NOT QUIT POST TIL AUGUST

By United Press
TULSA, July 13.—Gov. Allard is clearing his desk to begin preparation for resignation on his new work as federal district judge.

He said he will not resign until the end of the Texas political campaign on August 27. He decided how soon after the election he will resign, although he will serve as long as possible.

The governor said positively he will not call another special session of the legislature.

It is possible you may serve your full term as governor," he said.

He said he had not considered a study of the house insurance committee's report on the department of education but was a "severe critic."

Burglars broke into the Texas Drug Store in Ranger early Wednesday morning and took off narcotics valued at approximately $100, it was reported today after the store opened.

The robbery occurred after midnight, as the store closed at that hour, and was discovered when the store was opened early this morning.

Officers investigating the robbery estimated that it occurred sometime between one and three o'clock in the morning.

BRITAIN HAS CHANGED PLAN TO GET PEACE

Great Britain's struggle to guard the peace of Europe, was undergoing, today, a quiet change of pace that may decide the outcome of Prime Minister Chamberlain's policy of dealing with dictators.

The newest developments have shifted Britain's attention from Mussolini to his partner, Germany's Adolf Hitler, in an effort to negotiate a settlement of European wars.

On the fighting fronts developments were: China: Japanese aerial bombers again led the Yangtze offensive toward Hankow, pouring explosives into Chinese defenses.

Spain: Loyalist troops stalled the rebel advance on Valencia by vigorous counter-attacks.

WASHINGTON, July 13.—The first pair of Democratic United States senators of the group reportedly blacklisted a year ago when they balked at President Roosevelt's judiciary reorganization bill, were safely over the re-nomination hurdles today.

The first was Sen. Frederick Van Nuys of Indiana, who won the Democratic nomination to the senate.

The other was Sen. Guy Gillett of Iowa.

ALFALFA BILL BADLY BEATEN IN A PRIMARY

OKLAHOMA CITY, July 13.—Alfalfa Bill Murray, a tired old man, today watched a swelling tide of votes that appeared to have carried him into the political discard.

Murray, trying to be elected governor again, trailed two new dealers, Leon Phillips, a former town lawyer, and W. S. Key, two-term state WPA administrator.

With slightly more than 800 precincts of the state's 3,522, returns showed Phillips 130,133; Key, 120,367; Murray 108,105.

The primary featured the re-nomination of Elmer Thomas to the United States Senate. Thomas said he was gratified that people wanted to retain in congress a man to fight for President Roosevelt.

Damage Not High In Fire at Ranger

Fire, which broke out in the Simmons Motor company building, Pine and Rusk streets, early Wednesday morning, was subdued before extensive damage was done to the building and fixtures.

The department received the call at 12:45 and rushed to the scene. Origin of the fire was not immediately determined, though the blaze was quickly extinguished.

OFFICIALS INVESTIGATING POSSIBILITY OF 'FIREBUG' STARTING EASTLAND FIRES

Fire Chief A. W. Hennessee and Eastland police officers Wednesday indicated that possibility of a "firebug" starting two fires in rapid order early Wednesday was being given thorough investigation.

A building owned by the Texas Coca-Cola Bottling Company, known as the M. & M. Woodworks place, located off North Seaman street on East Patterson street, was totally destroyed by fire and a cow and bull owned by Ira Hanna, who used the bottom portion for a lidge, were burned to death. It was a frame structure and the fire started at 3 a. m.

The other fire occurred on North Seaman street at approximately 5 o'clock, 150 feet from the other fire and caused slight damage to the east top of a frame building occupied by the Arthur

HUGHES NEARS FAIRBANKS ON FIFTH FLIGHT

FAIRBANKS, Alaska, July 13.—Howard Hughes and his crew of four were reported late today to be within less than five hours flying distance from Fairbanks, on their 2,457-mile flight from Yakutsk, Siberia.

Sending frequent radio reports of conditions aboard the $200,000 plane, the flier pushed the craft toward Fairbanks from Yakutsk, Siberia, on the fifth and most dangerous leg of the 14,750-mile flight around the world. He hoped to reach Fairbanks in 12 hours, about 6 p. m. (CST) and New York tomorrow.

The latest report relayed by the Soviet embassy at Washington, said that at 10:45 a. m. (CST), Hughes was about 1,000 miles east of Yakutsk. The report said he was nearing the Siberian coast.

At Fairbanks, with 11,370 miles covered and 3,380 to go, Hughes will pick up the trail blazed in 1933 by the late Wiley Post from whose world flight records of several days, 18 hours, the five fliers expect to top at least three days.

Elaborate preparations were made here to replenish the plane's supplies for the last leg of the flight to New York. The 3,000-foot runway was newly marked and 1,700 gallons of gasoline and 200 gallons of oil were made ready.

Among those waiting at the Fairbanks airport to greet the flier will be Mrs. Post, widow of the late flier. She is in Alaska on a visit.

A Barometer of Whose Mental Weather?

It would be a little bit easier to feel that good times were going to come back if the stock market were not boiling so furiously.

Not that a stock market advance, in itself, is anything sinister or unwelcome. But we do seem to have a way of getting the business cart a city block in front of the horse whenever the stock market starts acting up, and this current flare-up will give us a fine chance to repeat one of our favorite mistakes.

This whole business of prosperity and depression is so easy to misunderstand. Wall Street is a barometer, as everybody says; but it is not always a barometer of the real state business. It can be simply a barometer of the state of mind of that relatively small section of the population which likes to do its gambling in securities rather than with cards, dice, or race horses.

So a sudden rise in stock prices may mean much—or little. And the danger is that we may swing from a deep unthinking pessimism to an equally unthinking optimism—when what our situation calls for is neither optimism nor pessimism, but a great deal of hard, clear thinking.

Which is to say that the real trouble in our situation is not the fact that prices of divers stocks are very low. It is the fact that some millions of bread-winners want work and can't get it; the fact that thousands of factories equipped to produce things the people need are not producing them; the fact that want and discouragement and stagnation afflict a land which ought to be the busiest, richest, and happiest land in all the world.

And the trouble with a sudden spurt in the stock market is that it is apt to blind us to the existence of these fundamental difficulties.

For stock prices might go up, and stay up, without any genuine remedy for these deep-seated ills having taken place at all; yet if we fixed our eyes on the stock market we might delude ourselves into thinking that the corner had been rounded and all was to be well.

We have lived with this depression of ours for a good many years now, and we shall do well not to let familiarity breed contempt. Not until work is once more available to all who honestly seek it, not until the business man who offers useful goods or services can expect to get a decent return on his money and his time, can we safely return to the preoccupation with daily security quotations.

Let the stock market go up—or down—as it pleases. The less we think about it, and the more we think about the real meaning of the depression, the better off we shall be in the end.

A Massachusetts man died the other day at the age of 107. Doctors blamed it on living so long.

SISTER MARY'S KITCHEN

By Mrs. Gaynor Maddox

THE pleasant surprise of a cold soup will start off your hot dinner smoothly. The vogue for these cold soups grows larger every year. The chef de cuisine of a famous hotel in New York told how he makes them for his connoisseur patrons. Let's all become connoisseurs.

Chilled Gumbo

One leek, 1 heart of celery, 1-2 green pepper, 1 tablespoon butter, 1-4 cup diced raw ham, 3-4 cup diced chicken, 1 quart chicken broth, 1-4 pound diced fresh okra, 2 tomatoes peeled and seeded, salt, pepper, dash Worcestershire sauce, 1 tablespoon granulated gelatin.

Chop finely the leek, celery and pepper. Sauté in butter without allowing mixture to brown. Add diced ham, cook 3 minutes. Add diced chicken, cook gently 5 minutes, stirring from time to time.

Now add chicken broth, mix well and turn into soup kettle. Simmer gently 30 minutes, keeping lid on. Add okra, trimmed and cut in 1-2 inch pieces, peeled and seeded tomato, and simmer until okra is well done.

Skim all grease from the soup and season. Strain and add the tablespoon of gelatin which has been dissolved in a little cold broth or water. Stir until well blended, cool, then pour into cups and chill thoroughly. Serve garnished with quarters of lemon.

Tomorrow's Menu

BREAKFAST: Orange juice, dry cereal, popovers, apple jelly, coffee, milk.

LUNCHEON: Mille Fanti, bread sticks, cold sliced ham, hot biscuits, raspberries and cream, tea, milk.

DINNER: Chilled gumbo, veal cutlet, mushroom sauce, mashed potatoes, corn-on-cob, blueberry shortcake, blueberry sauce, coffee, milk.

Mille Fanti (Chicken Broth Italian Style)

One quart strong chicken broth, 6 tablespoons grated Parmesan cheese, sprinkle of grated nutmeg, 3 egg yolks well beaten, 1 cup cream, salt, pepper, 2 tablespoons minced parsley.

Into a soup kettle put the chicken broth and bring to boiling point. Add the grated Parmesan cheese and a sprinkle of nutmeg little by little, stirring the broth briskly with a whisk or wire beater.

Remove the pan to lower heat and allow the broth mixture to simmer very gently for 10 minutes. Beat egg yolks until very light and fluffy and add gradually cup of cream. Stir egg and cream mixture into the broth which has been removed from the fire.

When thickened and smooth, and creamy, season to taste and strain into cups. Put into refrigerator until thoroughly chilled. When ready to serve, garnish with minced parsley and serve with bread sticks.

Chess Becoming a Force In Community

SANBORN, Ia.—In two years, Sanborn, a Dutch settlement of 1,000 population, has become a community of chess addicts.

It all began when W. H. (Billy) Barker, retired business man and inveterate chess player, started inviting players from neighboring towns to battle with him and other local experts.

Determined to uphold the honor of their town, residents took up the game seriously. Now both young and old play.

In fact, the Rev. C. G. Meyer, German Lutheran pastor, was forced to learn the game as a refuge from boredom because his fellow pastors insisted on organizing games at conferences and study meetings.

As a result of Barker's vigorous evangelism in behalf of the game, the Northwest Iowa Chess association was organized here. Among the members are Chris (Whit) Bang, Spencer, state champion and Augie Schou, Spencer, who once played on an international team for Denmark.

SPORT GLANCES By Gray

BY HARRY GRAYSON Sports Editor, NEA Service

NEW YORK.—Johnny Vander Meer credits Bill McKechnie and Bob Grove, the man his manager sent him to, for the improved control that enabled him to turn in consecutive no-hit, no-run games for the first time in 100 years of baseball and to win seven engagements in a row.

At Tampa this spring, McKechnie told Vander Meer that he was letting go of the ball too early, and that this accounted for the fact that he was missing the plate by an inch or two. The Cincinnati pilot advised his great young southpaw to work on going through more with the pitch, holding on to the ball longer, and told him to relax a bit.

"Sometimes I'd do what he told me to do, and then again I'd forget it," says Vander Meer. "That accounted for my streakiness in the line of getting the ball over the plate."

While the Reds were coming north with the Boston Red Sox, McKechnie told Vander Meer to go to the clubhouse and talk with Lefty Grove. Old Lefty told the Hollander that he'd noticed that he finished his pitch with his right leg stiff.

"Send that right knee just a bit and it will help you in your pitch," Grove told the pleasant youngster who was to write pitching history. "It will give you the right follow through."

VANDER MEER started to do this immediately, and believes that it helped him immensely. McKechnie says that the big muscle which Vander Meer has on the inside of his left arm—just above the elbow—is the one he ever saw on a pitcher, and that fine curve," says Kingsburg Will. "I just know."

It isn't necessary for Me to say that Vander Meer is stuff right now than any pitcher in the National League. But that's his answer to the question of how in the world a young man happened to be a no-hitter in a row.

"I cannot tell you how it happened to be so good in two games," says McKechnie beyond me, and probably never will know the answer. I can say that he's a fine pitcher and has the stuff. For a that low curve ball of particularly in the late part of the game with the Reds, was typically unbeatable."

WARREN GILES, general manager of the Reds, substituted himself as a batter between Vander Meer and their products and schemes using the new big bases therewith.

"Johnny is taking his time in the batters' box," says Warren Giles. "He says the primary a baseball player does not want a lot of ballyhoo."

Vander Meer is a nice fellow with a keen sense of humor. He gets a laugh telling having a no-hit game going in his pocket in the National League.

There were two out strikes on the batter when Ferrell, brother of Wes and whacked a base hit which the steel pitching topped off John Vander Meer's

Blind Floridian Builds a Residence

TAMPA, Fla.—Melvin E. Jones, totally blind Tampa carpenter, is building his own home here, where he and his wife, also totally blind, will reside.

Jones said he had the plans of the five-room dwelling outlined to the smallest detail in his mind. He is doing all the work alone, pointing out anyone helping him might move tools and materials so he could not find them.

They will also have prompt delivery service.

Texas' Offerings To New Industry Studied by Steel

DALLAS, Tex.—Important recent trends in the steel industry, tending to put steel selling competition on more of a "geographical" basis than ever before, serve to focus new attention on Texas' attractions for decentralizing industry, says a report of the All-South Development Council.

C. E. Wright, editor of Iron Age, is quoted in the report as estimating that Southern steel mills "will enjoy wider markets geographically for their products under the new pricing system, and some producers may be forced to shift to Southern territory because of freight and wage considerations, and water transportation will be employed more to offset costs."

He was referring to abandonment of the multiple "basing point" system for steel prices to consumers—in effect since 1924 when the Federal Trade Commission outlawed the old "Pittsburgh plus" system, under which Pittsburgh was the sole basing point. Recent sweeping changes involve creation of a large number of new basing points, so that proximity of mill to consumption point will for the first time become a price factor. Until now, steel producers have quoted prices f.o.b. the nearest basing point and adding the freight from that location to the delivery point, even when the producing mill itself was closer to the consumption point.

With steel producers, as Editor Wright says, being forced to "shift to Southern territory because of freight and wage considerations" under the new pricing system, the question of choosing the most advantageous locations has this industry carefully scanning the southern field and evaluating labor, market, taxation and transportation factors, the report points out. Aggressive, factual merchandising of such of these advantages as Texas has to offer, if combined with official reassurance of the state's receptiveness to new industry, could put Texas in the front rank of prospects for steel industry branch manufacturers and bring long-sought development of another of the state's many latent resources, the 100,000,000 long ton deposit of iron ore near Longview.

Thus Texas' stake in the new developments, seen as an important new phase of the general industrial decentralization movement, embraces not only more advantageous prices for steel products used in Texas building and manufacturing, but also the prospect of becoming a steel producing point, the report says. The Longview iron deposit, known but undeveloped for more than 30 years, canalization of the Trinity river, and the damming of the Red river, making available a water route for Oklahoma coal, could be fitted together to make Texas steel a reality.

The Southwest's rapid growth in population and its accompanying strong market for steel for home, factory and business building would seem to justify location of steel-producing mills as near this active market as possible to take advantage of the new competitive situation, the report says.

• SERIAL STORY INTERNE TROUBLE BY ELINORE COWAN STONE

CAST OF CHARACTERS TRAN DEARBORN—heroine, student nurse. She ran into love and trouble when she met DR. BOB BENCHLEY—hero, handsome young interne. He had trouble, too, keeping up with brilliant DR. STEPHEN SARGENT—head surgeon. Dr. Sargent's problem was something else again.

Yesterday, Tran rejects a date with Dr. Benchley, then enters Miss Philbin's room. Her decision was to be one of the most fortuitous in her nursing career.

CHAPTER VI WHEN Tran opened the door to the demonstration room, a plump figure sat up abruptly on the bed in the curtained corner which represented a ward cubicle, stretched, and yawned. It was Beula TAGE.

"Hello!" Beula said, rubbing her eyes and blinking resentfully. "Say, before I forget, you're to go to Miss Armstrong's office right away."

Exactly like that it dropped—out of a blue, cloudless sky—just at the moment when Tran had managed to forget the word hanging over her head. "I knew you were going to meet Anita here," Beula explained. "So I waited."

"You would pick a place with a bed to wait in," Tran told her. "What do you suppose Miss Armstrong wants?" "She probably wants to know why my well-known sense of duty hasn't led me to report that fruit cake you keep hidden in your bureau drawer," Tran said, nervous herself with flippancy against the panic in her heart.

"Students," she quoted again—from the House Rules this time—"are in honor bound to report infractions of regulations that might reflect upon the dignity of the house." And if your constantly expanding waistline doesn't reflect on the dignity of the house, I don't know what does.

"Oh, Utility—you wouldn't!" "Of course not, goop!" Tran said, and went to meet her doom. Miss Armstrong looked up from a mass of charts and reports on the desk, folded her hands, and studied Tran thoughtfully as she closed the door behind her and stood waiting—very straight in her nun-like gray dress and white apron—feeling as if her trembling must communicate itself to the floor, and thence to the very chair in which Miss Armstrong sat.

"I've been looking through your record, Miss Dearborn," the director of nursing began.

"Yes, Miss Armstrong?" Tran temporized, shaking more and more.

"I was particularly interested in your early training. You were in school on the Continent, I believe?"

SHE'S trying to let me down easy, Tran thought wryly. She'd rather lay my being a misfit to the corruption of European customs than to my innate cussedness—bless her kind heart!

Aloud she said, "Yes. . . . Yes, Miss Armstrong." "You speak several languages, I understand?" "Why, yes. . . . Yes, I do."

"There is a critical case down in Emergency," Miss Armstrong went on. "Apparently an Italian. He seems to be very anxious about something. It may be important to find out what before Armstrong operates. But the regular interpreter is out, and no one there can understand him. Should you mind going down and seeing what you can make of it?"

Would she mind? She would sell her soul for the chance. Tran cleared her throat and choked out, "Of course, Miss Armstrong. I'll try."

As she sped away, she thought, Suppose I hadn't gone into the demonstration room! . . . I might not have seen Beula in time. I was sunk enough to sneak out and meet Bob tonight. If I had, and anyone had found out, it would have been curtains. . . . Now, perhaps . . .

But a new thought brought her up short: hadn't Miss Armstrong heard yet—about her and Bob—in the instrument room this morning? . . . Because, of course, she was sure to sooner or later. Dr. Sargent's eyes couldn't have missed a trick; and Dr. Sargent was popularly known as the world's worst stickler for discipline.

When Tran slid into Emergency, Dr. Bob Benchley was bending over a quivering figure stretched out on a first-aid examination table. The young interne's face was grim; and the preoccupied look he turned on Tran held no memory of their morning's escapade. Engaging as Tran had found him in his moments of irresponsible gaiety, she liked him a thousand times better this way.

The Emergency nurse stood at the other side of the table, a hypodermic tray on a stand at her elbow. Now she stepped back to make way for Tran.

"Make it snappy, Agility," the interne directed briefly. "Top Sarge will be here in a minute. This is really a case for Dr. Carson, only he's just gone out. If Dr. Sargent backs up my judgment this poor devil goes right up to G-11. But before we put him under complete anesthesia, there's something he wants to get off his chest."

AS the man on the table looked from one face to the other, his own face gray and dripping with sweat, Tran shrank for a moment before something she saw in his bright dark eyes, but did not at once recognize for an agony of terror.

For in all Tran's four months at the hospital, this was the first time she had come face to face with terror—or with suffering of any magnitude, for that matter.

Always before, if a real crisis arose when she happened to be about a ward—doing, under the supervision of an older nurse, the simple little house-maidish tasks which were all she was permitted to do—the senior nurse would hastily draw the cubicle curtains that screened the bed and say curtly, "That will do now, Dearborn. I'll attend to this alone!" or "Hurry and get me the head nurse, Dearborn."

Now Tran murmured, "Is he suffering much?" "Well," said Dr. Benchley, "a crushed leg isn't exactly a picnic at best; but he's had a local anesthetic. It's mostly that the poor devil's plain scared to death."

Scared to death, Tran thought on a quick breath. Scared! Tran knew how desperately one could suffer from the most trivial causes. . . . And this was no trivial matter.

FRECKLES and HIS FRIENDS By Blosser

WASHINGTON WITH RODNEY DUTCHER

BY RODNEY DUTCHER NEA Service Staff Correspondent

WASHINGTON—The political situation in his home state of New York promises to be a partial headache—perhaps worse. The one bright ray of sunshine for the White House there is the fact that the mix-up resulting from the death of Senator Royal S. Copeland has brought Jim Farley back to a more cordial relationship with Roosevelt and that the two men are working together to exert New Deal control over New York's Democratic party.

Although no one yet knows all the answers to the furious trading efforts now progressing in New York, Gov. Herbert Lehman is generally expected to achieve his ambition for the Democratic nomination to succeed Copeland.

Roosevelt would rather not have Lehman in the Senate, considering him hostile and somewhat conservative of late. But efforts are being made to force Lehman to support a New Deal choice for the gubernatorial nomination who would run on the Democratic ticket with Lehman and Senator Robert F. Wagner.

Congressman James M. Mead of Buffalo looks like an increasingly good bet for that nomination, although some New Dealers are still working for Solicitor General Robert H. Jackson, believing he would be a stronger candidate against the Republican nominee.

Mead is a Catholic—most politicians agree the ticket "needs one"—and on friendly terms with Roosevelt and Farley hold the theory that Dewey would be "drafted" and Dewey is already have whispered weeks ago that he would accept the G. O. P. nomination to run against any Wagner or Lehman. (Wagner refuses to run for governor.)

Yet Dewey would be the elaborately emphasized that he had been recently elected and owed it to Dewey to stay on the job. Dewey to the elected to office last November the first time.

A Democratic government to Roosevelt would put a crimp in F. D. R.'s hopes of realizing the party and its every aim in its 1940 national convention.

Congressman Joseph Martin of Massachusetts has been assistant House leader under Bert Snell and is likely to succeed Snell as public leader, is a short energetic, hard-hitting project faced conservative of little of the spectacle of 2,000.

He was born one of the children of a machinist in Northboro, Mass., grew up a reporter and finally published a small newspaper. He spent years in the Massachusetts legislature, rose rapidly in state politics and has been progress since 1925. He is chairman of the Republican campaign committee and Republican presidential campaign manager in 1936, was re-elected by 20,000 through Roosevelt carried.

Sets Record in Hambletonian Prelude

Long Key, Ben F. White up, crosses the finish line a winner in the third and deciding mile of the Championship Stallion Stake at North Randall, Cleveland. Long Key scored in the fixture since its inauguration in 1910. In the second heat, E. J. Merkle's 3-year-old equaled the record mile of 2:01 1/2 for the trot, set by Greyhound in 1935. The brown son of Peter Volio-Isola's Worthy clinched the long end of the $6185 purse by taking the third mile in 2:02. Champlain won the second in 2:01 1/2. The Championship Stallion Stake is a prelude to the rich Hambletonian, which is to be run at Goshen, N. Y., Aug. 10.

THIS CURIOUS WORLD By Williams

SEGUN, MAINE, HAD 2,734 HOURS OF FOG IN 1907.

THERE IS NO FOUNDATION FOR THE BELIEF THAT THERE IS HOT LIGHTNING AND COLD LIGHTNING. AND THAT THE LATTER WILL NOT START A FIRE.

ANOTHER popular belief regarding lightning is that a fire by lightning cannot be extinguished by water. However, fire no matter what caused it, and the same extinguishing is good for all.

Will Begin Little TVA Early Next Fall

Officials estimate the project will reclaim 160,000 acres of farm lands and permit cutting of 500,000 board feet of timber while providing a payroll of $85,000 weekly for the three years necessary to complete the undertaking.

The plan is to take the Santee's water across a watershed divided by means of a reservoir and dam, and dump it into the smaller Cooper river, thus creating electric power and locks to provide transportation.

Two lakes will be created, one covering 59,000 acres and the other 78,000 acres.

While no villages will be submerged as was the case in building the Gilbertsville dam project in the Tennessee valley, many historic old plantations will be waded out by waters of the two huge lakes.

The 161,000 acres involved in the project do not include any railroads or hard-surfaced highways. Only 9,000 acres are listed as high grade upland and 80,000 acres are in swampland.

Dr. F. H. R. C. Johnson, consulting geologist to Clemson College, reported to the authority that within 50 miles of the project are many resources capable of development which are not now used commercially.

These natural resources include marl deposits, phosphate rock, timber for paper and hardwood, granite, kaolin, sand and other products. Vegetables for canning, cotton for textiles and tobacco are crops most commonly grown in the area.

The project will follow a course that was charted 150 years ago when rich planters built a canal to connect the two rivers and act as a trade artery between Charleston, then a famous seaport, and upstate South Carolina.

This canal, 22 miles long, was dug with slave labor and cost $30,000 a mile. It required eight years to complete. Boats used the canal for many years, until seasonal failure of the water supply and the growing use of railroads made it no longer profitable.

Today only traces of the once lush canal remain, and many of the historic old plantations along its banks have long since been abandoned.

Death Bargain Is Being Postponed

BURLINGTON, Mich.—Willard Hyatt, 84, bargained with death in good faith, but miscalculated.

It started back in 1919 when Hyatt decided that Arlo Mumaw, monument manufacturer at near-by Marshall, should make him a tombstone. Inscription on the stone should read, "Willard Hyatt—1854-1934." Hyatt was to reach his 80th birthday then and he "knew" the Grim Reaper would call for him. He had reason enough to believe that—his father and seven sisters all died during their 80th year.

The monument was erected and Hyatt began trimming up his burying ground. Death tiptoed past Hyatt's home during 1934 and so far has kept right on going. Hyatt explains that "maybe they've switched dates on me. I'll still wait."

Its banks have long since been abandoned.

Bucking Up the Buccaneers

Pittsburgh Pirates finally have made themselves a definite National League contender, and much of the impetus to their attack is furnished by Lloyd Waner, left, and Gus Suhr, who is hitting .355. The younger half of the famed brother act is swatting the sphere safely frequently enough to be in the .300 circle.

Silkworms Prove To Be a Problem

CLEVELAND — Probably the only silkworm grower in this part of the country is Patsy Semyary, a WPA worker.

Semyary worked in steel mills formerly. When the mills closed he took to growing silkworms. The first were hatched in the spring.

Early in the spring, he asked a friend, who was traveling abroad, to bring him some silkworm eggs from Italy.

As a child he learned silkworm culture from his mother.

His friend brought him a large number of eggs—more than Semyary had expected.

He selected a few dozen to hatch on shelves in one of the rooms in his home. The rest of the eggs he placed in a writing desk.

Surprisingly, the eggs on the shelves and those in the desk hatched at the same time. He was the owner of thousands, instead of a few dozen, silkworms.

Knowing that silkworms have a highly specialized diet, eating only mulberry leaves, Semyary is kept extremely busy providing them with leaves.

He picked bare the solitary mulberry tree on his street. He now is working a tree on a nearby street. He has tried unsuccessfully to obtain permission to pick other trees in Cleveland.

In the meantime, the silkworms have started spinning their cocoons. Some have climbed the walls and have spun cocoons on the ceiling.

Semyary is glad that the silkworms stop eating when they begin to spin.

Those not yet spinning, however, still keep him so busy gathering mulberry leaves that he has had no time to find out where he can sell them.

Pittsburgh Pirates finally have made themselves a definite National League contender, and much of the impetus to their attack is furnished by Lloyd Waner, left, and Gus Suhr, who is hitting .355. Ranger Home Demonstration Club Has Meeting

The Ranger Home Demonstration club met Tuesday for a very interesting program on "Water System and Water Disposal" and "Safety in the Home."

Plans were made for members to attend the two day short course that is to be held at the Eastland

City Park, July 21 and 22. Those enjoying this occasion were Mrs. G. T. Williams, J. C. Carothers, E. P. Mills, Owen Hinman, J. B. Ferris, L. James and hostess, Mrs. W. B. Herndon.

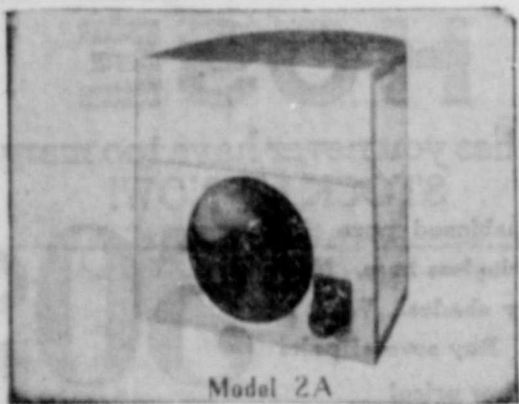

Child Welfare Club Has Meeting There has been a call meeting

This is how COMFORT COOLING works

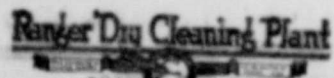

A glance at the cut-away illustration above shows how a Comfort Cooling System brings air in through windows, and out through openings in the gables or eaves. Comfort Cooling installations are designed to fit each home, and to change the air in the home every minute.

Coolair Comfort Cooling engineers pioneered the home cooling and ventilating field. Many of these systems have been operating quietly, economically and without mechanical trouble for over ten years. There are four homes and one dry cleaning plant using this system right now in Ranger. Home units operate for 1c an hour or less. We will be glad to demonstrate the use of either system if you are really interested in one of these low cost and economically operated systems.

Model 2A

This Model 2A is a water evaporation cooling unit; and is installed just outside the window; filtering and cooling the air as it passes through excelsior mat. This mat is kept wet by water dripping through it. This fan is a special built Emerson, and will last as long as it is properly taken care of. Other materials are rust proof. Excelsior mat should be replaced each summer at small cost—less than $1. Price of complete unit—for one room is less than $50.00; large ones in proportion. Either kind of cooling system may be purchased on easy payment plan.

ELECTRICITY Will Keep You Comfortably Cool this Summer with COMFORT COOLING

"Why sweeter indoors when Electricity will Bring Cooling Breezes at the Snap of a Switch"

Your Cheap Electric Service Will Bring You Comfort on Hot Nights for Only a Few Pennies a Day!

This is how COMFORT COOLING works

A glance at the cut-away illustration above shows how a Comfort Cooling System brings air in through windows, and out through openings in the gables or eaves. Comfort Cooling installations are designed to fit each home, and to change the air in the home every minute.

In this part of Texas, it is almost the custom to move out of the house during the hot, summer months. On many evenings the house is too hot inside until late at night to make reading, cards or other diversions enjoyable.

Yet there is no longer any need of sweltering when indoors. With Comfort Cooling, you can stay inside in the hottest weather, for this ventilation system brings in a steady flow of fresh, invigorating air which produces an immediate cooling effect on the body.

You owe it to yourself and to your family to investigate how Comfort Cooling encourages sound, restful sleep on hot nights and makes a home comfortable on the hottest days.
