CHAMBERLAIN'S VISIT TRIUMPH FOR

Adolf Hitler's celebrated visit to Chamberlain today to turn a triumph for Prime Minister Chamberlain of Great Britain. Chamberlain made a tremendous effort to safeguard peace by making the partnership between Hitler and Mussolini, who were understood to have discussed the future of Spain, where the two dictators have backed the insurrection. Chamberlain has agreed to his "volunteers" out of the country after the civil war. Meanwhile the third member of the dictatorial bloc, Japan, faced disasters in her conquest of China. Chinese troops again had to open the southern front.

"DEPORTED" From New Jersey

Norman Thomas, above, leader of the Socialist Party, was twice forcibly deported by the police of Jersey City for attempting to make a scheduled speech there on the night of May Day. Thomas declared that Mrs. Thomas, who accompanied him, was roughly handled. He has announced he will fight the "Fascist" regime in the courts for violation of free speech and "kidnaping."

S.M.U. Without a President Because Of Conference Vote

DALLAS, May 4.—Vacancies appeared here today at the heads of two of Southern Methodist's largest institutions, after elections of bishops at Birmingham. Election of Dr. C. C. Selectman will leave Southern Methodist University without a president. Election of Dr. W. C. Martin to the bishopric also will leave vacant the pastorate of the First Methodist Church of Dallas.

Eastland Woman Is Honored On 82nd Birthday Recently

CARBON, May 4.—More than 100 friends and relatives gathered on the creek on Uncle Henry Pritchard's place, a mile south of Gorman, near the old family home recently to celebrate with Mrs. C. R. O'Brien her 82nd birthday. Families brought baskets of food and to this was added barbecue. This celebration is an annual affair participated in by friends and relatives of Mrs. O'Brien of Arkansas and Texas.

EASTLAND SAFETY LANE TO OPEN ON THURSDAY

Use of a new type safety lane equipment by the Department of Public Safety for the first time in Texas is scheduled Thursday and Friday at Eastland, it was announced Wednesday by officials, who added the lane would be in the 200 block of West White St. The equivalent to be used is known as the Weaver Safety Lane type. It represents the most modern type of equipment, officials declared.

The safety lane operation will begin at 8 o'clock Thursday morning, day before the Oil Belt Safety conference opens, and continue until five in the afternoon. On Friday the lane will be in operation from 8 a. m. until 11:30 a. m. and cleared because of other events. Vanguard of the many highway patrolmen who arrived Wednesday in Eastland for the conference reminded that the lane is being arranged as a courtesy gesture and that no tickets or arrests will be given or made.

The lane is arranged in that drivers may learn the defects, if any of their vehicles, and thus promote highway safety, they pointed out. Time required to go through the lane will be 15 minutes. To be checked will be brakes, wheel alignment, windshield wipers, lights and all the window glass. Drivers will be asked to exhibit their licenses. The lane will be conducted in cooperation with the Eastland police department of which W. J. Peters is chief.

Garrison to Speak At Safety Meeting

Homer Garrison, assistant director of the Department of Public Safety, has been added to the speaker's list for the fourth annual Oil Belt Safety conference Friday at Eastland, it was announced Wednesday.

District Meeting Of Royal Arch Is Scheduled May 13

A district 31 meeting of the Royal Arch chapter of Texas is scheduled Friday, May 13, at the Masonic temple in Eastland beginning at 8 o'clock.

TWO PROJECTS FOR EASTLAND BEING PLANNED

Two Works Progress administration projects described by officials as being of major importance were being completed today in Eastland. Both projects were sponsored by the City of Eastland commissioners.

One was the raising of Lake Eastland's dam eight feet and the raising of two spillways which increases capacity 25 per cent. With the lake at its highest level in the city's history, a bright outlook for this and future seasons was seen.

Another link in Eastland's recreational program formed by the commissioners was reflected in Lake Ringling project. A 1.5 mile road from the Breckenridge highway, near the First Baptist church (colored) to the lake was graveled, a road built around the body of water and picnic units constructed.

Observers saw in the latter project the making of a new recreational unit for Eastland and the area's citizenship. Twenty-one concrete tables for the spreading of lunches and a masonry furnace were among the activities provided in the project.

MAJOR EVENTS IN CONGRESS BEING PUSHED

WASHINGTON, May 4.—Congress moved today toward two major events of the session. By unanimous consent the house agreed to take up the $4,512,000,000 recovery program next Tuesday.

House wage-hour advocates sought to force the revised labor bill out of the rules committee to the house for consideration. Both measures promised to become battlegrounds for new democrats and the conservative democratic-republican coalition.

William Green, president of the A. F. of L. and John L. Lewis, chairman of the C. I. O. went into action in support of the wage-hour bill. They prepared telegrams to each house member urging signatures to the petition.

It Can Only Happen Here

The brightest illustration of what Americanism really mean is provided by—of all things—that riot between German-American Legion men and Nazi members of the German-American Bund in New York the other day.

After the dust had settled, a pugnacious Nazi was hauled off to court to answer charges of carrying concealed weapons—he was accused of having a trench knife in his belt. All things considered, you might have supposed that this son of the Fatherland would get pretty abrupt treatment in the court.

But it didn't work out that way. Tried before a judge who was himself an American war veteran, and defended by a Jewish lawyer, the German was found not guilty and discharged. And the judge, in discharging him, remarked on this strange combination of facts and added:

"This situation in an American court proves the worthwhileness of Americanism, a fair application of the law to all defendants regardless of nationality."

Now there are, when you stop to think about it, precious few places in the world today where a thing like that could have happened; which is just another way of saying that exact justice as an abstract quality is honored in only a handful of countries nowadays. There are too many passions loose in the hearts of men for the spirit of fair play to get much chance to exert itself.

It would be going altogether too far, of course, to say that all American courts, at all times and places, display the even-tempered fairness which market this case in New York. We have a long and sorry record of incidents of the opposit sorts.

Yet the ideal does remain. It is there all the time for us to shoot at, and because it is there we do hit it now and then. At the very least, it does give us a soil, so to speak which is favorable to the growth of fair play and tolerance.

And even that much, little as it is, is worth a great deal. It is the lump that leaves the loaf. For before the oppression and brutality which curse the world today can take hold of a people, that ideal must be discarded. People must be persuaded that it is a false value that needs to be discarded. They must cease even to respect it as an abstraction.

We have got to that point. However far we may fall short of our ideals itself is still there to beckon us on. Some day, if we continue to look at it—and to get, every so often concret examples of the way it works out in actual practice we shall reach the place where we can turn it into a daily reality.

It's nice to learn that plows are 40 per cent more efficient than they were in 1914. If world affairs keep heading in the same direction, boys all over the world are going to have so much more efficient plows not to be behind than they used to have.

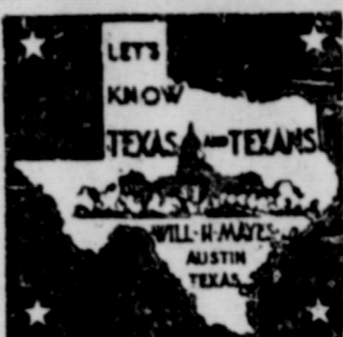

Eduard Lindeman, national director of the WPA recreation division, describes the depression as "psychologically imposed, self-willed." We don't know why, but somehow "self won't" sounds more appropriate.

In this column answers will be given to inquiries as to Texas history and other matters pertaining to the State and its people. Address inquiries to Will H. Mayes, Austin, Texas.

Q. Who composed the board that built the State capitol and who were their immediate representatives?

A. The board was composed of the governor, attorney general, comptroller, treasurer and land commissioner. O. M. Roberts was governor when construction was begun, Feb. 1, 1882. Joseph Lee of Austin, and N. L. Norton of Salado were appointed "Capitol Commissioners" and supervised all contracts and construction, subject to approval of the "Capitol Building Board."

Q. Was there a school at Goliad before Anglo-Saxon settlement?

A. Jose Galan, a private soldier, had a private Spanish school at La Bahia (Goliad) as early as 1818, in which 80 children were enrolled. The school was closed during the revolution.

Q. How was the town of Goliad named?

A. Some say it was named for a legendary Indian known to pioneers as "Goliath," who was "an unbeliever great in bulk and stature;" another account it that when the name was changed from La Bahia in 1829 it was called Goliad (Goliath) because of its large presidio; another and most probably correct opinion is that it was named for Governor Goliad of Coahuilla, Texas.

Q. What was the original location of Espiritu Santo mission?

A. Espiritu Santo, rebuilt at Goliad in 1749, was at first a temporary structure on the shore of the Gulf of Mexico, near Port Lavaca, the site of LaSalle's Ft. St. Louis. The Goliad mission was a substantial structure, the buildings and walls of all of which covered as much as a city block. The chapel and some of the other foundation walls have been restored in recent years.

Q. Was Espiritu Santo ever controlled by the Presbyterian church?

A. About 1849, the Presbyterian church secured Espiritu Santo and conducted a school there known as Aranama College. This was closed during the Civil War, when all the students enlisted in the Confederate army, and not long afterward the buildings were destroyed by fire.

Q. What early fair rivalled Houston's claim to holding a Texas State Fair?

A. Waco organized its first fair association in the early 1870's and in 1874 held what it called a "Texas State Fair."

Q. What missions were planted in Texas largely to serve as tem-

Trial Flight

BY ADELAIDE HUMPHRIES

JACKIE DUNN—heroin who wanted to be a star—was the daughter of a famous actor. Her mother, ROSE BRECKNER—heroin who wanted to be a star—was the daughter of a famous actor. Her mother, ROSE BRECKNER—heroin who wanted to be a star—was the daughter of a famous actor.

Yesterday Jackie tells Roger of her romantic predicament and Roger suggests he has a way to help her.

CHAPTER III

THE field was not a large one, but it had two concrete runways, a radio tower, a revolving beam and floodlights. The days were getting longer, so now as Jackie and Roger watched the mechanics wheel the ship, that looked like an awkward big bug on the ground, out of the hangar, the sky was a soft gray in the east while in the west the horizon still held the last lingering rosy patches from the sun.

"I love this time of day!" Jackie said with a sort of awe and reverence. "The world is so hushed and perfect, like a beautiful bubble holding all the rainbow colors."

He helped Jackie into the cockpit, climbed beside her. It was as luxurious as any limousine with its leather upholstery and polished dashboard with so many shining instruments. The automatic starter sent the propeller whirling; they waited a few moments until the engine's hum was rhythmic and steady, then taxied across the field. A minute later they were off.

Jackie forgot everything else for awhile, even Roger close beside her, as she looked down watching the miracle of night take place. She almost held her breath it was so beautiful, the gathering shadows growing darker and darker and then the little blinking lights turning on one by one in tiny toy villages until the world lay all glittering and dancing, like a lady's sequin shawl. The stars came out, too, myriads of them, and the moon, round and golden, trailed along behind, as Roger had promised.

Would their plan, that seemed as feasible and simple as flying, work out so smoothly now that they were back to earth again?

ONLY after she had filled all her senses, as one might breathe deeply of some strange hypnotic fragrance, did Jackie remember, with a little start, that he had made her another promise, as well.

"What was the idea you had, Roger?" she asked, turning toward him. "It will have to be a good one. You don't know Mother. And you do know how I feel about marriage and love and all that sort of thing."

Roger assured her he knew all about that. She had impressed it upon him often enough. "But your mother can't force you to marry him, or anyone," he reminded. "That just isn't being done in this enlightened age."

They had only to raise their voices ever so slightly as the motor was not noisy. The air was very calm; they were at an altitude of 2000 so that only now and then, when they hit an air-pocket, was there much sensation of movement.

"You don't know Mother," Jackie repeated darkly. "You'll have to get married sometime, won't you?"

"Not necessarily. . . . Oh, maybe, when I've done everything else I want to do and feel myself getting bored. I might get married just to keep from being too lonely in my old age—to whomever happened to be handy. But goodness, Roger, I thought you said you had an idea!"

"Don't rush me!" he cautioned. "Remember I have to keep my mind on a few other things, too."

He banked the ship sharply, turning it almost on its side. But since he had given her "all the works," rolls, loops, spins, dives, and whip-stalls, in the open ship he used for stunting, Jackie did not let out so much as a murmur. She could take anything he could hand out, which may have been why he threw her a side-glance of silent admiration.

Or again perhaps the moon—which Jackie had assured Evelyn they never noticed—had had something to do with it. For now it shed its silvery sheen over Jackie's face, bathing her in an almost ethereal beauty. Roger caught his breath—and looked away.

"I don't believe you have any plan at all!" Her voice held a tinge of impatience. It ought not to have been so. Jackie had said she would do it. Besides, she knew that this ship practically flew itself.

"Sure I have. Nothing to it." Roger snapped his fingers in illustration. "Simply tell your mother that we are going to get married."

Crime

Prison Sentence
 By United Press
 PASO, Texas—Last January Gonzales wrote a theme on "Crime and How to Fight It." His theme won first prize in high school competition.

Gonzales is sentenced to one year term in the national reformatory for boys. Federal Judge Charles A. Boynton sentenced the 15-year-old youth on charges of kidnapping.

His testimony revealed that he wrote a letter to Caly and included a threat against the life of Holland's daughter. He followed instructions in the note. Officers arrested Gonzales when he went to receive the package of money.

Half-Rubber Not Half Bad

Saw off a broom handle for a bat, slice a 10-cent sponge-rubber ball in half, and you're ready to play "half-rubber," a game that originated in Savannah, Ga., and promises to spread. A pitcher and a catcher constitute a team. The batter remains at bat until he strikes at the ball, misses it, as the youngster in the above picture has done, and it is caught by the catcher. The elusive rubber ball can be seen almost in the catcher's outstretched hands. No bases are used, but the players think of imaginary runners on imaginary bases after each hit.

THE SCENES IN WASHINGTON WITH RODNEY DUTCHER

By Rodney Dutcher
 NEA Service Staff Correspondent

WASHINGTON—The wage-hour bill issue, more obviously than ever, has become a sectional-political football in a queer game where individual players keep popping from one side to the other, explaining that they don't like the size or shape of the ball.

Chairman Mary Norton of the House Labor Committee went to the White House the other day and thereafter informed her committee that President Roosevelt insisted he "must" have some kind of a wage-hour bill.

Thereupon the committee approved a bill which would set a minimum wage of 25 cents an hour (excepting agricultural labor) and a maximum work week of 44 hours, the minimum wage to be increased to 40 cents within three years and the maximum hours to be cut to 40 within two years.

This was achieved a measure which won the support of President Bill Green of the A. F. of L. and even that of numerous Northern Republicans who previously had opposed other wage-hour proposals.

Original proposals of the administration had left ample room for wage differentials between northern and southern areas. The so-called Norton bill establishes a flat minimum wage for north and south alike.

President Green and the A. F. of L. leaders previously had opposed any differentials and it had been supposed that this was because they desired no minimum wage legislation at all, since any proposal for a national minimum was sure to meet solid southern opposition. But the new bill also meets A. F. of L. demands for enforcement of its provisions by the Department of Justice and since when he received the letter, he followed instructions in the note. Officers arrested Gonzales when he went to receive the package of money.

In writing his crime theme, the measure was written to meet A. F. of L. specifications. Green could hardly object to it even if he so desired.

Northern Republicans have begun to line up behind the Norton bill because it eliminates the north-south wage differential. They believe it's good election campaign material, in view of the "outward migration of factories to take advantage of cheaper labor, and that it will help them attract labor support which has been veering toward Democratic members.

Conversely, the Norton bill is anathema to southern Democrats in Congress who insist there must be room for differentials if there is to be a wage-hour law. But it was the opposition of the vast bulk of southern Democratic congressmen which last December killed a bill which carried provisions for discretionary exceptions.

The bill passed by the Senate last year calls for a five-man board on which the south would be represented and which would be empowered to set differentials. Hence if the Norton bill passes the House, southern members are likely to prefer the Senate version. The Norton bill would give supervision to the Department of Labor, empowering it to impose the act's provisions on industries it found to be in interstate commerce and directing it to investigate and report violations to the Justice Department for prosecution.

Administration and C. I. O. forces will battle on the House floor for an initial 30-cent minimum and for prosecution through some other instrument than the Justice Department on the ground that southern U. S. district attorneys can't be depended on to enforce such a law.

Physicians to Hear Of New Discoveries At Galveston Meet

By United Press
 GALVESTON, Texas—Advanced practices and recent discoveries by the nation's physicians will be presented before the 72nd annual convention of the State Medical Association of Texas here on May 10, 11 and 12.

Registration and preliminary sessions by six related societies will be held the day before the general meeting of the state association opens. The main group's House of Delegates also will meet May 9 in a business session.

Related organizations include the Texas Railway Surgeons, Texas Neurological Society, Texas State Heart Association, Texas Association of Medical Anesthetists, Conference of County and City Health Officers and the Texas Dermatological Society.

Officers of the medical association are Dr. Calvin R. Hannah, Dallas, president; Dr. E. W. Bertner, Houston, president-elect; Dr. Craig Munter, Fort Worth, Dr. R. B. Touchstone, Lytle and Dr. H. L. Locker, Brownwood, vice presidents; Dr. Holman Taylor, Fort Worth, secretary; and Dr. K. H. Beall, Fort Worth, treasurer.

Dr. Dick P. Wall, president of the Galveston County Medical Society, will welcome the visiting physicians. He will be followed on by Dr. J. H. Hoover, director of the Federal Bureau of Investigation.

Using Hoover's quotation, "crime does not pay," Gonzales wrote: "It pays some of them for a while, but he can't go on forever."

Expert Decries a Fuss Over Vitamins

By United Press
 MINNEAPOLIS, Minn.—American housewives spend $12,000,000 a year for food, but most of them have "very little fundamental knowledge of what food really is," according to Dr. Leroy S. Palmer, University of Minnesota agricultural biochemist.

Housewives are warned by Dr. Palmer against being "taken in with cleverly-worded, plausible-sounding propaganda" regarding vitamins. He believes that "very few people in the United States suffer from a severe or even moderately severe deficiency of vitamins A, B, C, E, G, or P."

Dr. Palmer said newer discoveries "definitely call for a higher standard of diet, as well as one which now calls for a greater expenditure of money." Human welfare, he believes, demands an abundant food supply of proper sort, and either adequate income to buy it or a low cost level within reach of income.

In the case of vitamin D, which prevents rickets, Dr. Palmer said, most cases of deficiency are caused, not by improper foods, but through insufficient exposure to the right kind of sun rays—the short or ultraviolet rays.

"There is a mistaken idea that sunlight, to be beneficial, must be enjoyed 'all over,'" he said. "There is ample evidence that only a small portion of the skin need be exposed to obtain the benefits of those vitamin D synthesizing rays which are able to reach us."

"Pin the Tail On the Donkey"

When you were young, you played that timeless game. Blind-folded, you weaved your way to the painted donkey on the wall, and tried to pin his tail in approximately the right position. You hit his nose, his ear, his leg—or you missed completely, and your blind stab landed on the empty wall.

Do you still "pin the tail on the donkey" when you go shopping? Do you make your purchases "blindfolded," leaving your choice to chance? That is literally the "unenlightened" method. It wastes your time, your energy, your patience—and your money.

Don't buy haphazardly. Know beforehand what to buy, and where to buy it, and how much to pay for it. Read the newspaper advertisements! Scan the shopping columns; compare prices, compare values—decide upon your bargain. Then go directly to the store which advertises it; make your purchase—and be content!

No more hit-and-miss buying when you follow the advertisements. They lift the blindfold; they make it easier to find the best values.
