COMMITTEE IN HOUSE VOTES FOR CHANGES

By United Press
WASHINGTON, Mar. 30.—The House reorganization committee voted 7 to 2 today to report favorably four measures as a substitute for the Senate bill, giving President Roosevelt broad powers to reorganize the executive department.

The Senate, meanwhile, approved the $549,227,842 navy supply bill, the largest sea force measure since world war days, amid charges that a campaign is underway to make the United States war-minded. The measure was approved without a record vote and sent to conference with the House, which yesterday approved a $446,116,280 war department bill, the largest since 1921.

Clearing the way for quick consideration of the reorganization program, which the Senate approved Monday after the bitterest debate of the session, the committee asked the House to meet tomorrow to begin work on the substitute measures.

Democrats promised a hot fight in the Senate over the proposal for creating a national resources planning board.

Mother in Kidnap Case Testifies

Mrs. Murray Levine, of New Rochelle, mother of longmissing 12-year-old Peter Levine, emerged from the seclusion in which she has remained to testify before a Westchester County Grand Jury which indicted two youths for attempting to extort ransom money. The photo above, showing her wiping tear-filled eyes as she left court is the first taken of her since her son's disappearance.

Criminal Appeals Court Refuses To Unseat Graves

By United Press
AUSTIN, Mar. 30.—The Court of Criminal Appeals today refused to unseat Judge Harry Graves of Georgetown, appointed to succeed the late Judge O. S. Lattimore.

Graves' eligibility to the court was attacked because he was a member of the legislature when the pay of judges was increased. The opinion said Graves' eligibility could not be settled except in a civil court.

His eligibility was questioned in a case of a man given a two year burglary sentence in Ellis county. The two Waxahachie attorneys who sought to have Graves removed from the Court of Criminal Appeals said they might take the case to the U. S. Supreme Court.

As Mexico Celebrated Oil Expropriation Decree

Vociferous approval of President Lazaro Cardenas' decree expropriating foreign-owned oil properties in Mexico was demonstrated in the streets of Mexico City, as shown strikingly above, when 250,000 workers paraded before the National Palace. From the balcony of the palace President Cardenas later amplified his government's action in the confused oil situation and announced indemnity will be paid to foreign property holders, chiefly American, some time in the future.

Troop No. 6 will go to Brownwood, Comanche Council Trail area headquarters, April 6 to compete with three other teams of the council. The winner of the council meet will go to Sweetwater to compete with troops from Sweetwater, San Angelo, Abilene, Lubbock and Big Spring.

The winning troop at the Sweetwater meet will be sent to Dallas to compete with troops from New Mexico, Oklahoma and Texas. A trophy awaits the winner of the tri-state meet.

MUSSOLINI IN SPEECH HURLS OUT WARNING

Premier Mussolini shouted a warning today that 9,000,000 Italian fighters are "tuned for a war."

The premier rattled his sword in the face of nervous European democracies, France in particular, at an hour when Italian and German-supported Spanish insurgents pounded fiercely at the newly strengthened government lines in Catalonia.

Italy's land, sea and air forces are among the most powerful in the world, Mussolini told the Roman Senate. Presumably for benefit of the British navy he emphasized progress in fortifying the Mediterranean and improving the submarine fleet.

But, he added, the next war will be fought in the air and Italy intends to "dominate the skies."

Coincidentally it was disclosed at Washington the United States and England will act to enact the escalator clause of the 1936 naval treaty, enabling them to build battleships beyond the present 35,000-ton limits.

As Mussolini spoke, Spanish loyalist leaders at Barcelona appealed for another 200,000 men "who are not afraid to die," to strengthen the front lines against the powerful nationalist offensive in Catalonia. The nationalist army threatened to cut the Barcelona electric power supply.

Brother of Three County Residents Buried In Ft. Worth

Otis Courtney of Carbon, in Eastland, Wednesday, reported that funeral services for W. J. Courtney, 53, his brother and a Fort Worth policeman who died of an injury while on duty in 1931, were held last week at Fort Worth.

Mr. Courtney had been a member of the Fort Worth police department since 1923. His first service was in Riverside of Fort Worth as a mounted policeman. Later he was a member of the old bicycle squad and was on the first traffic detail organized in Fort Worth.

The officer was struck on the chest by a drunken man arrested in 1931 and suffered a lung injury. The injury necessitated various leaves from duties. During many of his illnesses his friends on the force would work on their off days for him, turning the payer to Mr. Courtney. Recently he was given a pension by Fort Worth officials who recognized his illness.

In 1934 the Rotary club of Fort Worth recognized the services of Mr. Courtney, presenting him with a medal for his work of merit. In that year he arrested three burglars while they were attempting to open a safe in an ice company office in Fort Worth.

Mr. Courtney was credited with applying evidence which led to the conviction of three suspects in the slaying of U. E. Horton in 1934 and the men sentenced in 1935.

The officer also arrested a crippled negro who was convicted of murdering A. S. Michael and Genevieve Cantrell in July, 1932. The arrest was made by Mr. Courtney several days after the occurrence.

Police Chief A. E. Dowell said Police Inspector Dyzart of Fort Worth paid high tribute to Mr. Courtney.

Other survivors are his wife; a son, Emmett U. Courtney, Dallas; daughter, Mrs. Nettie Curry, Fort Worth; his father, H. M. Courtney of near Dublin; a sister, Mrs. E. W. Thomason, Gorman, and three other brothers, J. B. W. Courtney, Ira of Dublin and E. W. Courtney of Gorman. One grandchild also survives.

Mr. Courtney was born in Mississippi.

College Dean Is A Believer In the Social Security Plan

DALLAS, Texas.—Dr. Jack Johnson, head of the department of economics at North Texas State Teachers College, Denton, vigorously defended the federal administration's social and economic policies at a meeting of the Dallas Real Estate Board, here.

He agreed in principle with President Roosevelt's economic policies and declared that the undistributed profits tax was "correct in principle."

"We hear much of so-called economic law," Johnson said. "It is not law, and it is not natural. It is nothing more than a method of procedure arranged to meet the requirements of certain institutions. When the requirements change, most of this procedure is carried over into the new situation as fundamental, causing endless confusion."

"We hear much discussion today that the government should not engage in business, that it should let business alone to run itself. That is the policy of 'laissez faire,' developed when the country was young, a policy of liberty and abundance.

"Today with mass production and large corporations, the whole thing is reversed. Today that policy means slavery instead of liberty, and not abundance but scarcity, because large corporations can limit production and hold up the price.

"We used to have competition to control prices. Now large corporations and monopolies have eliminated competition and it is ridiculous to say that we should turn them loose to do as they please. It would be suicidal to our whole civilization to say that we shouldn't have some social control.

"No one would want to say that every act of the administration has been perfect. The details are experiments that must be worked out, but the national policies generally are not only right but are essential to the preservation of liberty."

Fewer Deaths Are Recorded in Traffic Mishaps in Texas

AUSTIN.—Texas traffic safety experts saw hopes for an appreciable decrease in 1938 crash deaths as February closed with 143 persons listed in that month's "Black Book." In February, 1937, there were 157 highway and street fatalities.

This does not mean, state police declared, that Texas drivers are having fewer accidents this year than last, but that more drivers, pedestrians and passengers are surviving the increasing smashes. The 1938 February accident count mounted to 1,129, as compared with the 853 crashes reported in that month last year. It may be "Lady Luck" smiling on many persons involved in the collisions but the state experts argued that Texas are becoming more aware of the almost certain death in high speed crashes. This year, during February, 116 of the 1,129 accidents resulted in fatalities, while last year—in the same month—120 of the 853 collisions were fatal.

Still, a further comparison showed that the pedestrian death rate has dropped by almost one-half since February a year ago, when 45 died from vehicular assault. Twenty-five lost their lives during February, 1938.

Nine of those listed as dead in February "Black Book" received their fatal injuries in January, state police said. In the location analysis, 71 were killed on open highways while 72 died from accidents within city limits.

Following are the types of collisions that killed the 143 people: Motorcar with motorcar, 56; motorcar with train, 7; motorcar with bicycles, 2; motorcar with horse-drawn vehicles, 1; motorcar with fixed objects, 16; non-collision, 27.

Lecturer Believes In Early Dates for Girls

FORT WORTH, Texas.—Dr. Henry Neumann, writer and lecturer, believes the modern girl should have dates as early in life as she pleases.

More harm than good, he said, follows the oldtime custom of keeping daughters at home until they are 18 years old—then allowing them to go out with boys for their first time.

"Apron string girls have the facts of life tossed at them in one big lump," said Dr. Neumann. "Wouldn't it be better to make it a gradual process?"

"Youth today is better morally than were his predecessors of a century ago. Our modern youth is more frank and exercises more freedom of thought. Compare him with the youth of yesterday, who was bossed and scared into correct thinking," Neumann invited.

Downtrodden Will Miss Clarence Darrow

At a time when all too few men will fight for liberty against ruthlessness, another scarred fighter in those causes has gone. When Clarence Darrow died, the underdog lost a defender, the poor and weak lost a friend that will not easily be replaced.

And what a fighter Clarence Darrow was! He was not a great lawyer in the scholarly sense, and no great principles of law remain enthroned because he lived. Fighting desperately in some lost cause against an enemy who bit and scratched and hit in the clinches, Darrow could bite and scratch and hit in the clinches, too. What he does leave behind is a devoted and fighting heart that death can not quite still.

Once Illinois was convulsed by a controversy over "labor and radicalism" which exceeded in bitterness anything in this country today. Gov. John P. Altgeld, because he pardoned many who had been imprisoned in that war, was assailed as few men have been assailed in public life. One of his friends and allies was Clarence Darrow.

When Altgeld came to die, Darrow stood by his coffin and spoke a farewell in words of lasting beauty, words which today could be spoken over the body of Darrow himself.

"John P. Altgeld," spoke Darrow, "like many of the earth's great souls, was a solitary man. Life to him was serious and earnest—an endless tragedy. The earth was a great hospital of sick, wounded, and suffering, and he was a devoted surgeon, who had no right to waste one moment's time, and whose duty was to cure them all. While he loved his friends, he yet could work without them, he could bid them one by one goodbye, when their courage failed to follow where he led; and he could go out alone, out into the silent night, and looking upward at the changeless stars, could find communion there."

So Darrow, too, has gone out alone, out into the silent night. They say he was an atheist, and none said it more often than Darrow himself. And yet he also said, "They laugh at pity and mercy as if they had no proper place in the emotions of man. And yet no one wants justice or can understand what it is. But everyone wants mercy, and knows exactly what that means."

And Darrow sought mercy, fought for it and pleaded for it, in a world which has so little of quality which believers in God think of as God-like. It is hard to think that such a God would deny mercy to Darrow, who sought it for the least of his fellow men.

"But though he lay you in the grave and hide you from the sight of man," said Darrow over Altgeld's body, "your brave words will speak for the poor, the oppressed, the captive and the weak; and your devoted life inspired countless souls to do and dare in the holy cause for which you lived and died."

So Darrow in turn, being gone, leaves behind a flaming torch of freedom and mercy awaiting other hands to carry it forward.

Hudson Stages Unique 1,000-Mile Economy Run

Driver Otto Butts figures the average and finds it to be 25.6 miles to the gallon. He makes his calculations in the presence of observers Mrs. Theodore A. Enke, H. L. Sutton and Frederick C. Warren. Captain L. B. Kennedy, California Highway Patrol, (left), technical advisor to the three observers stands by. Total gasoline used was 39 gallons even. No oil and only one pint of water was consumed.

Departing from the usual type of economy run in which the cars are operated and observed by professionals, the Hudson company staged a new type of test in Los Angeles last week. A standard stock Hudson 112 Sedan averaged 25.6 miles per gallon for 1,000 miles under observation by a committee of owners of three competitive cars, selected at random. The unusually long distance, as well as the critical observation by owners of competing makes of cars, are unique. Captain L. B. Kennedy of the California Highway Patrol, acted as technical advisor to the observers who were: H. L. Sutton and Frederick C. Warren of Los Angeles, and Mrs. Theodore A. Enke of Glendale, California.

The 1,000 mile run was largely through Los Angeles heavier traffic areas. The driver, an amateur, was Otto H. Butts who is experienced in economy runs, as he drove the Hudson Terraplane to victory in the recent Gilmore Yosemite Economy event.

The procedure at the start of the test and for all subsequent refueling of the Hudson 112 required two observers to be present when the gas tank seal was broken. Both these observers certified the quantity of additional gasoline entering the tank by signing their names to a wired tag which was threaded into the seal at the time of the refueling.

The mileage on the car when it started was 14,766 and when it was finished it was 15,776.1. The total number of gallons consumed was 39 even, an average of 25.6 miles per gallon. The route taken through traffic during the test consisted of a point-to-point contact with each of the twelve Hudson city dealers in the Los Angeles territory. The complete loop was 53.6 miles long and averaged 98 stops to the loop. The fuel used was the ordinary Gilmore Red Lion Gasoline sold at regular distributing stations. No oil was used and one pint of water was used in the radiator.

The test was particularly designed to approximate as closely as possible the running conditions encountered by an owner living in a large city area. This was to break away from the criticism usually leveled at the professional economy runs. The car was, however, driven with due regard for economy by Butts. This and the inherent efficiency and economy of the new 83 horsepower engine account, according to Hudson engineers, for the excellent mileage secured.

Because of the fact that the run was held under conditions paralleled by the average car owner, a great deal of attention has been excited by the car's performance in Los Angeles. In addition to the route necessary to point-to-point dealer contact, the car also passed through theatre traffic during the evening and was in the church traffic on Sunday, as well as in the horse race traffic occasioned by the final race of the Santa Anita meet.

Defunct Bank Will Pay County Funds

EDINBURG, Texas—The last

$136,000 of the $288,000 Hidalgo county had on deposit in the American State Bank and Trust Company when the bank closed in 1936 will be repaid to the county soon.

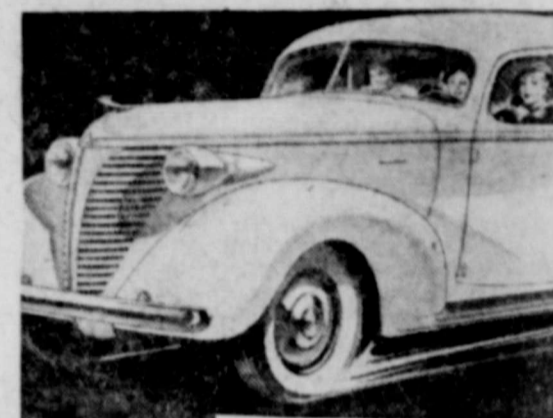

The county commissioners court has agreed to accept $136,610.40 in county bonds and coupons as liquidation in full of its claims against the bank's stockholders and directors, including H. B. Seay, of Mercedes, Harry L. Seay of Dallas, John C. Jones of Edinburg and Clarence E. Lintz of Dallas.

IN RADIO, TOO, THEY DISCUSS THIS SUBJECT:

BETTY MIDDLETON ASKS RAY WINTERS, THE ANNOUNCER:

"RAY, ARE CAMELS REALLY SO DIFFERENT FROM OTHER CIGARETTES?"

WHEN RAY WINTERS signed off (above) he had a long, hard day behind him. Ray has thought a lot about which cigarette best fits in with the exacting, nerve-and-energy-consuming work he does. "Camels are distinctly different from other cigarettes," is his verdict. "Camels agree with me. In all the ten years I've been enjoying them, I've never known Camels to make my throat feel scratchy. Or my nerves ragged. That speaks pretty well for Camel's mildness, doesn't it?"

And many millions of other smokers find what they want in Camels, too.

MORE and more experienced smokers are concluding "Camel is the cigarette that agrees with me." If you are not now smoking Camels, try them. Look for the difference between Camels and other cigarettes. Find out what it means to enjoy Camel's costlier tobaccos.

BOWLING is one of Ray Winters' pastimes. He's pretty good at it, too. "Put me down as a chap who certainly appreciates Camels when I'm tired," Ray says. "I get a 'lift' with a Camel."

ONE SMOKER TELLS ANOTHER "CAMELS AGREE WITH ME"

NO TWO WAYS ABOUT IT, BETTY. I'M REHEARSING OR ON THE AIR FOR 40 HOURS A WEEK. IT'S TOUGH ON MY NERVES, DIGESTION, AND ESPECIALLY MY THROAT. MY CIGARETTE MUST AGREE WITH ME. AND CAMELS DO — IN EVERY WAY

PEOPLE DO APPRECIATE THE COSTLIER TOBACCOS IN CAMELS. THEY ARE THE LARGEST-SELLING CIGARETTE IN AMERICA.

ON THE AIR MONDAYS E-D-N-I-E C-A-N-T-O-R

America's great fun-maker brought to you by Camel cigarettes. Every Monday at 7:30 pm M.S.T., 6:30 pm C.S.T., 8:30 pm M.S.T., and 7:30 pm P.S.T., over Columbia Network.

ON THE AIR TUESDAYS BENNY GOODMAN THE "KING OF SWING"

Hear the Goodman Band "go to town." Every Tuesday at this new time—9:30 pm E.S.T., 8:30 pm C.S.T., and 7:30 pm M.S.T., and 6:30 pm P.S.T., over Columbia Network.

Camels are a matchless blend of finer—MORE EXPENSIVE TOBACCOS—Turkish and Domestic.

"The majority of tobacco growers favor Camels because we know what choice tobacco goes into them,"

TOBACCO PLANTERS REPORT

"The favorite with most men who grow tobacco," is what Vault Snowden, veteran planter, calls Camels. "Camel doesn't buy just any tobacco — they get the best. The Camel buyer bought all the choice grade tobacco of my last crop. I've been a steady Camel smoker myself for 19 years."

B. F. Bivins, another experienced tobacco grower, knows what cigarette pays more for the choice leaf tobacco. "The Camel people sure do get the best grades," he says. "Take my own crop last year. Camel bought the best lots. And other planters will tell you the same. You bet, I smoke Camels."

He's been growing tobacco for 10 years. "I'm in a position to know a lot about the quality of the tobacco that goes into various cigarettes," James Graves, another well-known planter, says. "Most of the growers around here—yes, included—sold the best leaf tobacco of their last crop to Camels. I know tobacco so I smoke Camels."

LOVE LAUGHS AT THE DOCTOR

by ELINORE COWAN STONE
Copyright, 1938, NEA Service, Inc.

CAST OF CHARACTERS
CONSTANCE MAIDWELL—She had often succumbed to it before, and had even found it endearing. Now she hardened herself.
DEREK MANTON—An artist who loved money first.
HILDEGARDE THORVALD—Derek's loved one.
DR. ROGERS—He met his most difficult case.

Yesterday, Derek begins to apologize for postponing the wedding. He sees the doctor for an ailment and Constance interrupts, "but in the meantime."

CHAPTER XVIII

"WELL, in the meantime," Derek floundered on, "why can't we just slip out sometimes this way without any one's—I mean, do you really think, darling, that as things are now, we ought to make our own happiness too conspicuous? . . . Damn it all, I know this sounds—"

"I see," Constance said. She got up slowly and drew her wrap about her, shivering a little, although the evening was warm. "I'm tired, Derek," she said gently. "Do you mind if I go in now?"

After a last silence Derek said between his teeth, "I'm not sure that I understand you this evening, Constance."
Then he came and stood over her. Even by moonlight she saw how the pupils of his eyes widened with emotion, very black in their clear irises.

"You are so lovely, Connie," he said, his hands finding her shoulders. "Your face in the moonlight is so soft and young and shining, like—I shall paint you this way some time—in white, with—"

"I'm terribly sorry, Derek," Constance went on steadily. "But I want to be quite clear about this. I'm afraid I shall be tired all the other nights, too. You reminded me that we are guests here. That's not entirely true. This is a job with me. It may not last long, but while it does, my time is bought and paid for, and I feel that the work may be rather exacting." She smiled a little twisted smile. "Perhaps," she finished, "there's something to be said for this business of going to bed early, after all. I shouldn't be surprised if I tried it."

Derek's hands dropped from her shoulders, but his voice was still tender. "You are devilish tired," he repeated. "Yes, do go to bed, darling. You'll feel differently tomorrow."

DEREK, Constance remembered, had an uncanny intuition for knowing when it was wise not to press a matter—a feminine gift for appearing to accept defeat gracefully.

fully, only to re-assert his forces for ultimate . . . She had often succumbed to it before, and had even found it endearing. Now she hardened herself.

"I'm going back to the house now," she said. "And it is rather late. Don't you think it would be—wiser—if I went in alone?"

"Nonsense. Of course I'm going with you. There won't be any one—"

He caught himself up, glanced at her swiftly, and finished. "There wouldn't be any danger, of course. This country is perfectly safe; we never even lock our doors. But I'd rather—"

He was going to say, "There won't be any one about," Constance thought dreadingly.

But if he were, he was mistaken. On the rose-hung gallery just outside the door of the main said, they almost ran into Dr. Rogers.

Derek said shortly, "Evening, Doctor. . . Sweet dreams, Miss Maidwell," and went quickly through the house towards his own suite.

"Well, I see you took my advice," Mark Rogers said with an ironic lift of one eyebrow. "But it's rather fortunate as it turns out. Would you mind running into Mr. Thorvald's room again for a few minutes? He's not sleeping well. Has an idea you were just another hallucination."

He spoke lightly, but his eyes were worried. Constance tried to say, "Of course," cleared her throat, and stood silent, biting her lips and trying desperately not to say.

HE glanced at her; then apparently oblivious to her quivering lips and piteous eyes, he leaned against a pillar of the gallery and began toying with an overhanging spray of roses.

"Do you know," he said in a matter-of-fact voice, "I've often wondered why it is that, of all the people in the world, the ones who have plenty of time to sleep are the ones who never want to go to bed. You'd be amazed to know the variety of excuses a doctor runs into for not going to bed at a reasonable hour. There are the people who have to sit up for their favorite radio programs; the ones who sit up to finish books; the ones who sit up to—er—look at the moon; and, of course, the ones who just don't like to go to bed at all. . . . Dammit all, I've seen times when I'd have sold my soul for a chance to sleep an honest eight hours."

He glanced at her bent head, and went on plaintively. "A doctor can't do his best work when he falls into bed at midnight, dog-tired, only to be routed up at two-thirty for the rest of the night. It's nothing short of criminal practice to turn up at the bedside of a patient groggy for want of sleep. I have nightmares sometimes in which I find I've written hundreds of wrong prescriptions, and that my patients have all died horrible deaths as a consequence."

There was something so matter-of-fact and sturdy about him as he stood there, just quietly talking, that Constance found herself steadied and helped to self-control.

She took a final wipe at her eyes, and found that she could say almost naturally, "Thanks. You run grand interference, Doctor. I'm ready now."

CONSTANCE was sitting up in bed with a breakfast tray across her knees next morning when her hostess came in.

"Please don't move, Miss Maidwell," Hildegarde Thorvald begged. "You look so lovely. You're one of the few women I know who seem made for breakfast in bed in fluffy negligees."

She was in her riding clothes—brown breeches and boots, and a tawny shirt of soft silk that toned sweetly with the amber of her eyes and hair and the gold of her skin.

"It's no use trying to apologize for yesterday," she began in her warm, leisurely voice. "Or is it? Perhaps you don't know Mark Rogers as well as we do."

Was there a faint question in her long amber eyes? "I'm beginning to understand, at least," Constance smiled, "that when he says 'Go to bed,' you're supposed to do it and like it."

Hilda Thorvald laughed. Then suddenly she was serious. "What I really came for," she said, her voice dropping to a husky note, "was to thank you—no. To try to thank you—"

"Please—no!" Constance cut in quickly. "But the other girl went on, 'I—George is pretty important to Father and me, Miss Maidwell. And Mark told us you—well, worked a miracle last night.'"

"I wonder how much more he told you?" Constance thought. "It was such an amazing piece of luck—Mark's finding you."

Hildegarde Thorvald's long brown fingers were playing idly with a paper knife she had picked up. But Constance had a feeling that the other girl was studying her curiously under her lowered lids—trying to make up her mind about something.

Christian Science Lecture Delivered At Eastland Church

William Duncan Kilpatrick of Detroit, Mich., Tuesday night addressed an audience upon Christian Science at the First Baptist church in Eastland.

The lecture was sponsored by the First Church of Christ, Scientist, of Eastland. It was entitled "Christian Science: God's Law of Freedom and Dominion."

Excerpts from the talk by Kilpatrick, who is a member of the board of lecturership of the mother church, the First Church of Christ, Scientist, in Boston, Mass., are as follows:

"In the tenth chapter of the gospel according to St. Luke it is reported that Jesus sent 70 of his disciples out into the world to practice the science which he had been teaching them. According to the narrative, the 70 returned unto him with joy, saying, 'Lord, even the devils are subject unto us through thy name.' To which Jesus replied, 'Rejoice not, that the spirits are subject unto you; but rather rejoice, because your names are written in heaven.' By which, of course, He meant that they were to rejoice not so much over the works that they did as over the fact that they had the spiritual understanding to do them. In those few words Jesus emphasized the fact that one's spiritual understanding—that is, the understanding of God and man's relation to God—is a necessary prerequisite to the overcoming of material conditions and that the inevitable consequence of such understanding or right thinking is, among other things, individual dominion over materiality. We can but infer, therefore, from His statements, that the principal purpose of our great Master's career was to endow men with that mental equipment or spirituality which would enable them to conform to His injunction to do the works that He did without restriction or limitation.

"Jesus' words and works proved not only the supremacy of spiritual understanding in connection with things material, but they proved that as one grows in the understanding of God and God's ability to control the material or the unreal is correspondingly enlarged and perfected. Jesus taught that spiritual understanding is a necessary foundation for all Christian endeavor; that the spiritual is the real, and matter, or the material, is unreal, because not of God; and that, therefore, as the spiritual gains ascendancy in our concept of creation, to that extent are we able to bring out in our individual experiences a more harmonious materiality. That is, before we can mentally eliminate all matter as He did we must be able, through our understanding of God and God's creation, to control and regulate our concept of the material.

"This does not involve, in any sense, the use of what is known as willpower, or the operation of the carnal mind over matter, as we are bringing out peace, harmony and happiness through the operation of God in our consciousness. We are ridding out the inharmonious of wrong thinking by the substitution of the divine in thought. It is God in consciousness who does the work.

"Thus Jesus demonstrated that He could control and regulate, through the Christ, the condition of His body as well as of the world about Him, thereby presenting to humanity a more harmonious material existence as proof of His spirituality."

State President of Legion Auxiliary Extended Cordial Reception by Local Unit.

A rare distinction conferred on the local unit of the American Legion Auxiliary, came last night when the State president, Mrs. W. A. Ezell, of Beaumont, paid the Ranger Unit her initial visit.

A reception committee greeted her upon her arrival yesterday morning and a committee hosted by the local president, Mrs. J. D. McClister, arranged a pleasant afternoon of entertainment.

Long has the membership of the Ranger Auxiliary, anticipated just such an occasion. Nothing was left undone to make this a visit long to be remembered as a hospitable one. Charming in manner, Mrs. Ezell, made many acquaintances even though her visit was brief.

The Colonial room of hotel Gibson, afforded an appropriate setting last night for the meeting which formally introduced to a number of women, the State president, who is carrying forward her program of work in such a commendable way.

The program opened with the president, Mrs. J. D. McClister, presiding. Short was the business session conducted for the interest of the outstanding honor guest, whose attention was engrossed in the complete report of the month just drawing to a close. Minutes compiled by the secretary, Mrs. H. T. Schooley, were read.

Mrs. J. N. McFatter, said prayer, followed with the pledge and reading of the Preamble.

As an entertaining opening feature, Miss Dorothy Henry, costumed in a black and blue, favored her audience with two of her novel eccentric tap numbers, with Mrs. Vera Watt, at the piano.

Impressive and well placed were the president's introductory remarks, and the guest of honor, immediately arrested the complete attention of all, through her ease of speech, proving her to be a person whose vocabulary is lavishly enriched with understandable phrases, carrying messages of intense interest to each member of the auxiliary. Mrs. Ezell, served her own home unit as president for two years, the same number of years were given to work listed as chairman of the district, and later she acted as division vice president. When she was acclaimed president it was during a convention at San Angelo, when no thought was centered about including her hat in the ring of those interested in the office bestowed upon her. Her membership in the great organization is exactly ten years old, which gives added emphasis to her whole hearted support and interest manifest in all branches.

She covered well the entire field of work outlined Nationally, in her talk, which was divided into twelve parts, representing each month of the year and high points of same. Every angle of work paramount and even minor was given mention. To accentuate her most valuable point, would indeed be difficult. Particularly touching and far reaching were her carefully placed comments on the Student Loan fund, which is being given in Texas at this time. Only children of Veterans whose grades have proved worthy are given this splendid aid. Out of the eight enrolled in Texas colleges at present are making A and B averages. Texas is one of the few States in the union who does not provide support in this project. Only recently one past State president, made a generous donation of $600 toward this fine undertaking, which comes as a major project for 37 and 38. It is hoped by Mrs. Ezell and other prominent workers that the one thousand mark may be reached before the close of the year.

When the wonderful talk was given its summary, there is every reason to see and appreciate the things accomplished by those making up the membership of auxiliaries in Texas. Each member of this organization realizes and remembers with sadness the purpose for its being founded and there is personal interest and loss invested in each case. The local unit is at present endeavoring to add ten new members to its roll call. Certainly after meeting and hearing Mrs. Ezell's impressive talk, there is not one who shall be hesitant in enlisting their membership if they are eligible.

The speakers' table, was centered with a beautiful cluster of poppies, the flower sold each year and made by those less fortunate ones who are in the one hundred and eighty-nine hospitals.

As a delightful climax to this occasion a social was entered into. Coffee cups, cookies and crackers with pimento topping were served with the assistance of Mrs. R. C. Carville, who represents Administration coffee.

Mrs. Ezell, left this afternoon for a visit to Hamilton before continuing her journey homeward. She hopes to make a return visit to Ranger in May when the local Post and Auxiliary acts as host to the District.

The following letter has been written to the Ranger Times and reads as follows:

Dear Sirs:

We appreciate the many rolls of paper you have given us. You have furnished most of the paper that we used this year. We use it in art work and many other things. We hope you will let us have it another year. We appreciate it very much.

Your friends,
Third Grade, Cooper School.

Social security experts say poor-houses are closing their doors. And at a time when so many business men are closing their books,

Rev. B. McElroy Addresses Rotary

Felton Brashear was in charge of the Rotary program today and presented as his guest Rev. Buford McElroy, pastor of the East Baptist church, Kilgore, who addressed the club on "Working Together."

The speaker reminded the group that the world is dictatorial-minded and the hope of democratic government lies with those men who will work together in spite of all differences. He said further that in spite of the fact that dictatorship is contagious and a throws out many lures to society that the structure of our government will remain secure if the members of our society work together in home life, school life,

Crowds Continue To Attend The Baptist Revival

First Baptist church continues to have large crowds attending the revival conducted by Rev. Buford McElroy of Kilgore. Excerpts from his sermon of last evening are as follows:

Rev. McElroy took for his text, Romans 3:23, "There is No Difference."

The nature of sin has not changed from the time sin deceived Adam and Eve, when it raised its slimy head in the Garden of Eden. It has been deceptive and illusive to the Nth degree. It is deceptive and everything it touches is deceptive.

Quoting Rev. McElroy, "there is no difference in the facts of sin. I do not care how respectable you make sin, it is still sin. Certain things are still damnable in the sight of God. Adultery is adultery stealing is stealing, profanity is profanity and Sabbath desecration is Sabbath desecration whether committed by rich or poor—those of high estate or low—those of royalty or commoner."

Again quoting, "there is no difference in the penalty of sin. The soul that sinneth, it shall surely die, and as death finds man, so shall eternity find him."

And still quoting, "there is no difference in the remedy for sin. Here is one place where the whole world walks on common ground. The old time doctrine of regeneration still stands. Regeneration must come to you before you ever see peace in the sight of God."

Rev. McElroy closed with this message:

"The same thing that saved the prostitute, the cattle rustler, the adulterer and the thief, will wash your soul and set you at liberty. The same plan that was paid on Calvary is in effect now. The same God that can save this preacher, Saul of Tarsus and Jerry McCauley, by the same process can save you and you only."

Come with us. Services at 10 and 7:30. Rev. McElroy will preach tonight on "The Prodigal."

social life and political life. Visitors with the club today were H. Pullman, Rotarian from Eastland, Rev. McElroy, and Bill Tipton, newly elected coach of Ranger high school.

Dr. W. L. Downtain has the program next week.

The senator who "bet his head" on the President's attitude toward a congressional measure should be warned that politics has caused many a man to lose his head.

- Smokeless Broiler.
- Insulated Oven.
- Automatic Lighting.
- High Efficiency Burners.

CHECK THESE OUTSTANDING FEATURES!

Oven Insulation: All range ovens are thoroughly insulated with Fiberglas, a new and better insulating material. Produced from the same ingredients as used in making window glass, bottles, etc. Fiberglas is formed into a resilient blanket of the desired thickness and density. It provides a new standard of superiority in uniformity of oven heat... and economy.

Roomy Oven: The oven easily accommodates a large size roaster with sufficient room for additional utensils needed to cook a whole meal. The ample oven also permits uninterrupted circulation of heat. Even, thorough distribution of oven heat makes every inch of space useful. The roomy oven is especially appreciated for oven roasting.

Broiler Drawer: Slides smoothly in and out, bringing contents within easy reach. Smokeless broiler rack. The Automatic Lifting Broiler Drawer has a lifting device for raising or lowering the broiler pan to the desired position. The Broiler Drawer has rack stops which enable the broiler pan to be placed at various levels.

Duplex Burners: Every facility from the most intense searing heat to the smallest simmering flame in each Duplex burner. A measured flame is provided for every cooking need. There is less pot watching... you save on gas and the kitchen remains cool. Harper regular burners are similar but without the Round-Numer feature. All burners light automatically as you turn on the gas.

Automatic Oven Control: Maintains the desired degree of heat in the oven automatically for various kinds of baking, roasting and cooking. You can leave home for hours at a time assured of perfect results. Fuel consumption is less because baking or roasting progresses a greater part of the time with gas automatically reduced by the Automatic Oven Control.

It is always ready for immediate use. Clean chromium plate, easy to keep clean, with handles for lifting out. It furnishes added top cooking surface capacity. Supplied only on the No. 48-55 range.
