Where Reds Imperil Jap Conquest

New difficulties for Japan in her Chinese adventure are indicated on the map above. The cross at upper right shows where heavy fighting between Japanese and Russian troops has broken out on the Siberian-Manchukuan border. But in the Peiping area, "conquered" a year ago, peace has not yet been established. At points indicated by the crosses, guerrilla attacks by Chinese Communist troops and armed farmers threaten in an area indicated by arrows the vital railway linking Peiping and Tientsin with Mukden in Manchukuo. This railway is one of the chief supply lines for the Japanese military machine. The small inset shows the position in relation to China of the area covered in the large map.

The World's Brains Need Fresh Air and Exercise

It isn't often that an American can find anything in particular to cheer about in a solemn pronouncement from one of Mussolini's house organs. But the recent editorial concerning collars and ties, printed in Virginio Gayda's "Giornal d'Italia," is something else again.

The collar and tie, said this Italian newspaper, must go. They are non-Italian: more than that, they are "French evils," imported from a less virile land. By constricting the neck, they check "cerebral circulation," cause poor eyesight, and keep the brain from getting proper nourishment.

Strictly interpreted, this theory ought to mean that sailors, cowboys and practically all females are among the smartest and most coolheaded members of the human race—which, for all we know, may be quite true.

The principal trouble in this world lately has been the fact that people have taken to thinking with their hearts rather than with their heads. Getting into a profound and complicated jam, the world seems to be turning its back on intelligence and relying on naked emotion.

That explains, no doubt, the enormous popularity of slogans and catch phrases in every land. People don't want to reason their way out of their troubles; they simply want something clear and unmistakable to be mad at.

So Russia rolls up the thunderheads of its wrath against "wreckers," Trotzkyists, and unseen and nameless traitors. Germany vents its fury on the hapless Jew. Italy takes it out on the perfidious Spaniard. And in our own fair land—

Well, we are of diverse minds here, so we don't have any national scapegoat. One group whips up its rage against "economic royalists," and another opens fire on "radicals" of high and low degree; one group hates the C. I. O. and another group hates the National Association of Manufacturers.

And altogether this cross-cross of misdirected peevishness does to us precisely what it does to Europe—it keeps us from getting together calmly, admitting that we are all in the same boat, and hunting co-operatively for a workable solution.

Sooner or later we are all going to have to come to that. Our emotions are untrustworthy props in time of crisis; the longer we rely on them, the harder will be the job of laying them aside and calling on our brains for help. A world that can do no better in times like these than hunt for objects for its wraths is in a sorry state.

SURGEON-GENERAL TELLS WHY GOVERNMENT SHOULD SPONSOR A VAST HEALTH PROGRAM

BY DR. THOMAS PARRAN
Surgeon General of the United States
Written for NEA Service

WASHINGTON, Aug. 8.—There are two points of view concerning the place of health in our economic scheme in the United States.

It may be urged on the one hand that since poor health is directly associated with low income, poor food, bad housing, that a health program is secondary and that it is necessary first to effect sweeping economic reforms which will automatically solve these problems by raising the standard of living.

As against this view, the Technical Committee on Medical Care proposes health as the first and most appropriate object for national action.

The obvious reason for that decision is that we know how to proceed in the fight for health. Medicine has perfected its techniques. Public health administration has worked out in detail the means of applying them in many American states and communities. The political scientist and the economist have not similarly perfected their methods.

We cannot let men and women die, children grow up to weakness and disability while we are waiting for a Utopia of economic reform to be ushered in.

Recently a conference met in Washington to consider the first national plan for health. Drawn by experts who based their recommendations on a four-year study of needs, the plan was laid before the President in February. It was he who suggested the conference which brought together physicians, public health officials, industrial, agricultural, labor, and consumer leaders to consider

2. The expansion of hospital facilities to make urban hospitals more adequate and to provide health and diagnostic centers in areas now inaccessible to hospitals.
3. New and intensive efforts to save the lives of mothers and babies.
4. A program of grants-in-aid to the states to provide medical care for the needy: (a) those for whom state and federal governments have accepted responsibility under the Social Security Act and (b) those who, although able to provide their own subsistence from their own resources, are not able to procure adequate medical care when serious illness strikes.

Common, ordinary folks are beginning to get the idea that we know how to do a good deal more than is being done to keep them well and to cure them when they are sick. The findings of the Technical Committee on Medical Care, which drafted the proposal, verified that popular impression.

It found maternal care to be inadequate, that our efforts to conserve child health fall far short of what needs to be done, that hospital facilities are insufficient, and that a great gap exists between what we know and what we do for the health of the people.

COMMITTEE PROPOSALS
The committee recommended a 10-year program of health and medical care which will call ultimately for an expenditure of $850,000,000 a year by federal, state, and local governments. That program involved:

1. The establishment of adequate and competent public health organizations in every community under local auspices, with state supervision, and federal financial and technical aid.

Every year 70,000,000 sick persons lose more than 1,000,000,000 days from work in the U. S. Medical bills, plus loss of work, cost the nation $10,000,000,000 per year. The chart above illustrates one contention of those who sponsor a national health program, namely: that by far the greatest amount of illness occurs among low-income families who are least able to pay for medical care.

resources we seek to conserve are as valuable to the nation as all of its material resources.
Every year 70,000,000 sick persons lose more than 1,000,000,000 days from work in the United States. Illness and premature death cost the United States approximately $10,000,000,000 a year.

That estimate includes only those factors which can be expressed by dollar values. The definitely possible achievement under an adequate public health program would run far in excess of $1,000,000,000 a year. One hundred per cent would seem a very adequate return on such an investment if we view the matter as cold economics and omit all human considerations.

FEDERAL RESPONSIBILITY
The federal government has, moreover, assumed responsibility under the Social Security Act for disability and dependency. As a matter of good business, it cannot afford to permit unnecessary disability and dependency to threaten the stability of its undertaking.

No radical change in medical practice is contemplated. On the contrary, the national health program proposes to provide for every community in the country and all groups of the population the measures for health protection and currency. She did not announce what her defense would be, but indicated it probably would be self defense. "I had a fight with Clyde (her husband)," she said. "He already had taken my $5 bill away from me. Then he wanted my last six ones."

"Nothing doing," I told him, and he made for me. What did I do? I tore them up. At least,

SISTER MARY'S KITCHEN

BY MRS. GAYNOR MADDOX
NEA Service Staff Writer
AMERICANS love their sundaes.
Ask your local soda fountain man. He'll be too busy to answer. Way back in 1897, when they closed the barroom of the Ithaca Hotel, Ithaca, New York, a pharmacy across the street got the business by inventing the sundae. Try making a few of these "professional" sundaes at home. Soda fountain is a trade magazine, give prizes for these receipts.
Dipsy Doodle
Use a scoop of vanilla ice cream with chocolate sauce on it. Then a scoop of chocolate ice cream with some peanut fluff on it. A little whipped cream and a sweet wafer completes this dream of a young girl's heart. To make the fluff, mix together 6 parts marshmallow cream and 1 part peanut butter.

SALE AFTER SALE, CAMEL BUYS MY TOP-PRICE TOBACCO. THAT WAS TRUE LAST YEAR TOO. CAMEL'S MY SMOKE—AND THAT OF MOST GROWERS I KNOW!

GROWER JOHN DURHAM, JR. (above) is enjoying real smoking pleasure. Yes, it's a Camel. As Mr. Durham states, "I see the tobacco that cigarette companies buy. Camel buys more to get the best of my own crops and of my friends. It's Camels for us!"

S. J. BONE CONFIRMS growers' preference for Camels with: "Camels stand ace high with tobacco planters. Camel buys better tobacco—my own and that of my grower friends!"

WILLIAM VANDIFORD knows tobacco from seedling to cigarette. His cigarette is Camel! "Over and over," he says, "Camel has bought my best tobacco. Of course I smoke Camels!"

LEE MASON knows tobacco—he grows it. He says: "For a finer smoke, smoke finer tobacco. That means Camels to me and most planters. Camel pays to get the best."

Camels are a matchless blend of finer—MORE EXPENSIVE TOBACCOS—Turkish and Domestic

MOST SMOKERS WHO GROW TOBACCO SMOKE CAMELS. LIKE ME, THEY SEE CAMEL PAY TO GET THEIR BEST GRADES

TOBACCO PLANTERS SAY:
"OUR FINEST TOBACCOS... the most richly fragrant and delicately mild varieties — go to Camel — naturally that's the brand we smoke!"

Camels are a matchless blend of finer—MORE EXPENSIVE TOBACCOS—Turkish and Domestic

IS there a real difference in the tobacco that goes into various cigarettes? "Yes"—say the men who live with tobacco—the planters. These men grade their crops long before the warehouse sales. They know who buys their best grades. "Camel," say the typical planters on this page, "Camel buys our choicest lots!" So, for their own smoking, planters choose the cigarette that gets their choicest tobacco—Camel!

GROWER M. HOLLOWAY says: "An 'insider' on quality." "Finer tobacco makes a big difference in smoking. Camel is my choice. I smoke Camel growers do."

July 31. This was the first reunion ever held by the family, consequently it was a very special occasion for those present.

Rev. J. L. Havins of Austin, father of twelve children, seven of whom are living and five present, was one of the outstanding members attending. Mr. Havins was ninety-three years old last February. He made his home with his daughter, Mrs. Lee Mitchell near Ranger for several years. He has been a Methodist preacher for sixty-three years.

Rev. Havins recalls vividly exciting days of Indian fighting and was also a soldier in the Civil war. One of his brothers, Mr. M. H. Havins of Robert Lee, Texas, his wife and four grandchildren were present for the occasion.

Lunch was spread at noon and everyone enjoyed the day very much.

Those participating in this gathering were Rev. J. L. Havin, Austin, Texas; Mr. and Mrs. M. H. ### Flew Too High

Although Santa Catalina Island flying fish seldom sail more than 20 feet above the surface of the water, a gust of wind lifted this one high enough for little Patty Lou Brown to grab it when it landed on the deck of a boat. Patty Lou's vacation at the southern California resort was the result of her winning an American Legion baby pageant at Santa Rose, Calif.

Angler Claims An Alligator As Pet

By United Press
GREENWELL SPRINGS, La.—Whenever Ray Allen goes fishing, his pet alligator waddles out of the creek and remains on the bank beside him.

It might be that the tough-tongued "Joe" waits for the fish Allen hands out before he knocks down his tackle and heads for home.

However, Allen doesn't think so. He believes that the alligator has become a pet.

"Why, the other day I gave him some beef that had ants on it," Allen said. "He took it into the water as if to eat it, but spit it back instead. When he came back by me on the bank I thought I could almost see a look of reproach in his eyes."

The friendship started a month ago when "Joe" straddled a log in Amite river and watched Allen haul in a good catch. Finally, the alligator was offered a perch. He snapped it politely, Allen said, from the hook.

Since then, Allen has made no fishing trips without his alligator. No matter where he stops to fish, the alligator will soon nose out of the water, crawl up close to Allen

Don't Build Silo Too Big Is Advice

Mrs. F. M. Spurlen of Olden advises against digging a trench silo too wide and deep.

Last year she dug and filled a silo with the help of a hired hand, but did a very large part of the labor herself. Her cattle eat the silage readily, but in cutting out daily the 6-inch slice necessary to prevent spoilage she finds her herd too small to consume the silage and there is some waste.

She plans to cut down the dimensions of the trench by flooring and walling it with rock.

Eastland Man Is Reported Improved

J. E. Lewis, Sr., of Eastland, who is in a Fort Worth hospital because of a paralytic stroke suffered in Tennessee while enroute to North Carolina, was reported "much better" Monday.

In a telephone conversation today it was reported that, while his condition was better, his doctors advised rest and relaxation, and requested that friends delay visiting him until he has received the proper rest.

and lie regarding him with sleepy eyes.

Others in the neighborhood have tried to capture the four-foot gator without success.
