U. S. WARNED OF FASCIST GROUP BY REP. SCOTT

By United Press
WASHINGTON, Feb. 16.—The United States must consider the possible danger of a fascist alliance among Germany, Italy and Japan, in planning naval expansion, Representative Byron Scott of California warned the house naval affairs committee today.
Scott made the statement during questioning of Representative Hamilton Fish, who opposed President Roosevelt's $800,000,000 naval building program.
Fish argued a bigger navy would be used to police the world in parallel action with Great Britain.
Suggesting that the anti-communist agreement between Japan, Italy and Germany may constitute a pro-fascist pact, Scott said: "If we are not going to police the world we must prepare our defenses against a pro-fascist alliance on the part of those three nations."
Scott pointed out that "Japanese espionage is well known" and that Germany is "spreading propaganda in South America."

Rare Night Scene at Capital

In Washington, as in Texas, the Vice-President Garner always goes to bed at 9 p. m. That is—nearly always. On the occasion of the Vice-President's dinner for the President, the Garners naturally stay up a little later. Here are Mr. Roosevelt and Mr. Garner in the Washington hotel where this year's dinner was held. The President gazes at the Vice-President and seems to be asking "Are we keeping you up, old fellow?" But the Vice-President smiles and shows he enjoys this night-life.

SENATE FAILS TO PUT AN END TO FILIBUSTER

By United Press
WASHINGTON, Feb. 16.—The senate today defeated the second attempt to break the anti-lynching bill filibuster by limiting debate.
By defeating the new effort to invoke the senate cloture rule, foes of the anti-lynching bill virtually abandoned hope for a vote on the measure. Majority Leader Alben Barkley, confronted with many appropriation bills, expected a final decision on the anti-lynching bill about Monday by sidetracking the only likely outcome.
"It is my idea," Barkley said, "that the bill will be disposed of when the $250,000,000 deficiency relief measure is ready, probably on Monday."
President Roosevelt meanwhile sought higher commodity price levels to lift the nation from an economic recession.
Reiterating his convictions that prices generally still were too low, he asked government experts to prepare a report on the price structure.

Japan Chooses Flag for China

Japanese armed forces have penetrated so deep into China that Nippon has even selected a new flag for the Chinese. The new emblem, shown above, being raised over a school in Yokohama, has five horizontal bars—red, yellow, blue, white and black—representing the five Chinese peoples, the Chinese, Manchus, Mongolians, Mohammedans and Tibetans.

COLD WAVE IS CREEPING INTO NORTH TEXAS

Winter crept back into North Texas and the Panhandle Wednesday. As the mercury dropped to 29 degrees at Amarillo and freezing rains fell over the northern Panhandle, the weather bureau at Dallas issued warnings of a freeze throughout north Texas Wednesday night.
Moving slowly the blizzard was not expected to strike central and east Texas until Wednesday night or Thursday. The weather bureau said it would be spent by Friday.
Highway travel in the Panhandle became hazardous Wednesday. The drizzle froze as it struck. At Lubbock rain fell with the temperature at 40 degrees.
The wet cold was expected to bring north Texas heavier sleet or even snow.
The low barometer area in the state and especially in the Rio Grande Valley Wednesday did much to protect Texas' blossoming fruit trees. The weather bureau said the cold would do virtually no damage to plants and trees in Texas.

Pet Deer Has Hard Time Carrying Mail In Hunting Season

By United Press
WEIMAR, Texas.—Billy, a three-point deer, carries the mail for Oscar Kohleffel, Weimar farmer.
But his job—or even keeping alive—is extremely difficult for Billy during certain winter months when deer hunters roam. Kohleffel has taught the deer during the past 18 months to trek daily to his rural mail box to meet the carrier, J. T. Green, and then take Kohleffel's mail to his home.
The routine began when Green offered Billy a piece of candy and then tied the mail to the deer's neck. At the Kohleffel home, Billy received another piece of candy.
The farmer found the deer lying helpless beside its dead mother two years ago. Hunters had killed the doe. Since then, Billy has been the Kohleffel family pet.
A year ago—although wearing a cowbell around his neck, Billy met a hunter and was wounded in the neck. During the past deer hunting season, a bullet broke Billy's leg.
Nowadays, Billy stays close to the Kohleffel home.

McNurlin Pleads Guilty to Charge Of Mail Robbery

ABILENE, Feb. 16.—Rufe McNurlin entered a plea of guilty when arraigned here Tuesday on a charge of theft from the mails.
He appeared before U. S. Commissioner Ida M. Jones, who fixed his bond at $5,000.
McNurlin was arrested Monday at his home six miles south of Ranger by a posse of federal, county and city officers. It was headed by Sheriff Loss Woods and Chief of Police Ingram.
The prisoner was brought here from Eastland by Deputy U. S. Marshal C. S. Brown.
He was the seventh person to be charged in connection with theft of a registered mail pouch containing $28,950. It disappeared November 4 from a railway mail car between Dallas and O'Donnell. The money shipment was consigned to the First National bank of O'Donnell from the Federal Reserve bank at Dallas.
Postal Inspector L. W. Morris signed the complaint naming McNurlin. It was filed Monday at Lubbock with U. S. Commissioner Olive Fluke, in whose division the mail theft occurred.

Right of Graves On Texas Court May Soon Become Moot

By United Press
AUSTIN, Feb. 16.—The right of Judge H. N. Graves of Georgetown to sit on the bench of the state court of criminal appeals may go to the voters for decision if contentions of Graves' friends are correct.
They say that the right of a judge to sit cannot be attacked collaterally. The test must be made by the state through the attorney general and not by a party to a suit in which he has acted, they say.
When Graves was appointed, Attorney General William McCraw's department made no objection. In fact, members of the staff doubted that there was any authority for the attorney general to act.
The validity of Graves' appointment is now before the court on a defendant's motion for rehearing, to be argued today. If the court holds that the attack cannot be made this way, the test likely will be transferred to federal courts under a claim that due process of law has not been afforded.
Graves' eligibility under Gov. James V. Allred's appointment is attacked because he was a member of the legislature when the pay of the office was increased. Regardless of the court decision, Graves will have to run for the office next summer if he desires to retain it. The question may thus become moot so far as he is concerned, before it is ever finally ruled upon.

No. 1 Poindexter Will Be Deepened For Pay Increase

BAIRD, Feb. 16.—Operators on the Hal Hughes et al No. 1 Poindexter, southwestern Callahan county Ordovician prospect, said Wednesday that the deep test will be deepened in hopes of picking up better oil saturation either in the same or at a deeper formation.
It is believed to be at least 70 feet above the water table in the present sand, gas showing from 4,369 to 4,386 and oil from that depth to 4,385 feet. Owners believe the present showing is from a horizon above that found in the Drew Beams test to the north which yielded flows estimated at 1,000 barrels per day.
Tanks have not been erected on the lease, and will not, owners said, until larger production is obtained. Seven-inch casing is cemented at 3,780 feet. Five-inch now in the hole will not be cemented, but is being used to act as tubing.
The test is three miles north of Oplin in the northeast corner of George Hancock survey No. 350.

Progress by F.S.A. Families Reported By Mrs. I.R. Parrish

Farm families financed by the Farm Security Administration still have from 30 to several hundred cans of last year's products on hand, it was reported by Mrs. I. R. Parrish, Eastland county supervisor. These supplies will last until the families begin to get in new vegetables from their early gardens, Mrs. Parrish said.
"Practically every farmer coming into the office reports some accomplishment in gardening," Mrs. Parrish said, noting that the first requirement of FSA is that families whom it finances shall grow their living at home.
"Mrs. J. E. Carter had turnips and greens all winter. She has 8 rows of Bermuda onions she set out last fall that are now about right to eat."
Farm wives are taking advantage of the low price of cotton to sew a great deal of it in making quilts and mattresses, Mrs. Parrish also reported. One woman is making quilts for her neighbors. Another has made a quilt almost entirely of sugar sacks. "For the first time in years, these families will have an adequate supply of mattresses and bedding," Mrs. Parrish said.

L. A. White, deputy sheriff, returned late Tuesday from Monahan with Ward Armstrong of Eastland in custody to answer to justice of peace court charges of burglary and theft over $50.
Sheriff Loss Woods stated that Armstrong is charged in connection with the alleged loss of three guns, a .22 rifle, and 12 and 20 gauge pumps, from the home of J. W. Harris at Eastland. The guns were missed during the latter part of December, it was stated.

Hickok's Donovan Will Get Acid, Is Report from Cisco

CISCO, Feb. 16.—The Hickok Producing Development company's No. 1 Donovan, which yesterday found a small show of oil in the top of a saturated Ellenberger lime structure, was being watched Wednesday as operators were reported preparing to test the pay with acid. Although the drill penetrates the saturated stratum only about six inches, it was not planned to drill deeper, it was said.
According to observers this was the first well in which the entire distance into the Ellenberger lime was drilled entirely with cable core barrel.
A 24-hour test showed several barrels of free oil with no trace of water.
It was regarded as significant that the Ellenberger was encountered 121 feet lower than it was topped in the Hickok Van Parmet, 1,000-barrel Ellenberger producer one and one-half miles to the northwest.
Operators were proceeding with extreme caution in handling the well.
Total depth of the Donovan is 4,280 feet. Thirty-three feet of Ellenberger was cored.

The judgment provides for partition of a lease involved in the case, payment of court costs by Lone Star, and payment of $1,000 by the defendant to Martin. Pleadings of Martin at origination of the case alleged that Lone Star had failed to develop a lease and that production from adjoining land was draining production from his land.

Social Responsibility Is Asset Nowadays

One thing the past eight years have certainly done. They have developed a sense of social responsibility that never existed before, except in isolated individuals.

Despite all talk of economic royalists, there are few employers today who do not at least give a thought to the public results of their conduct of their private business.

This doesn't mean that "bad" people have suddenly become "good." It simply means that in today's world a sense of social responsibility pays. No business generally regarded as against the public interest has any great future ahead of it.

A typical example is the change in the tone of liquor advertising. "Pay your bills first," cries a prominent distiller in his newest ads.

Is this firm trying to kill off its own business? Not at all. It is taking a long-range view. "The very existence of legalized liquor depends on the civilized manner in which it is consumed," continues the distiller.

This same long view is being adopted by many other firms. There is a new conception of public good will in the air. That used to mean simply that many people were favorably inclined toward the particular product of the firm.

More than ever before, every institution, public and private, is being called on to meet this ultimate test: "Is it a social asset? Does it help or hinder great numbers of people?"

A Chicago University scientist predicts half of the nation's married women will be working for wages by 1962. Hasn't he heard of our unemployment problem?

Promotion Gives California High Income Rankings

DALLAS, Texas—Comparison of occupational and income characteristics of Texas and California—the nation's No. 1 and 2 states in area and currently running a close race for fifth place in population—discloses some large differences in favor of the coast state that may be traced to its "advertising-mindedness," says a report of the All-South Development Council.

Similarities between the two states other than a real size and population, the report points out, are to be found in their climate, their comparative "youthfulness," their natural agricultural productivity, and their scenic and tourist potentialities.

serve to indicate the progress thus made by the kindred State of California, which since 1921 has been the pioneer and leader in such efforts.

It is significant, the report notes, that Texas is awakening to its own possibilities in two fields by which California has especially profited. This is being reflected by increased activity in merchandising Texas citrus products, and growing sentiment for a state promotion plan, the latter stemming during Centennial year of what "tourist dollars" can mean.

Most notable statistical contrast in the economies of the two states is seen in the National Industrial Conference Board's study of incomes received by individuals in the various states for 1929-1935, which showed California ranking third in the nation in per capita income, topped only by New York state and Connecticut, while Texas was ranked 35th. In per capita retail sales tables California was second, and in percentage of its population making federal income tax returns it was third, while Texas is not mentioned among the leading states in either of these tabulations in Dun & Bradstreet's "resources and debts of the 48 states."

While it might be thought that fabulous movie salaries accounted for the high ratio of income-tax returns, it is pointed out that this table deals only with per centage—not totals—of persons making returns, which makes it a prime factor in showing the relative distribution of above-average incomes.

The two important factors behind California's strong position in these various income indices are: (1) the unusually high money value of its farm crops, which gives that state first rank in the nation in crops value although only 13.4 per cent of its employed persons work in agriculture, and it is not one of the 22 "predominantly agricultural" states; (2) its No. 1 national ranking in "service industries," namely transportation, trade, and professional and public, and domestic services.

The high return on crops is accounted for by the fact that fruits make up 64.9 per cent of the total crop value in California, whereas cotton is the dominant Texas farm crop, with 51.7 per cent. And the large percentages of trade and professional and public service employees in California is attributable to the state's policy of selling itself as a resort and tourist center. With 21.4 per cent of its gainfully employed persons in "trade," and 13.2 per cent in professional and public service—doctors, lawyers, dentists, trade association managers—California leads all states. The Texas per centages in these classifications are, respectively 13.9 and 8.

Although neither Texas nor California are among the 15 "predominantly manufacturing states," nevertheless the latter ranked seventh in the nation in value of manufactured products in 1935, with building, iron and steel, food, chemicals, automobiles, woodworking, and printing and publishing making up the bulk of her production. Of her workers in production industries, 24.7 were engaged in manufacturing, while the Texas figure was 15.6 per cent.

College Room Is a Studio-Laboratory

PENN YAN, N. Y.—Keuka College boasts a classroom which can be transformed from a psychological laboratory into an art studio within a few minutes.

The room is equipped with special lighting which serves for both purposes. Other equipment includes venetian blinds, dark shades for the north windows, easels for exhibition purposes, a large screen and apparatus for psychological experiments.

Whenever a psychology class wishes to use the room, the easels disappear behind the screen and the scientific apparatus is brought out. For an art class the procedure is simply reversed.

South Texas Feels No Repression As Does Rest of U.S.

CORPUS CHRISTI — There may be a business recession in the United States today, but all that Corpus Christi and South Texas know about it is what they see in the papers.

"They're calling Corpus Christi 'the city the depression forgot,'" because the coast city and the South Texas area have been growing at an unprecedented pace in the face of the recessions and business declines that have been plaguing the rest of the country.

The 50 counties in the South and Southwest Texas area which enjoy preferential freight and mileage advantages to Corpus Christi have shown a population gain of 24.6 per cent since 1930, according to statistics compiled for a recent hearing of extension of the Port of Corpus Christi. The figure is based upon state scholastic census figures, using the same ratio of scholastics to population as that shown by the federal census of 1930.

The growth of the South Texas area has been reflected in an almost unbelievable growth of Corpus Christi in recent years. The city's development has been steady ever since the turn of the century, but the past seven years have been the most active in history. It has doubled its population since 1930, when the federal census credited it with 27,789 inhabitants. Today's population figures are conservatively estimated at 55,000.

Opening of the Port of Corpus Christi in 1926 provided the impetus for the city's outstanding growth of the past few years. Ships piled into the harbor at the rate of nearly three a day during all of 1937, when tonnage at the port totaled nearly five and one-half million tons. The tonnage nearly doubled that of 1936, when 2,824,621 tons of cargo were handled at the port.

Oil, which has played an important part in the development of this South Texas metropolis, is the leading commodity feeding ships at the port. Nearly 32,000,000 barrels of oil were handled over the port's three oil docks. Storage space for more than five and one-half million barrels of oil is available for the use of shippers.

Along with the progress of Corpus Christi's port has gone the development of an ever-broadening industrial picture. The city is the home of the South's pioneer alkali manufacturer, which provides basic alkalis for South Texas and other markets at enormous savings because of freight rate savings.

SISTER MARY'S KITCHEN

By Mrs. Gaynor Maddox

YOU don't have to be a ski-jumper to eat a Swiss breakfast. It combines uncooked oats, honey, cream and fresh fruit into something easy to get up to in the morning. At the Bircher-Benner Sanatorium in Zurich, where they go in for a lot of health foods, most of them raw, they serve this breakfast dish in a big way.

Birchermuesli

(One serving) One tablespoon fine rolled oats, 3 tablespoons cold water, juice 1-2 lemons, 1 tablespoon cream, 1 tablespoon honey, 2 raw apples, including skin, core and pips.

Soak rolled oats in cold water for 12 hours. Then stir in the honey (which should be slightly warm to make it mix easily), the cream and lemon juice. Grate the entire apples into this mixture, stirring constantly to prevent the apples turning brown.

That's all there is to Swiss breakfast, or Birchermuesli, as it is properly called. If for lunch you want some more of this food from Zurich, try this adaptation of one of the Bircher-Benner dishes.

For Love of Polly

By RACHEL MACK

CAST OF CHARACTERS
POLLY CHELSEY, heroine; stranded in London when war breaks out.
JERRY WHITFIELD, hero; the Yankee who sees her through.
CABELL BANKS, privateer captain.

Yesterday, recovering somewhat from the shock of losing Jerry, Polly starts for Dover, while at home in Connecticut her relatives face the crisis of her position.

CHAPTER XIII

THE young man whose stage name had been Mazie Miller and who now served behind the bar of the Sheaf of Wheat Tavern, owned by her husband, was having a spell of nerves.

The reason was, she kept thinking of that pair of young lovers she had separated. It was the first time she had ever done a thing like that, deliberately.

So today she faced her own soul and said, "I've got to make it right!" She meant with the girl.

When she reached the Unicorn and Crown Tavern (which she respectfully conceded to be much more respectable and pretentious than the Sheaf of Wheat) she called the landlord aside.

"Mr. Toby," she said, "you've got a young lady staying here. I must talk to it. I don't know her name, but she's the betrothed sweetheart, I take it, of one Jeremiah Whitfield."

The innkeeper scrutinized Mazie more closely. Though she was not wearing the sky-blue dress, he now recognized her. "Why!" he exclaimed accusingly, "you're the lady he went off with that night! What have you done with him?"

"They say he was a deserter from His Majesty's navy," Mazie explained briefly, "and I set a dress gang on him. He didn't go off of his own accord. He was carried off. I'd like to explain that to the girl I saw him with."

"You mean Miss Polly Chelsey? Well, it's too bad you put off your explaining so long. She left for Dover yesterday. She hopes to come to America by way of France. She can cross the Channel. She had no plans when she left here."

"SHE'S an American, you say?" And she's gone? . . . Oh, my! What was her state of mind, Mr. Toby?"

"For several days, Miss, she seemed fairly crushed. Took to her bed and refused food. But all of a sudden, like, she recovered. As if her wife says, she seemed as hard as iron, frowning her head and acting like she hadn't a care for her name."

"Oh, the poor creature!" Mazie exclaimed. She could read Polly Chelsey's behavior very readily. It was prompted, she guessed, by a proud hurt heart that seeks to hide its wounds. She asked anxiously, "Do you know where I could find her in Dover, Mr. Toby?"

"No, Miss. Though she'd doubtless go to a decent tavern. Yes, that's likely what she'd do."

"Well," said Mazie, "I must do what I can. I must write a letter and leave it for you to give the coach driver in the morning. He'll remember her—who wouldn't! He'll know where he put her off with her trunk. Here's four shillings to pay him for his trouble. Tell the coach driver, Mr. Toby."

Mazie paused and fixed the innkeeper with compelling eyes—"I'll tell you, Banks, tomorrow may be too late. I believe we're getting ready to sail. I know the signs. They're bringing on provisions. Sailors are coming on board. Listen, if you don't believe me!"

"I believe you. All right, we're getting ready to sail, and I've got this to say about it—it will be better for you when we do sail. If you get your chance and try to swim for it, you'll be shot. It's that simple."

"I wonder you can be so reconciled to this floating jail!" Jerry exclaimed bitterly.

Cabell Banks shrugged. "I can afford to bide my time. I've got no fiancée who thinks I've deserted her."

IN the long watches of several sleepless nights they had exchanged life histories; ill assorted though they were, these confidences had given them admiration and respect for each other. Jerry knew the rich man's son to be brave, loyal, and shrewd; Cabell had discovered Jerry Whitfield to be brave, loyal, and obstinate. Both had a streak of recklessness, but in Jerry it was far more pronounced; he was in love, and that state begets a special form of madness all its own.

They were confined in the prison hold continuously except for half an hour a day above deck for exercise. It had been so since their interview with Captain Steel. That irascible officer had no sooner recovered from the shock of their insubordination than he had had them returned to prison quarters, with all privileges suspended.

He called them "the seagoing peasant and the rich Boston fool"; and when he thought of the Boston boy's insolent boast that he would outfit a privateer against England and make the Gloucester sailor his first mate, he all but had a stroke of apoplexy.

Yet that order of his for 20 whip lashes on Jeremiah Whitfield's bare back had not yet been consummated. . . . Not yet. . . . In the prison hold Jerry was looking upward toward the open hatch. "Listen!" he said to Cabell Banks. "Something's going on. They climbed the ladder, part way, to catch the sudden shouting in the forecabin. It was Jerry who interpreted it:

"We're going out with the tide!" he said bitterly. "Bound for the North Sea."

"I disagree. Tomorrow would be better, because your head would be better healed. You've got a nasty cut there, near the crown."

"That!" said Jerry disdainfully. "I tell you, Banks, tomorrow may be too late. I believe we're getting ready to sail. I know the signs. They're bringing on provisions. Sailors are coming on board. Listen, if you don't believe me!"

"I believe you. All right, we're getting ready to sail, and I've got this to say about it—it will be better for you when we do sail. If you get your chance and try to swim for it, you'll be shot. It's that simple."

Measles Prevalent Throughout State

AUSTIN, Texas—From reports reaching the Texas State Department of Health it seems as though measles are quite prevalent throughout the State. Dr. Geo. W. Cox, State Health Officer, has the following to say in regard to this disease.

"Many persons still insist that measles are nothing serious and that children should get them early and get it over with. However, measles are a very widespread, highly contagious disease and over one hundred children in Texas die of them each year. Children generally have active disease seven to 14 days after contact with a person ill with measles. Children must be excluded from school for a period of 21 days from onset.

"One never knows at the beginning how serious the attack will be, so a physician should be called when measles is suspected. Most deaths from this disease occur in children under five years of age. If you have a baby or very young child, your first consideration must be to keep him out of houses where measles exist. Prevent him from playing with children who, you think, may have the disease.

"If your child shows signs of measles, running nose, sneezing, eyes red and watery, put him to bed at once. While waiting for the doctor see that the child is kept warm. The room should be well ventilated, but glare and draughts prevented. Give him a light diet of milk, soup, and cereal. Keep him in bed until the doctor permits him to be up. When recovering from measles he is less able to withstand other diseases.

"No Decorations," Says Hoover

There will be no decorating," Herbert Hoover, in the photo above, tells reporters clustering about as he sailed on the liner George Washington for his first visit to Belgium since ending his work as Relief Administrator in 1919. The former President explained that he is opposed to acceptance of foreign awards by American citizens. Mr. Hoover sailed as the guest of the Belgian branch of the Commission for Relief in Belgium Educational Foundation.

The doctor should see the child two or three times in a year following recovery to guard against bad after effects.

BALTIMORE—When some 5000 out- of authorities of the United States, Canada, and Mexico meet here in the third annual North American Wildlife Conference, Feb. 14-17, the conservationists' battle to assure posterity happy hunting grounds and fishing waters will be renewed.

While all have restoration in mind, no two groups agree as to what are the best measures to adopt.

When regulation of wildfowl shooting is discussed, Dr. Ira N. Gabrielson and John H. Baker are on one side of the platform. Dr. Gabrielson, chief of the United States Bureau of Biological Survey, is responsible for the present split season. Baker, representing the National Association of Audubon Societies, is a firm advocate of a stringent closed season.

On the other side of the ring is John Huntington of the More Game Birds Foundation. He argues for a much more liberal shooting regulation.

ONE group of government officials, charged with the protection and propagation of wildfowl along the Atlantic seaboard, contends that the drainage of swamps to effect mosquito control, kills ducks.

Another points out that every marsh and swamp drained safeguards public health and comfort. "Long-term policies and programs executed by a trained and experienced personnel are vitally essential to the success of restoration," says Seth Gordon, executive director of the Pennsylvania game commission.

"Complete automatic game management states should exist," says C. Davis of the vision of fish and game. "Administration in a board of managers free of political, private, and with no regulations, so range program of and protection can without interruption."

"A FUNDAMENTAL of conservation of the soil and the rain upon it," says Swift, acting commissioner of Wisconsin. "A great deal of the past has been to start at the bottom instead of the top and work phases of conservation administered under that the work may be and efficiently carried."

"Public interest further stimulated by people a part in the policies to be carried out. It must be supplemented through knowledge."

The finest outdoor nation are to attend including Secretary Henry A. Wallace, Key Pittman of Nevada, representative William Virginia, the latter Central Statistical Bureau of the Federal life bill.

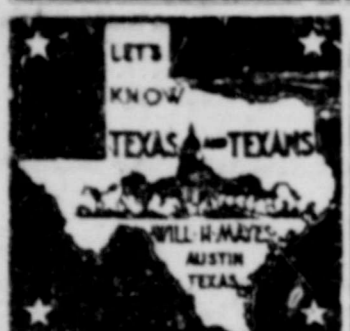

Despite the diversion, it is expected that the Pennsylvania game commission.

'GEE—BUSINESS IS TOUGH!

In this column answers will be given to inquiries as to Texas history and other matters pertaining to the State and its people. Address inquiries to Will H. Mazie, Austin, Texas.

Q. What were the formal steps leading to completion of the annexation of Texas?

A. President Jones called a convention to meet at Austin, July 4, while the Texas Congress was in session. This convention prepared a state constitution, which was submitted by Congress to a popular vote, and was ratified Oct. 13. The United States Congress accepted this constitution Dec. 29, 1845, which the United States has recognized as the true date of annexation. The Texas flag was lowered, however, and the United States flag unfurled at Austin on Feb. 16, 1846.

Q. In what capacity did Ben McCullough distinguish himself during the United States-Mexican war?

A. He was captain of a spy company that rendered most efficient service to the United States.

Q. Who were the officers of the constitutional convention of July 4, 1845?

A. Thomas J. Rusk, president; J. H. Raymond, secretary; Wm. Cockburn, doorkeeper; W. Haynie, chaplain; F. G. Fisher, interpreter.

Q. What disposition did Santa Anna make of those killed at the Alamo?

A. Four of his officers were buried with religious ceremonies at San Fernando church. Other Mexicans slain were dumped into the river. Two pyres were built with alternate layers of wood and bodies of Texans; these were soaked with oil and grease and torches were applied, the consuming fires burning for two days. It is said that the remaining bones were gathered by the Americans after the battle of San Jacinto and buried, but the burial place has never been found.

Q. How did Santa Anna celebrate the Mexican victory at the Alamo?

A. For several days the survivors held revel at his headquarters at the Yturri House on the main plaza at Asecaja street, the presidential band playing national airs in front of his headquarters.

Q. What was the Arista proclamation of 1842?

A. In dispatching the Vasquez forces to San Antonio on Jan. 9, 1842, General Arista, who was in proclamation demanding that Texans return to their former allegiance to Mexico and declaring that the sword of justice would be used against the obstinate. A number of Mexicans returned to Mexico with Vasquez, but loyal Texans ignored the proclamation.

Receiving Times at New Home in Austin:
Mrs. Lula Riddell, who has made Ranger her home for a number of years, is now at home in Austin. Her work there associates her as one of the heads of the Old Age Pension department. Mrs. Riddell is a sister of Mrs. John M. Gholsen.

Mrs. Arterburn Hostess to Party:
Mrs. D. C. Arterburn entertained members of the Royal Neighbor chapter, with a cleverly planned Valentine party at her home Walnut street, Monday evening. The house aglow with colors symbolic of the occasion afforded a gay setting for the variety of games and contests. Refreshments were served: Mrs. R. E. Johnson, Mrs. Dial, Mrs. Leonard Arterburn, Jean Todd, Mrs. Julia Hanson, Laura Todd, Mrs. Josephine Ford, Selma Rae Henry, Walter, Junior and D. C. Arterburn, Frances Johnson, John D. Ford, Mary Jane and Jimmie Beth Todd, Robert Johnson, Inez Harrell, Ernest Arterburn and Mrs. Alice Landrum of Oklahoma, the sister of the hostess, Mrs. Arterburn.

Founders Day Tea At Cooper School:
The forty-first anniversary of the National Congress of Parents and Teachers association was honored on Tuesday afternoon when the members of Cooper Parent-Teacher association celebrated with a tea held in the school auditorium.

The affair was climaxed with the candle lighting ceremony performed by Mrs. C. E. Maddocks, a past State president, who gave a very interesting talk on the motives which inspired the Founders of the National Congress, and the goal of the present day associations. The beautiful cake, decorated in the blue and gold colors of the organization was cut and served with tea to a large attendance. A business meeting preceded the social affair at which time it was voted that the Cooper P-T-A would sponsor a plan to have each child in the school given a free tuberculin test. This free test to be given in the school by local doctors who are to donate their services.

Speech Pupil Gives Initial Program to Host of Listeners:
With the Recreation building filled to capacity last night provided there are a host of people in Ranger who are interested in the study and talent of tomorrow's artist. This week's mail brought invitations to many inviting their attention and presence. The occasion the presentation of Murl Lee Stiles, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. A. L. Stiles, and speech pupil of Mrs. L. E. White, in a recital February 15th, at 8 o'clock.

The pupil who is eleven years of age, indicates there is much success in store for her, judging from the wonderful performance given last night. The stage was bedecked in a profusion of peach blossoms. At intervals huge bouquets make their bow with other vases of the blossoms used at advantage places. The effect made perfect a well arranged drawing room where in the center stood a mike-suggesting a broadening station. It was from this improvised station the program was offered. The program was opened with the number announced "How do you greet the day" by Osborn. Miss Stiles, followed with "Heaven is not Reached by a Single Bound" J. G. Holland, "Out Where the West Begins" Chatman and Those Dirty Little Fingers" Frances E. Crane. So beautifully did she render her performance already her listeners were the essence of attention. Costumed in becoming colors made all the more lovely her program, her initial one since she is a first year speech student.

No matter how many medicines you have tried for your cough, chest cold, or bronchial irritation, you can get relief now with Creomulsion. Serious trouble may be brewing and you cannot afford to take a chance with any remedy less potent than Creomulsion, which goes right to the seat of the trouble and aids nature to soothe and heal the inflamed mucous membranes and to loosen and expel the germ-laden phlegm. I AM AN ADVERTISING MAN

For over thirty years I have been writing advertisements for national advertisers — shoes, soap, cereals, automobiles, radios, tobacco, blankets, tooth powder.

To me it is the most fascinating work in the world — learning about the merits of merchandise and then telling people about them — bringing greater comfort, and enjoyment, into people's lives — introducing people to new pleasures, helping them to get the most for their money.

Besides being fascinating, it is satisfying! My intimate experience with advertisers has shown me that, except for rare exceptions, the manufacturers and merchants of this nation lean over backwards to be sincere and honest.

The law of advertising is simple once one understands its working — the more people know about the merit of a product, the more people buy it. The greater the volume of sales, the less the cost to manufacture. Savings in making mean either lower prices to the consumer or greater value put back into the merchandise.

As an advertising man I can sincerely affirm that it pays to read the advertisements in the newspapers — for news of new things, for bargains and savings.

There are thousands of other men — and women — devoting their lives to advertising writing, who will tell you the same thing. THEY KNOW!

LIKES OKLAHOMA CITY

A letter received here from Roy A. Jameson, former city secretary of Ranger, states that he likes Oklahoma City, where he is making his home, very much. Jameson's health has improved greatly since he resigned as city secretary nearly a year ago.

WAKE UP YOUR LIVER BILE—

Without Calomel—And You'll Jump Out of Bed in the Morning!—
The liver should pour out two pounds of liquid bile into your bowels daily. If this bile is not flowing freely, your food doesn't digest. It just decays in the bowels. Gas bloats up your stomach. You get constipated. Your whole system is poisoned and you feel sour, weak and the world looks pink. A more bowel movement doesn't get at the cause. It takes those good, old Carter's Little Liver Pills to get those two pounds of bile flowing freely and make you feel "up and up." Harmless, gentle, yet amazing in making life flow freely. Ask for Carter's Little Liver Pills by name. 25c. Stubbornly refuse anything else.
