A wise man once said there are two ways to save money: "Increase your income, or cut down your outgo."

Much as we'd like to, few of us can regulate the amount of money we take in each week. But all of us have control over what we spend. And many a family bank account has been made possible by careful spending.

That's why it will pay you to read the advertisements in this newspaper. Day after day they show you where to get the things you need . . . where to get the fullest dollar's worth for every dollar you spend.

A careful reading of the advertisements . . today, tomorrow, and every day after . . . will help you to do something that we'd like to do:

When Is a Chicken Not a Chicken?

Some people object to the use of guinea pigs, or animals of any kind, for the purpose of scientific experimentation. More people object to the use of human beings as guinea pigs.

A what-is-it? has been developed which ought to make everybody happy. Whether it can be called a synthetic human or a synthetic chicken is something the congenital hair-splitters should have a picnic debating. There's no guinea pig in it, but, figuratively, life as a laboratory guinea pig is the career that has been carved out for it.

You produce it by grafting human tissue on a chicken embryo It responds to bacterial and virulent infections in a manner highly similar to a living human being, and makes it possible to study at first hand many serious human diseases that could not be produced in an animal.

No, it doesn't walk and talk and fight about politics. Right now it just sits around looking like something that has been dropped from a great height into a stone mixing bowl. But this is the question which obviously suggests itself whenever any kind of a what-is-it? pops up in a laboratory. Where do we go from here?

Suppose that the men who evolved the what-is-it? get to fooling around with that synthetic-human chicken some dull morning and come up with a new, improved model which . . . says . . . exhibits a tendency to break out into wild laughter at intervals, or tries to comb its hair. Are these experimental boys going to be content with what they have done then? Do you think so?

No. The next notion would be to develop the arms and the chicken feathers a little more, so that the thing could be made to sweep around the laboratory every morning.

It wouldn't be long before the improved model would be fooling around with grafting human tissue itself, and there's enough grafters in the world already.

No, boys, let it alone.

THE bird's sangbox is called the "syrinx." The instrument is quite complicated, but the principle is simple enough. As the bird breathes out air, it sets certain membranes vibrating, and these are lightened or loosened according to the nitch desired.

FR

HOUSEWIFE.,

On census report, or tax return, she may be listed only "housewife," while her husband bears the more definite title of "lawyer," or "doctor," or "storekeeper."

But housewife hardly does this wife and mother justice. She is the modern Jill-of-alltrades. Her job includes being dietician, interior decorator, costume designer, gardener, chauffeur-not to mention educator and health authority.

How does she get away with it? She is informed! Just as her husband depends upon business news in this paper, she finds in the advertising pages the latest facts and price quotations on all the materials needed for her various jobs.

Food for the family? Butcher and grocer answer on these pages ... Curtains, spring dresses for mother and daughter, slip covers? Department store and specialty shop are ready. She has preferences about fuels and milk, dental creams and even motor oil-all determined by her persistent, intelligent reading of advertisements.

Thats why, when she is termed officially "housewife," she can run six jobs instead of one, and have time left over for amusement and relaxation. (The advertisements help her here too.)
