Cooling Power of Sun Spots Great

By United Press
MINNEAPOLIS—Sun spots are the best refrigerator known to man, and they work on the same principle as man-made refrigerators, according to Prof. John W. Evans, acting chairman of the University of Minnesota astronomy department.

He explained that "the heated gas expands and cools the atmosphere. While the temperature of the sun is 10,800 degrees Fahrenheit, the center of this whirlpool is only 7,200 degrees. The sun spot could make an object taken from the sun's atmosphere 3,000 degrees cooler."

Magnetic storms seem to correlate closely with the appearance of sun spots, he said. The aurora borealis also apparently is correlated with sun spots crossing the sun. Experiments at the University of Arizona have proved that trees grow better at a maximum period of the sun spots, he said.

"Although the sun spots appear black," he said, "if all light from the sun were shut off, they would be too bright to look at. If an observer from another planet saw our tornadoes, they would appear similar to the sunspots, which travel at a rate of 150 miles a second."

The spots are so large—100,000 miles in diameter—that our earth could be dropped through the center "and it would be lost somewhere in the core," Evans said.

Oklahoma Woman, 108, Smokes Corncob

By United Press
DURANT, Okla.—Mrs. Belle Airington lighted her corn pipe today. She said she felt fine after observing her 108th birthday.

"Yes, I still smoke my pipe," Mrs. Airington said. "I've done it since I was a girl. I also have a clay pipe. I smoke it and this one daily."

Mr. Airington was born on April 3, 1830, in Kentucky, but she doesn't remember the town or county.

Swim Star Would Be Housewife

Pretty Katherine Rawls, 21-year-old Olympic swimming ace, is pictured above with Aviator Theodore H. Thompson in Columbus, O., after admitting their recent secret marriage in Valdosta, Ga. The bridegroom reported there would be a church wedding when the families are assembled in Columbus. Asked if she would turn pro, Miss Rawls said, "The only professional standing I want is that of a good housewife."

A wise man once said there are two ways to save money: "Increase your income, or cut down your outgo."

Much as we'd like to, few of us can regulate the amount of money we take in each week. But all of us have control over what we spend. And many a family bank account has been made possible by careful spending.

That's why it will pay you to read the advertisements in this newspaper. Day after day they show you where to get the things you need . . . where to get the fullest dollar's worth for every dollar you spend.

A careful reading of the advertisements . . . today, tomorrow, and every day after . . . will help you to do something that we'd like to do: But what you want—and have money left over!

Canadian Rains Boon to Wheat

By United Press WINNIPEG, Canada. — Soaking rains and heavy snows throughout western Canada and especially in those areas where drouth has taken a heavy toll for the past seven years has brought renewed hopes to wheat farmers.

Snow followed several days of heavy rains, adding greatly to the moisture supply, the lack of which has caused crop failures over much of the western breadbasket.

The Winnipeg Free Press, in its first crop report of the year, described conditions as "the best in 10 years." In every wheat growing section moisture sufficient for seed germination was reported.

Delayed seeding in parts of Saskatchewan and Alberta makes the 1938 wheat acreage still uncertain and unless a warm, dry spell of weather sweeps the prairies shortly the total acreage may not exceed 22,869,000 acres, compared with 24,509,000 acres last year.

Surface soil in the three provinces was reported much better than at seeding time last year, and the majority of sections reported that sub-surface moisture also is good.

Whole Area Hard Hit Government authorities too are hopeful. Municipal and provincial budgets in western Canada have been drained of resources steadily, with some sections now verging on bankruptcy. A good crop this season is expected to reduce the tremendous relief burden and to replenish the rapidly decreasing treasuries.

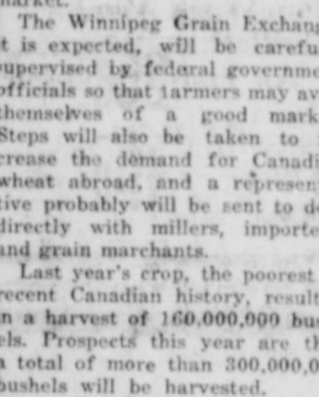

Government action, resulting

Hurling Boomerang Becoming Popular

By United Press SYDNEY.—Boomerang throwing is rapidly becoming one of the leading sports of Australia as a result of the advice of Dr. Harvey Sutton, director of the School of Public Health and Tropical Medicine.

He insists it is one of the ideal sports, and presents the advantage over golf and several other retrieving sports in that the boomerang comes back to the thrower instead of the thrower being obliged to go after it.

Veteran's Graves Will Be Scenes Of a Memorial

The American Legion Auxiliary Ladies of Carl Barnes Post No. 69 will conduct memorial services Sunday afternoon at the graves of all veterans who have passed away.

Sunday morning at sunrise a committee of men, composed of R. H. Hansford, Amos Rice, Lee Dockery, Mack Dutton and Don Hazard will place flags at every grave of a veteran within the Ranger community.

Sunday afternoon at 3 o'clock The American Legion Auxiliary Ladies will honor the memory of those veterans who sacrificed their lives during the World War, and since the war in order that the ideals of justice, freedom and democracy might survive.

The memorial service will be held at the grave of one of the veterans at the Evergreen cemetery.

The program to be carried out will be announced Sunday.

The Ranger High school band will participate. All Legionnaires and their families, and the entire public are cordially invited to come.

Men Also Fight Around the Table

If conferences could help, the world's troubles would have been solved long ago. We have had domestic conferences aplenty, and the international scene has had everything from League of Nations meetings to an interchange of side-of-the-mouth whispers by dictators; but still the millennium comes not, and the world's ills go on piling up.

All of which is brought to mind by the recent suggestion of Philip Murray, C. I. O. leader, that President Roosevelt summon a conference of leaders in labor, industry, finance, agriculture and government to "lead the nation out of the wilderness."

In theory, Mr. Murray's suggestion is perfectly sound. We are all in the same boat, and if it fails to stay afloat all groups and all classes are going to suffer equally; surely there ought to be enough good will and common sense to make such a conference productive of a broad-gauge plan to end the depression.

Yet the record of recent years argues against it. The average conference may provide a useful-section of the sentiment of folks back home, but it produces little in the way of a feasible plan of action.

And it may be that the reason why this is so simply that hardly any of us are able to shed the old idea that we can get ahead only at the expense of somebody else.

Suppose, for instance, that all the groups Mr. Murray enumerates were summoned into one big conference; what would happen?

If they ran true to form, each group would immediately begin to interpret the national policy in terms of its own interest. It would examine every plan submitted by another group to see—not whether it would be the best thing for the nation as a whole, but whether it would offer the best possible immediate advantage for one individual group.

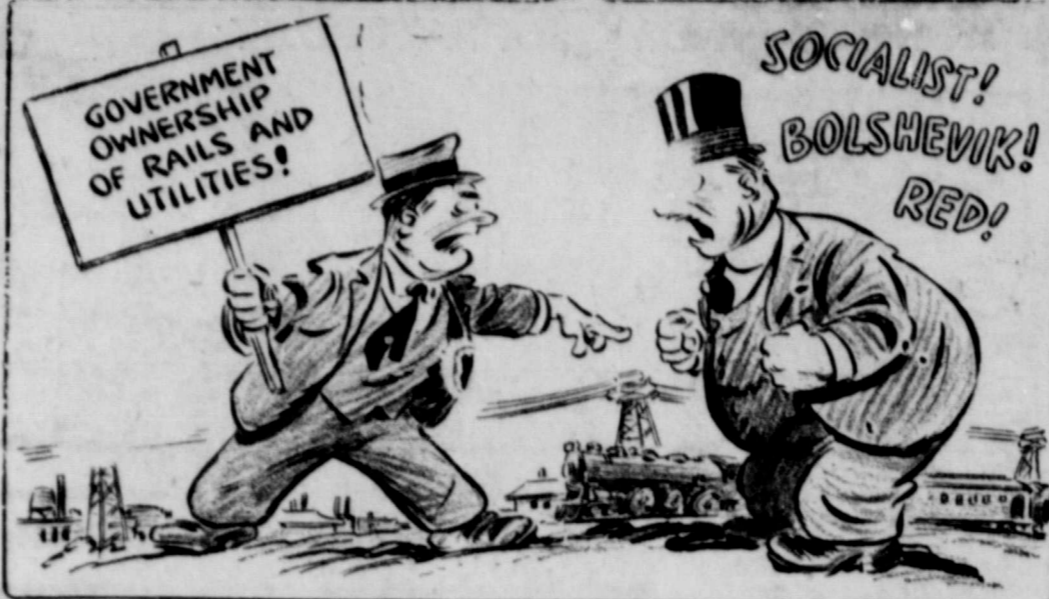

In the end there would be a series of horse-trades—provided the delegates stayed away from one another's throats long enough—which would leave the nation on better off than it was before.

Which, of course, would leave the individual groups no better off. For the whole is greater than any of its parts, and in the long pull all of us are going to go up or down together.

That ought to be the most obvious single fact on the entire horizon. Yet it seems to be about the last one we can assimilate. Hence our conferences come to little good—and a sensible suggestion like this one of Mr. Murray's becomes something that only the hardest will care to endorse.

The Austrian government is considering having at least one aboriginal man elected to its legislative body. We could lend them at least one, with experience to boot.

JACKIE DUNN—heroine who wanted to see the nightosphere.
BERYL—hero who wanted to see the nightosphere.
EVELYN LA FARGE—Jackie's mother, who wanted a son-in-law.

Yesterday, convinced of Roger's love, Jackie returns home while Beryl leaves for New York on a secret mission.

CHAPTER XXIII

It seemed to Jackie, going back to Roger, that the cab would never reach the hospital. Oh, what if Beryl had not come after her, kept her from leaving? Then she would never have known the truth about Roger, never would have known that he loved her.

This last thought was so tremendous that Jackie's heart beat faster than the spinning wheels. Beryl had said that it had been Jackie's name that Roger had called out in his delirium, that his belief that Beryl was Jackie had saved his life. Roger had not been merely acting then during their trial engagement. He had loved Jackie all the time, as she had loved him.

The cab pulled up in front of the hospital. In her excitement Jackie nearly forgot to pay the driver. It was a beautiful light. It held her, more eloquently than any words, that Roger loved her.

"You missed your train!" Roger said. His tone was gay. He tried to be casual but his face still glowed.

The nurse murmured something then about an errand she would attend, closing the door quietly as she slipped out of the room, proving that she had a feminine and an understanding heart hidden beneath the stiff starchiness of her crisp white uniform.

"Yes, I missed it," Jackie said. "On purpose."

"On purpose?" She crossed over to the bed, drew a chair up close beside it. She snatched off her hat, tossing it aside, so that once again the sunshine streaming in through the window made a brilliant halo of her golden hair. "I decided I didn't want to go, Roger."

after all, I decided I was wrong—about everything. That's why I came back."

"What made you decide that?" Roger asked. His glance was searching, questioning.

JACKIE'S gaze did not waver before it. "Because I love you, Roger," she said simply, honestly. The light that came into her eyes made her very lovely. So lovely that Roger had to turn away a moment before he could answer her.

"You . . . you don't mean that," he said. His tone still was gay and casual, except for an undercurrent of eagerness that no effort could suppress.

"I never meant anything so much in all my life," she went on. "I've been an awful little fool, Roger. Pretending I didn't want anything to do with love, building such wild, impossible day-dreams of what I would do with my life. Put'ng on an act, make-believe. I know now that nothing matters—except love. I love you, Roger—and I'm not ashamed to say it. I came back to tell you, I'd like to tell everyone—the whole world—that"

"But you just told me—only a short while ago—that you had been putting on an act," Roger said. He would not look at her; he had managed to suppress all eagerness now. "I suppose this is just another one, Jackie. In fact I'm sure of it. You only think you love me—or at least you're only saying it. Because you feel sorry for me, because I cracked up, because I'm not much good any more. . . ."

"Don't say that!" She got to her feet, bent over to silence him with a finger held against his lips. "It's not that, I'm not sorry for you. Why should I be? So you'll be just as you always were, we'll forget all about all this—your crack-up, the hospital. . . ."

"You don't know what you would say!" His voice was harsh. "Pity is akin to love, you know. Hasn't Beryl told you—the truth about me?" He looked at her now, into her eyes—a look that would not let her glance away. "Yes, I missed it," Jackie said. "On purpose."

"I know about that," Roger said. The look of pain in his blue eyes deepened; his tone still was gruff. "It's no use," he added. He turned his head away again for a brief moment; his hand lying on the cover clenched hard so that the knuckles stood out. Then he forced himself to meet Jackie's eyes once more. "I might as well tell you, Jackie. They don't think I'll ever be able to walk again."

"You mustn't say that!" Jackie protested as she had before. Now she did put her arms around his neck, gently, drawing him to her, cradling his head against her heart. "I won't believe it, Roger. You mustn't believe it, either. We won't think about it, talk about it even. Besides, that has nothing to do with what I came back to tell you—that I love you, that I always have and always will."

"I tell you I'll never be any good any more," Roger said, almost bitterly now. "I'll never be able to fly. . . . that's what hurts the most. But I'll never be able even to crawl on the ground. I couldn't hold you to a piece of a man like that, Jackie. I couldn't let you think you loved me, because of your pity. I'd rather be dead!"

"Poor Roger," Jackie said. "I do pity you, but not because of what you think. I pity you, darling, because you don't know much—yet—about love. Love has wings. Love can never be chained. Do you suppose I give a darn that you may not be able to fly? Do you suppose I can stop loving you now, even if you can't walk again? Oh, my darling! She bent her golden head so that he could not see the tears that filled her eyes. Love voices held all the love, all the finite tenderness of womankind. I love you Roger, really love you, can't you understand?"

"I can't, but I'll try," Roger said, tear that did not come from Jackie's eyes splashed on her hands. She held him closer, put her kiss against his. This was not such a kiss as they had exchanged before. Those faded into nothingness. For this kiss sealed love that was really true, that would not be denied.

Much later the nurse opened the door, very quietly. There had been response to her knock. "A telegram for you, Miss Dunn," she said, murmuring an apology for ruding. "It is marked rush, so guess it is very important."

DALLAS, Tex. — Texas has more than doubled her population since the turn of the century—a proportionate increase in any other section of the country save the Rocky Mountain and Pacific Coast regions. However, although its gain to 6,172,000—mark in 1937 made second only to California in need of growth that year, its population density ranking of 14th among the states indicates that it still needs "more people," as a report of the All-South Development Council.

Bowers asked police to send a tracer for the car so that he may get back his tarpaulin, lantern, mattress and two quilts.

WASHINGTON—A disconcertingly huge flood of protests against Boss Frank Hague of Jersey City has been reaching the White House. Letters and telegrams began to pour in after Norman Thomas, Socialist leader, was ejected from Jersey City when he tried to make a speech there. No one on the receiving end supposed people would make too much rumpus. But it would take a much mightier shout to make the administration act against Hague.

ALTHOUGH conservative Supreme Court justices have no love for Justice Hugo L. Black, it's the liberals who now dominate the Court and the split among this group is perhaps the most interesting, definite fact behind the scenes in the current hubbub over charges that other justices were taking cracks at Black.

EACH YEAR, IN THE MONTH OF MAY, A GROUP OF METEORS FLASH THROUGH THE SKY... REMINDERS OF HALLEY'S COMET!

THESE METEORS FORMED A PART OF THE TRAIN OF HALLEY'S COMET WHEN IT CAME NEAR THE EARTH IN 1910... AND THEY WERE LEFT BEHIND WHEN IT MOVED OFF INTO SPACE.

BECAUSE OF THEIR ABILITY TO UNDERGO LONG FASTS, ARE TAKEN ALONG BY AFRICAN NATIVES ON SAFARI, AS A SOURCE OF FRESH FOOD.

STARTING AT THE SOUTH POLE, A PERSON CAN TRAVEL 100 MILES NORTH, 100 MILES EAST, AND 100 MILES SOUTH... AND FIND HIMSELF AT THE POLE AGAIN.

EACH time a comet comes near the sun it loses a portion of its tail, and this material never is recovered. Whenever the earth passes through these wandering particles, they flash and burn out in the friction of our atmosphere.

Doomed Community Of Orarks Resents Flood Control Plan

GREENVILLE, Mo.—This 123-year-old Ozark logging center and five other Wayne county villages are experiencing the feelings of a man sentenced to death. The federal government has filed the first of a series of condemnation suits seeking to obtain title to this county seat town, Wappapello, Chaonia, Taskee Station, Shook and Ojibway and 23,000 acres of land that will be inundated when the $6,000,000 Wappapello flood control is completed two years from now.
Residents, who have heard talk of such a dam for 20 years, at first refused to believe that they would actually have to move, but they are now reported resigned to their fate. Between 3,000 and 4,000 residents will be forced to evacuate the St. Francis river valley in Wayne county.
The project was designed by the War Department to prevent flooding Missouri's rich cotton producing boot-heel counties and to prevent yearly flooding of southeast Missouri cities. The dam is expected to protect 1,300,000 acres of rich farm land and such towns as Kennett, Poplar Bluff, and Paragould, Ark., with the sacrifice of 23,000 acres of upland valley an six small towns.
The entire project, which includes construction of dikes along the river below the dam, will cost an estimated $1,000,000. Actual work on the earthen dam will start within a few weeks.
Natives object to the government program because they will only be paid for their land and buildings. Moveable property and intangibles, such as businesses and good-will, will not be bought by the government.
Rumors have caused an influx of job-seekers. Government engineers have been forced to erect large signs to inform the job hunters they are not paying $3 an hour for grave moving as rumored.
The permanent lake will cover 6,000 acres. When there are heavy rains in the upper St. Francis basin the dam will impound up to 26,000 acres of water. The lake level then will be somewhere on the second floor of the recently completed $120,000 school building and $70,000 court house here.
Both buildings were erected with WPA aid and have outstanding bonds against them. The school was finished last year.
Residents of the area are not pleased with the prospect of a lake because of the small recreational possibilities. The land which the federal government will hold will be covered most of the year, not by water, but by decaying vegetation. Residents expected that some farming would be carried on in this part-time lake bed.
Cows escaped recently from a run-away freight train in Colorado and the funny thing is that nobody thought of the obvious solution—the one hanging on the front of the engine.

Eastern Mayor Stands Indicted

Warrants for the arrest of Lieut. Governor T. Frank Hayes, above, and 26 others were issued following a 20,000-word report by a Connecticut extra-ordinary grand jury which charged him with heading a "small but powerful, ruthless and corrupt group of men" who conspired to "cheat and defraud" the city of Waterbury, Conn., of sums exceeding $1,000,000. Hayes, besides being the second ranking state executive, is mayor of Waterbury.
The commissioners were C. D. Wood of Rising, Colquett Williams of Ringer Star and Vance Littleton of Cicero.
Sixteen grand jurors were chosen to appear June 6. Petit jurors are to report June 13, 20 and 27.

"Swing" May Become Century's Folk Music

BOSTON.—"Swing" is the folk music of the 20th century, according to Nicolas Slonimsky, author of "Music Since 1900."
"The listeners absorb these at times highly complicated rhythms without inhibitions and vibrate to it physiologically," said the author - composer - conductor-critic. "Swing very probably will be the inspiration of some future symphonists, who will poetize and organize its improvised tunes as the symphonists of yesterday did with the old folk melodies."
