Science Prescribes a Design for Living

The role of science in the evolution of mankind is a question on which even scientists disagree.

Some contend that science such as psychiatry will some day be able to control our minds and shape our ends. Others disagree. Certainly there is no unanimity of opinion on whether it would be wise for the human race to submit wholly to the ministrations of science.

Few, on the other hand, will disagree with the contention of scientists that objective reasoning and logical thinking must dominate such emotions as hate, and fear, and rage, if civilization is to continue functioning.

One of the chief contributions of science to the evolution of human thinking has been its ability to reduce generalities and half-truths to concrete statement of fact which will stand up under the light of reasoning.

Thus Dr. Ralph Gerard, professor of physiology at the University of Chicago, comes forward with what he terms three "earmarks" for the identification of "intelligent behavior."

"The first earmark, says Dr. Gerard, is "the absence of superstition" the emancipation from fear of nature and the here-and-now prejudices of the group."

Second, the scientist content, intelligent behavior must be marked by "tolerance" in which "the new is neither fatuously accepted nor blindly damned" and in which decisions are reached "after due instruction in and evaluation of the facts, pro and con."

"Third," says Dr. Gerard, "intelligent behavior does not confuse the symbol with the things, words themselves are classes and stand only as symbols which are imperfect and shifting representations of that for which they stand. Even facts are abstractions and, like words, may lead via the machinery of the most impeccable logic to bizarre conclusions."

Dr. Gerard contends that "pure science" is the only hope for the future of civilization. He believes that it would be unwise to eliminate the selfish elements of self-preservation from man's makeup, but that it is "surely desirable to control and guide them."

But the scientist refutes, in part, his own contentions when he says that science, through genetics, could improve the human breed—but doesn't know what to breed for; and could train thoughts, motives and actions along new channels—but does not know what to educate for.

Probably most of us would be content just to accept Dr. Gerard's earmarks of intelligent behavior as a design for present living, and let social evolution take care of the future.

The Detroit Tigers are enlarging the seating capacity of their ball park to 60,000, which must indicate that Schoolboy Rowe's arm is going to be all right again.

SISTER MARY'S KITCHEN

By Mrs. Gaynor Maddox
TRIPLE is a slang word for foolishness. But it's also the lining of a cow's stomach and provides a low cost meal without foolishness. If you've never used tripe in your economy menus, begin today. It is easily digested by a person in normal health. Invalids and persons with poor digestion had better avoid it.
To boil fresh tripe, cover with boiling water, add 1-3 teaspoon salt and simmer until tender, about one-half hour.

Spanish Tripe (4 to 6 servings)
One and one-half pounds fresh boiled tripe, 1 can tomatoes, 3-4 onion, 1-2 small green pepper, 1 cup white cabbage, 1 teaspoon salt, 1-4 teaspoon pepper, 1 tablespoon butter, 4 slices bacon.
Cut tripe in very small pieces, put in a greased casserole dish. Chop onion and pepper fine and saute in butter, add to heated tomatoes, add seasoning and cabbage, pour over tripe. Cut bacon in small pieces and lay on top. Bake in a moderate oven (350 degrees F.) for one hour.

Blind Woman Sings Ballads of South
By United Press
PINE BLUFF, Ark.—Blind Mrs. Emma Dusenbury, 74 years old, is one of the few remaining singers of ballads west of the Mississippi river.
Most any day, when the weather is warm and pleasant, travelers who pass her rural home near here may hear her singing the songs that have all but been forgotten. The songs were never written but were passed from one pioneer family to another—old British ballads, ditties and party.

"I AM ONE OF THE MILLIONS WHO PREFER CAMELS" SAYS RALPH GREENLEAF WORLD'S CHAMPION IN POCKET BILLIARDS

"HEALTHY NERVES ARE A MUST WITH ME!"

FOURTEEN different times the news headlines have flashed: RALPH GREENLEAF WINS WORLD'S CHAMPIONSHIP. In a special interview during his recent championship play in Philadelphia, Ralph said: "I'd say the most important rule in this game is to have healthy nerves. And on that score, I think, Camels have a lot extra to offer. One of the main reasons why I've stuck to Camel cigarettes for twenty years is—they don't ruffle my nerves."

And America as a nation shows the same preference for finer tobaccos that Ralph Greenleaf does! Camels are the largest-selling cigarette in America

Testimonials from Fencing experts, Bela de Tuscan, James L. Clark, and Helen Howard, praising the benefits of Camel cigarettes for nervousness and health.

they are just doing their jobs, you know. We are 'news,' and so they have to tell the world about us."

BRET said he supposed she was right. Nevertheless he did not think he would ever get used to being public property. He was certain he never would enjoy it. He was glad now that they were going away; they would not be "news" in other countries.

However he was to find that they still were, to the other passengers on shipboard. People stopped talking whenever the newswyds, whose romance was so strange and thrilling, approached on their daily promenade around the deck; they stared as they made their way across the big dining room to the captain's table. When Bret and Connie played games, or swam in the big pool, or danced, there were whispers, though often audible comments, and always a group gathered as an audience. Once Bret opened the stateroom door suddenly to discover a man eavesdropping outside.

"I almost pitched him overboard," he told Connie violently. "Why on earth should people spy on us and whisper behind our backs and rubberneck? I think, honey, if you don't mind, we'll stay close to our rooms during the remainder of the voyage."

Connie said she did not mind. Poor Bret, he was getting a taste of the gilded cage in which she always had lived. She did not mind the way people behaved as much as usual; not only because she was used to it, but because it was impossible for her to mind anything as long as she had Bret.

They were very happy during this second honeymoon. Perhaps they would never be quite so happy again. It may be that each realized this, in their hearts, and so made every moment a perfect, shining one.

It was fun, as Connie had predicted, seeing and enjoying everything together. In London they played at sightseeing, and the night spots. In Paris they were very gay, doing the rounds of night clubs and the Bohemian quarters; and Connie, to Bret's amazement, purchased trunksloads of gorgeous clothes of which he thought she had more than enough already. In India they obtained an audience with Gandhi, the richest girl in the world sitting at the feet of the poorest man! They ordered an exact replica, in miniature size, of the famous Taj Mahal. They stayed a month at Connie's villa on the Riviera, where the white sands were surfed by the blue Mediterranean. In Bangkok and Delhi they browsed in the street markets and bought everything from fruits to ancient handwoven rugs. In Egypt they gazed upon the carved wonder of the Sphinx.

WHEN they came back, after four months into which so much had been crowded that it might have been several years, they brought more than 50 trunks and barrels filled with imperial tapestries and brocades, jewels and furs, gowns and brightly-colored birds in enough cages to house the feathered inhabitants of Manhattan—and even a 10-foot alligator from Hongkong!

"What we'll do with it all is beyond my powers of imagination," said Bret. "But, darling, we had such fun—and we had to have a souvenir of every single place and moment," Connie claimed. "Oh, Bret, I'm sorry it's ended, our lovely honeymoon. We'll always be as happy as we have been?" She clung to him, her blue eyes pleading, her sweet lips curved in a wistful smile. Almost she was afraid of such happiness as this; it was so complete, so perfect. Could it last forever, remain impregnable?

"We'll do our best, sweetheart," Bret promised, his dark eyes grave. "It has indeed been wonderful. I'm glad we'll have such memories to treasure and share. But happiness is something, as I've told you, that money can not buy, that is not even a gift from the gods. It is something one must strive for, work to obtain; something that lies within one's self."

"Then we'll work at it together," Connie vowed. "As hard as we have played and lived and loved. We will really be starting our new life together now."

How could she ever have been afraid when she had Bret? He played at sightseeing, and the night spots. In Paris they were very gay, doing the rounds of night clubs and the Bohemian quarters; and Connie, to Bret's

Q. What was President Jackson's attitude toward the Texas revolution in 1836?
A. While generally sympathetic toward Texas independence, he filed Austin's appeal for help without taking any notice of it other than the following notation on his margin: "The writer does not reflect that we have a treaty with Mexico, and our national faith is pledged to support it. The Texans before they took the step to declare themselves independent, which has aroused and united all Mexico against them, ought to have pondered well. It was a rash and premature act. Our neutrality must be faithfully maintained."

Q. What disastrous consequences would have followed defeat of the Texans at San Jacinto?
A. Santa Anna would have become an international hero, with greatly increased powers. All Anglo-Saxons would have been swept from Texas, their property confiscated or destroyed; further help from outside could not have been obtained, and Texas again would have become an outlying, undeveloped Mexican waste land, with few if any attractions or opportunities for development.

Q. Who were offered for election as first president of the independent Republic of Texas and what were the results of the election?
A. Stephen F. Austin, Henry Smith and Sam Houston were voted for at the first election, Sept.

TEXAS, long a great developing ground for baseball players, rapidly is attaining the same steady efficiency in golf and football.
Among the Lone Star state's front men of the fairways are Harry Cooper, Ralph Guidahl, Byron Nelson, and Wild Bill Meinhorn, who will do until you can think of a more able quartet from one commonwealth.
No locality has made such tremendous strides in football in recent years, with Sammy Baugh a striking example of playing skill, and now Texas is sending its coaches to other sections.
HUNT applied for the Georgia job soon after Mehr's resignation. He had such fine recommendations that Bulldog officials interviewed him personally, and soon engaged him.
HUNT was head coach at the College of Marshall, Tex., in 1928-9, where his club won the junior championship of the cow country. After three seasons as backfield coach at Texas A. & M. under Matty Bell, he went to L. S. U. in the same capacity under Maj. Biff Jones.
He was All-Southwest Conference quarterback in 1925-6-7, playing hero roles in the championships won by Dana X. Bible's Texas A. & M. teams in '25-'27. Hunt did such things as punt, pass, call signals, block, run, and kick field goals for the Aggies.
Hunt was born at Texico, N. M. where his paternal grandfather was a prominent government official of territorial days. He is devoted to Mrs. Hunt, the former Evelyn Eckles of Baton Rouge, an ex-wife of a two-and-a-half-year-old daughter, Nancy Joy.
Joel Hunt combines the steadiness of Dana X. Bible, who curls him, and the backfield imagination and brilliance of a triple threat Georgia will like him.

Be Natural No. 1 Commandment to The Glamour Girls

By United Press
NEW YORK. — Be natural if you would be glamorous, advise stylists and beauty experts.
"Tight-fitting dresses—the kind that bind at the hipline—are taboo. So are flashy shoes, crooked stockings seams, run-down heels and heavy make-up."
The glamour girl of 1938 is well-groomed. She has a weekly hair shampoo and manicure. She wears comfortable, smart shoes. She chooses her accessories with an idea to make them serve for several changes in costume, always bearing in mind that her outfit is as effective as her weakest detail.
Miss 1938 dresses correctly for each occasion. If her escort suggests a jaunt to the countryside, she wears appropriate low-heeled sports shoes. If she's theatre-bound, she wears dainty pumps.
All of these details are necessary to the girl who wants to be intriguing and popular with the opposite sex, say the stylists.
Colors are important, too. Blacks, browns and navy blues are always good. Bright colors are more difficult to wear and never appear quite as smart as subdued, conservative choices.
The glamour girl is careful of her posture. She never slouches or crosses her legs when sitting. Her figure is symmetrical and nicely rounded. Salads—both fruit and vegetable—are a major part of her diet. They help her maintain a good weight, keep her complexion clear and bring lustre to her hair.
And speaking of hair, she brushes her hair at least 50 strokes a day.
In 1836, in which Houston received 4,374 votes, Henry Smith 743, and Austin 587. Houston had consented to have his name submitted only 12 days before the election. The vote was not a test of the popularity of the men, but Houston was considered best able to get the Republic out of the turbulence and bankruptcy into which it had fallen.

THE SCENES IN WASHINGTON WITH RODNEY DUTCHER

BY RODNEY DUTCHER
NEA Service Staff Correspondent
WASHINGTON.—Harry Bridges, spectacular west coast regional director of the C. I. O., will be placed on the spot within the next few weeks at a Department of Labor hearing to pass on charges that he is legally deportable.
That is, unless Secretary Frances Perkins—who hasn't announced her decision—exercises the feminine prerogative of changing her mind.
Actual deportation of a major labor leader and conspicuous aide to John L. Lewis would be a cause celebre in labor history. But although there has been heavy pressure on the Labor Department both from west coast employers and enemies of Bridges within the labor movement, Bridges—an Australian citizen who has taken out first citizenship papers in this country—is a long way from being deported.
Bridges is charged, in depositions brought by members of labor organizations outside the C. I. O., with being a member of the Communist party. In some depositions it is alleged that he was present at major deliberations of the "inner circle" of that party on the Pacific Coast.
The C. I. O. leader, however, has repeatedly denied that he was a member of the Communist party. He would not be legally deportable unless it were proved that he belonged to an organization which sought overthrow of the government by force and violence, as charged, or that he himself had advocated overthrow of government by force and violence, which is not charged.
Immigration lawyers say it would be necessary, in order to deport Bridges, to prove not only that he was a party member, but also that the Communist party ad-

Much is Learned About Music in Texas
Not for many months has there been so much interest and actual knowledge attained through a program as was learned by members of the 1929 club when the last meeting introduced the subject, "Music in Texas," with Mrs. Walter Jackson, better speech leader, and Mrs. Fred Warren, program leader. The program opened in the Colonial room, with president of the club, Mrs. J. W. Ducker, presiding.

"Musical Beginnings in Texas" was discussed thoroughly by Mrs. C. E. May. Music in the Southwest was first introduced through the Spanish and French, later followed with opera companies introducing compositions from the West Indies, and then later the German settlers after the Civil War. Many essential musical elements were contributed by the negroes, offering their spirituals, implanting a note of variety in the South after the war days. Following music through its interesting stages we get to the popular cowboy songs. Much credit is due David Gulon of Fort Worth and Oscar Fox of San Antonio for their collections and publications of the Texas cowboy songs.

Weeks of careful construction are required to build them and at the end of the carnival the ramparts are usually torn down in mock assault.

4,000 Texans Make Loans for Homes in Loan Associations

LITTLE ROCK, Ark. — More than 4,000 Texans joined the ranks of home owners during the last half of 1934, through loans obtained from Texas insured savings and loan associations, according to figures just compiled by the Federal Home Loan Bank of Little Rock. In the six months period just closed, 4,409 loans, aggregating $8,215,000, were granted to Texas home owners. Of this amount $4,200,000 was used to build new homes and $2,200,000 advanced to assist 1,175 Texans to purchase existing dwellings. Included in the compilation are the figures of the First Federal Savings and Loan Association at Ranger, Texas, which participated actively in the local home financing field.

Hagaman Lake Level Raised 3 Feet

Rains over the week-end materially improved the water supply of Ranger, it was stated today by E. T. Kubanks, city secretary.

After a checkup with water department employes Eubanks stated that three feet of water had been added to the supply in the lake, with the water level now standing only five feet below the spillway.

This is the largest amount of water caught in the lake at one time in several years, it was stated today.

A Three Days' Cough Is Your Danger Signal

No matter how many medicines you have tried for your cough, chest cold, or bronchial irritation, you can get relief now with Creomulsion. Serious trouble may be brewing and you cannot afford to take a chance with any remedy less potent than Creomulsion, which goes right to the seat of the trouble and aids nature to soothe and heal the inflamed mucous membranes and to loosen and expel the germ-laden phlegm. Even if other remedies have failed, don't be discouraged, try Creomulsion. Your druggist is authorized to refund your money if you are not thoroughly satisfied with the benefits obtained from the very first bottle. Creomulsion is one word—not two, and it has no hyphen in it. Ask for it plainly, see that the name on the bottle is Creomulsion, and you'll get the genuine product and the relief you want. (Adv.)

I AM AN ADVERTISING MAN

For over thirty years I have been writing advertisements for national advertisers — shoes, soap, cereals, automobiles, radios, tobacco, blankets, tooth powder.

To me it is the most fascinating work in the world — learning about the merits of merchandise and then telling people about them — bringing greater comfort, and enjoyment, into people's lives — introducing people to new pleasures, helping them to get the most for their money.

Besides being fascinating, it is satisfying! My intimate experience with advertisers has shown me that, except for rare exceptions, the manufacturers and merchants of this nation lean over backwards to be sincere and honest.

The law of advertising is simple once one understands its working — the more people know about the merit of a product, the more people buy it. The greater the volume of sales, the less the cost to manufacture. Savings in making mean either lower prices to the consumer or greater value put back into the merchandise.

As an advertising man I can sincerely affirm that it pays to read the advertisements in the newspapers — for news of new things, for bargains and savings.

There are thousands of other men — and women — devoting their lives to advertising writing, who will tell you the same thing. THEY KNOW!
