HIGH COURT FAILS TO ACT ON BIG CASES

WASHINGTON, May 31.—The Supreme Court today closed its 1937-38 term with a usual to consider New Deal pleas. It reopened its decision setting the rate orders proposed by Secretary of Agriculture Henry A. Wallace for Kansas City commission.

The court's action was a blow to the administration, which had hoped that the stockyards ruling reversed a 1936 decision in same case.

At the same time the court failed to take any action on the plea of Thomas J. Mooney for a review of the refusal of California courts to order his release from prison. Failure to act today means that court's decision will not be pronounced until next October, when the new court term begins. The court closed its term with important decisions, upholding the National Labor Relations

Pocket Rebellion Of Gen. Cedillo Is Considered Ended

MEXICO CITY, May 31.—Government officials said today that they considered the "pocket" rebellion of Gen. Sturnio Cedillo, ousted military commander of San Luis Potosi state, at an end.

Army planes flew over the area north of San Luis Potosi but failed to sight the former "war lord" of the state. While nothing was said officially, the impression here was that the government would welcome Cedillo's escape into the United States.

Vernest Thompson Undecided Why He Is a Candidate

DALLAS, May 31.—Vernest O. Thompson, candidate for governor, plans to make a campaign tour later, but today he wanted no publicity.

He shook his fist at newspaper photographers who took his picture. He ordered reporters to leave the garage where he is a mechanic.

"Get out of here," he told the reporters when they asked him what his platform would be.

Reporters, commenting on the similarity in the names of Vernest O. Thompson, the mechanic, and Ernest O. Thompson, state railroad commissioner and an opposing candidate for governor, tried to find out why Vernest Thompson had decided to run.

"That is hard to answer," answered James Wright of Glade-water, Thompson's campaign manager.

Boarding Club Is Now a Fraternity

IOWA CITY, Ia.—There is no initiation, no jeweled pin, no house mother and no Greek letters attached to the newest fraternity on the University of Iowa campus.

What holds the members together is food.

To scoffers who insist the chapter should be dubbed Eta Beta Pie, members point out that their purpose is a vital and sober one—eating.

Originated by Lewis Scott, graduate of Graceland College, the boarding fraternity boasts 75 members.

In addition, there are two other chapters at Iowa state college, Ames, with a combined membership of some 225.

Students interested in the novel solution for the eating problem, were "pledged" last fall when the school year opened.

Prospective members pay a pledge fee of 50 cents, entitling them to three consecutive meals. Full membership dues are figured according to the number of meals the individual takes at Scott's.

Contracts signed by the week or semester entitle the member to a reduction in dues. Refunds, also are permitted when a member indicates his intention of missing a meal.

Scott conceived the idea of the boarding fraternity while taking a technical course at a Chicago school.

FEAR FOR LIFE OF VICTIM OF KIDNAPING

PRINCETON, Fla., May 31.—Fear for the safety of five-year-old James Cash, Jr., grew today as his kidnapers, who collected $10,000 ransom at dawn, failed to make good their promise to return the boy by noon.

As the noon deadline passed, danger of violence from angry Florida farmers increased. Gathered in angry knots, the farmers earlier had been told to delay any action, at least until noon.

G-men and local law enforcement officers withheld action in the case, hopeful that the tow-headed boy still may be returned safely.

James B. Cash, Sr., father of the boy, drew $10,000 from a Miami bank yesterday. Shortly after 4 a. m. today, after a zig-zag drive over back country roads, he handed the ransom to the kidnapers. Under the agreement the boy was to be returned by noon.

He was kidnaped from his home Saturday night.

Breathless Moment of Suspense

BOY MEETS GROUND—HARD

Lady Luck rode as a passenger with Chester Nephew, 17, of Batavia, N. Y., when he made his first parachute jump. The leap almost ended in tragedy when he let go at 1500 feet and the chute fouled in the shrouds of his borrowed balloon, as pictured above. But it worked loose in time to land him safely, if pretty heavily. He had planned to jump from his home-made hot air balloon, but it burned while being inflated. Warren Allen, noted balloonist, lent him the professional balloon seen here.

Pope Pius, 81 Today, Has Been On Throne of St. Peters Sixteen Years

By ALDO FORTE
United Press Staff Correspondent
CASTELGANDOLFO, May 31.—While white and gold pontifical banners are flying from all Vatican buildings in Rome, Pope Pius' 81st birthday passed quite unobserved in the quiet seclusion of the papal summer villa overlooking peaceful Lake Albano today.

The only sign of official celebration was noted in the semi-full dress of the Swiss Guards.

Pope Pius XI granted private audiences as usual.

Gennaro Cardinal Granito di Belmonte, dean of the Sacred College of Cardinals, was received in audience by the pontiff, to whom he conveyed the felicitations of the princes of the Church.

Dr. Aminta Milani, physician who visits Pius every day, has asked the pope to abstain from granting a special audience to his relatives. The pope customarily receives members of his family on special occasions such as his birthday. Although Dr. Milani considers the pope's health as "satisfactory," he stresses the fact that Pius is always deeply moved on such occasions.

The pope's weak and fluttering heart is still the principal cause of concern to his physician.

Household intimates add that Dr. Milani tried to rule out Cardinal Granito's visit for the same reason, but was confronted by the strict Holy See protocol which obliges the dean of the Sacred

Gen's Framework Is Grounded by Winds

NEW YORK, May 31.—Barney Ross, defending champion from Chicago, held an eight and one-half pound weight advantage today over Henry Armstrong, negro challenger, from St. Louis, who will fight Ross for the welter-weight title in Madison Square Garden bowl tonight.

At noon today Ross weighed in at 142; Armstrong at 133 1/2.

NATION MORE CAUTIOUS ON THE HOLIDAY

The nation was more cautious in its celebration of the Memorial Day week-end this year than it was in 1937, a United Press survey of violent deaths showed today.

Reports from the 48 states and the District of Columbia listed 290 deaths by violence in this year's first three-day holiday week-end. Less than half, 138—occurred in traffic accidents. The other 152 died in shootings, drownings, floods and other forms of violence.

Approximately 500 persons died violent deaths during the holiday week-end a year ago, about two-thirds of them in automobile accidents.

Trades Day Meet Called To Plan Event For June

A meeting of all the merchants who have participated in the new series of trades days, and those who did not participate in the last one, but who wish to take part this month, has been called for Wednesday morning at 9 o'clock in the office of the chamber of commerce.

A big trades day is anticipated this month, as the one held the latter part of May was considered a decided success, for the first event of its kind, and other attractions this month are expected to add momentum to the movement for more business in Ranger.

Tentative plans call for the trades day to be held on Friday, June 24, which is the first day of the big Ranger rodeo and roundup. If that date is selected it should mean more business as the week-end will be a lively one.

Friday, June 24 will be trades day and the first day of the rodeo and roundup. Saturday, June 25 will be the last day of the rodeo and the first day of the 17th district convention of the American Legion, while Sunday will be the closing day of the convention.

The three events, scheduled for three days of the week-end are calculated to bring big crowds to Ranger and mean much business for the merchants.

Everyone who plans to take a part in the trades day is urged to be present at the meeting, as they must be present, or be represented, in order to be included in the advertising.

Same Candidates To Compete Twice In Same Election

AUSTIN, Texas will witness the strange spectacle, on July 23, of the same candidates competing twice on the same day for the same office.

Gov. James V. Allred has decided that expense will be less if the elections to fill vacancies in the legislature are held at the same time as the elections to fill new terms in the legislature.

The vacancy terms in the House will run until next January. The vacancy in the Senate is for a term expiring at the end of 1940.

Presumably, the same men will be candidates for the vacancy terms in the House and for the regular House terms beginning next January. The elections will have separate ballots, and it is possible, though not likely, that a man might be defeated for one of the terms and be elected for the other.

Program Planners Winding Up Work In Eastland County

C. B. Ray and John E. Wennohs, assistants in program planning for the extension service, College Station, were in Eastland county Tuesday for the second day of their planning of an ideal farm program for the county.

Monday, accompanied by County Agent Elmo V. Cook and Assistant Agent Hugh F. Barnhart, the program planners made a 150-mile tour of the county and inspected various agricultural sections.

They divided the county into the following production areas: Light sand, heavy sand and mixed land, livestock farming type and ranging types.

Tuesday Ray and Wennohs were in session with Barnhart, Cook, Miss Ruth Ramey, county home agent; Miss Mabel Caldwell, her assistant; members of the county agricultural committee, members and Farm Security Administration officials.

Publication of their report is expected soon.

Dart Bomb Invented By British Man

LONDON.—With the millions of dart players of Great Britain in mind, Maurice Darling, former army officer, has invented something new in hand grenades—the dart bomb.

Darling says that he has submitted to the War Office a tiny hand grenade in the form of a dart, but filled with high explosives.

"The dart bomb should revolutionize close warfare," he said. "On a big scale they could be made at a cost of only fourpence each."

"When an enemy soldier is about 30 or 40 feet away, a man with good aim, such as the many dart throwers of this country, could draw the pin and throw the explosive dart. As soon as the point makes contact it will set off the explosive."

ORGANIZATION BILL MAY BE REVIVED AGAIN

WASHINGTON, May 31.—President Roosevelt's legislative lieutenants said, after a white house conference today, that an announcement of plans concerning the government reorganization bill would be made in a day or two.

The legislative leaders did not indicate whether a last minute drive for enactment of the reorganization measure would be made.

The group, which met with Mr. Roosevelt, included Vice President John N. Garner, Senate Majority Leader Alben Barkley, house majority leader Sam Rayburn and House Speaker William Bankhead.

Reopening of the reorganization measure, shelved in the house after a bitter fight earlier this session, would delay adjournment, which has been expected in about two weeks. The only business now before the house and senate is agreement on a wage-hour bill, completion of action on the lending-spending bill and passage of a second deficiency measure.

Mexican Is Given Death In Murder And Rape Cases

FLORESVILLE, Tex., May 31.—Jesus Herrera, 48, faced death in the electric chair today, just 10 days after he was arrested and accused of the rape and murder of 12-year-old Hope Elizondo, Laverna farm girl.

A district court jury found Herrera guilty of the murder last night and assessed the death penalty.

Glass Springs Are Used For Scales

SCHENECTADY, N. Y.—New scales with springs of spun glass are used in General Electric Company laboratories to record changes in the weight of materials under varying atmospheric conditions.

The springs, tiny threads spun from fused-quartz and shaped into coils, indicate differences as minute as 1-25,000th of an ounce.

Quartz was chosen for the super-sensitive weighing apparatus because it does not corrode or lose temper when subjected to moisture or high temperatures.

Filaments for the springs are drawn from fused-quartz rods heated to 3,000 degrees Fahrenheit. The threads, about six-one-thousandths of an inch in diameter, are reheated and then wound into coils about one inch long with 50 to 80 turns to the inch.

Measuring moisture absorption of fibers is one of the uses of the springs. This feat is accomplished by saturating the fiber with water vapor, and then weighing the fiber in a vacuum. The water absorbed is rotated in the stretch of the quartz spring.

The Perpetual Zero Hour

A new word ought to be invented. Somebody ought to think up a good, realistic word that would mean peace, but net the state of affairs that has been going by that label for so many generations now. Rather, a word to describe a condition that has a genuinely peaceful quality as part of its fundamental nature, and a suggestion of some permanency.

There might be a use for a word like that sometime. You never can tell.

Paul C. Smith, San Francisco editor who toured Europe recently with Herbert Hoover, writes that there will be no new war, that the question is simply how long it will take for the old World War to return to the trenches. The language is good, but it might have trained its sights on a little further object.

Language of the same kind might have been used before 1914. Smith emphasizes that no country wants war today. Every participant in the World War, just before participation became a fact, declared that war was being forced upon it. The World War was not the world's first war. The question before 1914 was not when the new war would begin, but how long it would be before the old wars returned to the trenches.

Afterwards, there was no new peace. The world returned to that old peace that has made its name meaningless, that delusion of every war's making that is merely a hysterical truce whose new conditions force upon it the needs of its own destruction.

This present war-without-trenches can scarcely be blamed wholly on the World War. The deeper cause is to be found in those primitive concepts of international relations which make every "peace" simply a little soft music before the curtain goes up on the next murderous act.

During the next war-in-the-trenches men will be wondering, with reasonable fear, how long it will take that comparatively brief period of active warfare to resolve itself into the perilous stalemate we now have.

That is, if there are any men left to do the wondering.

A man in California was kicked by a dying mule, and St. Louis votes that the most annoying noise is a rooster's crow, and there certainly ought to be material for a Republican cartoonist in that pair of items.

Child marriages, according to a recent news dispatch, are increasing in England. Oh, do they have exemptions for dependents there, too?

The 15-year-old Ohio boy who has been publishing a weekly newspaper for the last four years may consider himself a complete failure. He hasn't once been called a public menace.

Cyclists a Worry To Safest City

By United Press

MEMPHIS, Tenn.—Safety officials in Memphis—safest city in America—may take steps to force bicyclists off the streets unless the riders belong to some safety club.

The police traffic department is concentrating on the bicycle problem following the deaths of two small boys who were riding double on a bicycle when they were struck and killed by a car. The city had gone 53 days without a traffic fatality when the boys were killed.

"We are going on with the organization of bicycle clubs," Police Lieut. Toll Fowler said. "We may make it compulsory to join

It may be necessary to force some of them off the streets to make them show an interest in safety. We may decide to make them buy bicycle drivers' licenses."

Police believe there are about 10,000 bicyclists in the city. The police bureau of public safety already has organized a Memphis Bicycle Club but only about 500 have joined.

These bicycle safety rules have been adopted by the club: 1. Learn to ride in a park or other safe place, staying off the streets until you ride well.

2. Keep your bicycle adjusted to fit you and keep it in good condition. 3. Keep to the right of the road and close to the curb. 4. Obey all traffic rules and use hand signals when stopping and turning. 5. Ride without wobbling and avoid short turns. Don't weave through traffic. Avoid fast riding when the street is slick.

6. Never ride double. 7. Never hold to a moving vehicle. 8. When riding at night, carry a front light and either a light or a reflector in the rear. Light-colored clothes also help the motorist to see you.

9. Do not carry an object in one hand or ride in streets without holding the handlebars. If parcels must be carried, they must be strapped to the bicycle or placed in a carrier. 10. Choose your route carefully, avoiding crowded streets and highways.

Captors of an animal later identified as a guinea pig described it as rabbit-faced, sheep-dog-coated, mouse-eared, and frog-voiced. It sounds as if it made a belated escape from a laboratory.

Machines Saving Housewives Much Work, Report Says

By United Press

WASHINGTON.—Widespread use of the washing machine has emancipated the average village housewife from the drudgery of the washboard and tub," according to a survey made by the Department of Agriculture. Other labor-saving machines also were found to be in wide use throughout 140 villages selected as representative of every section of the country. Greatest gains have been made in electrical appliances.

Vacuum cleaners, ironing machines, motor-driven churns, ranked in that order among the 15,000 white, non-relief families surveyed in the purchasing power census taken to determine American living standards.

The most significant fact developed by the survey, according to

Dr. Louise Stanley, the director, was that with the exception of the Southeast, one-half to three-fourths of all families interviewed owned motor-driven washing machines.

The Southeastern states were the exception because of plentiful and cheap supply of negro labor, Miss Stanley said. Included among the non-owners in other sections were families in wealthy areas outside the home.

Among families in 46 villages in Pennsylvania, Ohio, Michigan, Wisconsin, Illinois and Iowa, 84 per cent owned washing machines. The percentage in other sections were: 77 per cent among 24 villages in California, Oregon and Washington; 76 per cent among 22 villages in Kansas, North Dakota, South Dakota, Colorado and Montana.

In 14 villages in Vermont and Massachusetts, 56 per cent of the homes had washing machines while in 33 villages in North Carolina, South Carolina, Georgia and Mississippi, only 2 per cent owned machines. Most Southwestern housewives hired their washing done by hand at home.

SISTER MARY'S KITCHEN

By Mrs. Gaynor Maddox

GREEN peas are popping into jars and cans right now. The home canning season for vegetables and early fruits is with us. Better get into the fun.

If you are buying a new pressure cooker this year, listen to the advice of the Bureau of Home Economics. Select a canner that is substantially built and large enough for canning—a pressure canner, not merely a pressure cooker. The 18-quart to 30-quart sizes are most satisfactory. Cookers smaller than this are much less suitable for canning, because of the difficulty of regulating pressure. Sudden changes in pressure cause the liquid to flow from the jars with a loss of food value, a less juicy product and one that will not keep as well as if covered by liquid in the jar.

The canning capacity of the 18-quart size is five glass quart jars, eight pints, or 14 No. 2 tins. The 30-quart size holds 8 quarts, 20 pints, or 19 No. 2 tins.

Test Pressure Gauge Be sure that the top fits perfectly and is held tightly in place by clamps or a heavy band. Pressure cookers are usually of aluminum, but some of those now on the market are tin-plated iron. These are heavier and require more careful handling to prevent melting the tin plate. The top and cooker can not be ground to fit, as the aluminum ones are, so a large rubber gasket is used to form a tight seal. This gasket must be replaced periodically.

All pressure cookers are equipped with a petcock, for exhausting the air, and with a safety valve as well as a pressure gauge. (Sometimes the petcock and safety valve are combined.) If the family already owns a pressure cooker make sure it is in good running order. Pressure gauges often fail to register accurately after much use, hence the home demonstrator is advised to have the pressure gauge on her cooker tested at the beginning of every season—or more often if the canner is in constant use. Consult the home demonstration agent as to procedure. Follow the instructions of the manufacturer in caring for the canner, being especially careful to keep the surfaces between the cooker and the cover clean and smooth. But do not scour it with harsh abrasives. Keep the gauge and safety valve open and clean.

Tomorrow's Menu BREAKFAST: Sliced peaches, dry cereal, brown sugar, heavy cream, buttered toast, coffee, milk. LUNCHEON: Grated raw vegetable salad (cabbage, carrots, apples with nuts, lettuce and sour cream), half bran muffins, orange layer cake, tea, milk. DINNER: Fruit cup, fluffy codfish cakes, mushroom and tomato sauce, mashed potatoes, buttered peas, green apple pie, whipped cream, coffee, milk.

Am I impressed? Everybody looks so happy—so enthusiastic! You'd think each one of the 13,000 Reynolds workers owned the plant. And say, thousands of them are owners—they've got Camel stock! And they really get fun out of making Camels. Maybe that's a reason people get so much fun out of smoking Camels. Wouldn't you like to work here? Nobody's been laid off by Camels in 12 years. When that old whistle blows, all the officials in this place are right on the job too. And they have only one job—making Camels so good that more people smoke them than any other cigarette. Yes—that's everybody's job at Camels. Imagine a place like this Camel plant. They had social security here years ago. When you're sick, you get a nice healthy check each week. TRY A WANT-AD—IT ALWAYS PAYS!

This Man, Joe Murray

BY WILLIAM CORCORAN Copyright, 1938, by William Corcoran; NEA Service, Inc.

CHAPTER I

I WANT to tell this story. It is a love story, but is not about a girl and a man and the conflict between them until they finally give up and try to pull together, which is most love stories are. This is about love itself, and that makes it an unusual story.

What is love? You'd think anybody would know, with all the talk there is about it. They don't. I think I have an idea, and that is why I tell this story.

It begins with Joe Murray, a young man, a very young man just starting to work and spending his first earned money on the girls. I guess that was the main reason why Joe went to work as soon as he could; that and the simple fact that every young man in Joe's walk of life does the same. Joe was born on Simplan street in the south side of the city in a fourth-floor railroad tenement flat that gave shelter to the elder Murray and seven children for many years. As a little fellow Joe played with the little girls on the other side of the block; as a boy he was tormented by the waspish young girls on the block; as a young buck after his voice changed and he began to investigate the possibilities in the next block and the one beyond. So when he became a young man, rather handsome with his 19 years, a lithe, smooth dancer and a smart, glib talker, with all of the self-confidence that comes from bringing down a pay

Illustration by E. H. Cunder.

There were plenty of girls. The difference in Sparksburg was Helen. Joe apart, setting her family against him or having him get in bad with the police quite innately, and correcting everything in the end and marrying him off. But that would be distorting the facts, because all this actually once happened. I'll even tell in advance that Joe never married Helen. He never even "touched" her, as he would put it himself. Not that it didn't occur to him; quite the contrary. But for once he only dreamed, waiting, and the dream was astonishingly sweet. Joe, you see, was head over heels in love.

envelope almost equal to the old man's—it was logic enough that Joe should blow it and try his luck around the country wherever there were plenty of jobs and money and people . . . and girls.

This may sound as if Joe were a mere brainless gam chaser, out for what he could get and no regard for where or how. That isn't true. Joe had brains, and he wasn't mean or underhanded. It is true that he was out for what he could get, so to speak, but he was not the kind to think twice about what he gave in return, and he gave a good deal, all he had at the time, you might say. He was never cunning or insinuating, and he could forget a job. If a girl chose to be mollified by his advances, which had in them all the nerve and gay good humor in the world . . . why then she knew where she stood, at least, and nobody was putting anything over on her. Joe never cared. There'd be another along in a moment, and she would choose not to be mollified, laughing with him at his audacity instead, and she and Joe would play together and have themselves a swell time and no harm done. And meantime the first one would sit at home thinking bitterness about Joe and all the young men insulting girls, and she'd have herself a perfectly terrible time, homesick as the very devil, and nobody to care about it but herself.

Joe was not very long alone if he could help it, any time, anywhere.

The Murrys at home heard from Joe all over the nation, usually from some town where the smokestacks were thick and jobs plentiful. Not until he reached Sparksburg did he settle. He explained only that he had a job, liked the town, lived in a clean boarding house where most of the people were Poles, and thought he'd stick a while; he was tired of traveling. The old man mulled over that section "land on the railroad didn't seem much of a job to him, who was an expert on a lathe and a good peg above a smorted and said, "It's happened. I've been waiting for it. He's just the one! They've been chasing him since he could walk; you'd think he'd know enough."

"Enough what?" growled the old man.
"What do you think's keeping him in that outlandish part of the country but some girl?" The old woman stared at her man, and a grim satisfaction came to her. "Well, anyway, whoever she is, she won't have him long. The Murray strain is strong in him. He'll blow, as he calls it, soon enough." But the grim satisfaction was short-lived. "I only hope she's old enough so that the police don't have to pick up and go after him."

The old man quietly gathered up his pipe and newspaper and walked to another part of the house. Joe and the girls was a sore subject with the old woman . . . and yet he knew she got a lot of satisfaction out of it, like any vain mother at all. The last he heard was her indignant snort that gave it all away, "A Polack! Now wouldn't he?"

It was much to his own surprise that Joe was settled down in Sparksburg, which had no particular appeal after the first few days. It was a town of factories and mills and railroads with a lively Main Street and downtown district and a lake where everybody went summer days not far in the mountains. There were plenty of girls in those factories, gay, independent girls who willingly went out to the lake to dance and come home when they felt like it . . . which was late when they were with Joe, for they were usually no more anxious to go home than he was. Still, there were other towns with plenty of girls. The difference in Sparksburg was Helen.

Now don't think this is a love story out to be the usual love story after all. I could turn it that way if I wanted, keeping Helen and Joe apart, setting her family against him or having him get in bad with the police quite innately, and correcting everything in the end and marrying him off. But that would be distorting the facts, because all this actually once happened. I'll even tell in advance that Joe never married Helen. He never even "touched" her, as he would put it himself. Not that it didn't occur to him; quite the contrary. But for once he only dreamed, waiting, and the dream was astonishingly sweet. Joe, you see, was head over heels in love.

Her's was the only daughter in Joe's boarding house. She was, as the Irish and Germans and Yankees put it, a Polack. That is a condescending word, but you couldn't condescend to Helen. The Poles are a clean and thrifty and genteel people, with remarkable beauty in their breed, and Helen at 17 was all of that. Her hair was a flower, but these are only words; you'd have to know, to have seen the flowering of Polish beauty in a drab, bleached, colorless mill town setting to know what I'm talking about.

I don't want to go too deeply into the subject of Helen. I don't care to think too much about it. But this is life I am talking about, not something in a love story. They must have made a picture when they were together: Joe tall and dark and straightly handsome with a crisp sort of jaw and mouth and quick brown eyes, half way between a rake and a gallant in his hardboiled, likable way and Helen, tall and slender and a the same time round and blooming of breast, beautifully curved of body, fair and clean of skin and hair and so clear and blue of eye. Neither was a fashion plate but they were healthy and handsome and young. Clothes and jewels and fashionable polish as in the way if you have those three things, as all the great painters have made plain.

Then besides all that, there was this: the two of them were in love for the first time in their lives

Snake Coils Under a Bed In a Hotel! FRECKLES and HIS FRIENDS - By Blosser

SAN FRANCISCO - Lee H. Juarna, 28, hotel bellhop, still believes the habit of looking under the bed to see if there is a burglar (or a man, if the looter happens to be a woman) is a good one.

On the occasion of one of his recent peeps he discovered a snake snugly wrapped up in the springs of his bed. An officer of the Society for the Prevention of Cruelty to Animals dislodged the reptile with a pole and loop. It was a gopher snake which had found its way to the fourth floor of the hotel, without taking the elevator.

Hanlon Has A Merry Time With Baptists Monday

By TOMMY SMITH

"Old King Cole was a merry old soul" but the old boy in his most jovial mood was never quite as merry as were Hanlon's Oilers in swamping First Baptist 16-6 in their Monday night "game." Goodwin led the merry making by getting four hits out of five times up and tallying three runs.

First Baptist counted the first run of the game in their half of the first but Hanlon put an end to the foolishness by coming back with five runs. After that Hanlon scores almost at will and by the time the next eight comical innings were over they had run up sixteen markers.

Messrs. Wade and Puryear divided the pitching chores for the Breckenridge team and gave the Baptists six runs. Puryear's most effective pitch was a lazy, nonchalant throw that came up to the plate as big as a watermelon and in some way manager to slip through the holes in the Baptists' bats. Wade employed much the same system but had more of his balls hit to the outfielders (who played about three yards behind the infielders). It was while the outfielders were pulled up in the infield that Ringold violated the ethics of the game and hit a fly over the Hanlon left fielder's head that went for a home run.

The bright spot of the Baptist lineup was the play of little Ernie Arterburn and that of Onis Littlefield. Ernie made several fine catches of fouls over the third base line and got two hits, the same number as Littlefield collected. These two players, together with Roy Russell in left, seriously tried to play ball.

Hanlon will be in for a stiffer evening when they meet Killingsworth tonight. Killingsworth and Elks were originally slated to play but Hanlon will substitute for the Elks. Game time is 8:15.
