UNITED PRESS SERVICE BRINGS LATE NEWS OF THE WORLD TO TIMES READERS.

RANGER, TEXAS, MONDAY EVENING, MAY 23, 1938

PRICE TWO CENTS

NO. 304

THE WEATHER

West Texas: Fair tonight and Monday, slightly cooler in the extreme southeast portion tonight, warmer in north portion.

STORM DAMAGE IN WEST TEXAS RUNNING HIGH

Cool weather prevailed over Texas today after a week-end of squalls, high winds and heavy rains. The storm's greatest damage in the West Texas community is in Stephens county, where several elderly persons were killed and considerable property damage in the Clarksville area of extreme northern Texas. Houses and barns were unroofed at English and were ruined by the wind. Rains were general over the northern part of the state. A small twister that ripped through the northern part of Oklahoma Sunday night unroofed several houses. The town was without electric light for three hours after power line was torn down. The storm was accompanied by hail 1.6 inches of rain.

Fall Garden Plans Push Danger Line States FSA Agent

Plans now in the making for fall gardens will push the danger line of "relief" still further away from farm families in Eastland county who are being financed by the Farm Security Administration, Miss Lee Ann Williams, assistant county supervisor for FSA, reported Saturday after a recent visit.

Damage to spring gardens during the freeze is being overcome by replanting, she said. Many potatoes recovered and are now being used for current needs, but families are making second plantings to provide a large supply for canning purposes, the supervisor said.

Demonstration at Ranch Is Postponed

Postponement of a goat demonstration because of cool weather and rain, scheduled this morning at the ranch of Dan L. Childress near Eastland until 9 o'clock Wednesday morning, was announced by County Agent Elmo V. Cook.

J., gentleman horseman, has not been officially announced, is Miss Frances Dodge, 22-year-old daughter of the late John F. Dodge. Her father and his brother, Horace founded the Dodge Motor Company and built a fortune of which Frances inherited $40,000,000.

Coast Guard to the Rescue—in the Modern Style

The United States Coast Guard lived up to its motto "Semper Paratus"—"Always Prepared," when its flying boat dashed to the plane crash pictured above and saved five pilots clinging to the wreckage. On a flying visit to Floyd Bennett Field, Brooklyn, the cabin monoplane crashed from a height of 400 feet into Jamaica Bay, was spotted by a navy flyer who reported to the coast guard station three-quarters of a mile away. In the photo the guardsmen can be seen helping the victims, only one of whom was seriously hurt, through the shallow water to the seaplane.

A Yankee in Hirohito's Court

Although the archipelago of Japan has been on the maps for centuries, it is only within the last half century or so that the ordinary American has really been conscious of Japan's existence.

Much of this consciousness has been born of irritation—a feeling that these perky little people from the far east were feeling their oats altogether too much, and that their capacity for starting trouble was out of all proportion to their size. But underneath this irritation there has run a vague, haunting feeling that we had seen the Japanese before. We knew him but we couldn't quite place him, so to speak.

Now it is possible to clear this feeling up. A recent protest in the British House of Commons over the shipment of Japanese-made cotton shirts to the Malay States casts a flood of light on everything.

The Japanese send cotton to Malaysia under a rigid quota. But someone finally discovered that the shirts that were coming in were equipped with the most prodigious tails ever seen—three feet and more in length. The explanation was simple. The importer simply cut off the tail, marketed the shirt, and then had a nice bit of cotton piece-goods to sell in defiance of the restrictions.

So now—to repeat—we can see where we have met the Japanese before. He is nothing but a down-east New England Yankee, of the vintage of Sam Slick.

What is this yard-long shirt-tail racket but a variant of the old Connecticut wooden nutmeg gag? Verily, the race that invented it would have been at home along the Merrimac and the Housatonic. Old Daniel Drew, who carefully halted his cattle by a creek and let them drink their fill just before taking them to market, so that they would weigh more, would have understood the Japanese perfectly.

Which, joking aside, is something worth thinking about. For the Japanese are in a great many ways very like ourselves. To be sure, they wear kimonos and they live in paper houses and they are unutterably polite; but under the surface there is a kinship which we would do well to recognize.

Like the Japanese, we set out to carve an empire by force of arms. We fought each other, the English, the Indians, the Mexicans, and the Spaniards before we were satisfied; and the drive that set us off on this career of conquest was much like the one that made the Japanese plunge into Asia.

Like them, we have been go-getters, energetic salesmen, eternal modernizers. Like them, we have gone our own gait with scant regard for the wishes of other nations. Like them, we have been convinced that through us a better civilization is to take form upon the earth.

Ultimately, our recognition of these likenesses ought to bring about permanently cordial relations between our countries.

WASHINGTON LETTER

BY RODNEY DUTCHER

WASHINGTON.—Congress indicates every intention of going away without heeding Mr. Roosevelt's plea that it stop the issuance of tax-exempt bonds.

Tardiness of the request, which came late in the session after the long struggle over pending legislation had reached a final stage, aroused sour comment among congressional and administration tax experts who had been worn down by a season of heavy work.

The President used to be able to pop a tax surprise into Congress at almost the last minute and expect action. But not any more.

Nevertheless, there are students of taxation who believe the removal of tax exemption from public bonds would contribute more toward business revival than repeal of the corporate surplus profits tax and the capital gains tax.

About $67,000,000,000 of federal, state, county, city and other public bonds are now outstanding. It has been estimated that the loss to the Treasury through its inability to tax these bonds has been running upwards of $300,000,000 a year.

But the point made by opponents of exemption is that the bonds offer almost hopeless competition for private borrowers in the capital market.

It has been figured out that a lender in the $1,000,000 income bracket, assuming that he pays 3 state income tax—such as that in New York—as well as the federal tax, finds tax-exempt securities at 3 per cent more attractive than the chance to make a private business loan at 17 per cent. Under the circumstances, removal of tax exemption on future public issues could hardly fail to drive money into private investment.

BEHIND the President's continued failure to choose a new ambassador to Russia to succeed Ambassador Joe Davies, who is being transferred to Belgium, if the fact no one who might exactly fit the Moscow post seems willing to accept it, and the further fact that officials of this government are annoyed by the facts of life in the Russian capital which contribute to making the job unattractive. The State Department regards the Russian attitude on the Rubens "spy" case as unsatisfactory.

Ambassador Bullitt became fed up with the post and was transferred to Paris at his own request. Mr. and Mrs. Davies had enough of it almost at once and have spent very little time on Russian soil.

Disappearance of numerous employes and friends of diplomats, correspondents and other Americans in Moscow has helped make the country unpopular among Americans assigned there, many of whom have felt compelled to urge Russian friends to stay away from them for their own safety.

Even the most sympathetic Americans, anxious to study the U. S. S. R. with a friendly attitude, find themselves balked, according to Foreign Service men who have served at Moscow and found themselves unable to report much accurate information.

It has been figured out that a lender in the $1,000,000 income bracket, assuming that he pays 3

Letters From Our Readers

Alex, Oklahoma, May 18, 1938

Dear Editor:

I presume you have among your many readers, many of the descendants of Berry Foster, a pioneer of Eastland county and father-in-law to the late "Uncle Pete" Webb who also has many descendants there, who will be interested to know that the T. J. Foster reunion will be held this year at Hughes Springs, the second, third and fourth of July.

Berry Foster was the oldest of T. J. Foster's 24 children. The first of these reunions was held at Alex, Oklahoma, 1929, when twelve came from Eastland, including Uncle Pete Webb and the late John Foster who with his son, Rufus, met a tragic death when their car collided with a train near Eastland.

I am thanking you in advance for publishing this statement and I promise you, if you will take a Fourth of July vacation and come with a "bunch" from Eastland, you will be well paid in having the joy of the trip and will receive a rising vote of thanks.

Hughes Springs is in Cass county, some few miles from Linden, the county site. The county and Linden were laid off and surveyed by T. J. Foster who is prominently connected with its early history.

MRS. R. A. FOSTER, (Wife of the 21st of those 24 children).

Alex, Oklahoma.

Headlined in 'Bloody Harlan' Trial

Principals in the tense court drama at London, Ky., as the federal government prosecutes 69 defendants charged with terrorism against coal miners in "bloody Harlan county," are the persons pictured above. The top photo shows M. A. Musick with his family. Musick, organizer for the United Mine Workers and former minister, claims that he has been shot at more than 100 times since he began his union activities in 1933. Last year terrorists riding the Musick home, killing one son, Bennet, 19, and wounding the other son, Bert, 10. With Musick in the picture are his wife, the son Jennings and daughter Pauline. At lower left is Federal Judge H. Church Ford, who is hearing the case. At lower right is H. Taylor, one of the defendants who was brought into court by Virginia agents who found him hiding with his wife's relatives in Virginia. Taylor exhibits scars on his wrists and hands, put there, he claims, by bullets fired in Harlan county's long mine war.

The boys are playing some good baseball at the section house each Sunday evening and are having the best of order. All seem to be interested in having a good team.

Some laborers in Winniepeg were working under contract confused and repaired the new house. It was probably that fusing 5-suit contract.

“And they list her: HOUSEWIFE,”

On census report, or tax return, she may be listed only "housewife," while her husband bears the more definite title of "lawyer," or "doctor," or "storekeeper."

But housewife hardly does this wife and mother justice. She is the modern Jill-of-all-trades. Her job includes being dietician, interior decorator, costume designer, gardener, chauffeur—not to mention educator and health authority.

How does she get away with it? She is informed! Just as her husband depends upon business news in this paper, she finds in the advertising pages the latest facts and price quotations on all the materials needed for her various jobs.

Food for the family? Butcher and grocer answer on these pages... Curtains, spring dresses for mother and daughter, slip covers? Department store and specialty shop are ready. She has preferences about fuels and milk, dental creams and even motor oil—all determined by her persistent, intelligent reading of advertisements.

That's why, when she is termed officially "housewife," she can run six jobs instead of one, and have time left over for amusement and relaxation. (The advertisements help her here too.)

Trial Flight

CAST OF CHARACTERS
JACKIE DEAN—heroine; she is the girl who is in love with Roger.
ROGER DEAN—hero; he is the man who is in love with Jackie.
BEVIL MELROSE—a pilot who is in love with Jackie.
THE FAIR—Jackie's father who is a non-lawyer.

Yesterday's heart-breaking, exciting trial flight, Jackie returns to Roger and to Bev Melrose, kneeling at Roger's bedside, sobbing convulsively. Jackie leaves the hospital.

CHAPTER XIX

JACKIE knew that as long as she lived that picture of Roger's face would be indelible in her memory. She would never be able to erase it, or the shock that had accompanied it. But that was not what troubled her now; what troubled her was what she must do.

Roger knew now that Beryl loved him. He would indeed have been blind, if he could not have seen Beryl's love revealed in its entirety. But that was not what troubled Jackie altogether. The thought that troubled her most of all was that perhaps Roger loved her.

After all, Roger had never told Jackie that he loved her. He had merely suggested they enter into a trial engagement in order to make Evelyn believe they were going to be married. He had given her a word he would stick to this ridiculous idea until the bitter end, as he had expressed it, to Jackie.

Hadn't Roger told Jackie over and over how wonderful he found Beryl Melrose? Hadn't Evelyn named her daughter that Roger might fall in love with such a fascinating woman? And there was no doubt as to that fascination. Jackie had come under the spell of it herself during these few days.

It was merely common sense to admit that any man would prefer a woman of the world, poised, cultured, wealthy—like Mrs. Melrose, to a stupid, silly little girl like herself. Beryl Melrose had things in aviation, too—the sort of things to win a man's admiration, the sort of things Jackie had dreamed of doing one day. Possible dreams, she saw now, that would never be fulfilled. They must have seemed very foolish—those dreams of Jackie—to Roger, who had had such dreams of his own.

"Did you get all your letters written and everything else you had planned to do?" Beryl asked at dinner that evening in the hotel's little coffee shop. "You were disappointed that you could not get to the hospital this afternoon."

"Was he disappointed?" Jackie asked eagerly, before she thought. She should have known that Beryl was merely trying to be nice. Since she had been with Roger all afternoon he would not have missed Jackie. "I... I couldn't get there," Jackie added quickly. It was true; she could not have forced herself to have gone into that room, after coming upon that scene with Beryl down on her knees to Roger. "I... I was packing, Beryl."

"Packing?"

"Yes," Jackie nodded, but she could not meet Beryl's startled glance. She did not know what had made her say that, or what had helped her to reach the sudden decision that had come to her. For Jackie knew now what it was that she must do.

"I am going home," she said quietly, and now her eyes looked across the little table into Beryl's big dark eyes. "I don't think that I should stay any longer. Now that Roger is out of danger, getting along so fine."

"I see," Beryl said. But she did not look as though she did. Neither of them said anything for a while. Then Beryl looked up from her plate again. "You're not going without saying good-bye to Roger, without telling him, are you, Jackie?"

Jackie said no, she would not do that. She pushed her plate away; she could not eat anything more. "I'll say good-bye in the morning." Oh, how hard that would be! When it might be good-bye forever. When it might mean she would never see Roger again. "I don't think there is any train out of here until noon."

"I'm sorry that you have to go," Beryl said, still in that same doubtful tone, her dark eyes troubled, questioning. Then she smiled at Jackie, gently. "Though if you think you should—maybe it is best, after all."

Jackie said, "I think it is." She knew that they both were simply talking to cover up all the things that they could not say, that perhaps were better left unsaid. But...

CLEVELAND—Cleveland Indians look better than ever, but they always look better than ever in early May, and the home patrons await the results of the Tribe's first eastern trip with misgivings.

I have an idea that they're not going to be disappointed this trip, however.

Oscar Vitt, one of the finest managers in the game, has communicated a good measure of his own drive to an outfit that already had power and pitching... tremendous possibilities.

When Bill McKeechne wasn't interested in the "Come-to-Cleveland" movement last fall, and a check-up on Tony Lazzeri's managerial qualifications did not meet with approval, Alva Bradley told Cy Slapnicka to write on a piece of paper the names of those whom he believed would be satisfactory.

"I'll do the same thing, and we'll exchange slips at lunch tomorrow," the president told his general manager.

They did and, although Oscar Vitt's name had not been mentioned previously, it headed each list.

The selection of Vitt was a natural one.

An aggressive infielder with the Detroit Tigers in Ty Cobb's day, he had 13 years of experience as a pilot in Class AA leagues.

The Yankees had brought him into their organization as field marshal of Newark, their key farm. He had just won the International League pennant by 2½ games and the little world series after losing the first three contests. He was pep personified.

EARL AVERILL was a heavy-seated outfielder. Jeff Heath had the same reputation in the American Association.

But before Bruce Campbell's injury gave Heath his opportunity in the outfield, the Yakima kid anklebited up to Averill with this: "Unless you get that lead out of your back pockets, I'll take your job."

It's a striking example of what Vitt has done to the club in several weeks.

Vitt has new blood in Ken Keltner and Heath, a fighter from "way back in Johnny Allen, and Bob Feller, the greatest young pitcher the game has seen since Walter Johnson broke in.

Big Hal Trusky and others already have learned things they didn't know before.

It didn't take Vitt long to get all the satisfied feeling out of veterans used to and content to finish third, fourth, or fifth.

Old Oscar Pepper wants to finish first.

The Cleveland Indians can take him, and he can take the Cleveland Indians a long way.

SISTER MARY'S KITCHEN

by Mrs. Gaynor Maddox
 NEA Service Staff Writer

CHICKEN is one of the facts of married life. It's time for June brides-to-be to learn their lesson. So the class will come to attention for the first steps in plain and fancy chicken cooking.

Chicken Loaf
 (Serves 8)

One cup rice, 1 quart chicken stock, 1 quart water, 2 teaspoons salt, 1 stewed fowl (about 4 pounds), 2 tablespoons chopped parsley, 1 cup cooked mushrooms, 1-2 cup blanched almonds, 1-2 cup chicken stock.

Wash rice and add slowly to the salted, briskly boiling stock and water. Cook for about 15 to 25 minutes, or until a kernel pressed between the fingers leaves no hard center.

Remove meat from fowl and cut in small pieces. Add chopped parsley, mushrooms cut in small pieces and the almonds cut fine. Grease a large glass loaf pan, 2 quart size, and put in a half inch layer of rice. If rice is excessively moist, drain before putting it in the baking dish.

Then add a layer of chicken mixture, another layer of rice, and continue until all the ingredients have been packed into the baking dish. The top layer should be rice.

Put 1-2 cup chicken stock over all. Place loaf in a moderate oven (375 degrees F) for 25 minutes. Serve hot with chicken gravy made from the remaining stock and garnish with parsley and, if desired, with slices of hard cooked egg.

Chicken a la King
 (Serves 6)

Six tablespoons butter or chicken fat, 1-2 cup flour, 11-2 cups stock, 11-2 cups top milk, 3-4 teaspoon salt, 3-4 teaspoon celery salt, 11-2 teaspoons lemon juice, 3 cups diced cooked chicken, 1 egg yolk, 3 tablespoons water, 3 tablespoons chopped pimento.

Melt the fat in saucepan, 11-2 quart size, add flour and blend thoroughly. Stir in stock and milk, and cook for 5 minutes over a very low flame, or until sauce is thickened. Season. Then add lemon juice, chicken, and egg yolks beaten with water. Add pimento. Cook slowly for 4 minutes or two.

Stewing Chicken
 (Serves 6 to 8)

One fowl weighing about 4 pounds, 1-2 lemon, 2 teaspoon salt, 11-2 to 2 quart water.

When fowl is thoroughly cleaned, rub the skin of the bird with the open surface of a lemon to keep the meat white while cooking. Place the fowl in the stewing pan, salt it and add water to cover (11-2 to 2 quarts).

Bring the water slowly to boil gently simmer the fowl for 11-2 to 2-2 hours. When the chicken is tender remove the meat from the bones. Save the stock to use in sauce.

INSURE IN SURE INSURANCE!

C. E. MAY

Insurance in All Its Branches

Cisco, Saturday, beginning at 11:30 a. m. and adjourning at 2:30 p. m.

Preceding the luncheon, a business meeting was held, presided over by the president, Mrs. M. H. Hagaman of Ranger.

The delegate to the convention gave an interesting report, as did the chairman of the committees.

Each group attending brought a basket lunch, which was served at the noon hour.

After the luncheon, the principal speaker of the afternoon, Miss Maurice Hearn of College Station gave the history of Home Demonstration. Explaining that it originated in Georgia, it was brought into Texas later. With a map she illustrated its expansion and how it branches into each district.

The club endorsed Mrs. Joseph M. Perkins of Eastland for state president of the Federation.

Mrs. M. H. Hagaman, Mrs. O. L. Phillips and Mrs. C. D. Woods represented Ranger at the meeting.

Hanlon Defeats Elks 11 to 2 Here Saturday Night

By TOMMIE SMITH
The Hanlon-Elk game, which was rained out Thursday night, fared better Saturday night, finishing about five minutes ahead of the customary week-end down-pour. The verdict went to Hanlon, 11-2.

Charlie Whitefield, the Elks' starting pitcher, twirled seven innings, yielding seven hits and five runs. Minter, who relieved him, was treated pretty roughly, Hanlon chasing six runs across during his stay. The game was fairly close the first seven rounds, but Hanlon clinched it with a late-inning shower of base hits.

Goodwin went the route for Hanlon, and allowed but two hits and two runs. He walked five. McCurdy, Hanlon backstop, injured his ankle in a play at the plate in the fifth, and was forced to leave the game.

The box score:

	Hanlon	Elks

Looks Kind of Fishy

German citizens along the railway near Hanover recently were amazed at the sight of what looked like a gigantic silver fish skimming along the rails at about 120 miles an hour. It was just Germany's latest development of the Diesel-engine, streamlined locomotive, pictured above on its initial run. The ventilating grilles and eye-shaped headlights on the front of the train give it a very fishy look.

First Methodists To Commemorate Aldersgate Tuesday

On Tuesday evening at 7:45, the First Methodist Church of Ranger, will join in the world wide Aldersgate Commemoration, marking the two-hundredth anniversary of the "Heart Warming Experience" of John Wesley. It was on May 24, 1738, that a certain John Wesley, struggling with an inner conflict, went very unwillingly to a little meeting house in Aldersgate Street, London. "About a quarter before nine," said Mr. Wesley, "I felt my heart strangely warmed." And the remainder of the story has become familiar to millions of people around the world. So great was the transformation worked in his life, that he is known as the leader of the entire evangelical movement in Christendom. Not only has that movement produced the Methodist Church, but it has had a tremendous influence on all other branches of Christendom. It is because of this influence that the Methodist Church around the world is being joined in this commemoration by the Presbyterian Assembly, the Disciples of Christ General Assembly, the Archbishops of Canterbury and York, of the Church of England, and many others.

The service in the local Church will include some of the old hymns, with the first hymn ever written by Charles Wesley, brother to John, sung as a solo by Arthur Deffebach. There will be a brief message by the pastor, Rev. G. Alfred Brown. Then about a quarter before nine, the hour of John Wesley's heart warming experience, his testimony will be given, and those present will join in the Communion Service, bringing "Our Aldersgate Service" to a close.

This is not just a Methodist service, but everyone is welcome, both old and young.

Townsend Speaker to Talk Here Tonight

George Vose of Cleveland, Ohio, one of the most able speakers on the Townsend Plan, will be in Ranger to address the Ranger Townsend Club at its regular meeting this evening at 8 o'clock. Vose is called the "Billy Sunday" among the national Townsend speakers. The public is invited to attend.

Five Ohio Women Aid Social Security

By United Press
CLEVELAND.—Five officials of the Ohio Social Security Board are women, it was disclosed at a meeting of field office managers from 35 cities. The five women officials hold the following positions: regional administrative assistant, regional attorney, Cleveland field office manager, head of the Lorain, O., office and manager of the Ashtabula, O., office.

"Soldiers from Berlin, Girl from Vienna," is the title of a new German song-hit. What, no "Minister from Czechoslovakia" yet?

Witness in Spy Hunt Vanishes

Dr. Ignatz T. Griebel, above, said to be the U. S. government's key witness in the spy hunt revolving around the recent arrests of a woman redresser, two soldiers and an airplane mechanic, all of German extraction, is being sought after a sudden disappearance. Griebel, World War officer of the German army, leader of an American Nazi group and now reserve lieutenant in the U. S. Army, was reported to have sailed from New York to Germany.

A wise man once said there are two ways to save money: "Increase your income, or cut down your outgo."

Much as we'd like to, few of us can regulate the amount of money we take in each week. But all of us have control over what we spend. And many a family bank account has been made possible by careful spending.

That's why it will pay you to read the advertisements in this newspaper. Day after day they show you where to get the things you need... where to get the fullest dollar's worth for every dollar you spend.

A careful reading of the advertisements... today, tomorrow, and every day after... will help you to do something that we'd like to do: But what you want—and have money left over!
