SENATOR RAPS JACKSON TALK ON REPRESSION

By United Press
WASHINGTON, Dec. 30.—Senator Charles McNary of Oregon, a republican leader, today characterized the attack of Assistant Attorney General Robert Jackson upon big business as an "obvious effort to create an artificial business recession."
McNary believed that Jackson's addresses, in which the anti-trust chief contended that monopolistic practices were the major cause of the depression, were designed to "prepare the way" for President Roosevelt's message to Congress Monday.
"I don't think," said McNary, "that it is the way to handle what I think is a grave domestic problem. It is a time for good will and cooperation, rather than a group of political speeches."
Monopolies were under new deal today, preliminary to a 1938 program for greater government control and economic sparks as Jackson expanded President Roosevelt's denunciation of private monopolies and financial arches.
This strategy may rally some starting new deal troops to Mr. Roosevelt's standards and may be Jackson a political figure of national proportions by 1940.

Ranger officers today sought a "short change artist" who was reported to be working in the town, but failed to locate him.

He then pulled a one dollar bill from his pocket and, placing it with other ones, asked for a five dollar bill in their place. When the transaction was made he would pocket one five and, taking the five given him from the cash register, ask that they be exchanged for the original ten.

Public Debt Nears An All-Time High

WASHINGTON, Dec. 30.—The public debt appeared today destined to reach an all-time peak of $37,700,000,000 within the next two months.

Hobo Requests Bar On Daylight Time

SHERIDAN, Wyo. — J. Leon Lazarowitz addressed a request to Chief Justice Charles Evans Hughes of the U. S. Supreme Court that he be named a friend of the court and be permitted to plead before the tribunal his petition for the abolishment of daylight saving time.
Lazarowitz made the request as "one chief justice to another."
The president of the Rambling Hoboes of America, Inc., chief justice of the supreme hobo kangaroo court of America, doctor of gratis touring and professor of mileston inspection, was en route north for the winter when he announced his request to the chief justice.
"I work north in the winter and south in the summer to avoid competition," he explained.
The hobo went into detail with officers and reporters concerning his daylight saving case, while checking out of the city jail where he had applied for lodging overnight.
"I'm petitioning in behalf of the transient public in asking daylight saving time be declared unconstitutional," he said and displayed a prepared brief.
The petition sets forth, among other things, that Lazarowitz was once caused to miss a freight train because of daylight saving time and was deprived of an hour's sleep.

Rail Executive Has Big Collection of Old Dime Novels

ST. PAUL, Minn.—Half a century ago a boy in Omaha, like many another youth his age, thrilled at the breath-taking adventures of "Buffalo Bill," "Dead-eye Dick," "Nick Carter," and the rest of the heroes of the paper-backed dime novels.
The youth did his reading in the attic and in a secluded corner of the barn because his parents, like other parents of the age, didn't think well of the characters that had a tremendous youthful following.
As he acquired these nickel and dime novels, George H. Hess, Jr., never failed to scribble his name on the flyleaf.
Time has brought a great deal of respectability to the old Indian-fighting, hard-riding, villain-fighting daredevils of the dime novel, and Hess, comptroller of the Great Northern railroad, has nearly 8,000 of them in his home here.
"As reading matter," Hess said, "naturally they hold little interest for me now. But I am collecting them in the hope of finding some with my name written in them. So far, after nine years of collecting, that hope is unfulfilled."

FOG AND MIST COVERS MOST OF STATE TODAY

Dense fog, mist and rain impeded highway traffic in North Texas Thursday, grounding airplanes and hampering ships along the Texas Coast.
East Texas streams were swollen and rapidly approaching flood stage from a steady downpour, which had continued for several days.
A dozen vessels were held at their docks at Fort Arthur, waiting for the fog to clear, and more than a score of other ships, mostly oil tankers, rode at anchor in the Gulf of Mexico, unable to enter the Fort Arthur harbor.
Wharves and oil terminal facilities were taxed to capacity on the Houston Ship Channel, as the fog lifted sufficiently to allow vessels to enter port. The maritime association reported 22 arrivals and 12 departures in 24 hours.
Skies were clearing in West Texas and cold air slipped southward from the Rocky Mountains, bringing a temperature of 36 at Amarillo, 28 at Lubbock and 38 at El Paso.
Fort Worth reported the "darkest and dreariest" December in the 39-year history of that city's weather bureau, with only 25 per cent of normal sunshine for the month. Twenty days have been cloudy, four partly cloudy and six clear.
Floodwaters of the Llano, above Austin, were expected to delay work on Marshall Ford dam on the Colorado River, but officials expected no damage.
The State Highway Department announced that six highways in South and Southwest Texas were blocked by high waters.

High School Band Wants to Attend Cotton Bowl Game

W. T. Walton, superintendent of the Ranger public schools, today stated that a number of members of the Ranger high school band had indicated that the band would like to go to the Cotton Bowl game at Dallas Saturday to help furnish music, along with other high school bands.
"If parents of band members want their children to go to the game and play," Walton said today, "they should send a written notice to the Chamber of Commerce, and if enough can go to make a representative musical organization arrangements will be made to have the band director come back to direct them."
It was pointed out that no special train will be run from this section of the state, and regular railroad fares will prevail on the railroads.
"However," Walton stated, "if provision can be made for transportation and enough can go I think it would be a fine thing for the band members to go."

Setting the Brake on Alien Meddling

The New England town meeting is one of the oldest existing vehicles of democracy—as old as the United States government itself.

So when a New England town meeting comes into head-on collision with the ultra-modern phenomenon of Nazism, what happens ought to be worth watching.

It happened, the other day—in Southbury, Conn. The German-American Bund, a Nazi outfit, had bought 178 acres of land within the town limits of Southbury, and was preparing to build a camp there.

The townspeople debated the matter for a couple of hours or so. On the one hand, they faced the fact that this is a free country and that there is no law to keep a private organization from maintaining a summer camp if it chooses to do so; on the other hand, there was the equally obvious fact that Yankee democracy has no use whatever for a goose-stepping, hell-Hitlering Nazi outfit in its midst.

In the end, the townspeople adopted a zoning ordinance making it illegal for the Nazis to build cabins or hold drills on their land. And there the matter rests, with the Nazis apparently checkmated.

Now Southbury is a small town, and what happens there may not seem to be of very great moment as far as capitals like Washington and Berlin are concerned. But there was a good deal of significance in this town meeting, for it grappled with a problem that is peculiarly difficult for Americans to handle—as well as increasingly important.

That problem has to do with the treatment which we are to give to semi-political organizations, inspired by foreign propagandists and aiming ultimately at the complete denial of everything we understand by Americanism. The Nazis are one such group; the Communists are another. Each looks forward to the abolition of democracy, each scoffs at freedom—and yet each is quick to take advantage of our democratic freedom in order to carry on its program in our midst.

What are we to do in such cases? Our laws guaranteeing freedom of speech, freedom of assembly, and so on, are extremely precious to us. Yet it is not pleasant to see those laws used as a protective cloak by the very people who would immediately destroy them if they should get in power.

The Yankee ingenuity of the Southbury town meeting found one answer. A zoning ordinance may be a queer weapon with which to fight a potential dictatorship, but apparently it is going to do the job the Southbury people want it to do.

A more comprehensive answer is needed, however. We have a right to protect ourselves. Evolving a method of applying that protection within the framework of our free institutions calls for some earnest thinking.

Corpus Christi Is Rapidly Growing As Important Port

CORPUS CHRISTI—Roy Miller, nationally prominent inland waterways authority and one of Texas' most widely known figures, last week was named head of a newly-formed organization for expansion of the Port of Corpus Christi and extension of the intra-coastal canal from Galveston to Corpus Christi.

Increased shipping through the Port of Corpus Christi in the past two or three years has brought about a necessity for enlarging the harbor's facilities. The Port on November 31 had recorded receipts of 3,840,311 tons of cargo since January 1, representing a gain of more than one million tons over shipments for 1936.

Two new general cargo docks now under construction will be completed about January 15, marking the third addition of facilities as the port since it was opened in 1936.

Miller, whose home is in Corpus Christi, has maintained headquarters in Houston in recent years while serving as active president of the Intracoastal Canal Association of Louisiana, Texas. On January 1 he will move his headquarters to Corpus Christi where he will be closer to the completed portion of the canal project and to the local port.

Stuffing: 1-2 teaspoon grated onion, 2 tablespoons butter, 1-4 teaspoon salt, 1 cup chopped celery, 1-2 cups dried bread crumbs, 1 cup cooked chopped prunes, 1 cup tart raw apple, chopped.

Cold sliced duckling with highly spiced orange gelatin molds makes a beautiful Sunday night supper dish. To cook a goose, have it drawn first by the butcher, have all pin feathers removed as well as the second turning basin two days away, was built. Plans are under way for construction of a new oil dock to augment the three oil docks now in use.

Miller, whose home is in Corpus Christi, has maintained headquarters in Houston in recent years while serving as active president of the Intracoastal Canal Association of Louisiana, Texas. On January 1 he will move his headquarters to Corpus Christi where he will be closer to the completed portion of the canal project and to the local port.

CAST OF CHARACTERS
LINDA BENTON—Niece of the doctor.
CAPT. HARRY BURE TRENT—Hero, being "dressed" by Linda.
MIRANDA TRENT—Harry's grandmother, a "strong woman."

CHAPTER XIII
"SING!" faltered Linda. "Here?"

"Just some little Christmas songs—to make my evening perfect." In his earnestness the little man looked as if he were about to burst into tears. "The more simple the better. There will be a boys' choir to help with the choruses. You can even practice with them a little. . . If you will do this for me, I will gladly pay you ten times the amount of your check."

It was preposterous. It was unthinkable. Yet Linda did think about it. After all, she did need money desperately.

"You mean—now?" she asked, glancing down at her nun-like gray frock, with its childish collar and deep flaring cuffs of white organdy. "The way I am?"

"Just like that." Tony was no longer funny. He was appraising her with the shrewd eyes of an impresario. "Like that is perfect. I could not have planned it better, myself. . . . Anyway, you didn't show the simplicity at any department store."

It was true. She had bought it in Paris, the last time she had been there with her aunt.

When, an hour later, the lights were suddenly darkened, people sat back expectantly. Tony had some surprise up his sleeve.

UNSEEN, the stage revolved, carrying with it the last act—a team of trick banjo players. Into the silence that fell an organ pealed. Lights twinkled in what seemed to be the vast dome of heaven—and outshining them all, one bright, clear star. And there under the star, as if transfixed in space, was Linda in her simple frock, with her fair hair frosted by the soft overhead lighting, her pale young face, and that look in her eyes of a thoughtful child.

Barely visible in the shadows about her feet, like a group of disembodied cherubs, clustered the bright faces of the choir boys.

So Linda sang, very softly and tenderly—"God Rest Ye, Merry Gentlemen"—"The Virgin's Lullaby"—"O Holy Night!"—accompanied sometimes by the shrill, clear boy voices. . . . He caught up one of the newspapers he had carried in with him, and opening it, began to read aloud.

"When an unknown singer steps, unannounced, upon the stage of a popular night club in this age of jazz and swing, and within two minutes has a crowd of wisecrackers who know all the answers reaching for their pocket handkerchiefs—that's news in this city. And that's what happened last night when Tony Abruzzi's new singing sensation, Silvia Star, made her first appearance. . . . And what did she sing? Nothing that all of us have not been hearing every year around the Christmas tree since we first began hanging up our stockings. . . . And that," Tony finished, "comes from one of the wisecrackers who know-it-alls of the lot."

"But—'Silvia Star'?" Linda frowned in bewilderment. "Oh, that!" Tony shrugged. "When the newspaper boys begin to ask questions, you got to think fast sometimes. . . . And I guessed you'd like to keep your own name in the family."

"Thank you," said Linda softly. "And I like the name."

"Oh, I get lots of good ideas," said the little man modestly. "This one from a song that might have been written for you. We use it for the build-up. . . . Mystery! Get it?"

Linda laughed for the first time in almost two weeks.

"Tonight," he went on, "you will not sing Christmas songs, of course; but something else cool and sweet and beautiful. . . . No star this time—just the house all dark, and—wait."

"But I haven't any clothes," Linda objected. "I left—"

"Clothes, she says!" Tony appealed with hands and eyes to the heavens. "When I want clothes horses, I get more than I can use at any booking agency. Wait! You ain't heard anything yet!"

He reached for another paper and read aloud:

"In her simple gray frock, slender Silvia Star stood out from the other more elaborately costumed performers like—well, like Titania among mere mortals. . . . And sang like a disembodied spirit. . . . Titania, now—Tony brooded regretfully over the name. "Mebbie, now, I missed a bet. Mebbie Titania would have been better—"

Cotton Bowl Game Will Be Broadcast

Climaxing the various New Year's "bowl game" football broadcasts for Texas will be the broadcast of the Cotton Bowl game from Dallas, which will be broadcast to Texas listeners by the Humble Oil & Refining Company, sponsor of Southwest Conference football broadcasts for the last three years.

Rice Institute, 1937 Southwest Conference champion, meets the undefeated, untied team of the University of Colorado in the renewal of the Cotton Bowl classic. As a football game, it is one of the standouts of the entire year; as a colorful football spectacle, it ranks second to none.

Game and spectacle will be recreated for radio listeners to the Humble Company broadcast by Keren Tips, leading sports announcer of the South, who will handle the play-by-play description of the game, and Gene Wyatt who will bring color to listeners. Special equipment will be used to pick up hand music, cheers and like.

The game begins at 2:00 p. m., the Humble Company's broadcast at 1:45. Tune in on stations WFAA, Dallas; WDAF, Ft. Worth; KPRC, Houston; WQAF, San Antonio.

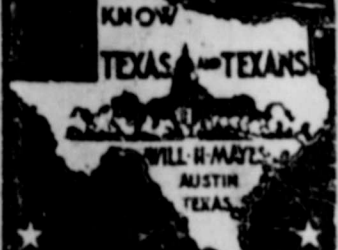

PATIENTS LIKE HOSPITAL

PARIS.—Patients at the Curative Sanatorium at Perigueux like convalescing so much that they refuse to quit when cured. Wanting to remedy this state of affairs, the superintendent ordered a patient to leave. But the other "convalescents" tackled the police and they returned to headquarters without the patient.

him and his associates. Soon all littoral and adjoining country restrictions were removed, and an era of wild land speculation attracted all classes of people to the "land of opportunities" from 1825 to 1835.

Q. What Texas cities now levy taxes by vote of the taxpayers for advertising?
A. Brownsville, El Paso and San Antonio.

LET'S KNOW TEXAS—TEXANS

In this column answers will be given to inquiries as to Texas history and other matters pertaining to the State and its people. Address inquiries to Will H. Mayer, Austin, Texas.

Q. What is the Big Bend Juniper?
A. It is a recently discovered tree of the juniper species, believed to be restricted to the Big Bend section of Texas, with beautiful flowers that hang down, instead of standing up as on other junipers. When in bloom it is unusually attractive.

Q. Briefly stated, what was the empresario plan of land settlement for Texas under Spanish and Mexican governments?

A. Both governments made substantially the same kind of grants with colonizers (empresarios) like Austin, DeWitt and others, which provided for the settlement of certain numbers of families with land and conditions fixed by the government, for which the empresarios were paid in land grants upon the fulfillment of their contracts.

Q. What was the extent of development of Texas under the empresario system?

A. While the earlier Spanish contracts did not result in settling any large number of people in Texas or in any extensive development rapidly after the first American settlements in the early part of the nineteenth century. In 1806, there were only 7,000 colonists, including civilized Indians, the number increasing to 20,000 whites in 1831, and to 30,000 in 1836, at which time 26,280,000 acres of land had been granted for settlement.

Q. What provision did Texas make as to its lands when the Republic entered the Union in 1846?

A. Unlike other states, Texas retained ownership of its public lands which soon became its greatest source of revenue and public improvements, especially in the development of its public schools and in subsidizing the building of railways.

Q. What was the immediate effect of the passage of the Coahuila and Texas colonization law of 1825?

A. Authority was at once granted for the settlement of some 2,000 families in Texas, each empresario colony to be within a prescribed area. Austin already had a grant under the turbid reign to settle 300 families, and the number was immediately increased to 600, and later under a special arrangement the number was practically unlimited as to

WASHINGTON WITH RODNEY DUTCHER

WASHINGTON—At least 1,000,000 jobless persons will apply in January for unemployment insurance benefits under the Social Security Act. That figure is only a guess, but officials agree that it's as good as any other guess. State employment offices where unemployed men and women must register for benefits in the 22 states, which begin to pay benefits after the first of the year, except to be swamped.

Few if any checks will be paid in January. They will begin to pour out in February, but probably will not reach full tide until March or April.

Each state has a waiting period of two to four weeks, during which registrants report to see if jobs can be found for them, before benefits can be paid.

About 11,500,000 employees are covered in the 22 states by unemployment compensation laws and another 2,500,000 will be under the system by the time the last state starts paying benefits in July, 1939.

By the end of January the total amount credited to the 22 states in the Treasury's unemployment trust fund will be close to $500,000,000. For two years employers have been paying payroll taxes to finance the system, graduated from 1 per cent and 2 per cent to a stationary 3 per cent beginning in 1938. Some states require employee contributions.

State laws vary in important particulars. Chief groups generally excluded from benefits are agricultural labor, domestic servants, public servants and casual labor. Usually employers of fewer than eight persons—and their employees—are exempted and excluded, although New York places the number at four and Pennsylvania at one, and there are other exceptions. From 12 to 26 weeks of employment within the 52 weeks prior to registration are required for eligibility for benefits. Benefits are to be paid for periods of from 12 to 20 weeks, in amounts which usually will be about half a full week's pay per week but are limited to $15 a week.

Each prospective applicant, says the Social Security Board, should be sure he has a social security account number. If he happens to have worked on a job which is covered by the state unemployment compensation law but not by the federal old-age insurance plan, he should nevertheless have an account number and can apply for one at the nearest Social Security office or post office.

Applications can be filed at the nearest public employment office on and after Jan. 2 and subsequently should be filed immediately upon loss of a job. State regulations require applicants to report at certain times during waiting periods to see if other jobs are available for them.

Whether or not the unemployment trust fund and the state deposits therein will be able to stand the strain of the rush for benefits—and whether the federal government will some time be asked to make up the difference so that all benefits can be paid, as happened in England—depends on the length of the depression and the rate of increasing unemployment. SPORT GLANCES By Grayson

CHICAGO—Chicago suspects that Bill De Corveant will be making headlines on the Pacific coast in 1939.

The suspicion is based on the fact that De Corveant is going to Hollywood during the Christmas vacation. It isn't every high school boy who gets a trip to southern California over the holidays, and the presumption is that the jaunt is being made possible by unofficial authority of a west coast university.

De Corveant plans to matriculate either in February or September, and the tip is that he'll remain on the golden slope provided he likes the scenery, which is excellent in that direction.

The University of Washington, which draws many athletes from the Chicago district, is said to have the inside track.

Thousands of words have been written about De Corveant who scored 210 points for Chicago's Austin High in 10 games, nine touchdowns in a single contest, and who played before the largest crowd in football history—120,000 persons at Soldiers' Field.

Yet De Corveant has not been moved. If anything, he is more modest and retiring than the average 19-year-old lad.

DE CORVEANT is a striking example of a real and good American boy. A blond cowlick refuses to stay out of his eyes.

Here is another tip for the boys on the coast. College scouts watching Austin High during the past season have seen something besides De Corveant.

Ernie Nevers calls Alfred Bauman, 226-pound tackle, the best high school lineman he has ever seen. Nevers was head lineman in Austin's engagement in Dixie.

Sonny Skor, quarterback, and Don Johnson, center, are others of the 10 Austin seniors giving lofty ranking by experts.

Bill Heiland, Austin coach, would like to see the entire team go to the same institution.

What an opportunity for some coach to make himself a great one!

HAMMOND HIGH is another fertile field for the colleges. Unbeaten and untied in 10 games, it was awarded a trophy as the outstanding preparatory outfit in Indiana.

Julia Papis, halfback, is described as a greater runner and passer than Tom Harmon, the four-sport youngster of Gary who stirred up so much fuss at Michigan.

Papis is headed for Alabama, which knows where to look for talent.

In the last 41 games Chicago high schools have played against clubs of the western division of the Northern Indiana Conference, they've won just four, tied two, and lost 35.

This area, loaded with 200-pound tackles and guards, furnishes as much or more material for big time colleges than any other in the United States.

WASHINGTON NEWS

FROM CONGRESSMAN
CLYDE L. GARRETT

HAPPY NEW YEAR—I wish to take this opportunity of wishing all my constituents and the publisher of this newspaper a Happy, Healthy and Prosperous New Year. I also fervently hope that the coming year of 1938 will find all of us enjoying more of the better things of life and that in the turbulent days to come, this great nation of ours shall continue to avoid any entanglements that may lead to war. Here's a hearty hand-clasp to all of you for 1938.

THE NEW SESSION—When Congress convenes for a regular session on January 3, it will be able to get right down to work. Many of the preliminaries that consume two or more weeks at the beginning of sessions will be eliminated because of the special session. Tax revision is certain. What new taxes will be taken up is very hard to say but there will be changes in several kinds of present tax laws. Many other measures are scheduled for an early consideration.

MARRIAGE BILL—Sen. Capper of Kansas has introduced a "standardized" marriage law in Congress. His bill would set up a uniform national divorce law. It proposes an amendment to the Constitution to empower Congress to make such laws. The amendment would require that three-fourths of all the states ratify, a process which requires months and sometimes years. He proposes two weeks intervention between application for license and ceremony. Insane persons, or those with certain infectious diseases be refused license, and that a minimum age of 18 years for men and 16 years for women be set.

PEACE VS. WAR—The situation in the Far East is becoming more tense. There seems to be more need than ever for a neutrality law that will insure our keeping peace over here. Rep. Ludlow's resolution proposing a constitutional amendment under which Congress would only have power to declare war providing the United States is invaded, with a national referendum vote to be taken before Congress could declare war has been discharged from committee and is scheduled for early consideration.

SANTA CLAUS—In at least one instance in the United States Santa Claus will be on the receiving end of a Christmas present. Postmaster General James A. Farley signed a commission reappointing Oscar L. Phillips Postmaster at Santa Claus, Indiana for another four year term. Phillips is the Postmaster who annually plays the role of Santa Claus for thousands of children throughout their construction under any fictitious, fancy or unscientific names unapproved by the dental profession, or manufacturers of such materials and which cannot be identified by the patient.

Advertisements any commercial dental laboratory or dental clinic. Gives a public demonstration of skill or methods of practicing dentistry for the purpose of securing patronage. What success the indefinitely written bill will have in a test case before the courts remains to be seen.

Beware Coughs from common colds That Hang On

No matter how many medicines you have tried for your cough, chest cold, or bronchial irritation, you can get relief now with Creomulsion. Serious trouble may be brewing and you cannot afford to take a chance with any remedy less potent than Creomulsion, which goes right to the seat of the trouble and aids nature to soothe and heal the inflamed mucous membranes and to loosen and expel the germ-laden phlegm. Even if other remedies have failed, don't be discouraged, try Creomulsion. Your druggist is authorized to refund your money if you are not thoroughly satisfied with the benefits obtained from the very first bottle. Creomulsion is one word—not two, and it has no hyphen in it. Ask for it plainly, see that the name on the bottle is Creomulsion, and you'll get the genuine product and the relief you want. (Adv.)

Police Protect Man Who Can Take It

PHILADELPHIA.—Here's a man who was jailed because he could "take it" too well.

He appeared at Hahnemann hospital to have four stitches taken in a cut over his right eye. "Fight with a friend," he explained. "I'm going back." Later he had six more stitches taken in the same wound, but when he insisted he was "going back" again, hospital attendants called police. He was locked up for the night.

DUCKS

Most of the market ducks in the U. S. are of the Pekin variety and the best commercial flocks are remarkably uniform in size and quality. This is probably due to a considerable degree of inbreeding, in the variety. Nearly all the Pekin ducks in the country are descended from a relatively small number of imported birds. Ducks offer a virgin field for poultry-breeding research, since little has been done in the way of scientific duck breeding—and there is an excellent opportunity for the investigation of the inheritance of meat characters in ducks.

FARM MACHINES—A reminder of the broad changes that engineering developments in farming have made in the way of life on the American people prefaces the annual report to Secretary Wallace. A century has passed since the invention of the steel plow and the grain harvester. Today there are more than 1,250,000 farm tractors in use, electric power is available on 1,000,000 farms, 85,000,000 acres of the best agricultural land are in organized drainage districts, 19,000,000 acres are under irrigation in the West, and supplemental irrigation is now practiced on nearly 1,000,000 acres in the humid part of the country.

HALF THE FAMILIES have an income of less than $1100.—In 140 villages selected as representative of American village life, half of 22,644 native white families interviewed in the year 1935-36 were living on incomes of less than $1100 annually, according to tabulations made by the Bureau of Home Economics.

CANNED FISH FOR CATS WARSAW.—One of the largest fish canneries in the Polish port of Gdynia is negotiating with a firm of British importers to supply them with large quantities of canned fish, intended especially for cats.

Hermit Asks Permit For a Bear Farm

By United Press
NEW PHILADELPHIA, O.—"Spike Horn" Meyers, Michigan's famed naturalist, has begun a movement to establish a bear farm near his Ohio birthplace.

At 64, the hermit wants to lease a good-sized tract of land in the Muskingum Conservancy District, to breed bears. He was born at nearby Wilmot.

Meyers, accompanied by two of his pet bears, made a personal appearance at offices of the conservancy here. Officials said they would take his plan under advisement.
