Child's Eye Taken Out In Attempt To Save Her Life

By United Press
CHICAGO, May 9.—The left eye of a six-weeks old Helene Colan was removed at Garfield hospital today, less than an hour after a "jury" of 10 medical specialists voted to operate.
The operation was performed by Dr. Robert Good, one of the 10 who rendered the verdict in an attempt to check the cancerous growth that would mean death when it reached the infant's brain. Dr. Good's fellow "jurors" witnessed the operation.
An attorney representing the family announced the decision was concurred in by two rabbis who, at the mother's insistence were present to offer spiritual guidance.

TRADES DAY MEETING CALLED FOR FRIDAY

J. F. Killingsworth, president of the Ranger Retail Merchants Association, today announced a meeting of all the merchants in Ranger for Friday night, May 13, for the purpose of planning the advertising on the new series of Ranger Trades Days. The announcement of the meeting was made after a committee met today and planned details for the trade day, which is to be May 25.
The new series of trades days, patterned after the highly successful plan originated in Fairbury, Neb., and operated in a large number of small towns, was unanimously approved by a group of merchants at a recent meeting and distributed that week-end.
Practically every merchant in Ranger has agreed that this is one of the most attractive trades day plans ever devised and agree, that if it is worked for a period of six months or a year, real benefits may be derived from it.
In announcing the meeting Friday night Killingsworth was very emphatic upon the demands of the committee that everyone who wants to participate be present because, as he pointed out, anyone not present or represented, with his special picked and his copy prepared, or ready to prepare, cannot secure a place on the circular and must wait until next month to participate.
No lotteries of any kind will be mixed with the trades days, the specials themselves being so attractive that they will bring people into the stores, it was pointed out, and the elimination of competition among the merchants on the specials is calculated to draw the crowds to every store in town. The longer the trades days are maintained the larger the crowds grow, in the experience of other towns, and real benefits begin to mount as more trades days are held.

ROOSEVELT IS SPEEDING UP HIS MEASURES

WASHINGTON, April 9.—President Roosevelt returned to the capitol and the legislative pace was speeded after White House conferences with administration leaders.

In the House rules chairman John O'Connor launched a move to bring the wage-hour bill up before May 23. Senate threats of opposition to wages-hours legislation arose, however. House Speaker William Bankhead said that adjournment plans depend on Senate wage-hour developments.
The President asked his legislative leaders to speed actions on appropriations for the new recovery drive, but assured them that he would not object to provision to make allocations directly to executive agencies. Present plans call for such allocations to such agencies as the Works Progress and Public Works Administrations.

Previous to the voting a meeting will be held at 10 a. m. to explain the referendum.

Newspaper Notes Safety Meeting In Editorial Monday

Comment on the Oil Belt Safety conference held last week at Eastland was made Monday by the Dallas Morning News in an editorial which follows:
The automobile crash just east of Dallas, that took six lives, gives added point to the plain words spoken on lack of safety in Texas at the Oil Belt Safety Conference at Eastland. Oklahoma reduced highway fatalities 32 per cent last year, but in Texas the slaughter continues almost unabated. A few cities, including Dallas, are making valiant efforts to save lives—Dallas had eleven traffic deaths in the first four months of this year compared with eighteen a year earlier—but much remains to be done.
Despite the revision that has been made the Texas drivers' license law is still far below standard. There is need for further tightening in examinations, enforcement and procedure for removal of licenses. Another legislative step essential to highway safety is compulsory periodic examination of cars to keep unsafe vehicles out of circulation. Legislative attention is needed to the recent suggestions toward making reckless drivers conscious of financial responsibility.
Stricter enforcement of existing laws is having a salutary effect in some communities, but often there is need for simpler and more convincing means of determining whether or not a driver is drunk. Far too many drunken drivers have been let off because juries were not certain of the extent of intoxication. More stiff sentences for drunken drivers probably will do as much as any other one means toward making Texas highways safer.
Eventually the construction of boulevard-type highways, with central strips separating lines of traffic, will give added protection against some kinds of accidents. So will the further elimination of grade railway crossings and major highway intersections. But meanwhile, education of drivers on the importance of careful driving is urgent. The State-wide meeting to be held in Fort Worth June 15 may help to make Texans more safety-conscious and to reduce the prevailing mania for speed.

SEVENTEEN DIE OF VIOLENCE IN THE STATE

Violence took the lives of 17 Texans during the week-end.
Two young men were burned to death early Monday after their automobile crashed into a concrete bridge railing near Irving. Four persons were killed Sunday when a train struck an automobile at a grade crossing at Dalworth Park, between Dallas and Fort Worth. Three Dallasites, two prominent throughout the state, committed suicide.

As the week-end toll was counted, Governor Allred planned an investigation of a wreck in which six persons died near Dallas early Friday. Three were inmates and one was an employee of the Terrell State Hospital for the insane.
A Dallas family was wiped out Sunday in the Dalworth Park tragedy. James DeLoach, 28; his wife, 24; his mother, Mrs. M. B. DeLoach, 46, and his son, Billy, five, all were killed when their automobile was hit by a Texas & Pacific passenger train.

Burial services were planned at Columbia, Mo., for E. B. Cauthorn, 68, bachelor, assistant superintendent of Dallas schools, who shot himself Saturday as he drove his car along a street.
A third suicide victim at Dallas was Cecil Williams, 22, who shot and wounded his estranged bride of four months, then fatally shot himself.
Four lives were claimed near Houston Sunday, three in traffic accidents and one suicide.

Give It Straight From the Shoulder

Before so very long, commencement orators will be popping up like so many jack-in-the-pulpits, and up and down our broad land, exhorting high school and college seniors about the world which they are soon to enter.

Commencement time is still a number of weeks away, but the orators might well start in now to think about what they are going to say. For the world has more or less put them on the spot.

What can a man say to these youngsters, anyhow? He can't paint a rosy picture for them, because the plain facts are mostly the reverse of rosy. He can't tell them that the world is waiting to use their skill and energy, because the world can't begin to find jobs for the people who graduated last year and the year before.

He can't, in short—if he is an honest man—tell them much of anything, except that the world is in a bad mess and that they have drawn the unenviable assignment of stepping out into it at the worst possible time.

Yet even to say that much is better than to say nothing. For youth is not cowardly. It can stand it to hear the worst; indeed, there is something about the resiliency and the dauntless energy of youth which makes a bad situation act as a challenge.

And there is nothing we need right now more than a frame of mind in which we can see in our troubles a challenge rather than a reason for rushing to the nearest walling wall.

We have had our fill, or ought to have had it, of drifting along in the pious hope that sooner or later things would right themselves without our help. Maybe there was a time when that sort of attitude would work, but it doesn't work now. We are drifting downstream, and unless we help ourselves there is precious little to hope for.

So our innocent young graduates might just as well get it straight from the shoulder, this spring, and know the worst. And we of the older generation could very profitably listen in with them.

For it is our world as well as theirs and we are at least partly responsible for the shape affairs are in these days. Perhaps we cling to our blind optimism too long, perhaps we grasped at solutions that wouldn't work, perhaps we simply were too heedless. Whatever the case, we can hardly be complacent about the world our youngsters are going out into, nor can we afford to assume that it is their problem and not ours.

The commencement speakers, then, may do us all some service. If they can get away from the blind, unthinking optimism traditional to commencement day, and can provoke an honest and fearless discussion of our ills and their solution, they can give us something well worth remembering.

Chesterfield Starts New Advertising Program In May

Continuing the successful Chesterfield "Pleasure" campaign which has been equally welcomed by the public and the retailer, Liggett & Myers Tobacco Company has released a new nation-wide advertising campaign to appear during May and June.

Lively illustrations are used in all the newspaper, magazine, billboard and point-of-sale advertising, which appeals to smokers by connecting the real pleasure of smoking Chesterfields with other pleasures. Throughout the series, credit for Chesterfield's increasing popularity is given to the Chesterfield ingredients, mild, ripe tobaccos — homegrown and aromatic Turkish — and pure cigarette paper.

Supporting the general campaign, Chesterfield continues its radio broadcasts featuring Paul Whiteman, Grace Moore, Andre Kostelanetz and Paul Douglas, baseball commentator. All of England Gets Gas Masks

LONDON.—The British government soon will be able to provide every man, woman and child in England with a gas mask within eight hours in an emergency.

The government now has more than 30,000,000 masks ready for distribution to local authorities, who will keep them under proper conditions until it is thought necessary to distribute them to the public. The production of masks is continuing at the rate of 500,000 a week.

After an air raid warden has visited every house and, so far as possible, actually tried on the various sizes of masks, it is anticipated that the distribution of masks to the whole population could be accomplished in eight hours.

A memorandum from the Home Office has been sent to all local authorities setting out the position of the moment and the steps it will be necessary to take in the various localities.

Local authorities are asked to supply particulars of the numbers of men women and of children between the ages of 4 and 16 years, 2 and 4 years, and under 2 years in their area.

The government, however, does not intend to wait for this detailed information, but will supply respirators for local storage on a rough estimate of the requirements. Children under 2 will be fitted with a protective device which will totally enclose them.

It is possible that in at least one area the government will make a test distribution to living there.

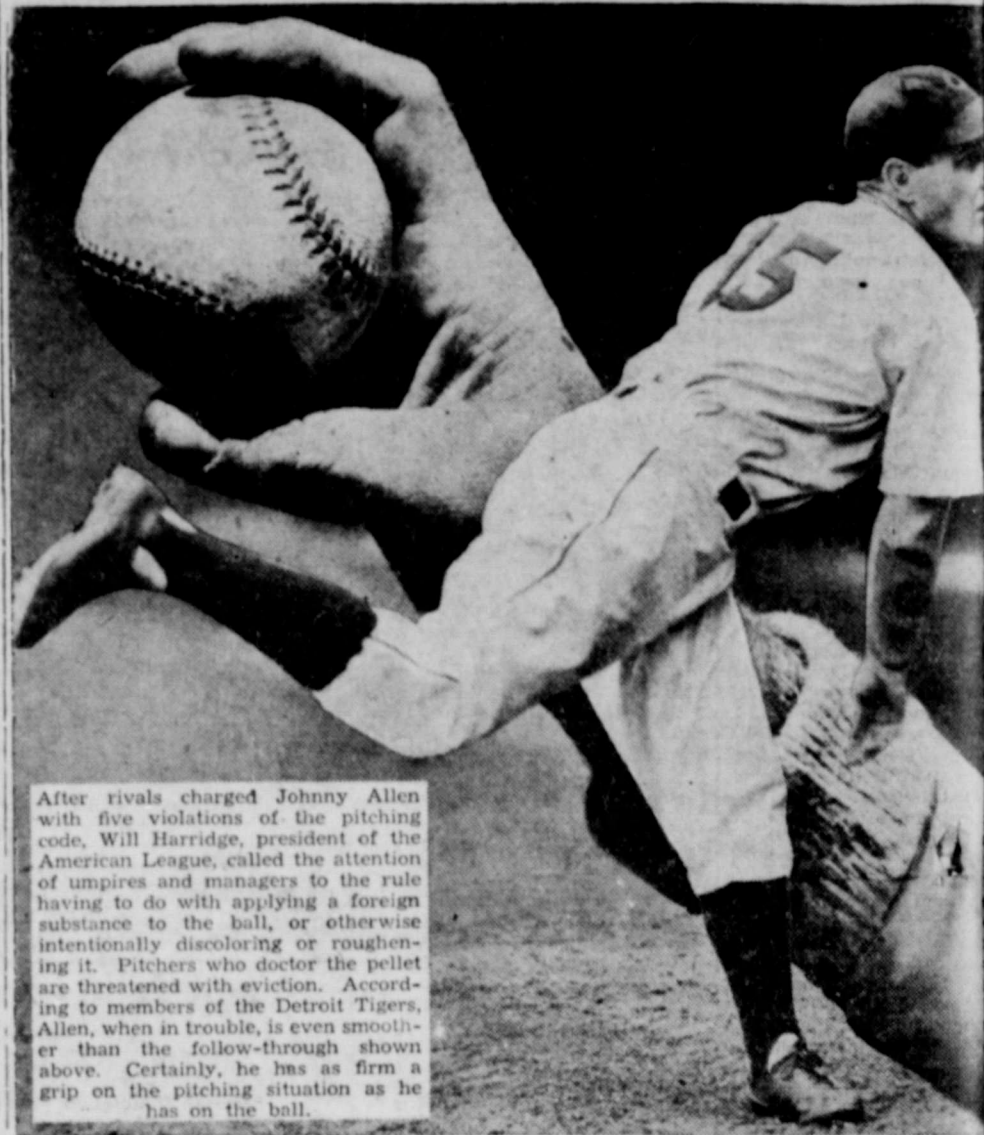

Experiments are now being made for provision of protection for livestock, which are sealed against gas.

It is said that England is ahead of any other country in arrangements for safeguarding civilian population.

The storage places to be used by the local authorities are known as "local respiratory stores" and are being established from experiments conducted in the local stores should moderate 30,000 respirators have demonstrated that in large numbers of respirators can be distributed satisfactorily by a single distributing depot.

TOO GOOD TO BE LEGAL

After rivals charged Johnny Allen with five violations of the pitching code, Will Harridge, president of the American League, called the attention of umpires and managers to the rule having to do with applying a foreign substance to the ball, or otherwise intentionally discoloring or roughening it. Pitchers who doctor the pellet are threatened with eviction. According to members of the Detroit Tigers, Allen, when in trouble, is even smoother than the follow-through shown above. Certainly, he has as firm a grip on the pitching situation as he has on the ball.

Trial Flight

CAST OF CHARACTERS
ROGER DUST—heroine; she is a girl who has been in the hospital for several months because of her illness. She is a very beautiful girl and is very popular with the boys.
HENRI—a boy who is very fond of Roger.
CHARLES MEIROSE—a boy who is very fond of Roger.
JEANETTE—a girl who is very fond of Roger.

CHAPTER VII
 Several days after the evening when Roger had told Jackie her important news and distributing deposits.

Jackie's flight traveled in the direction her mother had indicated. She had not known Roger was coming into the city today. He had not mentioned it when she had told him yesterday that she would not be able to come out to the field for her lesson. But it was Roger. Looking exceedingly well-groomed and tailored, quite in keeping with the Colony's smart clientele. Sitting opposite him, her head bent, deeply absorbed in conversation—or in Roger—was a girl. An exceptionally attractive girl, even in this gathering of famous, well-dressed, beautiful women.

Jackie experienced the first twinge of the shock she was to receive. At least she supposed the tenseness that suddenly took hold of her was surprise. "I don't know who he is with," she answered Roger's question. "You don't!" Evelyn looked at her daughter sharply. This was a fine state of affairs, for Jackie's fiancé to be lunching with another girl—and such a decidedly pretty one!—when he lunched with any member of the opposite sex it surely ought to be Jackie. "Well, we must find out then! Not to him, Jacqueline. He's looking this way now."

"He isn't looking at me," Jackie said. For a moment he had, almost; then he had looked away again. Or could it be that Roger had seen her and looked away purposely?
 "We could tell Henri to invite them to our table," Henri was Evelyn's wailer. She started to beckon to him now. To Jackie said sharply, "Mother, if you do . . . I'll get up and leave—honestly, I will!"
 "I would merely ask them to join us for coffee, or something like that," her mother said. But the storm gathering in Jackie's young face must have stopped her for once from carrying out any such idea. It did not deter her from her main objective, however. She managed to signal Henri with her bright glance. "You see that young lady in the far corner, Henri," she said. "The young one, all in black—with the two silver fox scarfs. I wonder if you would see if you could learn her name for me, please."
 "But certainly, Madame," Henri replied promptly. He held a brief conference with the head waiter; returned to their table. "The lady's name is well known, Madame," he bowed elaborately. "Especially in our capital city—Washington. She is the widow of the late Charles Meirose."

 "Charles Meirose!" Evelyn gasped.
 Even then that name held no significance for Jackie. She was only half listening anyway.
 "Yes, Madame," Henri bowed again. "She was famous for her beauty when she was Miss Beryl Davidson. And for other things. She was the young lady who won the long-distance trophy at the Cleveland air-show. I believe Mrs. Meirose is exceedingly interested in aviation, Madame."

That was when the full force of the shock hit Jackie. Naturally she was called to attention by any mention of flying. Then she put two and two together rapidly. Why, that attractive young girl was Roger's Mrs. Claus!
 "Thank you very much, Henri," Evelyn dismissed him with a graciously condescending smile. "Did you hear that, darling?" she addressed Jackie. "Why, Charles Meirose was one of the wealthiest men in the world! I believe this was his second wife—though I presume she received all of his money, as the first was a divorcee and settlement. He must have been much older than his young widow. But how on earth do you suppose Roger got to know her?"
 "Mrs. Meirose is going to finance Roger's stratosphere flight. That is if Roger is lucky enough to get his chance. Which I suppose he will, if she is as important as Henri says she is. Jackie's tone almost sounded as though she hoped now that Roger would not get his big opportunity. "Henri always knows how important the people are who come to the Colony," Evelyn replied. "That's the reason I reserve this table, my dear." She turned around deliberately in order to look again at Roger's companion. Then she leaned toward her daughter, lowering her voice. "Well, I only have one thing to say, darling. If Roger was my young man, and I was engaged to him, I would not allow him to make any such flight. Not if such an attractive young woman was going to back him! Mark my word, Jacqueline, unless you put a stop to it now, you may regret it all the rest of your life!"

confered with the head waiter; returned to their table. "The lady's name is well known, Madame," he bowed elaborately. "Especially in our capital city—Washington. She is the widow of the late Charles Meirose."
 "Charles Meirose!" Evelyn gasped.
 Even then that name held no significance for Jackie. She was only half listening anyway.
 "Yes, Madame," Henri bowed again. "She was famous for her beauty when she was Miss Beryl Davidson. And for other things. She was the young lady who won the long-distance trophy at the Cleveland air-show. I believe Mrs. Meirose is exceedingly interested in aviation, Madame."

That was when the full force of the shock hit Jackie. Naturally she was called to attention by any mention of flying. Then she put two and two together rapidly. Why, that attractive young girl was Roger's Mrs. Claus!
 "Thank you very much, Henri," Evelyn dismissed him with a graciously condescending smile. "Did you hear that, darling?" she addressed Jackie. "Why, Charles Meirose was one of the wealthiest men in the world! I believe this was his second wife—though I presume she received all of his money, as the first was a divorcee and settlement. He must have been much older than his young widow. But how on earth do you suppose Roger got to know her?"

MYRA NORTH, Special Nurse -- By Thompson and Coll

WASHINGTON WITH RODNEY DUTCHER

WASHINGTON.—Congressman Bruce Barton of New York, the handsome advertising man who wrote "The Man Nobody Knows," remained relatively obscure in Washington as long as he merely kept proposing repeal of a law each week.
 But now Mr. Barton proposes that a new law be passed and he is in the headlines. Democrats are embarrassed by the Barton proposal. They probably will manage to bury it, but their faces will be red just the same. Barton wants an amendment to the corrupt practices act which would send to prison any official distributing government funds who influenced the political beliefs or actions of a recipient.
 It is hard for a politician to think up any plausible reason why such a law shouldn't be passed. Any reason that he can give publicly, that is. But the embarrassment which comes from failing to get behind such an obviously good law is by no means equal, in the case of many politicians, to the embarrassment which might be caused by its passage.
SENATOR H. STYLES BRIDGES of New Hampshire, another Republican, got himself laughed at by protesting Vice-President Garner's failure to appoint him to the joint TVA investigating committee.
 Bridges had been one of TVA's most savage critics and it was informally agreed that conspicuous attackers or friends of TVA should be left off the committee. Thus Senator Andrew J. May of the Military Affairs Committee, the most outspoken enemy of TVA in the House, was omitted from the list. And so were such ardent partisans of TVA as Senator George W. Norris of Nebraska and Congressman Maury Maverick of Texas.
 Last year "Styles" was being discreetly groomed, promoted and publicized by certain persons as a presidential possibility. But the fellows who used to come around whispering that Bridges was a man to be watched and would go far aren't coming around any more.
 Senator Key Pittman, the Senate's president pro tem, had to threaten to clear the galleries because of the laughter which ensued when Sen. Tom Connally of Texas sought a sum up the Bridges situation. y saying:
 "Why does he not approach this question with an open mind, instead of an open mouth?"
 ONE of the surviving New Deal brain trusters, who has been brain-trusting and functioning in various important capacities almost since the beginning of the Roosevelt administration, was quite frank the other night when asked with the fact that there still seemed to be an enormous amount of confusion within the administration ranks.
 No more confusion than there always had been, he insisted, and quoted for a comparison the remark of an old Boer general who said after the South African war:
 "Our lines of communication were so disorganized that not even the British knew what we were doing!"

NEW YORK.—Seeing and chatting with blond Alice Marble causes one to suspect that Helen Wills Moody will have someone besides Senator Anita Luzzatto, Jadwiga Jedrzejowska, and Nancy Wynne, the Australian star, with whom to contend at Wimbledon and in the United States women's tennis championships.
 The Marble health, which caused the San Francisco miss to collapse on a French court in 1934 and put her on the sidelines for almost two years, is better than ever.
 Miss Marble, who captured the American crown in 1936, will not play too much tennis again. She will compete in only the Wightman Cup match and at Wimbledon abroad.
 "I have developed a better spin on my forehand drives, with the result that I am not overbitting the base lines so often," explains Miss Marble. "I am hitting as hard as ever, but the spin is keeping the ball in the court now."

ROLLIE HEMSLEY improved young Bob Feller's control.
 Oscar Vitt taught him how to hold men on and throw to bases. Hemsley first caught Feller on a transcontinental barnstorming trip last fall. It was the enthusiasm that Feller reported for pitching to Hemsley that caused the Cleveland club to make a deal for Rollie to rank the headaches that he was certain to bring to the disciplinary staff.
 When Feller shows a streak of wildness, Hemsley walks out to him and says: "Come on, kid. Forget all these guys around here. Pretend you and me are just playing catch." The veteran backstop built his influence with Feller on that sort of advice.
 Feller employs a high kicking motion with his left leg when he rears back. It was not a fast kick originally.
 Vitt taught him to speed up the kick.

CHIEF BOSTON, key blocker in the Harvard backfield last fall, is recuperating from a serious illness. He developed peritonitis last winter. Doctors doubted that he would pull through. They fed him intravenously. Only a chap of Boston's stamina and fighting spirit could have survived.
 Boston must undergo an appendicitis operation when he regains his strength.
 Dick Harlow and Harvard men hope he will be fit for football next autumn, but it is far from certain that Chief will be permitted to play. Boston is the only Crimson blocking back who does not graduate in June.
 This gives you a fair idea of how pressed Harvard is for varsity material, but then, Cambridge has Harlow and a fresh slant on the football situation.

Softball Season Opens Tonight With Good Game

Tom Yonker, president of the Ranger Softball League, today stated that barring weather conditions that would prevent playing the game, the first game of the 1938 season would be played tonight.

Two of the strongest teams of the league have been scheduled for the opening night, with Hanlon of Breckenridge meeting Killingsworth's in a nine-inning tilt.

The Ranger high school band will be on hand to furnish music for the occasion, which has been looked forward to by softball fans for some time, and a big crowd is expected to be on hand for the opening of the season.

Committees have been selling tickets for the series that will inaugurate the season here, with a charge of only 50 cents being made for the three games, while admission at the gate will be 25 cents. Those who have not obtained their series tickets and who wish to see the three opening games will find tickets for sale at the gate tonight.

Tuesday night Elks will play Gordon in the second game of the series and Thursday night Tee-Pee and Baptists will play.

In addition to furnishing music for the opening game tonight, the band will parade on the field before the game starts.

All games scheduled this year are nine-inning contests, with only one game being played each night.

ORGANIZER TO SPEAK
Dr. Carl E. Lunn, state organizer of Townsend Clubs, will be the principal speaker at the regular meeting of the Ranger Townsend Club tonight, when it meets in the I. O. O. F. hall. The public is invited to attend.

Tuesday — American Legion Auxiliary will meet at the Legion Hall, at 8:00.

Mr. Cooper Gives Twelve Dozen Roses:
The Methodist Church was beautifully decorated yesterday for the Mother's Day sermon, "Christ Had a Mother," inspiringly given by Rev. Alfred Brown.

Vases and baskets contained larkspur and other spring flowers. Most noted were twelve dozen beautiful red and white roses, given by Mr. Oddie Cooper, in honor of his mother, Mrs. V. V. Cooper, his hostess for the day.

The roses were grown by Mr. Cooper, who lives in East Texas. After the services the flowers were taken to members who were ill or unable to attend church.

THOUGH dealing with angel cake, let's get on a firm foundation at once.

Have eggs at room temperature. The whites will whip up more quickly to greater volume. Be sure there is no bit of egg yolk left in the whites. Mixing must be done gently and quickly in order not to lose any of the air beaten into the egg whites. Better use the meringue method of mixing angel cake: put the salt in with the whites at the start. When the eggs have been beaten until they are frothy, add the cream of tartar. The salt and cream of tartar help to keep the foam stable. Cream of tartar also helps to make the cake more tender, greater in volume and whiter.

Beat whites with cream of tartar until they form soft rounded peaks. Beating eggs beyond this point will make the cake coarse-grained. Next fold in half the sugar. Then fold in flour mixed with remaining sugar. Use a gentle, folding motion. Pour into ungreased pan and put in low oven (about 325 degrees F.). When baked, remove by inverting pan to cool, then, before cake is entirely cool, take it out.

If you want a plain sponge cake instead, you can substitute liquid and baking powder for some of the egg whites required for angel cake. Two tablespoons milk or water and 1-2 teaspoon baking powder can be substituted for each egg

Tomorrow's Menu
BREAKFAST: Grapefruit juice, codfish cakes, hot muffins, coffee, milk.
LUNCHEON: Tomato juice, crisp bacon, French toast, raspberry jam, tea, milk.
DINNER: Creamed fresh shrimp, new potatoes, green beans, lettuce and parsley salad, angel cake with strawberry sauce, coffee, milk.

omitted from angel cake recipe. Sift the baking powder with flour and add liquid before folding the egg whites into batter. Bake at slightly higher temperature (about 340 degrees F.). You may want this basic recipe for plain sponge cake.

Plain Sponge Cake
One cup sifted soft-wheat flour, 1 cup (4 or 5) eggs, 1 cup sugar, 2 tablespoons lemon juice, 1 teaspoon lemon rind grated, 1-2 teaspoon salt.
Sift the flour three times. Beat egg yolks until thick and lemon-colored; gradually add half the sugar, beating thoroughly, then add lemon juice and rind. Beat until thick. Beat egg whites and salt until they start to peak but will still flow.
Fold in remainder of sugar to make a meringue. Four yolk mixture over whites and fold into them gently. Then fold in flour. Pour into an ungreased pan and bake in slow oven (325 degrees F.) from 50 to 60 minutes.

Girl Softball Team Will Be Formed Here

Girls who are interested in forming a girls' softball team have been urged to meet this afternoon at 5 o'clock at the softball field for the purpose of organizing a team.

If enough are interested in playing, a team will be formed and practice sessions will be started. If the team is organized games will be matched with teams from surrounding towns.

Ranger Scouts Receive Charter

The Ranger, Boy Scout troop, sponsored by the chamber of commerce, has now received its charter, it was announced today by Ranger scout officials.

There are 32 members in the troop, which is the maximum allowed in any troop, with 14 of the number being charter members. Since the application for the charter was sent in more scouts have paid their dues, and there are now more than 20 members in good standing.

Ranger had been without a scout troop for nearly two years prior to the formation of the present troop, which is known as troop 12. Plans are underway for a clubhouse for the troop, with a lot, gas, water, and lights being arranged. It is planned to move a building on the scout lot in a few days.

Because of the renewed interest in scouting in Ranger, it is expected that a second troop will be formed in the near future.

RECORD RUNNER IN RECORD ROOM

Bill de Correvont, who set all sorts of scoring records for Austin High School of Chicago last autumn to become a national figure in football, is doing more than marking time before his enrollment at Northwestern University in the fall. The spectacular young touchdown maker is shown at work in the record warehouse of an insurance company in Chicago. He attends classes at the Y. M. C. A. and works out twice a week in a gymnasium.

Meteor Is Sent to Texas University

AUSTIN.—Lines formed on a meteor recovered in Dickens county and sent to the University of Texas indicate that its fall was recent, Dr. V. E. Barnes of the Bureau of Economic Geology announced here.

In falling, the partially melted meteorites develop "flow lines." In time these disappear from eroding. They are well defined on this meteorite which weighs a little more than four pounds.

Falling of a meteor in the area was reported in 1933. The specimen sent to the university is composed largely of iron. It was contributed by E. T. Varnell.

TEXAS BREAD WEEK is vital to everyone in the Lone Star State because it will help increase consumption of our farm products. From the Panhandle comes wheat... the finest in the world. From our modern mills come flour of superior quality. Our cotton industry provides cottonseed-oil used for shortening in baking. Dairy farmers of Texas provide milk and butter which are the good companions of bread. A larger market for these important farm products is made possible when we eat more bread... therefore TEXAS BREAD WEEK is important to the agricultural and industrial welfare of the State.
