CHINESE WRECK JAP AIRPLANES IN AIR RAIDS

By United Press
 SHANGHAI, Feb. 7.—Chinese official sources reported today that Chinese airplanes, in a raid in Nanking, destroyed 12 Japanese airplanes at the airport.

This report followed assertions that an undetermined number of foreign airplanes had reached the Chinese army.

It was reported that 600 German and American motor trucks had passed through Canton last week on their way to the army and that a number of American trucks were on the way.

It was said also that Chinese authorities were trying to insure prompt delivery of 3,400 British and American trucks, which were approaching China by boat.

Increasing artillery activity by the Chinese was noted in reports that some munitions were arriving.

Cattle Shipments Show Slight Drop

AUSTIN, Texas—Shipments of live stock to the Fort Worth market and out-of-State points
 during December totaled 5,095 cars, compared with 5,630 during the corresponding month in 1937,
 a decline of 9.5 per cent, according to the University of Texas Bureau of Business Research. This was the first unfavorable year-to-year comparison in stock shipments for many months and probably reflects the sharp decline in live stock prices which have recently occurred.

December alone showed an increase in shipments.

Cattle shipments in December totaled 3,615 cars, as compared with 3,769 cars in December, 1936,
 a decline of 3 per cent; calves,
 19 compared with 273 cars, down 93 per cent; hogs, 341 compared with 772 cars, a drop of 56 per cent; sheep, 280 compared with 35 cars, an increase of 141 per cent.

Aggregate shipments of all classes of live stock to Fort Worth and out of State points during 1937 were 90,340 cars, against 82,84 cars in 1936 an increase of 47 per cent.

Hour of Birth Is Factor In a Game

EL PASO, Texas—Intricacies of the game of basketball have never been equal to that of the game of football. The fact that a player is born at a certain hour of the day is a factor in his performance, according to a study made by a group of scientists at the University of Texas.

The study was conducted by a group of scientists at the University of Texas at El Paso. They found that the performance of
 basketball players was affected
 by the hour of their birth.

The study was conducted over a period of six months. It was found that the performance of
 basketball players was affected
 by the hour of their birth.

Allred Seeks To Have Oil Lease Cancelled

AUSTIN, Feb. 7.—Gov. James
 V. Allred today called on Attorney General William McCraw to file suit to cancel an oil lease in Laguna Madre, awarded by Land Commissioner William H. McDor-nald, to Herbert Mallinson of Dallas.

Allred's request for "immediate" suit to cancel was contained in a letter reviewing testimony given before a state senate committee, regarding award of Laguna Madre oil lease.

The governor said that "able attorneys" with whom he has consulted, questioned seriously the legal right of the land commissioner to accept the Mallinson bid.

Regardless of that Allred asserted a lease at low cash bonus and royalty without any requirement for drilling or development is "such an inadequate consideration that the court will not hesitate to cancel it."

He advised the Attorney General that the land commissioner had sold the offsetting acreage surrounding this lease on every side except the west, which was a part of the Flour Bluff oil field, for a total of more than $458,000 in cash and $371,000 in oil.

"There was no incentive," he wrote, "for the state to turn loose the valuable acreage for next to nothing, without any requirement for development, but the effect of it was to let Mallinson have a 13-16th gamble for $310. If the state is going to gamble on oil being found under this lease, then the land commissioner should have gambled the whole 16-16ths rather than throw away 13-16th for $310."

Mail Theft Cache Is Found By Officers But Money Is Gone

DALLAS, Feb. 7.—Postal inspectors sent today for two acquaintances of Sidney A. Miller, 30, charged in connection with a West Texas mail theft, to question them about the disappearance of several thousand dollars which Miller said he buried in Collin county.

Postal Inspector C. W. S. Long returned with Miller from a secreted spot near Plano, where the money was supposed to be hidden.
 No money was found and evidence showed the hole had been uncovered recently.

Inspectors said they believed Miller purchased, at 15 cents on the dollar, part of the money taken from a mail pouch containing $29,950. The theft occurred at Tahoma while a train was switching.

Townsend Verdict Upheld By Court

WASHINGTON, Feb. 7.—The U. S. Court of Appeals today upheld the conviction of Dr. Francis E. Townsend, old age pension leader, on charges of contempt of a House committee investigating his activities.

Townsend is under sentence of 30 days in jail and a $100 fine.

He was cited for contempt of the House of March 12, 1937, after he stalked angrily out of a committee hearing investigating old age pensions.

Townsend suddenly interrupted the hearing, asserting he no longer would "tolerate inquisitorial methods" of members of the committee.

The Townsend meeting scheduled for tonight at 7:30 in the Odd Fellows Hall, Ranger, will be one

 any foreign commitment or understanding.

"The navy has no thought of obtaining assistance from any year jail sentence and $20,000

Indicted in June, 1931, on charges of violating federal in-

For Love of Polly

By RACHEL MACK

LAST OF CHARACTERS
CHAPTER V

"ARE you making a joke, Jerry?" Polly asked in an uncertain voice. "People don't talk of marrying when they've just met."

Jerry held her hands and looked down into her face. "Look at me, Polly! Do I look like a man that's joking? I figure there are troubles ahead of us. Dangers, even. We can face them better as man and wife."

The girl looked up at the bronzed young seaman and answered honestly. "My heart's going like a loud ticking clock, Jerry."

Polly went and sat down sedately. "There's something about English marriage laws you've yet to learn, Jerry. There must be a publishing of the banns in a church for three Sundays before the wedding day. Then, if any legal objects, the marriage can be stopped. My mother was Mary Dart, a London girl. She fell in love with my father when she met him here in her cousin's counting-house. It was his first voyage over as captain of his own brig, the Frolic. He courted her in the most refined fashion and she accepted him, but the Darts were wild. My father's sister, my Aunt Kate Chelsey, had come over with him to see London. So it was that my mother went back to America with them and was married in Connecticut, simple fashion. That way, they got around the banns and outwitted the Darts."

Jerry said impatiently. "Banns! So the crazy English have us in another tangle, have they?"

HE walked back and forth across the room while his anger settled. He was not out to take defeat meekly. It was a while before he could say in a natural voice, "Very well, Polly. Of course we can't wait for banns to be published. If I must abide by English law, I must. I'll be merely your cousin and stop courting you till I do it with honor. Good night, Polly. I'll see you tomorrow after I've planned a way to get us to France."

"Well, now!" Polly exclaimed, somewhat taken aback at having stopped his courtship so effectively.

"I bid you good night, Cousin Jerry Whitfield!"

"There's the matter of your trunk," Jerry said from the doorway. "It would be better for me to go and get it tonight than to wait till morning. Tell me just how to get to the Dart house in Hemphill street."

Polly told him. "But I dread for you to go to that house, Jerry. If there were only my clothes in the trunk I'd never let you go. But there's my mother's miniature and my money."

"Lud, sir! Do you know where she is?"

"Yes, I do. She's safe with me at Levern. I'm a cousin of her father's, from America, and I mean to look after her. I've got a gig waiting outside. Tell me where her trunk is, and I'll fetch it down to the street."

"Lud!" exclaimed Mrs. Broggs again. "Master's got it! He found out tonight that she'd run off, so he had it carried down to his study, to go through."

"Where is his study?" asked Jerry, visibly angry.

"At the head of the stairs on the floor above, sir. But wait! I can see you're hot-tempered. You'll throw Mr. Dart into a rage, likely."

"Well, he's already thrown me into one. What's he searching Miss Chelsey's clothes for? Firearms? Take me to him."

"When the woman whered Jerry Whitfield into Oliver Dart's study, it was evident that they could not have arrived at a more unfortunate moment. The old man was ripping a skirt hen, with his penknife and pulling out pieces of buckram which he evidently suspected of being paper. Garments were strewn about on floor, table and chairs, giving that pitiful effect which personal objects always give when desecrated.

"Stop that!" Jerry said.

"When it so pleases me. Who are you?"

"My name's Jeremiah Whitfield. I'm cousin to Trepid Chelsey of Connecticut and I mean to take care of his daughter. I've come to get her belongings." He turned to Mrs. Broggs. "Madam, gather up everything at once, so I can take the trunk down."

"Do so, Mrs. Broggs," said old Oliver Dart, laying down his penknife. "I find nothing incriminating."

"Where is the girl's money?"

Jerry asked. "And her mother's picture?"

"I've taken the money," said Oliver Dart, "as a very small payment toward what America owes me. I've also retained the miniature, since that was paid for with Dart money. The frame is of some value."

"Give me those things," Jerry said, much too angry to think clearly. "You're too old for me to fight, but I'll pry you loose from 'em if I have to shake your riffin' down!"

"Sailor talk! ... Hm-m-m. Well, Mr. Jeremiah Whitfield, I'm an infirm old man with no means of protecting my rights. You'll find what you're looking for in the table drawer over there. See that you deliver it to the girl."

"She'll get it," Jerry replied, "if I live to get to the Unicorn and Crown."

Mrs. Broggs, who was closing the trunk lid, looked up obliquely at Jerry and laid her finger on her lips. But the damage was done. Old Oliver Dart had his great-niece's London address, if he cared to use it. He sat passively silent as Jerry departed with the trunk. He neither recoiled nor smiled but sat with his legs closed in upon himself, and his finger tips delicately meeting.

JERRY waited till next morning to restore Polly's property to her. He found her satisfactorily appreciative. She went to him and kissed him sweetly on the lips.

"As a grateful person kisses a very kind cousin," she said, laughing.

"I've been at the docks since daylight," he said. "I've found a way for us to get out of England. Chet Wheeler put me onto it. A smuggling clique works out of a cove between Deal and Dover. I've got in touch with one of them. This day week he'll take us across the Channel to a fishing port near Galais. Chet's ready gone to Dover, to wait. To hide out, rather."

"But for me?" Polly said, "you'd be at Dover with him. The Unicorn and Crown's an awfully public place for an American sailor to be. When I came to you yesterday, Jerry, you lost precious time and took on a useless burden. Two useless burdens!" she insisted, over his protest, for her dog could be heard barking down, in the stable yard. "I'd better take Nuisance to the commons and let him bark."

"I'll walk part way with you, Polly," Jerry said. "But I must go back to the docks and seal friendship with that French-speaking rascal who's to take us across."

WASHINGTON

WITH RODNEY DUTCHER

BY RODNEY DUTCHER
NEA Service Staff Correspondent

WASHINGTON.—The question whether the price of steel can be made to go down without an accompanying reduction in wages of steel workers has become a crucial issue inside the New Deal.

The anti-monopoly crusaders have that as their aim, and believe that the answer will determine whether their recent campaign has meant anything or not. The situation is no end involved in a maze of pressures and counterpressures, both in Washington and in the higher councils of industry and labor. But no matter how involved it is, it's something to watch.

The issue has been tossed to the New Dealers by President Benjamin F. Fairless of the U. S. Steel Corporation, who has said: "It is clear that prices cannot be reduced without a corresponding reduction in costs, of which wages are the most important part."

This followed appearance of Tom Lamont, member of the Morgan firm, and John L. Lewis, generalissimo of organized steel workers, at the White House. Lewis is supposed to have joined in a warning; that agitation against high steel prices drove off buyers, who believed prices might drop. Lamont is supposed to have said that prices might be cut cautiously if enough demand could be stimulated.

New Dealers shooting at steel prices insist those prices are way out of line; that the industry "priced itself out of the market"; that steel labor represents only 22.9 per cent of the finished product.

Lewis, meanwhile, is seeking to negotiate a renewal of his union contract with U. S. Steel which will involve no wage cut.

THE price of steel, you may be sure, is definitely involved in the political future of Assistant Attorney General Robert H. Jackson. It is he who has led the administration's furious charge on monopoly and monopoly prices and it is he who would get the credit for the first big break in the "enemy" lines.

Jackson, ablest figure in the New Deal ranks—according to Roosevelt, other New Dealers and many sideline observers—has been built up by his friends and supporters—including F. D. R.—as the 1938 candidate for governor of New York, a key post in the forthcoming elections. Not to mention his appointment as solicitor general.

Naturally he became an out-front target for the united fire and undercover work of numerous other unannounced candidates and the politicians who support their aspirations.

As the report spread about that he also was Roosevelt's choice to succeed himself in the White House, the lineup against him became even stronger, since there are many conservatives sworn to fight any effort by Roosevelt to influence nomination of his successor (The presidential republic is based only on Roosevelt's friendship for Jackson and his desire to see him become New York's governor.)

Sport Glances. . . . . By Grayson

BY HARRY GRAYSON
Sports Editor, NEA Service

MIAMI, Fla.—Complete collapse of the Idle Hour Farm Stables was one of the unexpected happenings in 1937.

It was made tragic by the sudden death in the middle of the (preliminary) race of Derby Dick Thompson, so called because he saddled four Kentucky Derby winners for Col. Edward Riley Bradley. Nor are the Idle Hour Farm Stables' prospects much brighter for 1938. Colonel Bradley already has announced that he has no horse of Kentucky Derby caliber.

It is just another striking illustration that an owner and breeder of thoroughbreds cannot be successful forever, no matter how racing wise and well fixed financially.

The present recession of the Bradley turf fortunes is only a natural one.

For years Idle Hour Farm depended upon the produce of Black Toney and North Star III. The latter is dead, and Black Toney has retired from stud duty at the ripe age of 27.

A YEAR ago the green with white hoops had three colts which were expected to give the wily kumel his finest season since Blue Larkspur was a 2-year-old in 1929.

Brooklyn was regarded by all as an outstanding candidate for the Kentucky Derby.

Billionaire, a stake-winning 2-year-old of a half dozen races and $12,650, was a full brother of Brokers Tip. He was well liked. Billionaire had been a stake-winning juvenile.

Colonel Bradley is an astute gambler. He formerly wagered that before snow fell you couldn't pick a 2-year-old from his or any other stable which would win the Derby.

But Colonel Bradley was so positive about Brooklyn that he was on the losing end of his own bet in 1937.

The Lexington breeder wagered Jerry Louchheim, the Philadelphia contractor who owns Pompoon, that Brooklyn would repel the son of Pompey the first time they met. Brooklyn never did get to the Derby, but was fourth and Pompoon sixth when War Admiral shelacked all comers in the Belmont Stakes.

THAT was the only ray of sunshine in the kumel's year.

Brooklyn did not win in 1937. He started four times, showed twice, and twice ran out. Billionaire won only three minor numbers. Biologist only one.

No one knows better than Colonel Bradley that racing luck runs in cycles, however.

Like Connie Mack, he'd like to ride the crest again, but has had his full share of gold and glory.

That is the principal reason why no one can take a liking more philosophically than the Kentucky Kummel and baseball's Grand Old Man.

LET'S KNOW TEXAS - TEXANS

WILLIAM WATTS
AUSTIN TEXAS

In this column answers will be given to inquiries as to Texas history and other matters pertaining to the State and its people. Address inquiries to WILL H. MAXON, Austin, Texas.

Q. What options were then opened to Texas with the passage of the United States annexation resolution of March 1, 1845?

A. Texas was then in position either to make a treaty with Mexico, with its independence guaranteed by Great Britain, or to become a separate state of the United States. The Mexican treaty was rejected by the Texas Congress

Q. How did President Polk try to adjust the differences between the United States and Mexico without resort to war?

A. He sent a representative to Mexico with authority to agree that the United States would assume all claims of American citizens against Mexico and would pay Mexico a sum that might be agreed upon if Mexico would acknowledge the Rio Grande as the United States-Mexican border, and an additional sum if it would cede upper California to the United States. This mission failed.

Q. What offer was made by Calhoun to Almonte to appease Mexico in regard to the proposed annexation of Texas?

A. Calhoun proposed to Almonte to indemnify Mexico if it would consent to annexation, explaining that this was forced on the United States by the British attitude toward Texas and that no affront to Mexico was intended.

Q. Who were the first Texans to respond to General Taylor's call?

A. An infantry regiment under command of Col. Albert Sidney Johnston.

Q. How was the annexation of Texas responsible for the election of James K. Polk to the presidency of the United States?

A. The United States Democratic convention of 1844 followed the two-thirds rule, which had been adopted 12 years before. This resulted in the defeat of Van Buren, who had a majority but not two-thirds of the votes, and in the nomination of James K. Polk, a dark horse from Tennessee and George M. Dallas of Pennsylvania, for vice-president, on a platform favoring Texas "re-annexation." The Democrats won the national election on that issue over Henry Clay and the Whigs.

Ranger High School News

By Dorothy Byas

We hear that the R. H. S. basketball team has been winning some games. Last week they played Eastland and the decision went to us because the Eastland coach would not substitute another man for the one who talked back to the referee. Thursday our team was to have played Rising Star, but the latter team had so many men sick that they offered to forfeit the game to Ranger. Coach Jennings suggested that the game be played some time this week.

Tuesday in chapel the students and teachers heard four talks on the subject of a uni-americal legislature for the state of Texas. This should interest each resident of the state for it won't be many years before we may have to vote on the question. Those who participated were: H. H. Gilmore, Lewis Hughes, Jack Hall and Babb Edmonds.

Thursday we learned that Feb. is to be Constitution month for this high school. The motto selected was: "Let us consider the Constitution," so during this month each student should visit the library and get a book about our Constitution and learn something new. Those who took part in this program were: Lewis Hughes, Rita Mooney, Doris Dudley and T. M. Brown.

Public Speaking News

Several of the members of the debate team went to Breckenridge where they entered a tournament and won most of the debates.

The girls first team composed of Rita Mooney and Juneann Griegoliet won over the girls first team of Breckenridge. The girls second team lost to a Breckenridge boys team. This team was composed of Marise, Chastain and Vera Bryan. The boys' first team of Ranger lost to Breckenridge's first team of boys. In the end, Ranger boys got beat by 2 points. Babb Edmonds and H. H. Gilmore defeated the Breckenridge second team.

Now for the extemporaneous speakers.

The extemporaneous speakers who went to Breckenridge with their coach, Mr. Warford, Thursday night were Emma Leta McCleskey, Doris Beach, Pauline Bryan, Buford Jordan, and Morris Leveille. Morris won 3rd place, Emma Leta won fourth place, Buford and Pauline tied for fifth place and Doris won sixth. Breckenridge boys won first, two tied for second and another won seventh place.

Elimination for all declaimers was held Wednesday night with these students winning: Doris Dudley and Dorothy Jean Bruce in the Senior girls and Homer Smith and Travis Bryan for the senior boys.

Declaimers, debaters and extemporaneous speakers, sixteen in all, will represent Ranger High School at the Baylor speech tournament to be held at Waco, Feb. 11-12.

The following poem was found in the study hall. Do you know who wrote it? Poem: Easy come and easy go, I never study, no, not me! Then my spirits are never low 'Cause my grades are about a B! Mother says if I'd study some That I'd amount to something someday. I just yawn and say "ho-hum" What do I care about an A?"

Typing News.

Each week from now until school closes the highest score from each of the three typing classes will be given. This does not mean that the three listed are the three highest in all the classes, but the one who makes the highest score in his class on the weekly test given, will get his or her name in this column.

Here they are for this week: Jimmie Beth Todd, in the first class made 1813 strokes; 24 gross words, 5 errors, a penalty of 3, 21 net words an accuracy of 87, and a score of 109. Rita Mooney, who is in the third period class made 2908 strokes, 39 gross words, 6 errors, 4 for penalty, 35 net words, an accuracy of 90, and a score of 151 in the fourth period class.

The average of the three classes in order is 78, 97, 102.

In Class Sunday, I learned from a Breckenridge girl that the Home

Are These the Hands of a Murderer?

These are the hands of a man who admittedly killed his wife and his best friend; they are the hands of a man now fighting for his own life. Are they hands of a murderer? Or do their twisting, tortured positions indicate merely the nervous tension of a man unjustly charged? The hands are those of Paul A. Wright, on trial in Los Angeles for the "white flame" slaying of his wife, Evelyn, and John Kimmel, last Nov. 9. Wright admits the act, but contends it was not murder because he was temporarily insane from the shock of seeing his wife in Kimmel's arms. Can you predict in advance what the verdict should be, from looking at pictures of his hands, taken as he listened to testimony which will determine his fate?

Ec. district meet is to be here all day Saturday.

Safe Drivers Club

Well folks, I've shore had a good time with you all this semester and I may not get to write any more because this has been the last meeting we'll have before electing some more officers. Mr. McGahey was back with us today. This is the first time he has met with us since we brought the speaker from Abilene. I guess you heard about that guy who came up here with a gun on his side, and talked to the students of dear old Ranger HI.

Well, we racked the brain of some of the most honorable club members (Rusty Quinn) and found out that he enumerated the following points that should help us in safer driving: 1. law enforcement, 2. drivers should know highway laws, 3. proper attention to driving, 4. show road courtesy, 5. proper mechanical equipment, 6. know how to drive, 7. know and follow highway practice, and last but not least—if you drive, don't drink, if you drink don't drive.

The seniors had called a special meeting, so half of the safe drivers came up and left. What went on after that time your reporter has yet to learn, but if it were any thing of importance, I'll have the next reporter tell you.

That must be all, folks. No doubt we'll have a new reporter next week and we hope he hasn't been as bad as this one.—Reporter, Rossie Hodges.

Dramatic Club

Last week election of officers was held and the following new officers were elected: President—Bobby Branton, Vice President—Royce June Lyons.

Waving Goodby to Irish Leader

Miss Mairin De Valera, daughter of Ireland's premier, Eamon De Valera, waves a goodby to her father in London, as pictured above, as she left for Sweden to finish her education. She had accompanied her father to England, where he sought an Anglo-Irish trade pact.

Secretary—Emma Lee Cole, Assistant Secretary—Polly Seymour.

After roll call the meeting was turned over to the program committee. The program was a play called "Green Shadows." Green Shadows is a picture or rather a "Non's Ark" as one of the cast, Hazel Fendren, called it in the play. Others in the cast were: Cleo Anna Moore, the mother; seems as if Cleo Anna and Hazel, her daughter, had to take time off to laugh. Dan Milmo, the part was acted very well. They all passed for station identification (our rather the forgot their parts). Mildred Rogers played Gordon, a boy. We were surprised that Mildred could imitate a boy so well. Why, she even wore a suit of boy's clothes, and Noble Robertson was the Drayman even though he is a shade small for the Drayman.

Old Deed Transfers Ownership of Huge Snake With Lands

By United Press

MANSFIELD, O.—WPA workers engaged in a survey of records of Richland county discovered an 80-year-old deed conveying not only a 20-acre tract of swamp land but also a fabulous giant rattlesnake believed to dwell in the marsh.

By deed dated Feb. 10, 1858, George B. Wright, as receiver for a railroad company, conveyed the land and the monstrous snake to Allen B. Beverstock, of Lexington, Ky.

The reptile was supposed to be of such size and strength that it could push down fences, breaking the rails with its weight. Beverstock not only had a clause of conveyance inserted in the deed to gain title to the serpent, but a pen sketch of the animal was drawn on the face of the deed.

The picture was more than 10 inches long. It was that of a gray snake, its back spotted with white. What became of the snake, or whether it ever was seen, was not recorded.

Three Mice Caught At Once In Trap

EL PASO, Texas.—S. E. Skidmore set one trap in his home and caught three mice at the same time.

The trap, still holding the mice, was placed in alcohol to preserve the evidence of the catch.

CANCER CLINIC EXPANDS TO LARGER QUARTERS IN HOUSTON

The Hestand Clinic, which for many years has carried on its practice of treating cancer exclusively in the Marine Bank Building, Houston, is now moving into spacious new quarters at 4403 Fannin St., according to reports received here yesterday.

The new home, a large two-story building in a quiet, attractive residential district—will be occupied in its entirety by the Clinic. This move becomes effective February 15th and will be completed with planned efficiency so that no patient will be inconvenienced.

"Our new location offers several advantages," stated Dr. Hestand. "First of all, we shall have many times our former space for reception rooms, offices, treatment rooms and laboratories. Also, our patients coming from out-of-town will be able to avoid the business district of Houston and find easy, close-at-hand parking space for their automobiles. We are gratified that our past success makes it possible to improve the service and convenience to those who come to us in time of need."

The Hestand Clinic has treated thousands of people from all over the country who were suffering from cancer of every type. Their record of achievement in this field is reputed to be outstanding and represents a definite contribution toward the successful elimination of this scourge.
