Museum Party Is Off for Arctic

By United Press
PITTSBURGH—The never-ending search for specimens of rare animals and bird life has sent two youthful Pittsburgh scientists on a 1,000 mile journey to the frozen north for the Carnegie Museum here.

The scientists, Dr. Arthur C. Twomey, 29, ornithologist, and J. Kenneth Doult, 35, mammalogist, left here early in January for Ungava land, situated on the barren shores of Canada's Hudson Bay, where they will remain eight months.

The experience will be nothing new to the two men, because each has made several trips to the northland. The only drawback is that their wives will have to remain at home.

"That is the only bad feature of the trip," the scientists smiled. "Our wives are almost as interested as ourselves in this opportunity to study the animal life and natives in this region."

The first stage of the trip, that from Pittsburgh to Moose Factory, "the end of steel" in the St. James Bay region, will require only three days via modern methods of travel.

But it will require an additional 20 days for them to reach their northeastern base, only 500 miles from the railroad terminus, because they must cover that leg of the trip by dog team with Eskimo guides.

After establishing headquarters at a small Hudson Bay Company position on the Great Whale River, Dr. Twomey and Doult will explore the territory for miles around. They will penetrate 200 miles inland the first month of their stay.

Then they will make a long, hazardous journey over ice-choked Hudson Bay to the Belcher Islands where much of their research work will be done. On the islands they will make a comprehensive study of animal and bird life the biology of which is little known.

Mann and Manager He Saved

Nathan Mann takes a cruise before buckling down to training for his fight with Joe Louis at Madison Square Garden, Feb. 23. Here is the challenger in a rather ripping get-up during a costume party aboard the Transylvania. In the center is Mann's manager, Marty Krompner, whose life the New Haven heavyweight saved in October, 1935, by giving several blood transfusions. Hoodlums shot Krompner in a New York barber shop the night Dutch Schultz, the Bronx beer baron, was fatally wounded in Newark.

turkey in this area in order to allow the stock to increase. The reclamation project will be rented as pasture land during the 10-year period.

Winnipeg Pit Has Honors for Early Traders In Grain

WINNIPEG.—The Winnipeg Grain Exchange, largest primary grain marketing center in the world, has paid tribute to a group of prairie pioneers who assembled in a basement room 50 years ago to market the golden harvest.

The booming of the huge exchange bell, which heralded the golden jubilee, and the shouting of dealers in the trading room, were silenced by Henry Gauer, president, who outlined the history of the exchange since its founding in 1887.

The exchange passed its second milestone in 1892 when it moved into larger quarters and established a grain futures market, which played a great role in the expanding production of the West.

The exchange passed its second milestone in 1892, when it moved into larger quarters and established a grain futures market which played a great role in the expanding production of the West.

The development of the West was graphically illustrated by the first annual report of 1888, when a production of 14,000,000 bushels of wheat was recorded. This compared with Western Canada's largest crop of 544,598,000 bushels of wheat and coarse grains in 1928.

The free and unrestricted operations of this market created confidence in Canadian wheat values throughout the world and Western Canadian farmers were assured of an immediate cash market for their grain every day of the year at the best possible price.

Meat Industry of Texas Has Output of $70,000,000

HOUSTON, Jan. 14.—Texas meat packing plants annually produce approximately 225 million pounds of fresh beef and veal, 65 million pounds of fresh and cured pork, and 17 million pounds of fresh lamb, according to biennial Census of Manufactures figures recently announced by the United States Department of Commerce.

The value of the product of the meat packing industry in Texas increased from approximately 35 million dollars in 1933, the previous census year, to about 73 1-2 million dollars in the latest such year, 1935, said Mr. Childress. Of the latter amount, approximately five-sixths (about 61 million dollars) was paid for farmers' live stock, and for other supplies and materials, including fuel and power, and about 5 1-2 million dollars was expended in the payrolls of about 4600 employees.

There were 40 meat packing establishments in Texas in 1935, and it ranked twelfth among the 48 states in the worth of its packing plant product, producing about 3 per cent of the country's meat values, said Mr. Childress. In 1933 the latest year for which the comparative figures of other industries are available, meat packing was the third most important manufacturing industry in Texas, on a product-value basis.

In January, 1937, Texas farmers owned about six million beef cattle, about 1 2-3 million hogs, and nearly nine million sheep and lambs, as compared with the state's human population of approximately six million, said Mr. Childress.

Claude Jarman, the officer, was given telephone duties when his sight failed him. He declined a pension when the telephone post was offered him.

The blind officer relay telephone messages to the sergeant on duty. A police automobile takes him to and from the station.

Placarded Pixie Pickets Picket

Picketing a linoleum store in St. Louis didn't turn out exactly as the picket with the umbrella intended. Furious at his marching, Mrs. A. Sarkis, owner of the store, tired the duxon Negroes, togged her out in wedding finery and assigned her to picket "her man." Both marched up and down in front of the store. The picket picketer was happier than the picketed picket.

Hawaii Areas Are 'Bombed' With Seed

HONOLULU, T. H.—Millions of "live bombs" consisting of tree seeds are being dropped upon barren and inaccessible regions of Hawaii by the U. S. Army air corps in an effort to reforest denuded mountain areas.

The "bombs" are filled with tightly-packed seeds of the Koa, silver wattle, and ironwood trees. The seeds have been collected each year by the CCC.

Remote Kauai Island, 100 miles northwest of here, will be the site of the "bombing." Army planes will be flown from here for the project.

Tree seeds have been successfully planted by air for nine years in the territory, army authorities said.

In 1928 the army cooperated in the first of such experiments ever tried in America. Seeds dropped at that time sprouted and took root, resulting in the reforestation of a large area. A similar planting project was carried out successfully in 1929, 1932, 1935 and 1936.

The planting is supervised by forestry experts of the territorial government.

Love On the Dole Worries a Town

LINDSAY, Ont.—The problem of young people marrying in order to get on relief is puzzling Mayor H. D. Logan.

"Thirty-five new applications have been received for relief out of these 12 couples were under 25," lamented the mayor. "They were married for the purpose of getting on relief. What can we do?"

The attitude of the government that no single man would get relief is forcing young people to get married, one alderman said.

The mayor declared that many young men wouldn't learn a trade. They were the last to be hired and the first to be fired, and said that one young man told him that the town had to keep him and his wife.

The town councillors are still worrying over the problem of "love on the dole."

For 49 years, Bedell travelled along railway lines, servicing pump stations that supplied locomotives with water. He estimates that he traveled 377,790 miles going from his home to the different pump stations in his division. For a time he attended four pumps daily.

Babson's Praise Of Chemicals Is Topic For Texas

Non-nation of chemicals is the "industry of the year" 1938 by David Babson, famous economist, emphasizes to the development of these industries in Texas, says a report of the South Development Council. Babson, whose previous prediction was to the nation's peace-settlement, scored bulls-eyes in selection of building construction in 1936 and aviation in 1937, the chemical industry for 1938, basing his report on its "research progress, exclusive diversification, conservative management, and its progress against war, inflation, and labor."

Because of her wealth of materials, both mineral and cultural, used in chemical manufacturing and in the fast-growing chemical process and materials industries, the state points out, Texas could be in the forefront of this progress. A program of "salesmanship" to industry, he said, could bring great gains in this field provided it is backed by a cooperative attitude toward business.

It is, although Texas products as petroleum, sulphur, gas, lime, clays, carbon black, and coal tar are prime for the chemical industry, he accounted for little more than half of one per cent of the state's chemical manufactures in the most recent official statistics, Louisiana, whose $7,324,000 output in that listing almost equaled Texas' $3,849,071, has in the past year added, under its "industrial plan," $6,000,000 worth of new and expanded chemical plants.

In addition to these mineral assets, the report notes, Texas has forests, ability to grow virtually all of the cellulose-containing plants now finding new industrial uses through current demands of the "chemical age,"

WE RECEIVE MORE HEAT AND LIGHT FROM THE SUN IN 13 SECONDS THAN WE DO FROM THE MOON IN AN ENTIRE YEAR.

THERE IS NO WHITE PIGMENT IN WHITE ANIMALS!

THE WHITE COLOR IS LIKE THAT OF SNOW... SIMPLY THE REFLECTION OF LIGHT FROM MINUTE SURFACES.

THE AVERAGE HUMAN ADULT REQUIRES MORE THAN ONE TON OF WATER IN A YEAR.

WHERE water is easy to get, we are apt to forget the importance of it in the lives of animals and plants. To produce a bushel of ear corn requires about 13 tons of water, and a ton of alfalfa hay requires something like 88 tons of water.

Church Steeple Clock Steeped In Spite

MARION, Mass. — The three-faced Congregational church steeple clock has remained steeped with spite since its installation more than 75 years ago.

An original contributor gave to the clock fund upon promise that the steeple side facing a neighbor he disliked would not include a clock face. Accordingly, that side is blank.

Letter of 1767 Records a Strike

NEW ORLEANS — Louisiana had a brief workers' strike and an even briefer "hunger strike" 170 years ago, according to facts found in an old letter by WPA workers in an archives study.

The strike was forgotten with the years until the letter, written by Antonio E. Ulloa, the first Spanish governor of the domain, was uncovered. The incident occurred on an island in the Mississippi river. The letter was dated March 25, 1767 and was addressed to Senor Don Antonio Boscarril, captain-general of Cuba, at Havana. Ulloa requested reinforcements, both because of the strike and a "depraved spirit" he noted in the new domain, then just recently acquired from France.

Ulloa had a number of French and Spanish subjects employed moving some dilapidated huts to the island, where San Carlos Fort was being erected. Another group of French, still resentful over the transfer of the colony to Spain, according to the letter, refused to do any work on the fort and beacon without extra pay.

The Spaniards were gathered, Ulloa wrote, "from among vagrant sailors occupied in illicit trades, all of them dissolute and incorrigible." They worked willingly enough the first day, but the French incited them to rebellion. Ulloa charged, and precipitated a strike of 12 of the men.

That night, the "food riot" occurred, the letter related. The workers threw their rations "disrespectfully at the Spanish overseer who was waiting on them."

Next day, all came to the governor in a body and through Gregorio Gon, a spokesman, announced they did not want to do any work on the island.

"I did not give him the opportunity to go on further," the governor wrote. "I called the French storekeeper and two or three others and ordered them to apprehend him and lock him in the wrecked hut which is use as a prison, and had him shackled. I told the rest of the men that the privateers anchored in the bay had yardarms which are used to stop mutinies. This was enough to make them start working more diligently." The letter throws new light on the hitherto discounted firmness of Ulloa.

Facing Music Will Cure Hit-Run Evil

A prime example of the manner in which a man may make a snap decision, influenced by fear, and regret it the rest of his life, occurred recently in Cleveland, O.

About 8:30 one evening, the unconscious form of a 24-year-old woman was found lying in the middle of a residential street. The motorist who struck her apparently had stopped to investigate, then, in sudden panic, had fled the scene.

Next morning, a local newspaper received a postcard, on which had been printed these words in crude letters:

"DEAR SIR: PLEASE PRINT IN YOUR LETTER COLUMN AND TELL ME WHAT WILL HAPPEN TO ME. LAST NITE I ACCIDENTLY RUN DOWN A LADY IT WASN'T MY FAULT OFF OF TAYLOR ROAD. I GOT A FAMILY TO FEED AND GOT A JOB LAST WEEK. I CANT LOSE IT. I GOT TO KNOW WHAT HAPPENED. SHE SCREAMED AWFUL I BEEN WANDERING THREE HOURS"

The man who wrote that letter could have picked up the limp body of that girl, taken her to the hospital and reported to police with his explanation.

But he didn't. He had only a few seconds in which to decide a course of action. Blinded by panic, he ran away.

Now he is a fugitive criminal. Unless he surrenders he will be haunted by aching fear to the end of his life. The fact that the accident may have been unavoidable means nothing to him now. He broke the law by leaving the scene.

The newspaper and police officials published appeals to the driver to "step forward and be a man." They pointed out that the girl would recover and said they would listen sympathetically to his story. But up to the time this is written he had not made known his identity.

The lesson to be learned is, of course, that every person should prepare himself for just such an emergency by determining in advance to do the manly and decent thing in case of accident. Humans cannot always trust themselves to make correct decisions on a split second's notice.

How much better for this man if he had decided long ago that if he ever became involved in such an accident, he would scorn flight, render all possible assistance, and keep his conscience clear by facing the music like a man.

Americans have been all too prone, in the last couple of decades, to try to "beat the rap" every time they get in trouble, whether it be a parking violation or murder. Isn't it about time citizens took on another cargo of common decency and honesty?

A British expert predicts aircraft soon will be propelled by hot air. With the congressional elections coming on, the U. S. soon will have an inexhaustible supply of fuel.

Indian Mounds Are Charted After Study

ST. LOUIS.—A plat charting historic Indian mounds in nearby St. Clair county, Ill. and Madison county, Ill., has been presented to the Missouri Historical Society by George B. Higgins, St. Louis druggist.

Higgins spent two years completing the chart, covering the area inch by inch each Sunday. The druggist became interested in the mounds in 1902. He visited them frequently, and decided to make the chart because he feared they would eventually be destroyed and lost to posterity. He completed the plat in 1922.

The accuracy of the plat is attested by Warren K. Moorehead, archaeologist, who has explored the mounds extensively. Higgins showed the plat to the archaeologist, who said it was the finest piece of work of its kind he had seen.

Although St. Clair county mounds are not primarily burial mounds, funeral pyres and cremated bodies of Indians have been found in them. The mounds are believed to have been on the Missouri side of the Mississippi before the stream changed its course.

Several mounds in St. Louis, long since destroyed, gave this city the nickname, "Mound City."

Saga of Arctic In Ship's Log

By United Press

SEATTLE—The rolickish motorship Boxer of the U. S. Bureau of Indian Affairs returned to Seattle recently after an 11,000-mile cruise through Alaskan waters, during which she stopped at countless native villages and government schools dotting the coast.

The scarred little vessel ventured as far north as Hooper's Bay in the Bering Sea and Atka in the Aleutian Islands. The ship originally served Point Barrow, northernmost settlement under the American flag, before the motorship North Star was christened in 1932.

Eskimo hunters aboard the Boxer killed one of the largest polar bears ever seen in Alaska on one of the Arctic cruises. The bear, weighing 1,900 pounds, measured 11 feet. It was killed 25 miles off Wainwright on the Arctic coast.

Meat from the carcass provided natives of Wainwright with food for several days. The giant animal was found on an iceberg two miles square.

Since the North Star was commissioned and assigned to the Point Barrow run, the Boxer has been serving the small villages along the Bering Sea and the more southern districts of Alaska. In 1932 the Boxer brought back a gallant jar with water dipped from the sea off Point Barrow. The water was used in the christening of the North Star. The ship's log is crammed with entries made during 14 years of Alaska service. Detailed and colorful, the entries tell of terrific battles with stormy seas, erupting volcanoes and desperate struggles for life in the frozen North.

DiMaggio Goes to Bat for a Raise

Joe DiMaggio, 1937's leading slugger, is in New York to receive the sports writers' most valuable player award and to end the recession so far as he is concerned. He'll do the latter by trying to nick Colonel Jacob Ruppert, owner of the Yankees, for $300,000 salary in 1938, an increase of $15,000. Joe, above, shows his affection for the tools of his trade, proficiency with which enabled him to bat out 46 home runs last summer.

Richest Girl in the World

KATIE BLYN—Constance's "double."
UNCLE TIPPI—Constance's guardian.

going to rout him out of his nice warm bed, too, and to let him get busy and change your name once more. For the last time, this..."

"Oh, Bret!" It was all that she could say, but it was enough.

He had not waited even for that much; he had switched on the ignition, cranked the little car into gear; they were speeding back, almost as fast as he could have come.

She gave a little sigh, nestled closer to him. Yes, that was all that counted. He loved her, because she was herself, just as she loved him because he was Bret Hardesty, no other. There was no rhyme nor reason in love; perhaps no logic. Yet she had been right when she had told Eloise it could surmount any obstacle, that it was greater than life itself.

It was no easy task, as Bret had predicted, to find a justice of the peace at that time of night. The first place they stopped it was impossible to arouse anyone, but at the next, Bret pounded on the door persistently until finally he succeeded in getting a response.

This was not the sort of wedding that Constance Corby, the richest girl in the world, should have had. Not the sort of wedding that she had dreamed of having one day. That would have been a gorgeous and lavish affair, with a thousand or more guests, flashlights flaring, reporters waiting for interviews, a crowd of the curious public pressing outside the church, mounted policemen to keep them in order, an escort on motorcycles to clear a path. Constance would have worn white satin, fashioned by one of the leading Paris creators, a veil that would have stretched for yards and yards, a prayer book bound in white leather in her hands and a bouquet of rare white orchids. There would have been a dozen bridesmaids in rainbow colors; an organ murmuring "O Promise Me"; rice and old shoes, champagne, cake with white icing, tier upon tier.

Instead, this wedding took place in the front parlor of a small frame house in a little mountain town. The parlor smelled strongly of mothballs. The light from the chandelier made a glistening mirror out of the round ball spot in the justice's head. His wife, acting as witness, her hair done up in curl-papers, yawned openly more than once. This was no part of the ordinary occurrence to her, young people were so impatient; and her good husband were often routed out of bed at all sorts of unearthly hours to "tie

Q. When was the "Battle of Concepcion" fought and what precipitated it?

A. Austin wished to get his men as close as possible to San Antonio and while camped at Salado Creek about five miles away, he sent a detachment of 92 men under Col. James Bowie and Capt. James Fannin to select a site closer in for a camp. The expedition camped for the night near Mission Concepcion and on the morning of Oct. 28 found itself surrounded by about 400 Mexicans, whom it engaged in battle, compelling a retreat to San Antonio, with a loss of one Texan and a score or more of Mexicans.

Q. When did the consultation of 1835 convene at San Felipe, what was its representation and what did it accomplish?

A. A quorum was obtained Nov. 3 and it was in session until Nov. 14 with a full representation of 81 members from 12 municipalities. Dr. Branch T. Archer was elected chairman. Among the actions taken were: adoption of a

WASHINGTON WITH RODNEY DUTCHER

BY RODNEY DUTCHER NEA Service Staff Correspondent

WASHINGTON—The wages one over ex-Senator Tom Heflin, and hours bloc in the House, barely beaten in the special session when the House Labor Committee bill was recommended, is plugging grimly to get another wage-hour bill out of the committee without delay.

As the administration also moves to get action on a measure as nearly as possible like the Senate bill of last year, the outlook is considerably more hopeful than it seemed after the House had buried the committee bill by a vote of 216 to 198.

Events since Christmas have pepped up the wage-hour congressmen, progressives, New Dealers and White Housers to a point approaching exuberance. They're all set for a drive to get out another bill and then, if the House rules committee again sits down on it, to start again on the task of obtaining 218 signatures to force the bill to a vote.

Holiday blasts by Assistant Attorney General Robert H. Jackson and Secretary Ickes, despite the heavy return fire, have been hailed as evidence that the New Deal was fighting back against its detractors.

Roosevelt's message, reiterating his previous aims, thrilled the so-called congressional left-wingers. Everyone who had supported Roosevelt in his battle with the Supreme Court greeted the retirement of Justice Sutherland with delight.

Finally and most of all, the victory of Congressman Lister Hill in the Alabama senatorial contest brought new hope to the liberals. Not well known in Alabama, campaigning on a 100 per cent Roosevelt platform, and strongly endorsing the wage-hour bill, Hill won two to one over ex-Senator Tom Heflin. Espousal of the wage-hour bill in such a southern state as Alabama had been considered to mean political suicide. Alabama is agricultural and its labor unions predominantly A. F. of L.

Wage-hour enthusiasts believe Hill's victory can be used to change some southern votes.

Some congressmen say they found during the holidays that although local A. F. of L. union leaders had obeyed President William Green's instructions to wire protests against the bill, the bulk of union members appear to favor a wage-hour law.

FOR the first time, bets are now being laid that Assistant Attorney General Jackson will be the next governor of New York.

Postmaster General Jim Farley has told friends that he would not be a candidate, although Roosevelt would have supported him. Farley needs to make money, he says.

It is reported that Farley, who is chairman of the New York state as well as the national Democratic committee, would prefer to have Senator Robert F. Wagner run. But it is practically certain, first, that neither Farley nor Wagner will stand in the way if Roosevelt tells them he wants Jackson, and second, that Roosevelt will tell them just that.

Selection of Jackson to appear as chief speaker at New York City's Jackson Day Dinner was engineered by the White House. Jackson's hard-hitting speeches against wage-scaling and the New Deal's Big Business opponents will be held against him in some places, but he will be promoted as the small business man's friend and crusader.

Sport Glances. By Grayson

DETROIT—They say that the Detroit Tigers have a left-handed Bob Feller in Gene Hinrichs of Rockwell City, Ia., which is not far to the north of the farm homes of Feller and Nile Kinnick, the University of Iowa's fine all-round athlete.

After slamming the door in the faces of Hawkeye opponents last spring, Hinrichs went on to pitch brilliantly for the Farmers' Union of Des Moines, with which team Feller made his start.

Hinrichs yielded a total of 14 hits in bugging seven straight games for the Farmers' Union. He had one no-hit, two one-batters, one two-batter, two three-batters, and let Fort Crook, Nebraska state amateur champions, down with four hits. He has turned in three no-hit games, one in semi-professional ranks at Lytton, Ia., one at Iowa, and the one in Des Moines.

Those who have seen Hinrichs assert that had he had an opportunity to show his wares in the American League, Mickey Cochrane wouldn't have had to bring all that criticism down on his head by including Gerald Walker in the deal with the White Sox for Vernon Kennedy.

RAY FISHER, the former major league slinger now coaching baseball at Michigan, claims Cochrane wasn't nearly as badly skinned as Detroit bugs claim in the Gee Walker transaction, however. Fisher contends that Kennedy will give the Tigers badly needed pitching strength, and a pair of G. Walkers could not offset that deficiency.

Wholesale substitutions, a la hockey, would solve the complaints that basketball is causing athlete's heart with its incessant action. Frequent injections of fresh talent not only would relieve exhaustion, but also permit more boys to play.

Tom Harmon, the freshman football player who was the center of a subsidizing controversy at Michigan last fall, has expressed his intention of trying to earn 12 letters while at Ann Arbor. Nine has been the limit, but the Gary, Ind., youth possesses reputed prowess in basketball, track, and baseball, as well as on the gridiron.

It is said that Bill De Corvevent, Chicago's phenomenal high school back, was all sewed up and ready for delivery to Michigan when Harry Kipke's dismissal chilled his would-be benefactors.

Contrary to prevalent opinion, Fielding H. Yost had nothing to do with instigating the action against Kipke. Fearing criticism, the Old Man sat back and tolerated the general situation. Other members of the athletic board, following investigations some of them made privately, forced the dismissal action.

Kipke, if he doesn't land a suitable coaching post, probably will connect with the Ford Motor Co., with which he has close connections. These connections contributed to his downfall at Michigan, in fact. But that's a long and conjectural story.

Lombard and March Set a New Record For Good Entertainment

Not since the days when Tom Santschi and William Farnum clashed in a superhuman battle for "The Spoilers," twenty-two years ago, has the scene witnessed a struggle as great as the one between Carole Lombard and Fredric March in the David O. Selznick technicolor production, "Nothing Sacred," directed by William A. Wellman, which comes to the Arcadia Theatre today.

Other players who add to the fun and hilarity in "Nothing Sacred" are Walter Connolly, Charles Winninger and Maxie Rosenbloom who appear in featured roles.

The comedy romance unfolds its action in Manhattan and its environs and it is the first time that a picture with New York for a background has been made completely in technicolor.

DON'T BULLY CONSTIPATION

If you suffer from common constipation, due to lack of bulk in the diet, harsh cathartics don't get at the cause of your trouble. You can avoid this kind of constipation by eating Kellogg's All-Bran. This tasty cereal not only contains the intestinal tonic vitamin B, but also provides the bulk you need. It absorbs moisture, softens like a sponge into a water-softened mass that encourages and aids natural elimination.

Use Kellogg's All-Bran in muffins. Or as a breakfast cereal. But eat All-Bran every day and drink plenty of water. Made by Kellogg at Battle Creek.
