RUNOFF ELECTION IS ASSURED IN RANGER AFTER CITY ELECTION

The first city election runoff in more than a decade was assured Tuesday night, when 621 voters, the largest number to cast ballots in a Ranger city election in many years, were unable to name two city commissioners by giving them a majority over their opponents.

With 21 persons aboard, the giant Yankee Clipper is shown landing at Lisbon, Portugal, after hopping from the Azores. It was the second leg of a round trip to England from Baltimore, preliminary to the inauguration of regular transatlantic service.

EACH GIVEN 141 VOTES IN CITY BALLOT

Candidates for re-election Tuesday each received 141 votes for return to the Eastland board of city commissioners.

The candidates, unopposed, were Mayor C. W. Hoffmann, H. O. Satterwhite and L. J. Lambert.

LINK HINTED IN FROME AND PLAYER CASE

ODESSA, April 5.—Deputy county officers Tuesday said a small woman armed with a .32 caliber pistol, sought in connection with the slaying of a baseball player here Friday, also answered the description of a possible suspect in the Frome murders.

A severe strain on Argentine relations with Germany was forecast in political sources if the plot, which pro-Nazi newspapers denounced as cooked-up by the United States, is confirmed by the investigation.

In the two runoffs will be Sig Faircloth and L. H. Flewellen, high man in the race for police and fire commissioner, and Calvin Brown and Charles J. Moore will be pitted against each other in the campaign for street commissioner.

Those elected without runoffs were Hall Walker, mayor; Edwin George, Jr., finance commissioner and J. J. Kelly, water commissioner.

The city election board is scheduled to meet this afternoon to canvass the vote, and will likely set the time for the runoff election, as provided in the city charter.

A dark horse candidate for mayor showed up when the votes were counted, though Hall Walker was unopposed. One vote was written in for Patsy Boliver, and the election judges showed the vote on their recapitulation.

Faircloth, by polling 289 votes, led Flewellen by 78 votes, the count for Flewellen, who entered the race late, being 211. H. H. Vaughn received 95 votes for police and fire commissioner, and the fourth candidate, S. D. Guyton, received 16.

Shown the street commission ticket by only 16 votes, his total in the election Tuesday being 257, while Moore, running his opponent a close race throughout the day, polled 241. Tom Yonker, third candidate, received 110 votes.

J. J. Kelly, present water commissioner and mayor pro-tem, received a total of 486 votes while C. B. Hutchinson polled 105 in the only other contested race.

Mayor Hall Walker polled the largest vote, his total being 611, while Edwin George, Jr., had a total of 604 votes.

CHAMBERLAIN EXPLAINS THE NAVAL MOVE

LONDON, April 5.—Prime Minister Neville Chamberlain told the house of commons today that proposals had been taken by the British Navy during the present European session.

Gunners have been kept aboard naval ships in readiness to man the guns, the prime minister said, in explaining a statement by Earle Stanhope, first lord of the admiralty, that the British fleet was ready for anti-aircraft defense.

The statement of Lord Stanhope, which gave the country a severe case of war jitters, before the government sought to suppress it last night, was described by Chamberlain as "normal practice in time of tension."

Chamberlain's statement was made as British and Poland arranged to sign a defensive military alliance as part of the "stop Hitler" front, which Britain is seeking to create in Europe.

U. S. IS URGED TO USE POWER TO STOP HITLER

WASHINGTON, April 5.—Henry L. Stimson, secretary of state in President Hoover's cabinet, today urged the United States to use its economic resources to halt aggressions of dictator nations.

Asserting that the United States is facing a critical situation in which three totalitarian states have torn up all codes of international conduct, Stimson said "Caucasian civilization is threatened by the gravest danger with which it has been confronted for four centuries."

He advocated giving the president greater power in efforts to maintain neutrality and at the same time to place American resources in opposition to the advance of dictators.

Stimson opened the hearings on proposed revision of neutrality laws, before the senate foreign relations committee. The hearings are expected to develop an exhaustive review of the part which this country will play in the international situation.

ARGENTINE IS PROBING NAZI PLOT RUMORS

BUENOS AIRES, Argentina, April 5.—The Argentine government today pressed a widespread investigation, involving many police raids and arrests, into a purported Nazi plot to seize Patagonia.

A severe strain on Argentine relations with Germany was forecast in political sources if the plot, which pro-Nazi newspapers denounced as cooked-up by the United States, is confirmed by the investigation.

Alfredo Muller, reputed Nazi leader in Argentina, was arrested and questioned by police. Other persons also were held.

Enrique Jurges, reported to have been a former secretary to Dr. Joseph Goebbels, the Nazi propaganda minister, again was arrested. He disclosed the purported Nazi documents concerning Patagonia, reportedly in revenge for death of relatives at the hands of Nazi secret police.

Police gave no explanation for taking him into custody, though he had previously been held for his own protection.

Raid in the last 24 hours included many German centers in the city and suburbs. Police seized many documents and much literature in the raids. They said Muller's signature on the facsimile of the Patagonia documents had been verified by experts.

Relief Bill To Go To Senate Floor

Administration leaders abandoned their efforts to obtain the full $150,000,000 which the president had asked.

Surveying Crew Is Completing Work on Road to Ranger

The efforts of the Ranger Chamber of Commerce, which started a movement to secure a highway from Desdemona to Ranger are beginning to bear fruit. It was indicated today, as state highway department surveying crews neared Ranger on the preliminary survey of an airline highway between the two towns.

The surveying crew has been working for two weeks, starting at Desdemona and working toward Ranger, and is now nearing completion of its work.

Mayor Hall Walker today stated that members of the surveying crew had stated that the road being surveyed was one of the straightest on which they had worked in many years, and that the road could be built at a minimum cost, because there were no large bridges and very few drainage structures needed.

The survey for the road follows closely the railway line from Desdemona to Ranger, with the exception of two places where wide curves in the railways have been eliminated on the highway survey, it was stated today.

Like other assessor-collectors, C. H. O'Brien this year found that the prison system at Huntsville made several errors in the shipment of auto license plates.

There were four sets of plates received by O'Brien which had been assigned to another county. In another instance there were two sets of plates with identical numbers.

Several counties found shipment mistakes.

Arms and the Men

Two bills now being considered by House and Senate committees ought to get the closest possible consideration. They propose to put a complete ban on private armies. They would provide penalties on organizations of more than five persons whose purpose is to drill or parade with firearms, or to provide military training.

The purpose of such a law is obvious. In Europe, the short-lived Russian and German republics were torn down and destroyed by organizations which they foolishly allowed to bear arms and train in a military way.

There is room in the United States for only one army, and only one trained and armed military force. They are the army of the United States and the organized militia. There is no possible excuse for any other bodies arming themselves and conducting military training.

Yet there are such bodies. They are small now, but they might grow. They should be stamped out immediately and while yet small. The law ought to be clear. It might not be a bad idea even to amend the Constitution.

Article 2 of the Bill of Rights says "A well-regulated militia being necessary to the security of a free state, the right of the people to keep and bear arms shall not be infringed."

The meaning, at the time the Constitution was written, is clear. In those days military equipment was simple. Every man had his flintlock hanging over the fireplace. Lexington and Concord and Bunker Hill proved that a militia hurriedly made up for men bringing their own arms could, in an emergency, hold their own with regular troops.

That isn't true any more. The possession of arms at home is today limited to shotguns and sporting rifles. Possession of even revolvers, not to speak of machine-guns and automatic rifles, is subject to public regulation today. And those are the only weapons that could be of any use by citizens springing to arms as a militia to defend the republic.

In other words, this provision of the Constitution is outdated. It was intended to assure that citizens should be able to keep their own squirrel rifles ready so that they could quickly shoulder them and form a militia. In today's world of mechanized and high-powered warfare, such a provision is meaningless for the purposes intended, that is, as an aid to the national defense. It can only be used to legitimize private armies which plan street-fighting and civil disorder.

But it is still in the Constitution. So the congressional committees must steer around it if they are to achieve their object, which is, obviously, to squelch at the start any efforts by political organizations to build up their own "armies" in the European style, thus paving the way toward civil disorder and revolution.

SERIAL STORY

'MRS. DOC'

BY HORNOR

The characters and situations in this story are wholly fictional.

Yesterday Emily learns she has saved the Howland baby's life. Alan is proud of her, but he asks what about St. Louis. About Eric, she says...

CHAPTER XXV

"My dear, darling, dumb husband," Emily pulled his face close to her, kissed him again. "There, does that answer your questions?"

Alan smiled. "I'm not going to St. Louis. Eric has gone, forever. Gone with the job at the medical school. I never loved Eric. I didn't even think I did. I knew I'd go right on loving you, forever and a day, just as long as I live. You wanted to believe that I was in love with Eric. You acted almost like you hoped I would be."

"I was trying to be fair. To let you make the decision that would bring you the greatest happiness." Alan said. "I did not want to let you go. I won't let you go, now, ever."

Emily snuggled closer to him. "Don't, Alan. Don't ever let me go. This is where I belong. Let me help you. Don't crowd me out of your professional life. Let's just live in one world—our world."

"I want to be what Dr. Farrell says I should—what Billy calls me—Mrs. Doc."

Alan's laugh echoed through the room. He kissed her again, then pulled her to her feet. "All right, Mrs. Doc. You've a lot of patients to meet. We'd better get going. We'll come back to Angela and Billy later. Grandma Frank is first."

"I've been waiting for you to come see me," Grandma Frank cackled in her high-pitched little voice. "I knew you would, too. Alan's mother always came to see me. She was the only one I had when my boys were born."

"I have neglected you," Emily said softly, taking the bony little hand in hers. "I'll do better now."

"It's a pity that hundreds of you don't try to do some better," the aged woman went on, smiling at Alan. "He's been trying to kill me off now for over a week. I'll fool him. I'm going to get well."

"I know you will, Grandma Frank." And in her heart Emily hoped sincerely that she spoke the truth.

"If you won't live because of us, you will in spite of us," Alan laughed, in mock chagrin. But he patted the bony hand comfortingly before he left.

"Will she get well?" Emily asked, when they were in the hall again.

"I doubt it. She's surprised all of us by living this long. She might make good her boast—but it's not likely."

"When she goes—may I be there with you, Alan?" Emily asked hesitatingly.

"Why yes; yes, of course. To tell the truth, I think Grandma Frank rather expects you to be there."

THEY found old Mr. Price hunched over in a chair in his son-in-law's room. He brightened perceptibly when he met Emily, then took her aside to tell her more about his boy—Bud—buried under the gravel of the broken trestle.

"That's the most enthusiasm and interest the old man has shown," the son-in-law whispered to Alan. "He'll be telling her about those prize chickens of his any minute now."

Alan was happy. These people warmed to Emily, and she to them. She brought with her a new, sympathetic listener. People would find it easy to tell Emily their troubles. It was his task to see that she did not become too weighted down with the mental load of all of them. He finally had to call Emily away.

"I'll be waiting for you to come out to the place," Mr. Price said. "Want you to see those chickens."

HARRY BROWN and Maryanne waved to them as they passed the open door.

"Maryanne is going home tomorrow," Alan explained. "Harry was on the trestle just a minute before it fell, you know. Had a lucky escape."

A nurse called to Alan. He left Emily returned soon. "Just a couple of calls to make. Probably will delay lunch a while longer."

"I'm not eating alone, today," Emily announced. "I'm going with you. Combination chauffeur, office girl, housekeeper, nurse and wife. What more could you want?"

"That's all I want," Alan said. "You."

"Alan, there's one patient I want to see, particularly. Mrs. Howland; may I?"

"Sure thing. She's right here, and feeling fine. She'll be glad to know you, I'm sure." He led the way into the room.

"Hello, Mrs. Howland. I want you to know Mrs. Warren."

"The woman turned a remarkably pretty face toward Emily, smiled graciously. Emily wasn't quite sure how she had imagined Mrs. Howland would look but she certainly wasn't prepared for such beauty."

"Dr. Warren has given us something very precious," Mrs. Howland said. "We owe you a great debt, Doctor."

"Not half the debt we owe to you, Mrs. Howland," Emily said. Alan frowned, but she went on. "I think you should know. If you had not had your baby the night you did, I might have led Alan into a tragic mistake, one that we both would have regretted all our lives."

"There's no danger of it occurring again. But I want you to know that your debt to Alan, and to me, has already been paid in full. As soon as you are able, won't you please come to see me. I'll tell you more then. I know you will understand."

Mrs. Howland smiled again, and Emily knew that in her she had found a friend.

"Now to see your patients, Mrs. Doc," Alan laughed with her. "Angela, Billy, and little Emily."

"Oh, Alan, they won't call her Emily, will they?"

"They frequently do. Half the Sarahs in Sumner were named after my Mother. Want to bet?"

"Done—their bill against that new coat I ordered. I'll send it back, if I lose."

Billy Bower was every inch the proud father. The nurse had brought the baby for Angela to see, and, on Alan's suggestion, had left it until Emily had a chance to see it again.

"She has Angela's eyes, a nose just like mine, and hair—why she almost needs a haircut. She's the prettiest baby ever born in this hospital—ever born in Sumner," Bower announced.

Emily peered into the covers at the tiny little figure Angela held so proudly in the crook of her arm.

"She's adorable." Gone were most of the wrinkles, the redness. She looked more like a baby now—a baby like one sees in pictures. "Might I hold it?" Alan lifted the child into his arms. Emily beamed, and there was a hint of tears in her eyes.

"Dr. Farrell told us that she wouldn't be alive if it hadn't been for you, Mrs. Doc," Billy said.

"We wondered if you'd mind if we called her—Emily, after you," Angela asked.

"I want to call her Emily, too," Billy put in quickly.

"I'd be so thrilled if you did," Emily said, truthfully.

Alan was saying: "Come down to the office tomorrow, Bill. Think we can find a better job for you." Emily laid the baby beside Angela again, carefully, tenderly.

Then they were out in the hall, walking hand and hand. Alan and Emily—Farrell's whistle came to them up the stairs. And in Emily's ears echoed the farewell of two happy parents—

"Goodby—and God bless you—Mrs. Doc!"

What Makes a Nation Great?

Land? Timber? Minerals? Other nations have them—but of what value are raw materials without human resourcefulness? Because our pioneering forefathers had the courage to match their dreams, America became great. Their stout spirit was the plow that broke the plains. Their staunch faith sharpened the edge of their thundering axes. Their high hope harnessed the waters. Their will to win probed the earth below. You and you and you are America's pioneers, for Today is always Yesterday's frontier for the American spirit. The true measure of a nation's resources is the ability of its people to face life with the spirit of youth.
