. Y. Twice she has acted in the club's spring performance at the Brooklyn Academy of Music.

Indian School Has A New Location

By United Press
 BISMARCK, N. D.—The Bismarck Indian school, established 32 years ago, has been abandoned.

Because the U. S. Indian Bureau feels that its educational programs can be better developed on reservations, the institution here has been abandoned and the work will be transferred to reservation schools at Fort Yates and Fort Totten, N. D.

The more than 100 pupils here will be divided between Fort Yates and Fort Totten. They are mostly members of the Sioux, Chippewa, and Blackfoot tribes of the Dakotas and Montana.

There were 31 girls in the 1937 graduation class. Over the period of three decades since its establishment in 1905, the school has had an average enrollment of 100, directed by a faculty of from ten to 20 men and women — some of them Indians. Formerly the school

CAST OF CHARACTERS
LINDA BENTON — Heroine, daughter of a famous singer.
CAPT. BARRYMORE TRENT — Hero, flying "Sarddevil."
MIRANDA TRENT — Barrymore's grandmother; a "strong woman."

Yesterday Barry, leaving Linda afloat and tearful, starts on his hazardous rescue trip. At the airport another woman's voice takes the air to speed him well!

CHAPTER IX

THE voice that spoke next was unmistakably familiar. It was the voice of Rita Blanchard.

"There isn't much one can say, is there?" Rita began, "when you see someone whom you have—been very fond of—Barry Trent and I played together as children—setting off alone in the dark on such an errand? . . . But I do want to say to Barry, if he is listening, 'God-speed and come back soon!'"

"Children together, my foot!" snorted the Duchess when she could get her breath. "Rita Blanchard was plucking her eyebrows when Barry was playing with blocks. . . . What some people will do for a little publicity!" They went to bed then. . . . That is, they went to their rooms. To Linda, climbing the stairs, it seemed for the first time since Barry's coming had brought the old house to life, that the faces of the dead and gone Trents lining the stairway peered down at her with secret, silent hostility.

And this was her wedding night.

Next morning life went on much as usual except that there were no bursts of song at the breakfast table, no swift feet taking the stairs two at a time, no fragrance of pipe tobacco floating through the rooms—and that, from time to time, Linda fingered incredulously a small golden circlet that hung on a ribbon under her dress, close against the white hollow of her throat.

The early edition of the afternoon paper carried a two-minute item to the effect that Captain Barry Trent, having covered the first leg of his flight in record time, would rest and re-fuel before continuing south.

Early in the afternoon a stream of callers began to pour into the house. Old Miranda received them regally in her high-backed chair; but in an interval she observed to Linda with dour amusement, "You might think from the way they go on that this was a funeral, and they were hired mourners."

FOR the first time since she had come to the Trent house, Linda could not find tasks enough to keep hands and mind busy. They were unendurably idle moments in which she found herself wandering about, her hands lingering in caress upon objects Barry had used or touched—his chair at the table, a book he had been reading—her mind traveling around and around again the cycle of their brief, stormy companionship.

Late in the afternoon old Miranda came upon her sitting on the lower flight of stairs, her elbows resting on her knees, her chin cupped in her palms, her eyes wide on space.

"My dear Miss Benton, how tired you look!" she said, with a gentleness so unexpected that tears sprang to Linda's eyes. "I'm afraid I have been too exacting. . . . I wonder sometimes if I am not a very trying old woman."

When Linda only murmured vaguely, she went on, "Do go out and get some fresh air. Do you skate? They tell me the skating on the lake is good now."

So Linda half-heartedly dragged her skates from her trunk, and putting on a gray woolen skirt, a short gray fur coat, and a cap and scarf of jade green, started out for the lake.

As she passed Judge Baldwin's house, she remembered that she had an errand there. She and Barry had been so hurried yesterday that they had not waited for their marriage certificate. Judge Baldwin was to fill it out and have it recorded for them this morning.

Linda had promised Barry to call and get it. He had been very insistent upon this.

This time Linda went boldly up the front steps and rang the bell. The maid who came to the door looked startled when Linda asked for the judge. Hadn't she heard? Judge Baldwin had gone out to see a friend off on the train the evening before, had suffered a heart attack on the platform of the depot, and had been taken to the hospital.

Linda thought of asking if the judge had left a paper for her; but if Judge Baldwin had been stricken almost as soon as she and Barry had left him and Mr. Chadwick at the depot, obviously he could not have filed the record of their marriage. In fact, he could not even have finished filling it out. . . . Not that it mattered. That could be attended to later. Anyhow, she had kept her promise to Barry.

SHE walked on down to the lake and put on her skates.

Skating was one of Linda's accomplishments. She had been well taught, and though she looked frail, her body was as strong and supple as finely tempered steel. On skates, she was as much at home as most girls on a dance floor.

She had not been on the ice long before she began to realize that people stopped skating to watch as she skimmed by in her swift, humming-bird flight. . . . Then she began to hear voices—snatches of conversation:

"—and Miss Chattam said they fairly jumped apart when she opened the door"—"Oh, the dowager's not worried. She'll see that Barry doesn't slip"—"Of course, no one's quite good enough for my grandson, the captain!"

With burning cheeks, Linda almost ran home. A little later she came upon Mrs. Trent seated before the dining room table. Spread out before her were dozens of photographs. . . . Photographs of Barry—Barry as a grave, dark-eyed, adorable baby in an almost complete state of nature; Barry as a small boy, grinning ingratiatingly, with one front tooth gone; Barry on horseback; Barry in uniform—Barry at every age and in every mood.

A little sheepishly, yet with the air of one determined to brazen out a compromising situation, the old lady said, "Quite a gallery, isn't it? The newspapers asked to borrow one."

But Linda knew why they were all spread out there; and she felt a rush of affection for the old lady that she would not have believed possible five minutes ago.

She had come back to the house determined to leave it as soon as she could get ready. She would leave a letter for Barry, explaining to him that her position here was untenable—unbearable. She had already begun to pack.

Now she went slowly upstairs and put her clothes back into closets and drawers.

After all, hadn't Barry left old Miranda in her care? That night the radio reported Captain Trent well on the last leg of his flight. There was one ominous sentence in the broadcast, however, that sent Linda's nails deep into her palms.

"It is hoped," the announcer said, "that Captain Trent will make a safe landing in time to escape the unseasonable tropical storm which is sweeping westward across the Caribbean."

for military conduct, regards each soldier as a "human bullet." His life is not as important as the mission to which he is dedicated. A soldier killed in action is deified. There is no more honorable death.

Recently subscribers on a long line near here complained of a phone that was always in use. The only clue to the mystery was the ticking of a clock which was heard by everyone on the line.

Telephone Used In Knitting a Mystery

NORTH BAY—New uses for the telephone are being discovered every day.

An inspector investigated and visited every subscriber on the circuit. He finally entered the home of an elderly lady who was living alone. The mystery was solved. The woman was using a telephone receiver as the "knitting egg" for socks.

Announcing LOW LONG DISTANCE RATES

ALL DAY CHRISTMAS ALL DAY NEW YEAR'S

Lower night and Sunday rates will be kept in effect ALL DAY Christmas and ALL DAY New Year's Day this year. Instead of having to call Christmas Eve to get lowest rates, you can call all Christmas Day, and all the next day, Sunday. The same lower rates will apply for a similar period at New Year's.

diet deficiency, which cripples the muscles. In the Russo-Japanese war 85,000 Japanese soldiers suffered from it. Officials say there has been none in the present North China campaign.

Unpolished rice has been substituted for the polished kind and other items have been added to the diet. On my visits to the front I ate soldiers' rations and found them palatable and nourishing. There was canned beef, canned fish, bean soup, rice and vegetables.

For emergency rations the men carried, in cheese-cloth bags, hardtack biscuits in which essential food values had been blended. Supply officers told me the biscuits would remain edible for ten years but that the ones we were eating were only two years old.

Always Boil Water

"Water is a problem in China and the rule of health here is always to boil water and never to eat anything raw which grows close to the ground. The Japanese were extremely careful about water. They sank deep wells, then filtered and disinfected the water. Where no wells were available water was boiled. Foods gathered from the countryside were always cooked and soldiers were told not to eat anything raw. The danger is dysentery, which caused such havoc among Southern soldiers in the Civil War in America.

The fighting qualities of the Japanese army are debatable. There is no question of individual courage. There is ample evidence that the Japanese soldier is as courageous as any living man. Perhaps he is too courageous, for he is prone to make the issue an individual one, like the samurai or Japanese warriors of feudal times, instead of relying on team work and organization.

It is said that the Japanese are not good aviators. It is true there are many accidents among fliers in Japan. Weather conditions there may be partly responsible, as contended by Japanese officials. The aviators did a neat bit of bombing around Tientsin, picking off objectives cleanly. But most of that bombing was done at about 300 yards, and the bombing abilities at high altitudes were not tested.

Gunnery Records Secret

The artillerymen are said to be poor marksmen, although that would be a question of personal opinion depending on just how much experience one had had with it. The Japanese do not publicize their gunnery work.

Excitability, inherent in the race, is a drawback. Japanese crowds stamped easily. The Japanese have had so few defeats in battle that they have come to think of themselves as invincible.
