Ross Kidnaper Stands Silent Before Court

Standing mute before a federal commissioner in Chicago, where he is pictured above, youthful John Henry Seadland, alias Peter Anders, offered no plea when charged with the kidnap murder of the aged Charles Ross, Chicago businessman, whose body was found in northern Wisconsin woods. A technical plea of "not guilty" was entered and Seadland was held for grand jury action.

JAP SENTRY'S SLAPPING SAID TO BE "DUTY"

By United Press
SHANGHAI, Jan. 28.—A Japanese army spokesman said today that the sentry who slapped the face of U. S. Consul John Allison at Nanking was "only doing his duty."

As the spokesman made his statement the United States and British consuls here made separate representations to the Japanese consul general, asserting that their governments were unable to recognize the right of Japanese to censor commercial messages.

In Washington the state department revealed that the United States-Japanese relations were growing more strained daily.

Repeated diplomatic protests over the looting of American property, molestation of Chinese women employed by American nationals and outrages to the American flag have resulted in the Japanese government sending two high-ranking army officers to Shanghai and Nanking to investigate conditions, it was revealed.

Beach Clogs Now Today's High Soled Evening Sandals

CHICAGO.—Beach clogs with 3 inch soles for evening wear, fabric shoes in multi-colored stripes, and patent leather pumps in pastel shades will share the spotlight in women's footwear fashions for the coming spring and summer, according to Ruth Kerr, co-director of the National Shoe Fair Style Review.

The most striking innovation is the high-soled model, first seen early last fall on the beaches of the French Riviera, Miss Kerr said. Made of balsam wood, it was originally designed to lift the wearer above the sands. It proved softer than shorter women that manufacturers are now showing models, finished in gold, silver or mahogany for evening wear. Hidden under long dresses, they add inches to the shortest debutante.

Four new colors apparently will dominate spring wear. In order of their popularity they are Paris and Marine blue, copper and Rose Berry, a wine shade of red much softer than Dubonnet. The Paris blue is lighter and somewhat richer than navy; Marine is darker.

Fabrics such as gabardine and challis, will be equally popular with leathers. Asymmetrical and flowered designs and stripes will be featured for summer afternoon and evening wear. Two-tones are more in demand than solid colors.

A newly fashioned hi-low heel, slightly higher than the present Cuban heel, will be seen on most street shoes. The toeless and heelless models of last season will be continued with opening smaller and more modest.

All shoes will be tailored or draped, Miss Kerr said. Lacing designs on toe and along the instep add to this effect. A peasant influence is felt on some models that show a moccasin stitching along the sole.

Satin and mesh combinations are being shown for the more formal evening wear.

'Millionaire Sheriff's' Estate Is Appraised

EDINBURG, Texas.—The sheriff of Hidalgo county will sell at public auction on April 5 the last of the once vast estate of South Texas' famous "Millionaire Sheriff" A. Y. Baker.

Two ranches, the Retama pasture of 4,500 acres and the 13,600 acre Young Ranch, will be sold under foreclosure suits brought by the Southland Life Insurance company of Dallas. The insurance company seeks collection of a mortgage with unpaid interest totaling $400,000.

Cotton Ginning For Year Shows Decrease

A report Friday showed that 2,450 bales of cotton were ginned in Eastland county from the crop of 1937 prior to Jan. 16 of this year as compared with 2,841 bales for the same period last year.

Fine Form for Fresh Filibuster

The six-day filibuster that opened-mouthed, fist-shaking Senator Allen J. Ellender, Democrat, of Louisiana, is pictured above waging against the anti-lynching bill, was merely the first heat. Ellender now plans another oratorical marathon to last 20 days. Louisiana state departments immediately began shipping him bulky verbal ammunition "so he won't have to talk about anything but Louisiana."

RANGER POST OFFICE DEDICATED THURSDAY

Ranger's new federal post office building was dedicated with a short service Thursday evening at 7:30, after which the building was opened to inspection by the public. A large crowd attended and flocked into the building when the doors were thrown open.

The program, which was conducted in front of the building, was opened with a short band concert by the Ranger high school band.

Mayor Hall Walker, who acted as master of ceremonies, welcomed the people and called upon several speakers who made short talks. The program was opened by a dedicatory prayer by Dr. L. B. Gray, pastor of the First Presbyterian church of Ranger.

M. H. Hagaman, first mayor of Ranger, spoke briefly, stressing the point that a post office was largely responsible for the education of the country, as it carried information to the people, chiefly through newspapers, so they might have a knowledge of events, both in this country and abroad.

J. E. Meroney, secretary of the chamber of commerce, read a short message of congratulations from K. E. Ambrose, president of the organization, who was unable to be present.

William S. Johnson, consulting engineer, representing the treasury department of the U. S. Government, made a talk explaining how a post office was secured and how it was built. He mentioned that samples of every kind of material used in the building was tested by the Bureau of Standards and the Navy Department before it was allowed to go into the building.

He then turned the keys of the building over to Mrs. Martha Davenport, postmaster, who is now the official custodian of the building. The building was thus transferred from the Treasury Department to the Post Office Department.

Mrs. Davenport expressed her thanks to those who had a part on the program, and invited the people to view the building.

The past mayors of Ranger, the past postmasters who were present, and one visiting postmaster, Mrs. Gilliland of Baird, were present.

The building was opened to the public until 10 o'clock.

Mother and Sister Defend Slaying by 18-Year-Old Girl

WHARTON, Texas, Jan. 28.—The sister and mother of pretty 18-year-old Mozelle McDaniel came to her defence today at her murder trial for shooting her stepfather to death last Aug. 14.

Mozelle was accused of firing 11 bullets from a small rifle into the body of Jack Watkins, 38-year-old oil field worker, after he threatened to whip her for staying out after dark with two boy friends.

Source of Disease In Hill County Sought

HILLSBORO, Texas, Jan. 28.—Hill county physicians sought today to determine the source of a disease resembling typhoid that has taken the lives of three residents of Malone, 20 miles southeast of here, and stricken ten others.

Ranger Child Breaks Arm While at Play

Saline McGahey, six-year-old daughter of Mr. and Mrs. O. L. McGahey of Ranger, sustained a broken arm Thursday afternoon while playing in a small wagon at her home. She was taken to Fort Worth to a bone specialist, when it was found that the break was considered serious.

WITNESS TELLS OF LEASING OF STATE OIL LAND

AUSTIN, Jan. 28.—A chance to make millions of dollars with an investment of $48 in a state leased oil tract was detailed today before the senate investigating committee here.

W. M. Harris of Austin admitted he would be a millionaire if the land becomes a producer.

"But the state will make millions, too," he added.

"But if the tract is dry the state will have lost $24,000 cash that was bid for it and rejected in favor of high royalty," Sen. Joe Hill of Henderson said.

The land is two tracts in the Gulf of Mexico off Jefferson county.

An investigation of oil proration was added to the committee program today with a request of a full report on changes in proration scheduled after issuance.

Oil Increase Seen In West Central Section of Texas

AUSTIN, Texas.—Substantial increase in oil production in the West Central Texas district in 1937 was reported today by Comptroller George H. Sheppard on the basis of statistics compiled from oil tax records.

During 1937, the district of seventeen counties showed a gain of 1,750,271 barrels over 1936, equivalent to 10.66 per cent, Sheppard said. Total production was 16,695,711 barrels, against 14,915,440 barrels.

Although on the upgrade, the district did not equal the 1927 production of 25,931,235 barrels. From 1926 to 1937, gains were reported by Erath, Jack, Jones, Palo Pinto, Shackelford, and Young counties; while the counties of Brown, Callahan, Coleman, Comanche, Eastland, Fisher, Haskell, Stephens, Taylor, Throckmorton and Runnels showed a decline.

Texas' production over the same comparative periods, more than doubled with an output of 208,717,903 barrels in 1927 and 470,611,329 barrels in 1937. The gain from 1936 to 1937 for the entire state amounted to 70,839,598 barrels, or 15.05 per cent.

Sheppard also reported that the oil tax exceeded all previous records in 1937, jumping from $82,559,874 in 1936 to $144,459,847.

New legislative enactments which increase the price of oil; and increase in the tax were the factors responsible for the jump of nearly $60,000,000 in income to the Available School Fund and General Revenue Fund which share in the oil tax, Sheppard said.

Gizzard Stone of Dinosaur Is Found

MINNEAPOLIS, Minn.—Definitive proof of the existence in Minnesota of dinosaurs during the Mesozoic era have been found here by Mrs. C. R. Stauffer, wife of a professor of geology at the University of Minnesota.

The evidence, a "gizzard stone" from one of the huge prehistoric reptiles, was found by Mrs. Stauffer at a foot of a cliff near Lake City while accompanying her husband on a field trip.

Although the presence of dinosaurs in this section has previously been indicated, Dr. Stauffer declares the "gizzard stone" is the first definite evidence of their existence in the state.

The stone is a pre-glacial flint from a formation known geologically as Shakopee limestone. Weighing more than three ounces it was highly polished and worn smooth. Dr. Stauffer said it evidently had been swallowed with the dinosaur's food.

Lodge Revival at Stephenville Looms

Eastland and Gorman Knights of Pythias are to meet with a Stephenville group there at a date tentatively for Feb. 7, for the discussion of revival of the Stephenville lodge.

The Stephenville lodge has not been active for a year, it was stated.

Anna to Bob or Be Banned

Either Hollywood's Anna May Wong bids her blue-black tresses, shown so eloquently in the picture above, or her latest picture will be her last picture, studio officials warned. Miss Wong provoked filmgoers' newest Oriental crisis when she said she'd forsake the movies rather than cut off her hair. Her studio wanted her to appear as an Americanized girl of the Far East.

CIO LAUDED FOR ITS THIRD TERM PLEAS

WASHINGTON, Jan. 28.—James Gildes of Pennsylvania today urged applauding delegates of the United Mine Workers convention to draft President Roosevelt for a third term.

Commending the delegates for submitting eight resolutions urging Mr. Roosevelt's reelection, Gildes said labor supports a third term, "not because it is democratic minded, but because it's wage conscious. Labor sees in Roosevelt the ideal of better wage security."

The convention endorsed legislation prohibiting government loans for contracts to firms which have been certified as violating the Wagner Labor Act, or have refused to recognize the jurisdiction of the National Labor Relations Board.

MIAMI, Fla., Jan. 28.—The International Typographical Union charged today the American Federation of Labor had framed the "greatest assumption of power ever contemplated by any 'one big union' movement."

The accusation will be forwarded to 80,000 typographers by the union's official organ on Feb. 5.

President Charles Howard indicated that he would seek a referendum of his membership on the question of abandoning the A. T. U. for the Committee for Industrial Organization. Later however he tempered his stand and said action might be delayed pending the decision of the federation executive council, which is meeting here.

Wooden Coins Are Taken by Collector

RIPON, Wis.—Math J. Landolf took some wooden nickles, but it was only to gratify an obsession for collection, oddities that has made his pebbles farm home a virtual museum.

He has gathered 3,000 books, specializing in state and federal publications, but never read more than a few pages of any one of them. Row upon row of whisky bottles from different parts of the world line the upper hallway of his home but the master of the place "does not drink a drop" of intoxicating liquor.

I just collect the junk for the fun of it," Landolf explains.

He is in his middle 40's, but so far hasn't "collected" a wife because, he says, he hasn't "had time."

ROOSEVELT IS SEEKING HUGE DEFENSE FUND

WASHINGTON, Jan. 28.—President Roosevelt today warned Congress that America's national defense is inadequate and called for $1,000,000,000 defense program and asked immediate starting on construction of two more naval dreadnaughts and two more cruisers.

He asked additions of $20,800,000 to the present $1,000,000,000 defense expenditures, called for in the 1939 fiscal year.

Mr. Roosevelt asked, in view of war alarms spread through the world, that Congress turn immediate attention to legislation designed to eliminate profiteering in any future wars.

The program included authorization of a flat 20 per cent increase in naval strength, estimated at cost $800,000,000 annually.

"Tension throughout the world is high. Armies are fighting in the Far East and in Europe, thousands of civilians are being driven from their homes and bombed from the air.

"As commander in chief of the army and navy it is my constitutional duty to report to the Congress that our national defense is inadequate.

"We, as a peaceful nation, cannot and will not abandon active search for an agreement among the nations to limit armaments and end aggression, but it is clear that until such agreement is reached, and I have not given up hope of it, we are compelled to think of our own national safety."

Completion of the recommended naval program would give the United States a navy second to none, of strength equal to Great Britain's mighty fleet.

Chairman Carl Vinson of Georgia of the House naval affairs committee, introduced a bill authorizing 20 per cent increase in the combat strength of the U. S. fleet.

The program calls for 47 new combat ships, including three more dreadnaughts and 22 auxiliary vessels, 1,000 additional airplanes, 1,200 additional officers and 20,600 more enlisted men.

Dirty Rooms In Public Places Are Called a Menace

AUSTIN.—Filthy rest rooms used by the public at Texas cafes, taverns, filling stations and retail establishments are a menace to the health of the community and the state, and cannot be further tolerated, it was announced this week by Dr. Geo. W. Cox, state health officer.

"The State Health Department at this time serves warning to all concerned that public rest rooms must be maintained in a sanitary manner, under penalty of violation of the state food and drug law, article 695, which carries a fine of not less than ten nor more than one hundred dollars," Dr. Cox stated.

"Disease breeds in such places when they are allowed to be filthy, and disease is spread from one person to another, indiscriminately, under such conditions. Facilities should be available for washing the hands; toilets must be sanitary and kept that way. The rest room that does not meet adequate sanitary requirements is a reflection on the establishment which it serves and should be so interpreted.

"We ask the citizenship of Texas to join us in this campaign to clean up rest rooms that are filthy. Such conditions as are now prevalent throughout the state will not be tolerated any longer. When you find a rest room that is insanitary, report that fact to the management and your local health authorities. If the management takes no steps to clean up its rest room, you are advised to withdraw your patronage from that establishment in the interest of protection to your health.

"To Texas business concerns, the State Health Department issues a warning to clean up their rest rooms and keep them clean. A court charge for them if they do not comply. To the citizens of Texas, we ask that you demand of the establishments which you patronize, a clean rest room as protection to your health. It is your right. See that you have it so recognized and maintained."

Highway Contracts To Be Let Feb. 21

AUSTIN, Jan. 28.—Three million dollars worth of highway contracts will be bid upon here Feb. 21 if the Federal Bureau of Roadways approves a list of projects recommended today by the State Highway Department.

Thirty-two projects were included. One was for roadside parks east of Odessa and west of Pecos on Highway 1, and roadside planting on the same highway near Simms in Bowie county.

Poll Taxes Going Slowly in Ranger

Poll tax payments are being made slowly in Ranger it was announced today, especially for an election year.

Announcement was made at the office of C. E. Maddocks, where the poll taxes may be obtained, that only 164 had been sold by the office this morning at 10 o'clock, which is far behind the usual number issued by this time.

Only two more days remain for paying poll taxes in order to obtain a vote this year, it was pointed out, and unless the poll taxes are paid either Saturday or Monday those who have failed to pay their poll taxes will be denied the right to vote.

There are many issues of importance coming up this year on which the people will vote, including all state and county offices and indications are that the campaigns, both locally and in the state, will be of such a nature, with the competition keen, that everyone will want to vote.

Ranger normally has between 1,600 and 1,200 poll tax receipts issued to its citizens, and the present indications are that the town will not receive proper representation at the polls this year if a rush is not made to pay poll taxes in the next two days.

Seismograph Crews Now Forerunner To Drillers In Search for Petroleum

Oil prospectors, using seismographs to plumb the depths of the earth, exploded nearly ten million pounds of dynamite during 1937 in an effort to discover about a billion barrels of new production before the end of the year. It is estimated that the oil industry of the country is now spending at least $15,000,000 a year on seismic surveys alone.

Last summer 221 seismograph crews were known to be searching for oil in the United States. In the counties along the Gulf Coast, 89 seismic exploration parties were in the field, as compared to only ten such crews operating in the same territory five years ago. At least 25 were making surveys in California; 24 in Oklahoma; 19 in Northern Louisiana; 15 in the Rocky Mountain states; 15 crews in West Texas and 15 in East Texas; 11 in Kansas; 6 in Arkansas; one in Indiana, and 12 or more in Illinois, where recent seismographic investigations have revived intense activities in the once-famous Southeastern Illinois oil basin. This oil territory had long since been in a steep decline and was thought to be on the verge of petering out.

Successful petroleum exploration and oil field development now require a great deal of underground information in advance of drilling because, in the prolonged search for oil deposits, the more obvious pools already have been discovered and tapped. Recent years have made it necessary for prospectors to rely more and more upon the use of explosives and the seismograph to bolster up the

Silent Partner of Kidnap Case

The role that boyish-looking James Atwood Gray, 18, above, of Providence, Ky., played in the abduction of Charles Ross, 72, Chicago, ended with death in a northern Wisconsin hideout. Gray's body was found buried with that of Ross after Peter Anders, confessed abductor, told federal agents he killed both his captive and his partner once the $50,000 ransom was collected.

nation's falling rate in oil discovery, which during the present decade has averaged only about 70 per cent of the current consumption.

Much that geologists and geophysicists have been able to surmise about the interior of the earth, they owe to earthquakes and to the manner in which such disturbances are recorded on seismographs. Since natural earth-quakes are unpredictable either in time or place, geophysicists searching for oil produce their own miniature quakes by means of dynamites developed especially to meet the exacting requirements of their purpose. Chemists who work with explosives have been called upon to bring to a high degree of perfection special seismic dynamites which will explode with their full

38,031 Students Are On the NYA Rolls

Austin, January — J. C. Kellam, Texas Youth Director, announced Saturday that institutions participating in the National Administration Student Aid program had reported they had received 38,031 applications from students seeking part-time NYA jobs this year. Applications for College Aid were filled by 20,292 persons and for Schools Aid by 17,739 persons.

Officials of the 85 participating college reports that they had approved applications of 5,530 eligible persons for part-time work on jobs on which a student may earn an average wage not exceeding $15 per month. The students are paid out of a monthly fund quota of $61,110 made available monthly for pay by the NYA, Mr. Kellam said. The students who are selected by college authorities are assigned to members of the College Staff.

In secondary schools, 7,878 students were employed part-time during Decembers, Mr. Kellam said. These students were paid a wage not exceeding $6 a month for useful and practical work done under the supervision of their teachers. A total of $38,333 is made available monthly for payment of students in 2,070 secondary schools who are selected by schools Officials for NYA jobs.

Having NYA jobs enables these youths between the ages of 16 and 24 to continue their education, Mr. Kellam commented. With this employment these students undoubtedly would be thrown on the labor market before they are prepared to go to work. The sum each student earns is small, yet, we must remember that a few dollars very often is the difference between gaining an education and staying out of school.

Woman Penetrates New Guinea Wilds To Discover Gold

By United Press
SYDNEY, Australia. — Mrs. B. Harper has returned to this city with a record of gold hunting in the jungles of New Guinea that probably has no counterpart in the history of gold prospecting.

For more than a year she has been superintending her own gold force under extremely adverse conditions.

In present-day seismic exploration, a charge of dynamite, ranging anywhere from a quarter of a pound to 500 pounds, is exploded in a shot hole, drilled sometimes to a depth of only 20 feet, and sometimes to a depth of 300 feet. The shock, or the vibration, of this explosion will travel, as experience has shown, downward until it meets a heavy, resistant stratum, such as a limestone bed or a "salt dome." At such layers, seismic waves are reflected or bounced backward toward the surface, there to be picked up by electrical instruments set up at several different positions.

In modern seismographs, beams of light register these vibrations on fast moving strips of photographic paper. Then it becomes a relatively simple matter for the experienced interpreter of such recordings to determine just what sort of geologic formations lie way down under—even to a depth of 20,000 feet. Accurate calculations, however, demand a consideration of time reduced to five ten-thousandths of a second, and therefore the dynamite charges must be detonated by electric blasting caps which do not vary more than .00002 of a second in the time of their explosion after an electrical impulse has been delivered to them. Thus the explosives laboratory is compelled to approach in exactitude those who deal in the constants of light and electricity.

Salt domes are the most productive and therefore the most sought-after subterranean formations known to oil prospectors. These geologic phenomena are usually great masses of rock salt, thousands of feet in diameter, rising from unfathomed depths to within a mile or less of the earth's surface. Oil men know that these domes were the result of an upheaval. Oil seeping upward through uncounted centuries became pocketed at the sides and the caps of many of these domes, forming vast deposits of trapped petroleum.

The salt dome, though not an infallible sign of oil, is therefore a promising place to look for it, like other oil-abounding subterranean malformations that can be accurately charted and appraised by the geophysicist working with his seismographs.

Texas Is Ranking Television Expert

By United Press
AUSTIN, Texas. — Credit for being the country's ranking television expert is attributed to Robert Ewart Shelby, formerly of Austin and a graduate of The University of Texas, by one of his former professors at that institution. Joseph W. Ramsey, chairman of the department of electrical engineering, under whom Shelby did his major work at the university, says of him, "Most of the recent advance in the art of television in this country has been the result of work done by him or under his supervision."

Shelby was graduated from the university in 1927 with the degree of bachelor of science in electrical engineering. He immediately entered the employ of the Radio Corporation of America, and was assigned to the research laboratories of that concern in New York.

"Soon thereafter he became a member of the department investigating television," Professor Ramsey explained. "His natural talents as an electrical research man and as a director of the activities of others soon resulted in his being advanced to the position of chief of his department, where for several years he has headed up, planned, and supervised the research work being done in that field."

Young Shelby is the son of Mr. and Mrs. L. B. Shelby of Austin, and the nephew of Dean T. H. Shelby of the University Division of Extension.

Seismograph Crews Now Forerunner To Drillers In Search for Petroleum

Oil prospectors, using seismographs to plumb the depths of the earth, exploded nearly ten million pounds of dynamite during 1937 in an effort to discover about a billion barrels of new production before the end of the year. It is estimated that the oil industry of the country is now spending at least $15,000,000 a year on seismic survey alone.

Last summer 221 seismograph crews were known to be searching for oil in the United States. In the counties along the Gulf Coast, 89 seismic exploration parties were in the field, as compared to only ten such crews operating in the same territory five years ago. At least 25 were making surveys in California; 24 in Oklahoma; 19 in Northern Louisiana; 15 in the Rocky Mountain states; 15 crews in West Texas and 4 in East Texas; 11 in Kansas; 8 in Arkansas; one in Indiana, and 12 or more in Illinois, where recent seismographic investigations have revived intense activities in the oil-rich Southern Illinois oil basin. This oil territory had long since been in a steep decline and was thought to be on the verge of petering out.

Successful petroleum exploration and oil field development now require a great deal of underground information in advance of drilling because, in the prolonged search for oil deposits, the more obvious pools already have been discovered and tapped. Recent years have made it necessary for prospectors to rely more and more upon the use of explosives and the seismograph to bolster up the nation's falling rate in oil discovery, which during the present decade has averaged only about 70 per cent of the current consumption.

Silent Partner of Kidnap Case

The role that boyish-looking James Atwood Gray, 18, above, of Providence, Ky., played in the abduction of Charles Ross, 72, Chicago, ended with death in a northern Wisconsin hideout. Gray's body was found buried with that of Ross after Peter Anders, confessed abductor, told federal agents he killed both his captive and his partner once the $50,000 ransom was collected.

Much that geologists and geophysicists have been able to surmise about the interior of the earth, they owe to earthquakes and to the manner in which such disturbances are recorded on seismographs. Since natural earthquakes are unpredictable either in time or place, geophysicists searching for oil produce their own miniature quakes by means of dynamites developed especially to meet the exacting requirements of their purpose. Chemists who work with explosives have been called upon to bring to a high degree of perfection special seismic dynamites which will explode with their full

38,031 Students Are On the NYA Rolls

Austin, January 27. — J. C. Kellam, Texas Youth Director, announced Saturday that institutions participating in the National Administration Student Aid program had reported they had received 38,031 applications from students seeking part-time NYA jobs this year. Applications for College Aid were filled by 20,292 persons and for Schools Aid by 17,739 persons.

Officials of the 85 participating college reports that they had approved applications of 5,530 eligible persons for part-time work on jobs on which a student may earn an average wage not exceeding $15 per month. The students are paid out of a monthly fund quota of $61,110 made available monthly for pay by the NYA. Mr. Kellam said. The students who are selected by college authorities are assigned to members of the College Staff.

In secondary schools, 7,878 students were employed part-time during December, Mr. Kellam said. These students were paid a wage not exceeding $6 a month for useful and practical work done under the supervision of their teachers. A total of $38,333 is made available monthly for payment of students in 2,070 secondary schools who are selected by schools Officials for NYA jobs.

Having NYA jobs enables these youths between the ages of 16 and 24 to continue their education, Mr. Kellam commented. With this employment these students undoubtedly will be thrown on the labor market before they are prepared to go to work. The sum each student earns is small, yet, we must remember that a few dollars very often is the difference between gaining an education and staying out of school.

force under extremely adverse conditions. In present-day seismic exploration, a charge of dynamite, ranging anywhere from a quarter of a pound to 500 pounds, is exploded in a shot hole, drilled sometimes to a depth of only 20 feet, and sometimes to a depth of 300 feet. The shock, or the vibration, of this explosion will travel, as experience has shown, downward until it meets a heavy, resistant stratum, such as a limestone bed or a "salt dome." At such layers, seismic waves are reflected or bounced backward toward the surface, there to be picked up by electrical instruments set up at several different positions.

In modern seismographs, beams of light register these vibrations on fast moving strips of photographic paper. Then it becomes a relatively simple matter for the experienced interpreter of such recordings to determine just what sort of geologic formations lie way down under—even to a depth of 20,000 feet. Accurate calculations, however, demand a consideration of time reduced to five ten-thousandths of a second, and therefore the dynamite charges must be detonated by electric blasting caps which do not vary more than .00002 of a second in the time of their explosion after an electrical impulse has been delivered to them. Thus the explosives laboratory is compelled to approach in exactitude those who deal in the constants of light and electricity.

Salt domes are the most productive and therefore the most sought-after subterranean formations known to oil prospectors. These geologic phenomena are usually great masses of rock salt, thousands of feet in diameter, rising from unfathomed depths to within a mile or less of the earth's surface. Oil men know that these domes were the result of an upheaval. Oil seeping upward through uncounted centuries became pocketed at the sides and the caps of many of these domes, forming vast deposits of trapped petroleum.

The salt dome, though not an infallible sign of oil, is therefore a promising place to look for it, like other oil-abounding subterranean malformations that can be accurately charted and appraised by the geophysicist working with his seismographs.

Texan Is Ranking Television Expert

By United Press
AUSTIN, Texas. — Credit for being the country's ranking television expert is attributed to Robert Evert Shelby, formerly of the University of Texas, and a graduate of the University of Texas, by one of his former professors at that institution. Joseph W. Ramsey, chairman of the department of electrical engineering, under whom Shelby did his major work at the university, says of him, "Most of the recent advance in the art of television in this country has been the result of work done by him or under his supervision."

Shelby was graduated from the university in 1927 with the degree of bachelor of science in electrical engineering. He immediately entered the employ of the Radio Corporation of America, and was assigned to the research laboratories of that concern in New York.

"Soon thereafter he became a member of the department investigating television," Professor Ramsey explained. "His natural talents as an electrical research man and as a director of the activities of others soon resulted in his being advanced to the position of chief of his department, where for several years he has headed up, planned, and supervised the research work being done in that field."

Young Shelby is the son of Mr. and Mrs. L. B. Shelby of Austin, and the nephew of Dean T. H. Shelby of the University Division of Extension.

Municipal Gas Field Sought by McAllen

McALLEN, Texas.—The city commission has informally approved a plan offered by W. A. Hardington now attempting to block several thousand acres of land around McAllen and Pharr under community oil leases, whereby McAllen would receive free natural gas if a gas field developed.

Harding offered to give the city, delivered to the corporate limits, 3,000,000 cubic feet of gas daily if the city commission would assist in getting the community leases completed.

Arbitration—the Poor Man's Friend

Once there was a small-time produce merchant who bought $50 worth of fruit of specified grade from a wholesaler. When the fruit arrived, the merchant refused to accept or pay for it because it did not come up to specifications.

So the wholesaler hired a lawyer and sued for payment. It was six months before the case came up on a crowded court docket. By the time the trial ended both litigants had lost money after paying lawyer fees, witness fees, and court costs. And the fruit had long since spoiled.

How many times has that story, with variations, been told in the history of American jurisprudence? The fact of the matter is that "going to court" is a luxury which few can afford in the United States. More and more the saying is heard: "The law is made for lawyers."

But there is a remedy—arbitration. Arbitration is sponsored chiefly by the American Arbitration Association, formed by far-sighted business leaders who were willing to give their time and experience to the task of cutting through the oceans of red tape which had made "justice" a jest to the man without means.

Here, it would appear, is the answer to a man's prayer for immediate legal relief. Before impartial arbiters—not lawyers but experts in the matter involved in the case—man may explain his grievance and expect a fair and unbiased decision.

For a fee of only 5 per cent of the amount involved, litigants may come before one or several arbiters and adjust claims ranging anywhere from a few dollars to millions. The association is entirely non-profit-making, and its nominal fee for expenses compares with conservative estimates that the average court suit costs the litigant as high as 40 per cent of the amount involved.

There is no formal trial. Each litigant states his side of the case, bringing witnesses if desired. The arbiters listen, unimpeded by legal technicalities, and arrive at decisions on a common sense basis. There is no delay, no drawn-out court proceedings, very little squawking at the rulings.

Forty-six of the 48 states have now given legal status arbitration. Many industries, particularly those in which there are many disputes involving small amounts, are writing arbitration clauses into all contracts.

Approximately 7000 business and professional men have volunteered their services to act as arbiters without pay. Their decisions are binding.

Leaders of the movement are heartened by the public response. Arbitration looks like a great thing except, perhaps, for the lawyers.

It's to be hoped that the Duke of Windsor gets to New York quickly, before all the surplus ticker tape run off during the recent stock market crash is thrown away.

BEHIND THE SCENES IN WASHINGTON WITH RODNEY DUTCHER

BY RODNEY DUTCHER
NEA Service Staff Correspondent

WASHINGTON — Roosevelt's expressed desire to eliminate all holding companies is a part of his ambition to break the concentrated financial control, mostly from New York, over a large section of industry.

If he embarks on the sort of a campaign which he has suggested in recent private conversations, you will be hearing plenty about such groups as the Morgan interests with their far-fung control over steel, public utilities, automobiles, railroads and other industries.

Banker control over industry, New Deal theory holds, is the real secret of monopoly, price-fixing and other factors alleged to have helped bring on the recession. New Dealers charge that bankers standing behind industrialists are responsible for sweeping layoffs, wage-cuts and curtailments of production to a degree beyond which actual managements would go if left to themselves.

Although Roosevelt may get nowhere near his goal, that goal is a major reform in the present business system. It is perhaps his most radical idea to date.

HEARINGS on the fitness of Ebert K. Burlew to be Assistant Secretary of the Interior, bringing up again charges of wire-tapping in the Interior Department, also call attention to a mechanical device Ikes has in his office. By this device all telephone and personal conversations anyone has with Secretary Ikes can be recorded when he presses a button.

RELATIONS between Supreme Court Justice Hugo Black and the news photographers continue to be somewhat less than cordial.

"If you make a picture of him coming out, he's going to be upset," Mrs. Clifford Durr, the justice's sister-in-law, told the cameramen who marched onto the grounds of Black's Seminary Hill (Virginia) home the evening of the White House reception for the judiciary.

Not quite negotiating the curve, it tore off some of the jutting rocks bordering the driveway. To hear the photographers tell it, only luck and their own agility kept them from being the morning newspapers' big story. The pictures were blurred.

Where did the money go? "Well, for one thing," asserts Levinsky, "I dropped $35,000 on King's Palace, a delicatessen and restaurant at Maxwell and Halstead. I once bought five automobiles at the same time."

"When Harold Steinman, who still is with me, suggested that $5000 be deposited toward a trust fund for me, my sister, Lena, told him that she could make money with money. She had an idea that it was going to last forever. So did I. But I was good to the folks."

They told Levinsky that the wrestling racket was soft, but, as he points out, in boxing they at least give you a count.

Yesterday, Bret answers Constance's challenge; refuses to permit a divorce. He is determined to make her like her marriage!

CHAPTER XXI

"YES, I decided not to go to Bermuda," Connie said to Rodney Brandon, over cocktails in the small private club at which they were lunched together. "Bret staged a scene, refused to go, though that's not my only reason for giving up the trip." Her pretty face took on a look of determination. "I'm going to divorce Bret, Rodney."

"You are?" There was no mistaking the eagerness that lighted Rodney's eyes. He leaned across the little table, intimately. "Darling, I would be glad to help you. I wouldn't say this—but I'm glad you aren't the man for you. Your worlds are miles apart. You made a mistake in marrying him. There's no reason why you shouldn't put an end to it."

"It's going to be difficult," she said, twisting the stem of the glass between her slim fingers. She scarcely had sipped the sherry, when he had planned this luncheon for purpose. Rodney must help her what she must do. "Bret says he won't let me get a divorce. But think he'll change his mind. I will tell him that if he won't let me divorce him, I shall force him to divorce me."

"How can you manage that?" Rodney's slow smile was full of admiration. Things were working out just as he had known they would when Connie first had run away from him. He had not run after her. He was sure, given time enough, she would come running back. "Is there anything I can do?" he added now. "You know there is, you have only to demand it."

"I hoped you'd say that." Her eyes met his a quickening moment; then dropped before his. She knew what she meant to do; she had planned it craftily, after the first swift rush of fury and anger had died down and she had resolved that she would show that she could have her own way in whatever she did, no matter what broke his heart—and hers. "I need your help me."

"You knew I would. Haven't I told you I'd stand by always as your humble henchman? What do you want me to do, Connie?"

She wondered why Rodney failed to stir her to any deep feeling. He always was so agreeable, so perfect; she could count on him to do just as she wished without question. "I shall tell Bret I am going away with you—the you are my lover," Connie said.

Even Rodney had not expected that. His eyes widened; then he reached across and caught her hand, held it. "Do you mean that? You would go away with me? Force him to divorce you. . . . You must hate him, Connie. You must hate him, Connie. You must not care what he thinks of you." "I don't." Her answer was brief. She did not say whether she hated Bret or not. Perhaps she did not know. The dividing line between hate and love is so fine, a silken thread. It might have been hate, or love, or pride, that caused her to follow the course she had chosen.

"You'll do it, then, Rodney?" "You know you need not ask. And of course we'll be married just as soon as Bret does the decent thing and divorces you." "Yes . . . of course." She supposed they would have to be. She was not thinking that far ahead, however. This was another wild impulse that had caught her up, rushing her along on its torrent. She had to do something. Something to hurt Bret. To even the score. To force him to let her win. To make him think she hated him.

They were living in complete unhappiness now, like strangers, like people who had never known each other. Bret during the day he was gone, she did not know where, or with whom. She did not know what his plans were.

She did know that she would not go on this way. She could have gone to Bermuda. If Bret had unpacked her things, tossing them out of the window, as he had threatened, she could have repacked others. She could have left. But that would have been only a temporary arrangement. Nothing final.

She did not have any grounds against him. She might have managed to have faked some; but she knew he would fight them. She knew he would fight, no matter what she did. After that moment, when he had held her by her shoulders and had shaken her, and had told her he would not divorce her, that she was his wife, and would remain his wife forever, he had become again the Bret he had been before their marriage. The Bret she had loved, whom she had felt she could trust, with whom she had known she need never be afraid of anything. Though now it was this same Bret whom she hated—or did she really hate him? She supposed he hated her. He behaved as though he did. He had accused her of changing him, or robbing him of his self-respect. He would not go her way; he refused to accept her world, her friends, anything in it. She would not return to his. There was nothing for her to do except to make him hate her.

Then had come this cunning plan. If she could make Bret hate her enough, if she could prove to him that she really was not his faithful, untrue to those vows he thought so solemn, so binding, when he would divorce her, she would have won.

SHE did not stop to consider how bitter might be such a victory. How long the knowing remorse. How futile the tears.

"When are you going to tell him?" Rodney asked one day soon after this luncheon. He was eager, exultant. "When are you going with me, Connie dear?"

"Tonight," she answered. What was the good of waiting? What was the sense of going on another day, or night?

"You mean you'll go away with me tonight?" Rodney caught her hands in his. "You must not say you will—again—and not mean it, Connie. You never should have run away from me that first time."

"No, she supposed not. Yet, if she hadn't, she never would have had those happy busy days in the little valley town, she never would have known Bret—and his love. It was over now; it had not worked out. But still it was something to have had such love as it had been.

"I'll go tonight," she said. "I mean it, Rodney. I'll meet you at midnight, at the pier. The yacht is ready to sail at any notice. We'll go away together, after I've told Bret."

Rodney raised her hand to his lips. "You'll never regret it, dear," he said. "I'll make you happy, I'll spend the rest of my life obeying your every wish. I never loved you so much, you never looked more beautiful than you do now. We'll sail clear around the world. . . ."

Connie wrenched her hands away. No, they would not do that. She had gone around the world, with Bret, on her second honeymoon. This third one—without him—would be a mockery. She said, "I don't know where we'll go. That doesn't matter, yet. But I'll send word to Captain Stephens. We'll sail tonight. Nothing—no one—shall keep me from going."

MERRILL HAD "ONE-PARACHUTE JUMP IN 30 YEARS" RECORD

Parachute jumping is a side-line avocation with some aviators, but not with Captain Dick Merrill, who successfully crossed the Atlantic ocean four times in less than a year.

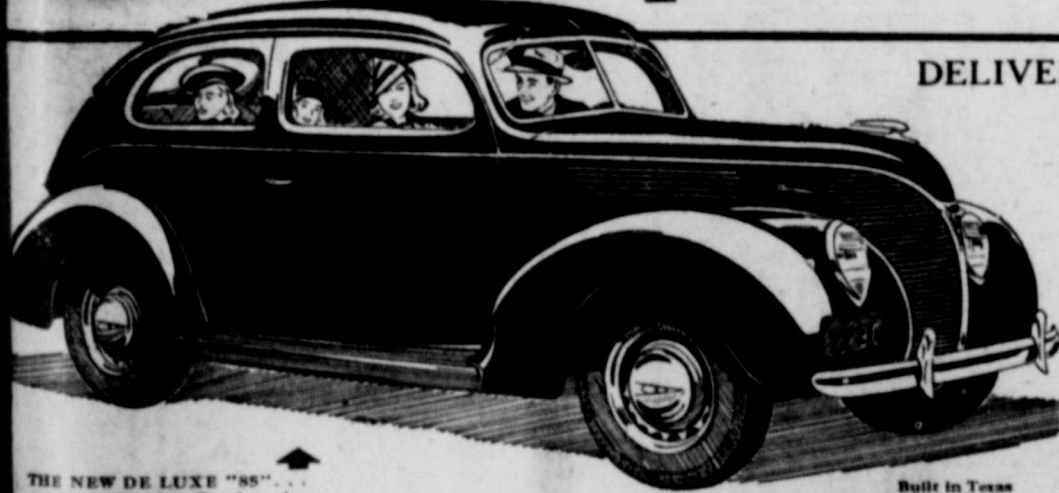

Pilot Merrill has been forced to make but one parachute jump in his aviation career of almost thirty years.

It was in 1930 in the Blue Ridge Mountains, thirty miles west of Shelby, North Carolina, that Merrill made his one and only forced parachute jump. He was flying the Atlantic to Richmond run in extremely bad weather when his Pittsairn Mailwing biplane ran out of gasoline. As a safe landing of the plane was impossible Merrill made a successful parachute jump, then located the airplane, took the mail to Casar, North Carolina, placed it on a train and sent the mail safe and sound to its destination.

Merrill's actions always reveal great determination and sound judgment. And just as he shows good judgment in parachute jumping he likewise shows good judgment in his choice of breakfast cereal. He chooses the breakfast of Great Americans, Quaker Oats, which is rich in Vitamin B.

Ranger Times Cooking School and Merchants Annual Fair Slated for March:

How to promote a profitable and entertaining cooking school has been demonstrated by Ranger merchants for a number of years, and this spring will be no exception, since the plans are now under way for the Times Cooking School and Merchants Annual Fair, slated for the last three days in March and first two in April.

Again the school will be held at the Recreation building, Marston street.

There was a time when stay-ups and party goers turned suppers into breakfast. Now it's a shoe on another foot, a horse of a different color and a turn about a fair play, all since cooking schools became so highly favored. Every meal is given mutual consideration. This year will introduce to Ranger merchants and cooking school goers, Mrs. Burbank, one of the State's outstanding culinary experts, and Home economic heads. Already so interested are those taking part that reservations are steadily coming in. Mrs. Tucker and her famous shortening, this year celebrates its twenty-fifth year, therefore a silver anniversary. Her prizes to be awarded during the school will of course be something in the silver line. A great number of recognized lines will again be included in those to be represented.

Women not only in Ranger but surrounding towns anticipate these annual schools, and attend in great number. This announcement also carries an invitation to you to be numbered among those who daily profit from the lectures, recipes and performances.
