"The Cow-Puncher" by Hal Reid and under the direction of W. F. Mann opens an engagement at the Cooke Opera House on Monday, Jan. 13. If good newspaper notices backed by large box office receipts, are any indication of successful plays, then "The Cow-Puncher" comes in the category of those manager hunted offerings. It is the simple pure Americanism of this play of western life, that not only endears it to its audience, but places it in a class of unique originality. Theatre goers cannot help being enthusiastic and intensely interested in its excellent presentation. The story is laid in Arizona, the company is more than capable and the scenic equipment is the work of Harry Buhler, the artist and Herman Peltz the well known builder of theatrical scenery. As a special feature two well known vaudeville acts are introduced.

L. M. Tyler, living west of town, has a younger brother from Louisiana visiting him. They were in town the first of the week.

TO OUR SUBSCRIBERS.

In another column of this issue we publish an extract from the latest postal law or ruling, that went into effect Jany. 1st, relating to delinquent subscribers. Any person more than one year in arrears is practically barred from longer receiving the paper, because the publisher must place a one cent stamp on each paper, and this we, at least are unable, to do. While the law went into effect Jany. 1st, the Postmaster General in a circular to Postmasters instructs them not to enforce the law until April 1st, where publishers show a disposition to comply with the new regulations.

This is to notify every subscriber to THE STAR who is one or more years in arrears that if they do not pay up before April 1st, next that the paper will not be mailed to them after that date. A number of our subscribers are in arrears, some one, two and three years; some more, but the fiat has gone forth from Washington that if subscribers do not pay the government won't carry their papers unless paid for at a rate the publishers cannot afford. We cannot afford to violate the law and we are not going to do it, and no one should expect us to do this merely to continue carrying accounts. To violate the law by a publisher means disaster to him. Where the paper is sent free in the county it would cost us six dollas a week in postage, besides the enormous amount of time required to stamp 950 papers weekly counting papers in and out of county. The extra cost to us would be 950 cents weekly, so any one can see that we will be compelled to comply with the law.

We expect within the next week or ten days to mail a statement to every subscriber who is in arrears on subscription, and we must insist on prompt payment. We need the money and some have let their accounts run so far behind that we cannot afford to carry them any longer even if the government had not put a stop to it.

Mr. M. J. Dugan, who has been foreman of the T. & P. Round House for about twelve years, has resigned, and Daniel O'Keefe, of Toyah, has taken his place. Mr. and Mrs. Dugan have made many friends in Baird, and the editor of THE STAR is indebted to Mr. Dugan especially for many favors shown us by permitting mechanics in the shops to make small repairs on our engine and boiler that we could not have had made this side of Ft. Worth. Of course at no time was such work allowed to interfere with Company work, but a less kindly disposed and accomodating gentleman that Mr. Dugan has always shown himself to be, could have refused to allow this on the plea of rigid rules. Mr. Dugan will leave in a few days for Cincinnati, Ohio, to visit relatives at his old home which he has not seen for 27 years. What his plans are for the future we did not learn. THE STAR and the people of Baird generally regret to see Mr. and Mrs. Dugan leave Baird where they have lived so long and have so many warm friends.

Will Vaughn, of Fort Worth, is in town and it is rumored that Will may return to Baird.

"THE COW-PUNCHER"

"The Cow-Puncher" a western drama by Hal Reid, under the direction of W. E. Mann opens an engagement at the Cooke Opera House on Monday, Jan. 13. The scene takes place in Arizona and tells a charming story of much power and deep heart interest for whose interpretation an excellent company has been engaged. "The Cow-Puncher" Tom Lawton, represents the fidelity, truth and integrity of the native Arizonian, who defends the girl he loves against the treachery and perfidy of several bad men headed by a renegade Mexican, Carlos Mendoza. John Graham the owner of a ranch, dies and leaves his sister Geraldine, who is attending college in the east, his sole heir. Carlos Mendoza and Denver Dan, two cattle rustlers plan to run off her cattle and steal the girl, but Lawton manages to frustrate their plans and finally after a pretty love scenes wins the girl and fortune. Lutchia Cordova, Carlos' cast of Sweetheart is a strong picture of a girl whom love has blinded into villainy. Little Ann Slattery, a bowery waif adopted by Tom Lawton is a loveable character within whose breast the pure sands of golden womanhood are seen clear and bright. Tacoma Tim a native of Ireland, and Spokane Ike, are two characters who see the bright side of life, always ready with a joke, but whose hearts are true and true when danger threatens. Several pleasing specialties are introduced, and the scenic and electrical effects are worthy of much commendation.

B. L. Russell, Cashier of the First National Bank, is making considerable addition to his residence. He is making it a two story building.

THE PRINCESS ELOPES

ness, with a sidelong glance at the duke who stood with folded arms, watching her gravely.

The duke threw his hands above his head as if to call heaven to witness that he was a very much wronged man.

"Arnheim," he said to the young colonel, "go at once for a priest."

"A priest!" echoed the prince.

"Yes; the girl shall marry you to-night," declared his serene highness.

"Not if I live to be a thousand!" Doppelkinn struck the table with his fist.

The girl smiled at Max.

"What?" cried the duke, all the coldness gone from his tones. "You refuse?" He was thunderstruck.

"Refuse? Of course I refuse!" And the prince thumped the table again.

"What do you think I am in my old age—an ass? If you have any fillies to break, use your own pastures. I'm a vintner." He banged the table yet again.

"Why, I wouldn't marry the Princess Hildegarde if she was the last woman on earth!"

"Thank you!" said the princess sweetly.

"You're welcome," said the prince.

"Silence!" bellowed the duke. "Doppelkinn, take care; this is an affront, not one to be lightly ignored. It is international news that you are to wed my niece."

"Tomorrow it will be international news that I'm not!" The emphasis this time threatened to crack the table-leaf.

"I'm not going to risk my liberty with a girl who has no more sense of dignity than she has."

"It is very kind of you," murmured the princess.

"She'd make a fine wife," went on the prince, ignoring the interruption.

"No, a thousand times no! Take her away—life's too short; take her away! Let her marry the fellow; he's young and may get over it."

The duke was furious. He looked around for something to strike, and nothing but the table being convenient, he smashed a leaf and sent a vase clattering to the floor. He was stronger than the prince, otherwise there wouldn't have been a table to thwack.

"That's right; go on! Break all the furniture, if it will do you any good; but mark me, you'll foot the bill." The prince began to dance around. "I will not marry the girl. That's as final as I can make it. The sooner you calm down the better."

How the girl's eyes sparkled! She was free. The odious alliance would not take place.

"Who is that?"

Everybody turned and looked at Max. His arm was leveled in the direction of a fine portrait in oil which hung suspended over the fireplace. Max was very pale.

"What's that to you?" snarled the prince. He was what we Yankees call "hopping mad." The vase was worth a hundred crowns, and he never could find a leaf to replace the one just broken.

"I believe I have a right to know who that woman is up there." Max spoke quietly. As a matter of fact he was too weak to speak otherwise.

"A right to know? What do you mean?" demanded the prince fiercely.

"It is my wife."

With trembling fingers Max produced his locket.

"Will you look at this?" he asked in a voice that was a bit shaky.

The prince stepped forward and jerked the locket from Max's hand. But the moment he saw the contents his jaw fell and he rocked on his heels unsteadily and staggered back toward the duke for support.

"What's the matter, prince?" asked the duke anxiously. After all Doppelkinn was an old crony, and maybe he had been harsh with him.

"Where did you get that?" asked the prince hoarsely.

"I have always worn it," answered Max. "The chain that went with it originally will no longer fit my neck."

"Arnheim! . . . Duke! . . . come and look at this!"—foebly.

"Good heaven!" cried the duke.

"It is the princess!" said Arnheim in awed tones.

"Where did you get it?" demanded the prince again.

"I was found with it around my neck."

"Duke, what do you think?" asked the agitated prince.

"What do I think?"

"Yes. This was around my son's neck the day he was lost. If this should be! . . . If it were possible!"

at the portrait on the wall and then at Max doubt grew in his eyes. They were somewhat alike. He plucked nervously at his beard.

"Prince," said Max, "before heaven I believe that I may be . . . your son!"

"My son!"

By this time they were all tremendously excited and agitated and white; all save the princess, who was gazing at Max with sudden gladness in her eyes, while over her cheeks there stole the phantom of a rose. If it were true!

"Let me tell you my story," said Max. (It is not necessary for me to repeat it.)

The prince turned helplessly toward the duke, but the duke was equally dazed.

"But we can't accept a story as proof," the duke said. "It isn't as if he were one of the people. It wouldn't matter then. But it's a future prince. Let us go slow."

"Yes, let us go slow," repeated the prince, brushing his damp forehead.

"Wait a moment!" said Col. Arnheim, stepping forward. "Only one thing will prove his identity to me; not all the papers in the world can do it."

"What do you know?" cried the prince, bewildered.

"Something I have not dared tell till this moment,"—miserably.

"Curse it, you are keeping us waiting!" The duke kicked about the shattered bits of porcelain.

"I used to play with the—the young prince," began Arnheim. "Your highness will recollect that I did." Arnheim went over to Max. "Take off your coat." Max did so, wondering.

"Roll up your sleeve." Again Max obeyed, and his wonder grew. "See!" cried the colonel in a high, unnatural voice, due to his unusual excitement.

"Oh, there can be no doubt! It is your son!"

The duke and the prince bumped against each other in their mad rush to inspect Max's arm. Arnheim's finger rested upon the peculiar scar I have mentioned.

"Lord help us, it's your wine-case brand!" gasped the duke.

"My wine case!" The prince was almost on the verge of tears.

The girl sat perfectly quiet.

"Explain, explain!" said Max.

"Yes, yes! How did this come?—put there?" spluttered the prince.

"Your highness, we—your son—we were playing in the wine cellars that day," stammered the unhappy Arnheim.

"I saw . . . the hot iron . . . I was a boy of no more than five . . . I branded the prince on the arm. He cried so that I was frightened and ran and hid. When I went to look for him he was gone. Oh, I know; it is your son."

"I'll take your word for it, colonel!" cried the prince. "I said from the first that he wasn't bad-looking. Didn't I, princess?" He then turned embarrassed toward Max and timidly held out his hand. That was as near sentiment as ever the father and the son came, but it was genuine. "Ho, steward! Hans, you rascal, where are you?"

The steward presently entered, shading his eyes.

"Your highness called?"

"That I did. That's Max come home!"

"Little Max?"

"Little Max. Now, candles, and march yourself to the packing cellars. Off with you!" The happy old man slapped the duke on the shoulder.

"I've an idea, Josef."

"What is it?" asked the duke, also very well pleased with events.

"I'll tell you all about it when we get into the cellar." But the nod toward the duke and the nod toward Max was a liberal education.

"I am pardoned?" said Arnheim.

"Pardoned? My boy, if I had an army I would make you a general!" roared the prince. "Come along, Josef. And you, Arnheim! You troopers, out of here, every one of you, and leave these two young persons alone!"

Ah, how everything was changed! thought Max, as he let down his sleeve and buttoned his cuff. A prince! He was a prince; he, Max Scharfenstein, cowboy, quarterback, trooper, doctor, was a prince! If it was a dream, he was going to box the ears of the bell-boy who woke him up. But it wasn't a dream; he knew it wasn't. The girl yonder didn't dissolve into mist and disappear; she was living, living. He had now the right to love any one he chose, and he did choose to love this beautiful girl, who, with lowered eyes, was nervously plucking the ends of the pillow tassel. It was all changed for her, too.

"Princess!" he said a bit brokenly.

"I am called Gretchen by my friends,"—with a boldness that only half disguised her real timidity. What would he do, this big, handsome fellow, who had turned out to be a prince, fairy-tale wise?

"Gretchen? I like that better than Hildegarde; it is less formal. Well, then, Gretchen, I can't explain it, but this new order of things has given me a tremendous backbone." He crossed the room to her side. "You will not wed my—my father?"

"Never in all this world!"—slipping around the table, her eyes dim like the bloom on the grape. She ought not to be afraid of him, but she was.

"But I—"

"You have known me only four days," she whispered faintly. "You can not know my mind."

"Oh, when one is a prince,"—laughing—"it takes no time at all. I love you. I knew it was going to be when you looked around in old Bauer's smithy."

"Did I look around?"—innocently.

"You certainly did, for I looked around and saw you."

"But they say that I am wild like a young horse." (Love is always finding some argument which he wishes to have knocked under.)

"Not to me,"—ardently. "You may ride a bicycle every day, if you wish."

"I'd rather have an automobile,"—drolly.

"An airship, if money will buy it!"

"They say—my uncle says—that I am not capable of loving anything."

"What do I care what they say? Will you be my wife?"

"Give me a week to think it over."

"No."

(She liked that!)

"A day, then?"

"Not an hour!"

(She liked this still better!)

"Oh!"

"Not half an hour!"

"This is almost as bad as the duke; you are forcing me."

"If you do not answer yes or no at once, I'll go back to Barscheit and trounce that fellow who struck me. I can do it now."

"Well—but only four days—"

"Hours! Think of riding together forever!"—joyously taking a step nearer.

"I dare not think of it. It is all so like a dream. . . . Oh! bursting into tears (what unaccountable beings women are!)—"If you do not love me!"

"Don't I, though!"

Then he started around the table in pursuit of her, in all directions, while, after the manner of her kind, she balked him, rosiely, star-eyed. They laughed; and when two young people laugh it is a sign that all goes well with the world. He never would tell just how long it took him to catch her, nor would he tell me what he did when he caught her. Neither would I, had I been in his place!

"Here's!" said the prince.

"It's a great world," added the duke.

"For surprises," supplemented the prince. "Ho, Hans! A fresh candle!"

And the story goes that his serene highness of Barscheit and his highness of Doppelkinn were found peacefully asleep in the cellars, long after the sun had rolled over the blue Carpathians.

THE END.

THAW'S SISTER SUES.
Countess of Yarmouth Wishes Release From Marriage.
London, Jan. 2.—Countess of Yarmouth, who was Miss Alice Thaw of Pittsburg, Pa., has begun proceedings for the nullification of her marriage

THE COUNTESS OF YARMOUTH, with the Earl of Yarmouth. Countess of Yarmouth is a sister of Harry K.
Thaw.

AGAIN ARRAIGNED.
For the Second Time Thaw Is on Trial For His Life.

New York, Jan. 6.—The second trial of Harry K. Thaw for the murder of Stanford White was called at 11:27 o'clock Monday. As soon as defendant was called to the bar his chief counsel, Martin W. Littleton, announced the former plea—not guilty—entered by his client, would be amended to read:
"That defendant was insane at the time the deed was committed." Thaw was seated at the counsel's table with Mr. Littleton, A. Russell Peabody and Daniel O'Reilly. District Attorney
Jerome and assistant Attorney Garvan represent people. Mrs. Evelyn Thaw, attired in the blue school girl dress, which became familiar during the first trial, was in the courtroom when proceedings began. She was accompanied by Mrs. Carnegie and Josiah Thaw.
Justice Dowling announced until further notice, there would be three sessions each day. He also announced the jury would be locked up throughout the trial.

BOMB IN BANK.
People in Institution Make Hurried Exit.

Kansas City, Jan. 4.—By the ex-losion of a bomb in the basement of the three-story marble building on the northeast corner of Tenth and Baltimore streets, occupied by the First National bank and offices, some damage was caused and resulted in quite a panic among many score of customers.
Half dozen persons were injured, but it is believed none will die.
The First National bank building is one of the most beautiful structures in the city. It was only finished last year, and cost close to $1,000,000. The main floor is occupied by the bank, which is the largest financial institution in Kansas City. The upper stories are occupied principally by real estate and law firms.
Investigation developed the fact that a bomb had been placed in the toilet room in northwest corner of the basement, twenty feet from the main vault. The toilet room is by a three-inch plaster partition. This partition is supported by a steel post.
The bomb struck this post with such force that it bent it a foot out of position, wrecked the partition and plumbing and sent a cloud of dust up a wide stairway leading to the banking rooms. Half a dozen basement windows with steel rods protecting them were blown out into Baltimore avenue and across the street. The building was shaken as if by an earthquake, and its force may be appreciated from the fact that it was felt in all parts of the city.

Twice Declared Dead.
Gallion, O., Jan. 7.—After being twice

TAXES ON SIGN BOARDS
All Public Notices in Rio de Janeiro
Must Have Revenue Stamps
Attached.

Every sign in Rio de Janeiro is taxed. A cafe having a special "sorvete," or ice, to serve, makes a placard and hangs it to the door-post, or to one of the palm trees in tubs which commonly decorate such establishments. The notice thus posted must have a revenue stamp attached. Permanent signs are taxed on a permanent basis, temporary signs on the stamp basis. A sign "House For Rent," bears a revenue stamp. Under such circumstances the tax on sign boards or billboards is the expected thing, but naturally there is much less general use of such forms of advertising.
As in the cities of the United States,
a vacant corner on a frequented street is very likely to have some sort of billboard arrangement, and the temporary inclosures about buildings in course of construction are generally covered with more or less prominent signs, but these signs, being taxed, are regulated both in size and in other respects.

THE UNPOPULAR PUMP.

"That famous temperance reformer, the late Francis Murphy," said a Pittsburg man, had many an odd adventure in the course of his very useful life.
"He once told me of a case where a drinking man, with a neat joke, got for the moment a little the better of him in an argument.
"The man was a club man, a bon vivant, famous for his wine cellar, and Mr. Murphy read him a strong lecture on the drink evil.
"But the bon vivant only smiled,
shook his head and said:
"Well, Mr. Murphy, I have seen many a pleasant party around a table, but I have never seen one
'round a pump."

SUCCESS.

I suppose it is necessary that business should be transacted; though the amount of business that does not contribute to anybody's comfort or improvement suggests the query whether it is not overdone. I know that unfremitting attention to business is the price of success, but I don't know what success is. There is a man, who we all know, who built a house that cost a quarter of a million dollars, and furnished it for another like sum, who does not know anything more about architecture, or painting, or books, or history, than he cares for the rights of those who have not so much money as he has.
—Charles Dudley Warner.

TO BE DECIDED LATER.

Agent—Can I see the master of the house, please?
Mrs. Scrapup—You can, young man, when me and my husband have settled that question.

ON THE WRONG STREET.

"Colonel, in your opinion, what is the cause of the financial depression?"
"I know exactly what caused it, suh, I had too much confidence in the straight flush I held last night, and—"
"You misunderstand, colonel. I am referring to the country at large."
"Well, suh, there is no financial depression in the country at large.
At present, suh, everybody except myself is rolling in wealth."

The heathen Chinese have a law that has effectually stopped bank failures in China consequently depositors ought to feel no uneasiness about their money the banks hold, and there ought not to be any panics in China. The rule is to cut off the heads of every bank official connected with a bank that fails. It is claimed that the law has had such a wholesome effect upon the bank officials that not a bank failure has occurred in China for five hundred years. If this is true, banking business in China must not be very profitable, but possibly the people as a whole are profited. How would it do to adopt this plan as a government guarantee in this country? We doubt if many people would care to hold official position in a bank if such a law was enforced in this country.

The people of the rural districts should post themselves upon the provisions of the proposed amendment to the constitution to be submitted next November, and see that it gets a good round majority. Briefly this amendment looks to giving country school districts the same privileges in taxing themselves for the support of the public free schools that towns and cities now enjoy. It is proposed that all districts be granted the privilege of assessing 50 cents on the $100 or less by a majority vote, whereas now it is only in towns and cities that are incorporated that this can be done, and it is proposed to equalize the privileges. To us it is apparent that no man can find a word against this privileges being extended to all districts, and it is hoped that the amendment will carry by an overwhelming majority.—Abilene Reporter.

The community that takes a pride in its schools is the community that attracts the most attention and offers the greatest inducements to strangers to locate in that section. With the increase in property valuation and consequent reduction in the rates of taxation, no community in Texas should hesitate to favor the expenditure of all the money necessary to maintain the best schools obtainable.

J. R. (Dick) Price announces this week as a candidate for reelection to the office of Public Weigher of the Baird District. Dick has held the office one term and has endeavored to discharge the duties of the office faithfully as he understood them.

W. R. Ely, for two terms County Attorney, announces this week as a candidate for County Judge. The office of County Attorney is very difficult to fill satisfactorily to the public. If a man does his duty he makes enemies; if he don't do his duty it is the same way. Mr. Ely says he has endeavored to discharge his duties as he understood the law, and if elected will do the same as County Judge.

R. L. (Lee) Alexander announces this week as a candidate for County Attorney. Lee Alexander is a graduate of the Cumberland University, Lebanon, Tennessee, studied law and was admitted to the bar, and has practiced his profession three years. He is a Callahan County boy, and has lived here for years. The only office he ever held was Justice of the Peace at Baird, which office he filled to the satisfaction of the public.

FOR STATE SENATOR.

BAIRD, TEXAS, JAN. 4TH 1908.

MR. FRANK RUSSELL,

SIR:—Having that faith in your integrity, and your honor, and thinking that the time is now at hand when the thong should be applied to the grafters in the temple, and that the taxpayer should have some protection from the merciless greed of the Taxeater, and that we should return to the simple government of our fathers "Economically administered" and that we may have a government "Of the people, for the people, and by the people" we ask that we may be permitted to submit your name in the coming primary as a candidate for the position of State Senator in this the 28th District, believing as we do, that if elected, being of the people, you will serve the people, and stand by them faithfully to the end.

ENTERTAINED.

The Wednesday Club entertained their husbands and a few friends with a New Year's Eve party at the hospitable home of Mr. and Mrs. T. E. Powell.

Nine tables were laid for the forty-two contest in which Miss Maude Austin was successful in winning the ladies favor. Mr. H. O. Powell was awarded the gentleman's favor. Dainty cards scored games for thirty-six guests. The home was made beautiful with appropriate decorations. A two course luncheon was served.

The guests present were: Mesdames T. E. Powell, Bell, Seale, Sargent Harmon, Schattz, Gray, Austin, Hall, H. O. Powell, Frazer, Smith, Miller, Hilsweck, Misses Maude Austin, Ada Cooke, Edith Collier, Mabel Miller, Margaret Seale. Messrs Settle, Harmon, Smith, Bell, Uzzell, Davis, Schattz, Hall, Gray, Sargent, H. O. Powell, Frazer, Austin Gray Powell, T. E. Powell.

FOR THE SENATE.

In this issue is published a list of persons soliciting Hon. Frank Russell of this county to become a candidate for the State Senate. THE STAR hopes Mr. Russell can see his way clear to make the race for several reasons. First, Mr. Russell is not a politician and would serve the people without any regard to the future effect upon his political career. Second, he is a farmer, and representative man of the people, who have so few real representatives in the legislature. As to ability, none who know him question that. He is a Democrat of the old school, a man who glories in the Grand Old South, and has never been spoiled by the so called New South faddist. By this don't understand that he is wedded to the past, because he believes in the moving, living, active present.

SEARCH AND SEIZURE ACT

Injunction Feature of Same Has Been Assailed By

BROWNWOOD SALOON MAN

Ross Alderson Was Convicted on the Charge of Selling Intoxicants in Club and Fined and Jailed, Then Seeking Habeas Corpus Writ

Austin, Jan. 4.—Application for writ of habeas corpus was filed in the supreme court by Ross Alderson, a saloon man of Brownwood, who was imprisoned by the district judge there for violating writ of injunction prohibiting sale of intoxicating liquors in a club at Brownwood, which city is local option. The application filed by J. H. Baker of Brownwood, attorney for Alderson, and the constitutionality of the injunction feature of search and seizure act is assailed. Alderson was fined $100 and given three days in jail for selling liquor at club after the court had under the new law enjoined the sale of liquor in that place. The case is creating great interest.

BRYAN ON BALCONY.

At Nacogdoches Makes First Political Utterances.

Nacogdoches, Tex., Jan. 6.—Before 3,000 persons Hon. W. J. Bryan Friday made his first political speech during his present tour of Texas.

Mr. Bryan came to this city upon invitation of the Cum Conclilio club, an organization composed exclusively of ladies, to deliver a lecture, but when he was informed that the hall where the lecture was to be delivered was inadequate to accommodate those who desired to hear him he consented to deliver a short public address. He spoke from the balcony of the Redlands hotel, and the street was crowded with people.

The speech was only of a few minutes' duration, but in it Mr. Bryan practically announced his candidacy for the Democratic nomination for the presidency. At 4 o'clock he spoke to the school children in the high school auditorium, and at 4:30 he delivered his speech at the hotel.

Before beginning his speech Mr. Bryan expressed some fear that the gallery might fall because of the weight of the people assembled on it, remarking that he had had seven platforms fall with him, and which several people were injured for life and some killed. "If," he said, "this gallery were like the Democratic platform you could not get too many on it."

Mr. Bryan said the Republicans have been in power eleven years, and that the party is less popular now than when it went in. There is only one among the leaders of that party who can lay claim to respectable popularity, he said, and his popularity extends only so far beyond his party as he has borrowed from the Democrats. The Democratic party is united, while the Republicans are hopelessly divided.

He said that in Indiana Senator Beveridge is a reformer and Vice President Fairbanks a stand-patter. "Beveridge," he said, "will go about ringing a bell and crying, 'Wake up! Wake up!' and Fairbanks comes along with a bottle of chloroform and says 'Sleep on! Sleep on! I am for reform.' When President Roosevelt first announced his advocacy of railroad regulation I was among the first to call at the white house and bid him God-speed."

In conclusion Mr. Bryan said: "I have spoken long enough to satisfy your curiosity; I could not speak long enough to wear out your Democracy, and those of you who may never have an opportunity to hear a real live president of the United States speak, you can at least say now that you have heard one speak who, on two different occasions, cherished the delusion that he was going to be a real live president, and he feels that disease coming on again."

NEGRO NEARLY SHOT.

Mother of Ruth Johnson Conceals Pistol in a Paper Bag.

Waco, Jan. 6.—Prompt action on the part of Constable Guy McNamara prevented Mrs. Forrest Johnson, mother of Ruth Johnson, who was alleged assaulted by a negro, Joe Williams, from shooting Williams in the courtroom. While the examining trial was in progress Mrs. Johnson suddenly took a pistol from a paper bag, supposed to contain bananas, and cocking it started to shoot Williams. The officers grabbed her and after a scuffle took the weapon away from her. Williams' bond was fixed at $5,000. There was great excitement over the attempted act of Mrs. Johnson.

RECEIVER IS DECIDED ON.

Judge Calhoun Stated One Is to Be Appointed.

Austin, Jan. 6.—District Judge Calhoun announced that he would appoint a receiver to take charge of the physical property in the state of the Standard Oil Company of Indiana, New Jersey and New York, the National Transit company and Union Tank Line company. This is the result of anti-trust suits instituted by the attorney general against these several companies and also against the Security Oil company of Beaumont and the Navarro Refining company of Corsicana, and in accordance with the statute passed by the last legislature authorizing the court in litigation of this character to appoint a receiver to take charge of property pending final determination of the suits.

The various defendants were represented by Coke, Miller & Coke of Dallas, representing the Standard Oil company interests; Judges McKle and Neblett of Corsicana, representing the Navarro Refining company; Greer, Minor and Miller of Beaumont, and Judge James H. Robertson of Austin, representing The Security Oil company. The state was represented by Attorney General Davidson, T. W. Gregory, G. W. Allen and Mr. Lightfoot.

Mr. Coke of Dallas, representing the Standard, presented an affidavit stating that it was in the nature of amicus curi that George Dryden, upon whom service was had for the Standard Oil companies, was in fact not an agent for these companies, that he was an oil inspector at Sabine Pass and Port Arthur and his duties required him to inspect all oil passing through those ports. Mr. Lightfoot suggested that the question before the court was application for receiver and matter of service was not germane at this time.

Mr. Greer said that the Security had filed a plea of misjoinder; that it did not wish to be tried together with other defendants as it wanted a separate trial; that this company has also suffered heavy loss already. The court said that it would be necessary for the state to show that notice was given to defendant.

Mr. Allen took witness stand and after being sworn testified that Martin Carey, general attorney for Standard, was in Austin a few days after petition had been filed in these cases, that he had several conferences with state attorneys about these suits and that he knew that receiver matter would come up today; that Coke, Miller and Coke, attorneys of Dallas, retained by the Standard to represent it, had more than thirty days ago notice that this receivership matter would come up today, that it was discussed with Mr. Coke who is present in the courtroom. He stated that Mr. Dryden was served for reason that he has charge of clearance of all boats at Port Arthur and Sabine Pass for Standard Oil company and that when boats come into port they report to Mr. Dryden. Service was had on Brown & Proctor at Corsicana recently, but processes were issued at the time that petition was filed; that attachments had been issued by the clerk for Standard oil boats coming to Port Arthur and that he had Mr. Lightfoot take attachments to sheriff there to seize boats of Standard Oil company at Sabine Pass; that Oil company heard of it and would not permit boats to come within three mile limit, and while there we learned that Mr. Dryden was agent for the Standard Oil company.

"During one of our conferences with attorneys Coke and Carey it developed forty-nine cars belonging to Union Tank Line company were in possession of Texas railroads and were being held."

At this point the state asked that a receiver be appointed for above named concerns because most of their property is movable and personal property and that they are trying to evade service.

STATE WAS SUSTAINED.

Considerable West Texas Land Involved in Case.

SULLIVAN CLAIM IS VOID.

Texas Did Not Question the Grant of Fifty-Five Thousand Acres in Hidalgo County, but Contended Land Was Not Properly Located.

Washington, Jan. 7.—Titles to several hundred thousand acres of land in western Texas lands held under Mexican land grants are claimed to be affected by the action in the case of Sullivan versus the state of Texas, which, in an opinion by Justice Brewer, was decided by the supreme court of the United States favorable to the state. This particular suit was over a tract of 55,000 acres in Hidalgo county, which, it was claimed, was comprised in a grant made to Pedro de la Garza.

The state did not question the grant, but it claimed that the old survey under which Sullivan made claim was not valid and hence that the land was not properly located. The state courts sustained the state's contentions and the supreme court took the same view.

THROUGH PORT ARTHUR.

Swift & Co. Thus to Ship to Germany and Mexico.

Beaumont, Jan. 6.—The local representative of Swift & Co. has received information that his company will begin shipping fresh meats to Germany and Mexico through Port Arthur on or about Jan. 16. It is understood that the entire German trade will be supplied through Port Arthur, and it is estimated that there will be a cargo about every two weeks. Refrigerating vessels will be used, and the cargo will come to Port Arthur directly from Chicago over the Kansas City Southern. It is probable, however, that some of the meats will come from Fort Worth.

It is related that to John W. Gates is due the credit for securing this business for Port Arthur. While he was in north Texas recently Mr. Gates is known to have visited the Swift packing house branch at Fort Worth, and that he secured the approval of the Swift representatives there to make the shipments through Port Arthur.

SHOT FIVE TIMES.

E. W. Hawley Meets Tragic Fate in a Dallas Residence.

Dallas, Jan. 3.—Five shots were fired at E. W. Hawley from a thirty-two caliber automatic pistol. All the bullets entered Hawley's body, causing his death. Mrs. W. C. Baggett, a widow, at whose residence the tragedy took place, telephoned the sheriff's office to send some one to her house. A deputy sheriff responded and took Mrs. Baggett before Justice Williams, after an affidavit charging murder was made out. She gave bond in $2,500. Mrs. Baggett made no statement.

Deceased, who was fifty-two years old, leaves a widow, six sons and a daughter. He has resided in Dallas county many years.

to agree upon a verdict and were discharged by Judge Morris. This is the fourth trial of Powers. In two former trials, Powers was convicted and sentenced to life imprisonment, and on the third trial he was also convicted and given death sentence.

Jury stood ten for acquittal and two for conviction. J. L. Price, the foreman, and J. W. Renaker of Harrison county, held out for conviction. Powers was showered with congratulations. He said he would make a statement later, adding: "I am pleased."

THREE MEN SHOT.

Night Riders Destroy Much Russellville Property.

Russellville, Ky., Jan. 3.—Night riders 100 strong, swooped down on Russellville early Friday morning and after overpowering three policemen, and providing against the giving of an alarm, dynamited and burned two independent tobacco concerns in the city and several other establishments and rode away out the Hopkinsville and Clarksville pike. Three men were wounded and telephone girls and police held prisoners for nearly three hours. The following buildings were destroyed: Frank G. Wake tobacco warehouse building and contents, loss, $15,000; American Snuff company, factory and contents, loss, $15,000; Roberts & Brown planing mill, loss, $12,000; Alfred Underwood, grocery, loss, $2,000; King & Proctor, stables; Joshua Knowles, cottage.

The wounded persons are Dr. Charles M. Roberts, Evansville, Ind.; J. R. McLean, Russellville; J. H. Moseley, Russellville.

The chief of police, as soon as he heard the noise, hastened to the fire tower, where he attempted to sound an alarm, but was overpowered by four masked night riders.

J. R. McLean, proprietor of a grocery store, and J. Henry Moseley, proprietor of a dry goods store, did not hurry into their homes fast enough and the night riders shot them.

The most seriously injured are Dr. Charles M. Roberts, guest at Forest House, wounded about the head and face by a charge of buckshot. Dr. Roberts was shot as the night riders were leaving town. He heard the general confusion and thinking the raiders departed, ran out to see what had happened. He came face to face with a group of the departing mob and as he started to run was shot.

HAND CUT OFF.

J. T. Robinson, an ex-railroad engineer on the T. & P., got his left hand so badly crushed in the yards Monday night that it had to be amputated.

It is not known just how the accident occurred as Robinson was alone, but it seems that he came from the south part of the yards and attempted to crawl under a freight train standing on the main line when the train started and caught him before he could get out and the wheels crushed his hand. The accident occurred about 8 p. m. Dr. Powell, Local Surgeon for the T. & P. was summoned and with the assistance of Dr. Griggs, the injured hand was amputated. Mr. Robinson left Tuesday for Fort Worth. We sympathize with the injured man. The battle of life is often an unequal struggle with many who have all their limbs, but the accident to Mr. Robinson probably makes him unfit for his calling as locomotive engineer in which he has spent so many years of his life; consequently he will have to seek other employment.

J. H. (Buster) Harris announces this week for City Marshal. Buster Harris has served as Deputy Sheriff for a long time and made a fine officer. If elected Marshal THE STAR feels warranted in saying that he will discharge the duties of the office faithfully and impartially to all.

W. H. Perry accompanied by Deputy Sheriff Rains carried Miss Mary daughter of Mr. Perry, to the Asylum for the Insane at Austin last week. We sincerely hope that the treatment she will receive there will completely restore her to health, bodily and mentally and that she may soon return to her aged parents.

Mr. Hall of Cross Plains was in town this week figuring with J. H. Walker of the Job Department of THE STAR, for the school bonds of the Cross Plains Independent District. After getting Dallas prices he gave the job to Mr. Walker. Such work as this requires the best of skill in printing and few country printers in Texas can do as good work as Jim Walker has turned out. He printed the bonds for the Huffman Mining Company, The Abilene Trust Co., and some others. THE STAR office can print anything and equal to the best city work. Few in Baird know this and perhaps some won't believe it but it is true. Jim Walker practically learned his trade in THE STAR office beginning about fourteen years ago. He knows how to do good work and takes a pride in it, and knows what it is worth. Consequently if a firm sends off for work it is not because the work cannot be done at Baird but usually because a cheap grade of work is wanted that is not turned out at THE STAR office.

J. A. Dempsey, living at Eula, was adjudged insane Monday and will sent to the Terrell asylum.
