FITNESS SAYS HE SAW WOMAN D TO 'GATORS

By United Press
SAN ANTONIO, Oct. 4.—Detective S. C. Cain of Elmendorf said today a man had offered to testify he saw the body of a young woman fed to five alligators kept in the rear of Joe's tavern at Elmendorf, near the city center.

Cain said the man would be sworn to the Texas Rangers. He said the man, Cain said, said he saw Ball carrying the body of a woman from his tavern to a pit on May 4, 1932.

Cain also said that the volunteer witness claimed Ball drew a knife and ordered him to "beat it." The man said he then left Elmendorf because Ball threatened his life. The man returned to Elmendorf last week, Cain said, or Ball shot himself to death in two officers questioned him about the disappearance of a woman who worked at his tavern.

County authorities investigated the many rumors that came up about "missing women" after Ball killed himself. Deputies were sent to San Diego, Calif., to bring back Ball's wife for questioning.

The body of only one of several victims has been found. The body of Hazel Brown was recovered from a grave near the Antonio river.

WEEK RANGER, COLONY ROAD IMPROVEMENT

Henry Davenport, county commissioner of precinct 1, Tuesday, announced approval of a $50,710 WPA project which will provide for improvement of the Ranger Colony road.

The project starts Thursday. The road improvements, to cover 8.65 miles, will begin two miles north of Ranger west from Caddo road and go westward to Colony school and then connect on the south with the Ranger-Breckenridge road.

The project provides for widening of right-of-way to a uniform width of 60 feet, fencing and grubbing, blading of embankment and ditching, raising of fills, cutting of road hills, building drainage on 8.65 miles and gravel surfacing for 6.15 miles.

An average of 130 men are to be given work for 10 months. Man hours involved is 104,058.

IS HARVARD'S FELIX FRANKFURTER FDR'S CHOICE FOR COURT POST?

One of the original New Deal "brain trusters," Felix Frankfurter, professor of law at Harvard University is generally regarded as heading President Roosevelt's list of possible successors to the Supreme Court seat left vacant by the death of Justice Benjamin N. Cardozo. Fifty-six years old, Frankfurter received his law degree from Harvard in 1906, he is today here at the age of 12, he is today a master of English prose.

Frankfurter is an old friend of the President, having served with Roosevelt on the Labor Policies Board in World War days. "Frankfurter's Boys" is the laudatory name on the scores of former students he has sent into responsible positions in the national government. An Austrian-born Jew who could not speak English when he came here at the age of 12, he is today a master of English prose.

A national poll recently showed Professor Frankfurter to be the lawyer's choice for the Supreme Court appointment. One of his strongest champions is Senator Norris of Nebraska. While never severing connections with Harvard, he has left the classroom intermittently to enter public service. He declined appointment to the Massachusetts Supreme Court in 1932, preferring to teach.

Frankfurter played a prominent part in drafting the New Deal's securities act and holding company legislation, but for the most part has shunned continued service at Washington, preferring the role of adviser from the campus at Cambridge. A distinct "liberal," he is said to be the heir of Holmes-Cardozo-Brandeis philosophy. Frankfurter opposed the President's court reorganization plan.

HIGHER TAXES UPON INCOMES APPEAR LIKELY

WASHINGTON, Oct. 4.—Prospects of another large federal deficit raised the question today of heavier tax levies on the middle classes and low income groups to reduce the spread between treasury income and outgo.

Informed persons believed that if any tax increases are voted by congress they will involve reduced exemptions to catch lower income groups and higher rates on those already paying taxes on incomes up to $50,000 annually.

Income tax exemptions now are $1,000 for single persons and $2,500 for married persons, with an additional $400 for each dependent under 18. It is estimated that reduction of exemptions to $500 for single persons and $200 for married persons and $200 for dependents would increase the number of taxable returns from 2,967,736 to approximately 8,400,000.

MORE DEALS IN EUROPE MAY BE CONSIDERED

Great Britain and France sought consent to attempt more deals by Europe's dictators in the interest of a stabilized peace.

The "peace of Munich" by which Britain, Germany, Italy and France, partitioned Czechoslovakia, just some of its glamor, but still had public approval.

In all four nations the paramount question was whether the future could be planned so peaceful negotiations could replace force.

The French council of ministers agreed to send a delegation to Italy and recognize the Italian conquest of Ethiopia.

Premier Daladier intimated to parliament the four-power Munich agreement may lead to a general settlement in Europe and perhaps to mediation in the Spanish war.

In London the labor party told Prime Minister Chamberlain that Great Britain's position was "more dangerous" than ever as a result of the Munich agreement, on which the government demanded a vote of confidence.

Herbert Morrison, laborite, said that Britain was likely, in the future, to face either submission to Adolf Hitler or a "straight fight" in which Britain and France without allies, would oppose Germany and Italy.

Meanwhile along the world front:

China—Japanese advance units reported they had reached a point 45 miles from Hankow. The main Japanese attack on the former provisional capital was expected soon.

Spain—Nationalist planes aroused resentment in Loyalist Spain by a "bread bombardment" of Madrid, intended to show the population food was plentiful in rebel territory. There followed an air raid with bombs at Barcelona where British ships suffered damage.

Hungary—The government renewed demands on the Czechs for settlement of its minority claims.

Poland—Reports were current in Warsaw that Czechoslovakia might be forced to surrender the Ruthenian district to Hungary in order that the Polish frontier would touch the Hungarian border and form a barrier against Russia.

aval, Military Tests Scheduled

Peanut Harvest Time Also Means Paying of Loans

Murrah Nolte, district supervisor of the Farm Credit Administration, reported Tuesday that 220 Eastland county farmers who now are gathering or are preparing to harvest their peanut crops borrowed $20,000 this year for seed.

Collection on the peanut seed loans has already started and probably will continue until February. Majority of the seed loans are expected to be repaid in December.

Highest loan was $400, the maximum, said Nolte. The FCA loans money to farmers and ranchmen for feed or seed when credit is not available elsewhere.

Loan repayments in Eastland county usually average 88 per cent. Nolte headquarters in Breckenridge.

Water Conservation Importance Being Stressed In State

AUSTIN—Conservation of Texas' water resources is of paramount importance in the program of stabilization of agricultural and industrial expansion, Governor James V. Alfred commented in inviting civic leaders of the State to a general Water Resources Conference in Austin, October 5 and 6.

"One of the major problems facing us today is that of prudently conserving and putting to proper use the water resources of Texas," Governor Alfred said. "Unless this is done, we cannot materially hope to expand our industrial status, nor increase the population in many sections of the State."

The importance of water conservation has been emphasized by Governor-Nominate W. Lee O'Daniel, who will address the Conference in one of his few public appearances prior to his inauguration. Mr. O'Daniel's subject will be "The Industrial Development of Texas Dependent on the Conservation and Prudent use of its Water Resources."

The conference will be held in the Senate Chamber of the State Capitol, starting at 9:30 Wednesday morning, October 5, and continuing through the 6th. All citizens of Texas interested in this vital matter are cordially invited to attend and acquire a more thorough knowledge of the surface and ground water resources of Texas, as well as their economic possibilities.

Governor Pat M. Neff took the first decisive step toward water conservation when he called a state-wide conference at Austin in 1921, for a discussion of this important subject. During the intervening years much progress has been made, and a widespread interest created in a program looking toward the beneficial utilization of the ground and surface waters of Texas.

Congressman J. J. Mansfield, Chairman of the House Committee on Rivers and Harbors, F. O. Hagie, Secretary-Manager, National Reclamation Association, and other speakers of like prominence will discuss the various phases of water conservation, control, protection and utilization at the Austin conference.

Fifteen Schools Are Featuring Safety

AMARILLO, Texas. — Fifteen Texas schools this year are giving courses in traffic safety under the supervision of the Texas Public Safety Department.

The course—intended eventually to extend throughout the state—is offered at Amarillo, El Paso, Houston, Corpus Christi, Edinburg, Big Spring, Iran, Wichita Falls, Lubbock, Denison, Texarkana, Port Arthur and Mount Pleasant.

Only El Paso will give high school credit during the first year, but Capt. George Schauer, state director of traffic safety, hopes that the credit may be added elsewhere soon. Captain Schauer has written courses to guide teachers, and his work is based upon two years' research.

"Safety consciousness," he said, "is the basis for the course. It stresses courtesy, careful driving, highway laws, and mechanics, such as the distance required to stop a car at a given speed."

Texas Gains Its Sharpest Drop In Highway Fatalities

Texas gained its sharpest drop in the year in street and highway traffic fatalities in August, when 112 persons were killed by this type of violence, only 83 of which however, occurred on the open highway—cities and urban traffic accounting for the balance, according to figures reported to Criminal District Attorney Earl Conner, Jr.

Although this was a saving over July of 27 lives, safety officials predicted that the death toll will begin to rise after September's fatalities are counted. There has been a 17 per cent decrease in deaths this year compared with the same period in 1937, when an all-time traffic record was made in the killing of 2,043 persons in the calendar year.

The death list for the first eight months of this year has reached 1,027, the statisticians reported.

August records showed that 1,282 persons received injuries in collisions, which was more heartening to state police, for July reports listed 1,494 injured persons. This indicated, safety experts said, that drivers are operating at lowered speeds, causing less impact in crashes.

State officers deplored the large pedestrian death rate that reached 25 during August. One hundred twenty-seven pedestrians were injured, many of them critically. Accidents in which only vehicles were involved snuffed out the lives of 38 persons and injured 734. Three were killed while riding bicycles and two at railroad crossings.

State Patrolmen, whose forces have been augmented with additional men since last June, will be particularly alert for reckless and drunken drivers going to and from football games and at other events that cause highways to be crowded.

Hitler Is Planning Rehabilitation of The Sudeten Area

KARLSBAD, Sudetenland, Oct. 4.—Adolf Hitler, announcing plans for economic rehabilitation of the Sudetenland, told a cheering crowd today that Germany would have fought, if necessary, to seize this area from Czechoslovakia.

"I did not know how I should come here," Hitler shouted in reply to foreign assertions that he bluffed Great Britain and France, "but I did know I should stand here."

Czechoslovakia to Side With Germany

PRAGUE, Oct. 4.—President Benes and Premier Gen. Jan Syrový virtually completed plans for reorganizing the government to-night as authoritative circles indicated that Czechoslovakia's future foreign policy would be linked to Germany.

"Goodbye, France," said an editorial in a liberal newspaper. The editorial emphasized the strength of Hitler and Mussolini and hinted Czechoslovakia's ties with France were gone.

Cheslovakia Is Economic Burden

WASHINGTON, Oct. 4.—Economic experts predicted today that Adolf Hitler's newly acquired territories will prove an immediate burden rather than an economic asset to Germany.

At the same time, however, Undersecretary of State Sumner Welles said the world powers have the greatest opportunity since the war to build peace on a foundation of economic experts pointed out Czechoslovakia's unemployment problem had centered in the steel areas. They added that steel areas specialize with the aid of German industries which have been hard put to obtain sufficient foreign markets.

The Loser in the East Will Be the West

There is something a little unreal about the casual, interested-spectator role the western world is playing in regard to the war in China.

Aside from the few busy diplomats who keep looking for a chance to get a little ax grinding done, most of Europe and America seems to look on the war as a vast drama which is fascinating, interesting, tragic—but which can have no very direct effect on occidental life.

Yet a very little thought ought to convince anyone that what is going on in the Orient today is a revolution as profound and far-reaching as any in human history. No matter who wins, the old order is ended.

Ever since the European world geared itself to an expanding economy, seeking new markets and raw material sources overseas, the far shore of the Pacific has been one of its chosen preserves. For more than a century the exploitation of China—peaceful and otherwise—has been an important element in the Occident's political and commercial set-up.

Now that exploitation is being ended. The frightful battles along the Yangtze are destroying the whole intricate network by which the western world made use of the east. The "white man's burden" is being taken off of the white man's back, and it is extremely doubtful that he will ever regain very much of it.

Consider what will happen if Japan finally wins this war.

Beyond the shadow of a doubt, China will become a closed field. Japan is making tremendous sacrifices in this war; if victorious, she will naturally expect proportionate rewards. The rich Chinese trade will be under her thumb, and it is unthinkable that she would consent to share it with anyone.

But the cause will be no better if China wins. For the China that would then confront the white nations would be a China conscious of her strength; a China that had learned how to fight in the western way, and that no longer had to submit meekly to anything which superior force might choose to inflict. China today fights for her independence in every sense of the word; if she wins, it will not be a qualified independence that she enjoys, but an absolute one.

The east is throwing off the white man's dominance. Like it or not, the western world must adjust itself to that fact.

Through an error a torch singer started a train in New York the other day. It isn't the first time a pretty girl has started something by mistake.

According to a recent headline, "Mussolini Holds War Approaching." He's been reading his own stuff again!

Father Borkowski gained a few minutes freedom, but the picket line of parishioners rioted, seized and returned him to the rectory.
