CZECHS CEDING MORE SECTORS TO HUNGARY

By United Press

KOMAROM, Czechoslovakian border, Oct. 10.—Czechoslovakian soldiers surrendered two sectors on the border to Hungary today as the result of its friendliness as a delectable concession from the two nations met to settle their territorial disputes.

It was understood that the Hungarians demanded a wide fringe of Czechoslovak border provinces, Slovakia, inhabited by Slovaks and also a part of at least in the Carpatho-province of Ruthenia.

Delegations met for two days and it was agreed that Czechs would withdraw from the railroad station at Komarom, a border town within Hungary, and the town of Ipolyzag, by turning and that Hungarians would take over immediately.

The Hungarian press is bitter in denouncing the withdrawal of Czechs from Komarom and semi-officially in Hungary and Poland. It is stated that the border meeting was friendly in spirit.

Now she is undecided whether to accept one of the many movie contracts being offered her.

100 Tons of Peanuts Purchased, Stored in Ranger House

J. E. Meroney, secretary of the Ranger chamber of commerce, announced today that approximately 100 tons of peanuts, valued at about $5,900, had been purchased from growers in this part of the county and stored in the Ranger bonded warehouse.

Peanut buying has started this year on a livelier scale than last year, with about 100 tons purchased in less than three days of operation this year, where approximately 160 tons were purchased all last season.

Prices for the three grades of peanuts range from 83 cents a bushel upward, with the average price being about 88 cents, it was stated, with first grade peanuts bringing higher prices.

Bond Election Will Be Held Tuesday

Tomorrow, Tuesday, Oct. 11, is election day in Ranger, and all property owners and taxpayers have been urged to express their opinions on issuance of water revenue bonds for the purpose of building a new lake and water pumping station for the city water system.

It has been pointed out that the actual cost will be less than $20,000 for the city, and that this will be paid out of water revenues as savings made in the next 20 years on purchase of water and rental of equipment will almost liquidate the $80,000 bonds to be voted.

Everyone, regardless of their sentiment toward the bond issue, has been urged to vote.

Taxes will not be raised by issuance of the bonds, it has been repeatedly pointed out, nor will the water rate for the city be increased, as the principal and interest on the bonds, if voted, will be paid entirely from water revenues.

Exhibit at State Fair Is Completed By Cook, Thurman

An exhibit of peanuts and peanut products has just been completed at the state fair, Dallas, by Wayne Thurman of Cisco and County Agent Cook.

The exhibit depicts the major crop of Eastland county and is one of 78 such county exhibits at the fair. The background of the booth tells the story of the yield of peanuts, peanut hay, and money returns possible from growing peanuts. It also gives the annual production of peanuts in Eastland county and their total value.

On the floor of the booth are shown peanut products such as shelled nuts, peanut hay, leaf meal, cake, meal, peanut butter, cookies, muffins, roasted peanuts, and peanut oil. The story is also told of the expected increase in yield from using inoculants, fertilizers, and proper methods of growing and harvesting.

The exhibit is in the Agriculture building of the fair and open to inspection by all interested. The plans for the exhibit was made by a committee composed of Wayne Thurman, Ruth Ramey, county home demonstration agent; Mrs. Josie K. Nix, president of the county home demonstration council; T. G. Caudle, Cisco vocational agriculture teacher; Geo. L. Lane, supervisor of the Farm Security Administration, and Elmo V. Cook, county agent.

James Lardner Is Reported Killed By Rebel Moors

PERPINGAN, Franco-Spanish Frontier, Oct. 10.—The death of James Lardner, son of the late Ring Lardner, at the hands of Spanish rebel Moors on the Ebro front, it was reported today.

Spanish loyalists who said they saw the 24-year-old American youth captured and slain, disputed earlier reports that he had been taken prisoner to some concentration camp.

American representatives who have been trying for a week to learn Lardner's fate, refused to accept the report as official until they had learned whether he was listed among the prisoners at Saragosa.

Investigations at other nationalist prisons revealed no trace of him.

Fire Prevention Week Observed In Schools of Ranger

Fire Prevention Week, an annual observance which is intended to create more interest in safeguarding property from unnecessary fires, is being observed in Ranger, as it is in the entire state, beginning Sunday, Oct. 9, and continuing through Saturday, Oct. 15.

Fire Chief G. A. Murphy is scheduled to make talks at each of the local schools, pointing out ways in which fire hazards may be eliminated.

Simple rules of fire prevention, carefully observed, mean greater safety, it is being pointed out.

Suggested as the theme for Fire Prevention Week observance are the "Ten Commandments of Fire Prevention." Here they are:

1. Thou shalt not have bonfires for fun.
2. Thou shalt not make open fires near the woods and fields when the woods are dry, or pass over the smallest fire unnoticed.
3. Remember the holidays and keep them safe.
4. Honor all rules for fire prevention that thy days may be long upon this land.
5. Thou shalt not be careless with matches.
6. Thou shalt not leave oil or gasoline within the home.
7. Thou shalt not smoke in an automobile while the gasoline tank is being filled.
8. Thou shalt not leave any electrical devices without making sure the current it turned off.
9. Thou shalt not drop a match, cigarette or cigar, unless it is absolutely without fire.
10. Happy is he who abideth by these, for he that doth not may perish.

Elephant Butte to Get Power Plant

HOT SPRINGS, N. M., Oct. 10.—As the first step in the hydro-electric development of Elephant Butte Dam on the Rio Grande near here, construction of a power house to house electric generators will begin Oct. 20, L. D. Flock, bureau of reclamation superintendent, has announced.

Samuel A. McWilliams, who supervised building of the Parked dam in Colorado by diverting water to the Los Angeles metropolitan district aqueduct, will be resident engineer in charge of construction.

Built under a congressional appropriation of $1,500,000, the plant will generate approximately 90,000,000 kilowatt hours of electricity for distribution in the El Paso, Texas, territory, 130 miles from the dam.

The output will be seasonable, with no power available between October and March, because of low water in the dam, Flock said.

The concrete power house, 66 feet wide, 120 feet long, and 88 feet high, will be erected by government workers under direction of the bureau of reclamation. It will house three 9,000-kilowatt generators driven by 11,500-horsepower turbines.

Engineers estimate that complete installation of power units will require one and a half years.

Labor Peace Urged As Printers Meet At Abilene Sunday

Demand that the American Federation of Labor and the CIO immediately cease their hostilities and join in a unified labor movement, with the implied suggestion that both William Green and John L. Lewis be retired in favor of more congenial leaders was the keynote of the Northwest Texas Typographical Conference, held Sunday at Abilene.

The idea was presented by L. Harry Kreighbaum of Wichita Falls, president, in his opening address. It was immediately placed in the form of a motion and passed without a dissenting vote. Copies of the resolution will be sent both to the opposing labor leaders for their information, and to other typographical conferences and labor organizations over the nation with a request for concurrence.

Mr. Kreighbaum expressed the opinion that only through mass action of the rank and file would organized labor settle its internal troubles and again become one solid movement for the betterment of working conditions and the welfare of laborers generally in this country.

The conference was welcomed to Abilene by the city's mayor, who paid high tribute to the International Typographical Union for its constructive and cooperative program of service to printers and publishers during the past 100 years, and expressed the belief that the typographical union would continue to rank as a leader in the field of organized labor.

Claude M. Baker, recently elected president of the International Typographical Union, was present at the conference, together with Nicholas Di Pietro, Tarrytown, N. Y.; Elmer D. Manning, Minneapolis, Minn.; and W. H. Harris of Detroit, Mich., delegates of the typographical union to the American Federation of Labor convention, now in session at Houston.

President Baker addressed the conference at length, outlining his policies as president of the organization. Mr. Baker complimented the conference on its action in demanding AFL-CIO conciliation and expressed the hope that the ball would be kept rolling by other labor bodies throughout the country until it becomes such a great force of public opinion as to demand recognition by both Green and Lewis.

Mr. Di Pietro, who has lived his entire lifetime in or near New York City, voiced amazement at the great expanses of Texas. He said that, to one who has lived for years in the great metropolis, a motor trip through Texas is a revelation.

Delegates of Ranger Typographical Union to the conference were Lawrence Dean, Breckenridge; Floyd H. Prets, Cisco; J. Thomas Starke, Eastland, and L. N. Roberts and Don McCarthy, Ranger.

Amarillo was selected as the city for the next meeting of the conference, which will be held on Saturday and Sunday, April 22 and 23, 1939. The date is the occasion of the 30th anniversary of Amarillo Typographical Union.

Reports from Truckee, Calif., said that the invasion had failed to materialize. Root said he would leave special guards along the highway until noon. At that time, if no CIO men show up, he plans to replace them with a small detail of regular uniformed deputies.

Mooney Is Refused A Review of Case By Supreme Court

WASHINGTON, Oct. 10.—The Supreme Court refused to review the conviction and imprisonment of Thomas J. Mooney in an action which appeared virtually to close the last avenue through which the famous convict might win his freedom in the courts.

His attorney, however, immediately obtained permission to renew an original writ of habeas corpus.

Institution of this new legal measure made it certain that the case will again receive technical consideration by the high court.

The refusal to review the Mooney conviction was announced in the court order list which made the unprecedented note that Justices Hugo Black and Stanley Reed did not concur in the decision.

American Isolation Can Be Geographical Only

America is due for a spirited business revival this fall—if the explosive Czech situation is smoothed out and a general European war does not take place.

That little fact is certainly something for exponents of American isolation to take into account.

True it is that the oceans are wide and that no nation has any designs on the territory of the continental United States. It is also true that we could probably come closer to making a success of the project of closing our gates and living in our own back yard than any other great nation could.

But the inescapable fact is that no matter what we do we are bound to feel the direct and immediate effects of any trouble that may take place in Europe.

Whether we regain a good share of our lost prosperity this fall will apparently depend (in large part, at least) on events in Berlin, Prague, London, and Paris.

No talk about "staying at home and minding our own business" can either change or disguise that fact. And so we are simply shutting our eyes to reality when we say that we don't care what happens in Europe.

This doesn't mean that we ought to mobilize our army and prepare our navy for a quick trip across the Atlantic. A general war would mean destruction and ruin for all parties involved, and we shouldn't help ourselves very much by declaring ourselves in on it.

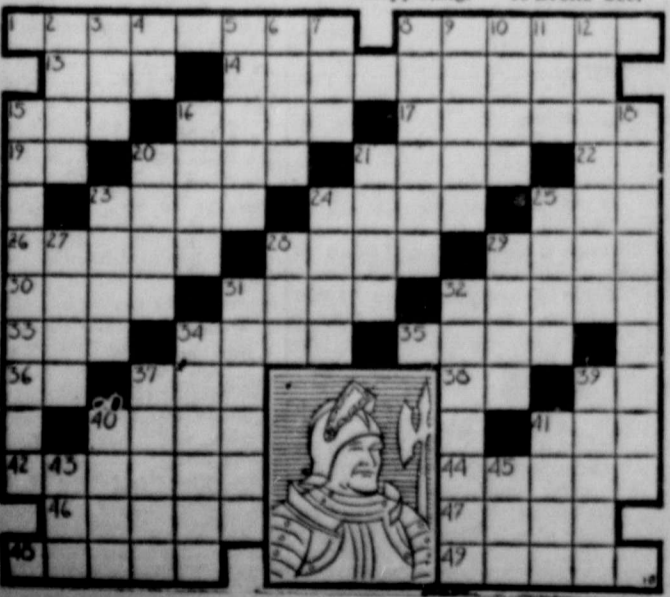

Perhaps it is now too late for us to shape our policies by that fact. The die may already have been cast. But if this crisis is passed without an explosion, the lesson should not be lost on us.

We don't want to "get involved" in Europe's quarrels, certainly. Yet when those quarrels reach the boiling point we have to pay for them anyway; isn't it to our interest to do what we can, beforehand, to get those quarrels adjusted?

A psychologist announces that the well-to-do worry more than the poor. Of course the poor have nothing to worry about—practically everything has already happened.

Gilmer Expecting Many at Festival

GILMER, Texas. — Gilmer expects between 40,000 and 50,000 visitors to pay homage to the sweet potato during the three days beginning Oct. 27.

The fourth annual East Texas Yamboree will be staged while East Texas harvests its plentiful crop of sweet potatoes.

A Yam Show with cash prizes for winning exhibits is planned as a part of the celebration. The program also will include spectacles and entertainment.

Visitors will be taken on tours of the sweet potato fields in this area and shown the curing houses where the yams are conditioned for marketing.

Queen Yam IV will be crowned before a court of princesses from a score of East Texas cities. The main Yamboree parade will be staged, and a Marchista—massed band marching and formation performance—will be directed by Jack Mahan, bandmaster of Union Grove high school.

Other entertainments will include an old fiddlers' contest, dances, and a home demonstration club's tea to be attended by women from 21 counties.

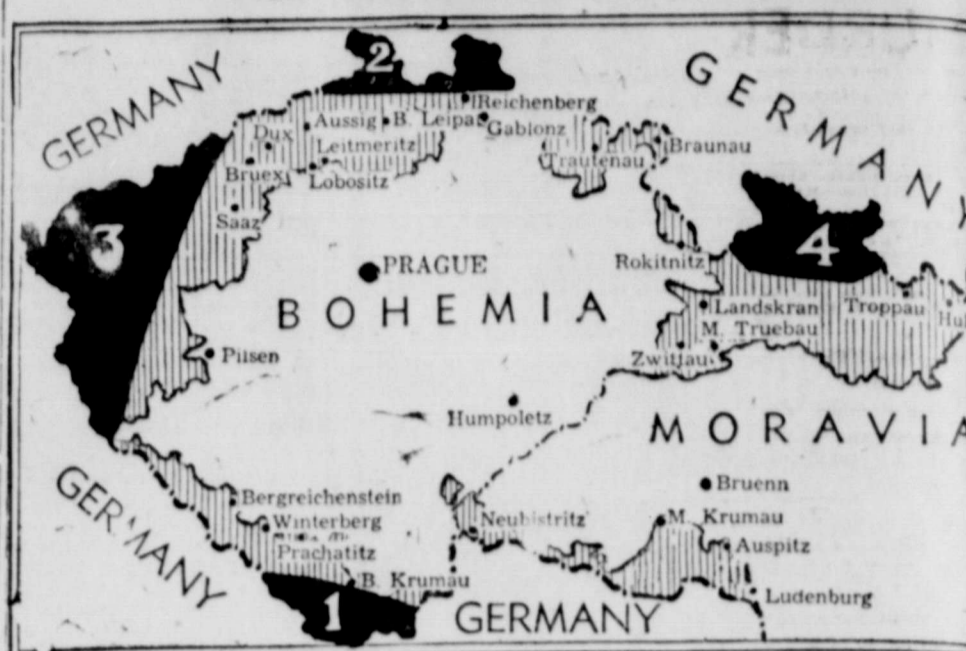

The East Texas yam crop in 25 years has grown from a small yield for home consumption to a $4,000,000 industry. Approximately 70,000 acres of land are devoted to yam cultivation in the region this year.

Former Gang Moll Believes Fate Has Directed Her Life

HOUSTON, Texas.—Nell Davis, 38, whose fourth husband was one of the 12 victims of the St. Valentine's Day massacre in Chicago 10 years ago, is a fatalist.

Arraigned here on a narcotics charge, Nell told of five marriages, of association with gangsters, addition to narcotics, a jewel theft of which she was suspected, gunfights with the law, and prostitution.

"I think a person's course in life is picked out for him," she philosophized. "I don't think he has anything to do about it."

Nell said she was married at the age of 15 and before she was 16 she had a son. He now has a wife and a child and he works for an oil company. Her father and two brothers live in Texas.

Nell began drifting early, living fast and riotously with shady characters. Her third husband was Herbert "Slim" Holliday, midwest train and bank robber who was convicted of a $3,000,000 train holdup in 1923.

"He got 25 years for that," Nell said. "But they let him out after he served five years. They hoped he would lead them to the $500,000 share he got."

Holliday was killed during the holdup of an express agency shortly afterwards, and Nell says the $500,000 is buried "somewhere in Kansas right now."

Clarence Ballaw was the fourth husband. He was a member of the "Bugs" Moran mob in Chicago. Nell says Al Capone's gang committed the St. Valentine's Day murders.

Once Nell acted as go-between and recovered some stolen jewels at Austin, Texas. She said she was promised immunity.

"I knew who had the jewels and got them back, but they charged me anyway," she said. "I was finally acquitted."

Nell pleaded not guilty to the narcotics charge here.

MURDER TO MUSIC

BY NARD JONES

COPYRIGHT, 1938 NEA SERVICE, INC.

CAST OF CHARACTERS
MYRNA DOMBEY—heroine, wife of the sensational aving band leader.

ROBERT TAIT—hero, newspaper photographer—detective.

ANN LESTER—Myrna's closest friend.

DANNIE FEELEY—oldest of three boys, who was assigned to investigate Lud's murder.

Yesterday, Tait and Anne find the cottage and discover Myrna's hiding place.

CHAPTER VI

Oh, Myrna!

Anne stumbled forward in the darkness and clutched the frightened girl who stood back against the wall.

"Anne! . . ." Myrna's voice choked. "I might know you'd try to find me—and after that, I wanted you to!"

"How about some light?" Tait asked, trying to make his voice sound jovial.

Myrna did not answer at once. When she demanded in a queer, shrill voice, "Who is that, Anne?"

"Robert Tait. He was—at our table."

"In the silence Tait's eyes grew accustomed to the dark room. He glanced at Myrna and across it. A light struck, and her hands were lighting a kerosene lamp at the table. In the uncertain yellow light she looked very little like the smart, happy girl he had met only a few hours before at the Casino-Plaza.

"You'd better sit down," he said as he lit the lamp.

"Cigaret?"

She took one gratefully, accepted his light with fingers trembling. "Thanks . . . so much. I—I suppose I'm a coward and act like this. But I wanted to see you. Just keep on running. And remember the only place I could hide was here."

Tait nodded. "Fortunately Anne knew you well enough to figure out that. And we don't think you're a coward. I believe I'd want to scam myself. But it won't do you much good, Myrna. We've got to face the music."

"I could have slit his own tongue as he mentioned 'music' for Myrna cringed at the word.

"You'll be all right," Anne said. "They'll want to ask you a few questions. It can't be worse than that."

"They?"

"The police," said Tait gently.

Myrna's head raised in bewilderment. "Then—then they don't know who killed him?"

"Not yet, Myrna."

THE girl was silent a moment, staring into space. Then she straightened in her chair, her fists clenching. The cigaret dropped to the floor. "It was one of those women who did it," she cried. "They were all in love with him. They couldn't bear to see one woman have him. So you see—I—I'm really to blame. If he hadn't married—"

Tait took her by the shoulders. "That's enough of that kind of talk, Myrna. You've got to get hold of yourself." He held her gaze sharply. "Who was with you here tonight, Myrna?"

"With me?"

Anne Lester's voice cut in gently. "Listen, Myrna, when you tell the truth it's good enough for me. Didn't you know there was someone else around here tonight?"

"No. You—you must be mistaken."

Tait shot a significant glance toward Anne. "Perhaps we were. We thought we heard someone in the brush." He took up the lamp. "We can negotiate that path better with this, I think. Let's get back to town."

Without protest, Myrna allowed Anne to take her arm and guide her from the shack. Tait went ahead, holding the lamp aloft. When they reached the car, he blew against the wick. Then, after holding the lamp to cool a moment, he tossed it into the tall weeds by the side of the road.

THEY put Myrna between them in the little coupe, and started down the narrow road. For the first time, Tait noticed Myrna's shoes. They were the evening slippers she had worn to her wedding. And they were streaked and torn. The hem of her long dress was in shreds!

"Myrna, how did you get here?"

"I hired a taxi to the fork in the road," she said dully.

"And tramped here the rest of the way?"

"Yes. I didn't want the driver to know where I was going. I—"

(chick peas) and others. Were it not for devaluation, says the review, there probably would be a much more severe crisis in the Peninsula of Yucatan as a result of the loss of the market of binder twine and other unfavorable factors following the collectivization of the henequen plantations.

2. Agriculture is better in 1938. Even though the food crops are insufficient to feed Mexico's 18,000,000 inhabitants, it will be necessary to import less than in 1937 "for reasons which it is easy to guess." This is the bank's diplomatic way of saying that the poor Mexicans are eating less this year than usual because of hard times.

3. Restrictions on banking credit have been removed to a great extent, alleviating the situation of the small towns particularly.

"Interstate rates in all the Republic now approach 8 per cent, more or less, compared with 10 and 12 per cent, which had been current." In 1937, credit was tight as the government was trying to hold the peso pegged at 3.60. Now it is comparatively easier.

The bank estimates the 1938 wheat crop at 290,500 tons, compared with 289,600 for 1937.

Consumption last year was 375,000 tons, but for this year is estimated at only 236,000 tons. The deficit will be made up, as usual, by imports from the United States and Argentina. The corn crop prospects are good, and some even predict that it will not be necessary to import any corn (maize) this year. The price of beans, probably the most important item of the lower classes' diet, has gone down, says the review, "but food-stuffs are still high, being about 30 per cent above the prices prevailing in October, 1937."

The crisis in the textile and shoe industries continues, reflecting the decreased purchasing power of the masses. Public and private building activities have been reduced, while the sale of automobiles, household implements, tools, and similar commodities, has declined considerably in recent months.

High prices abroad of silver, copper, lead and zinc have been favorable factors for mining—Mexico's premier industry.

The cotton crop is estimated by the bank at around 225,000 bales this year, compared with earlier estimates of 240,000. Last year it was 339,500 bales. Cotton consumption is much lower this year.

Beer factories have paid dividends averaging 10 per cent, while the insurance business is booming, told him I lived in a farm house down the other road and didn't want my father to hear the car so late. The fare was more than I could pay, and I—" her voice broke. "I had to give him Lud's ring."

"Do you know the company that ran the cab?"

"It was a green and red one."

"Good. The outfit's all right. I'll straighten up the fare, and we'll get back the ring."

WEARILY Myrna dropped her head on Anne Lester's shoulder. Soon she was asleep, oblivious to the noise of the car's engine. After a moment, Anne said softly, "What's the program when we get back to town?"

"I think you gals had better sleep in my apartment. Mike Dunphy and Dannie Feeley may be camping around yours. We'll let her sleep until noon, at least. Then we'll have some lunch and rehearse a little talk Myrna will have to give down at headquarters."

Anne's eyes were filled with grateful admiration. "I don't imagine they make a man any better than you, Bob Tait."

"There've been plenty of complaints," grunted Tait. "Another thing—you and Myrna can't go out in daylight in the clothes you're wearing. Tomorrow when the stores open you'd better do some shopping. I can furnish the price of a couple of modest outfits—"

"Oh, no. My credit's good at Bilger's. I'll go there."

fully, "I'll admit I'm glad to hear that. I don't know how long it will be to my next job. Looks like I'm going to be too busy to take any pictures for a while."

"But why? As soon as Myrna puts in an appearance—"

"She's going to be in hot water. And the police are likely to want to keep her there as long as they're up a tree. This is going to be a tough one to crack, even for a smart fellow like Dannie Feeley. And Lud Dombey was so well known that the public won't let it slide." He looked apprehensively at the sleeping girl.

"The fact is, I don't think Myrna is going to get out of this mess until the murder of Dombey is unmistakably fastened on somebody else."

Anne was silent a moment. "And you mean—you'll keep on helping until it is?"

"God and Dannie Feeley willing, yes," he grinned. "I'm a Boy Scout at heart."

Figures in Farm Emergency Moves

Falling prices and farm surpluses brought swift action from secretary of Agriculture, Henry Wallace. Seeking increased domestic consumption for cotton, Wallace named a special cotton committee, probable head of which will be Harry L. Brown, assistant secretary. Department personnel shifts included appointment of H. R. Tolley to head the Bureau of Agricultural Economics and naming of A. G. Black as director of marketing and regulatory work.

WASHINGTON LETTER

BY RODNEY DUTCHER

NEA Service Staff Correspondent

WASHINGTON — Although so many Democrats walked out on the President in the primaries that the "purge" became largely a flop, believers in the celebrated "Roosevelt luck" still have their heads up.

A European crisis and a disastrous hurricane in the northeast came along just in time to bury the "purge" debacle as a major news story and to spotlight F. D. R. in two roles wherein he could hardly help enjoy public support.

It always happens that way, according to those who think Roosevelt's luck never fails.

With no war clouds to face or hurricane wreckage to clean up, the President would have had to stand and answer questions in the wake of his failure to beat a single conservative Democratic senator among those for whose defeat he worked or hoped.

But his failure in the primaries is blurred, temporarily at least, as the national picture shows Roosevelt assuming his place as the national leader in a situation of international peril and as the benevolent leader in Washington extending federal aid to storm-stricken areas.

Harry Hopkins, strongest single individual behind the "purge" except Roosevelt himself, becomes an agent of mercy as he goes to confer with the New England governors on hurricane relief.

Finally, the last act of the "purge" primaries turned in the one Roosevelt victory over an anti-New Deal Democrat when Congressman John J. O'Connor of

New York, chairman of the House Rules Committee, won the Republican but lost the Democratic nomination.

O'Connor may be re-elected, but he loses the strategic post which enabled him to block administration bills.

None of this means the President won't eventually have to face the consequences of his lost battles against Senators George in Georgia, Tydings in Maryland, Smith in South Carolina and Gillette in Iowa. In the next Congress Roosevelt or "against" him and if Roosevelt doesn't adopt a more conciliatory attitude toward the Democratic conservative wing, Capitol Hill will be the scene of a running cat-and-dog fight rather than an agency for producing legislation.

Roosevelt must choose whether he prefers to compromise with men of the type he has tried and failed to defeat in the primaries or to continue to wage war in the hope of forging 1940 issues by accentuating the liberal-conservative cleavage.

Tentatively there are three main points of the Roosevelt program on which he must have congressional co-operation if he is to get anywhere. They are: 1. Anti-monopoly legislation. 2. Government reorganization. 3. Tax revision.

On these fronts Roosevelt can elect to wheedle a little bit from Congress or to refuse compromise and seek to popularize the issue, pending an effort to dominate the party and its presidential nomination in 1940.

SISTER MARY'S KITCHEN

BY MRS. GAYNOR MADDOX

NEA Service Staff Writer

THERE is talk of venison when the leaves turn red. Soon hunters' wives will be asking for recipes. They do every year.

Young deer meat is more tender. It should be deep pink to red with white fat, and if you use the entire animal, look at the hooves. If they are widely spread, the critter is old.

Venison to be tender, must be well hung in a cold place. If you buy yours from the butcher, he will have attended to this matter for you.

Remember that deer meat is rather dry and therefore should be larded with strips of salt pork, or be rubbed with oil or butter before cooking. Undercooking tends to be a virtue, whereas overcooking of venison should be regarded as a violation of the game laws.

Venison Steaks

Wipe meat with damp cloth and trim off any musty parts. Cut meat from loin or leg about 1 1/2 inches thick. Season and brush with melted butter. Broil over or under hot fire for no more than five minutes on each side. Serve with tart jelly and a sauce of lemon juice with melted butter.

Colorado Venison

Venison steaks 1 1/2 inches thick, salt, pepper, melted butter, 1-2 glass currant jelly, 1 teaspoon white grape juice.

Tomorrow's Menu

BREAKFAST: Grapefruit and orange juice, dry cereal, waffles with scrambled eggs, coffee, milk.

LUNCHEON: Tomato juice, creamed dried beef, buttered toast, spiced pears, nut cookies, tea, milk.

DINNER: Colorado venison steaks, roast sweet potatoes, mixed cooked vegetable salad, squash pie, coffee, milk.

Wipe steaks clean. Rub with salt and pepper. Brush liberally with melted butter. Use greased broiler. Broil over clear fire. Turn to brown both sides. Do not overcook. Place on hot platter. Combine currant jelly with white grape juice. Pour around the venison. Serve hot.

Roast Leg of Venison

To roast a leg of venison, follow rule for roasting leg of lamb, only shorten the cooking time. Wipe leg well, season and brush with melted butter. Cook in hot oven (450 degrees F.) for 30 minutes, then reduce heat to moderately hot (350 degrees F.) and allow 15 minutes per pound for entire cooking time.

Dust with flour when half done. When meal begins to brown brush with melted currant jelly. Add a little water to pan and baste frequently until done.

Mexico's Business Situation Shows An Improvement

MEXICO CITY—Mexico's business situation has improved slightly since the drop following the expropriation of the foreign oil companies on March 18, according to a September business review of a National Bank of Mexico. This bank is not to be confused with the central banking institution, the Bank of Mexico.

"In spite of the rainy season," the review says, "and of some factors which have upset business, the situation as a whole is not as deplorable as it was in April and May."

The rainy season, which runs from June to October, is always bad for business, as many roads become impassable and trade is slowed up.

Favorable factors outlined by the bank's review are:

1. The depreciation of the peso from 3.60 to the dollar to 5.00 has greatly benefited Mexico's export industries, principally mining.

Science Defeats Forgers Who Prey On Bank Accounts

AUSTIN—Science is defeating the efforts of forgers who prey upon the bank accounts of honest citizens in what was once a divided paying pursuit for criminals of artistic turns.

In the crime detection laboratory at state police headquarters, where an average of two forged documents are studied and compared with genuine papers each week, there are delicate instruments galore with which Joe S. Fletcher, examiner of questioned documents, "raps" questioned writings. In his profession, the state expert deals with numerous types of forgeries which might have gone undetected before the advent of modern systems for identification. Mostly, however, he works on cases involving the tracing of signatures and copying. In third ranking position are the checks showing erasures when amounts are raised.

Forgers, Fletcher pointed out, always leave some minute mark that means the difference between their own writing and that of the victim.

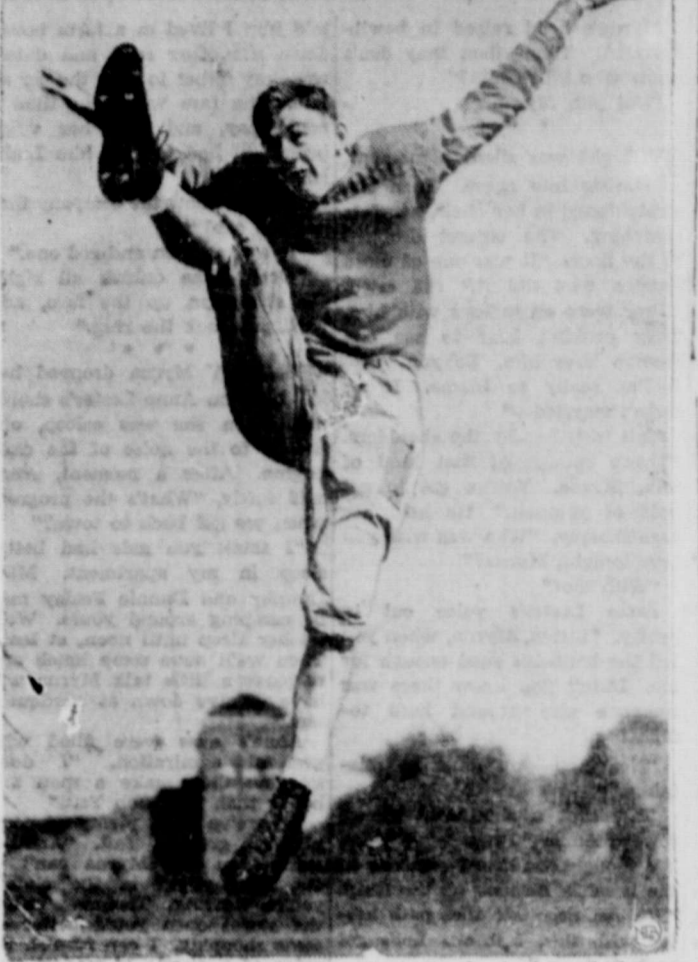

"It is almost impossible for anyone to disguise his signature so that some natural habit doesn't show up after a number of signatures are copied," he said.

Furthermore, forgers are usually overly-cautious in performing their illegal tasks. Nervous tension shows up in the result with tremors and lines not reflecting rhythmic writing. Many of them, not satisfied with their handwork, retrace some of the letters and the tracings stand out in the crime detection laboratory. These tremors are more pronounced in traced signatures than in simulated copies because it is more difficult for the forger to watch the pencil point and the model at the same time.

It would have been amusing if it weren't pitiful. One shudders to think what will happen when the Lobo line meets three or four as good as he.

"Oh, well, it was fine while it lasted. Maybe Cisco does belong in Class B."

Made Bierman Take a Second Look

Although Bernie Bierman announced at the beginning of the season that sophomores would play little part in Minnesota's grid picture, the Gopher coach has changed his mind—or rather George Franck, above, changed it for him. Franck, who is rapidly developing into a triple-threat, is providing much of the spark for the Vikings' 1938 title drive.

In one recent wave of forging over 200 checks in amounts ranging from $35 to $45 have been examined. Each of them have numerous marks of similarity that identify the maker as the same person. They are always passed to women who operate boarding and rooming houses and have been spread from West to East Texas. Officers have good descriptions of a man and woman suspected of passing these forged checks, but they have not been captured. When they are—and they will be snared—Fletcher will have a naze of court exhibits to present for prosecution purposes.

In several instances innocent persons accused of forgeries because of a witness' identification of the passer, have been freed as a result of studies in the Austin laboratory with the guilty party being brought to justice.

For raising amounts of checks the chemically minded forger use ink eradicators that bleach iron crystals in the writing. Under the ultra-violet ray light in the laboratory Fletcher sees the writing as it was originally. In other amount raising schemes figures are changed and numbers written in before and after the original signs. As an example, a check for one dollar may be raised to four dollars by placing the letter "F" before the "one" and changing the "N" to "U" and the "E" to "R." The figure "1" is changed to "4."

In other cases where the honest citizen does not place waving lines before and after amounts written on checks, the clever forger may place a "twenty" or any other amount before the "one" to raise the check to $21 or $21,000.

Honest check writers, Fletcher admonished, sometimes adopt a very complicated signature in an effort to forestall forgers. Even their closest associates would have difficulty in distinguishing the signature. This type of writing is much easier for the forger to duplicate than smooth, rhythmic writing in which every letter is plainly discernible, he declared.

Machine written checks are nearly as widely spread by forgers and passers as those devised by hand.
