HALE MAKES BOND IN CASE OF MISSING LOOT

OCKENRIDGE, April 12.—Hale, possoman, who accompanied Sheriff Toopy Freeland took part in the capture of Stockton, returned here with Freeland and Joe Smith yesterday afternoon to face charges of theft, the charge alleged he took approximately $520 in money Stockton allegedly took from the Grafrod bank.

The bond was set at $1,500, which he made Monday evening, and was released. Sheriff Freeland said Hale admitted taking the money. Freeland said he had held a gun on Stockton lying on the ground after the shooting subsided and at a request Hale had searched the car.

Freeland said that during his trial he was tried first in Oklahoma. Identification is made, if Oklahoma officers return him to Texas for trial if wanted.

Hospital and Medical Schools Receive PWA Aid

FORT WORTH, Tex.—Eighty-four hospital and medical school projects are under construction by the Public Works Administration in the Southwest, Regional PWA Director George M. Bull announced.

At the completion of the current program, approximately $33,000,000 will have been spent in the seven-state fifth region, of which Texas is a part, to construct additional medical facilities, Bull said.

Thousands of hospital beds will have been added in the area, in which all but two states—New Mexico and Colorado—are listed in a report on population problems by the National Resources Committee as having fewer than six hospital beds per 1,000 persons.

Largest project under construction, according to Bull's report, is the Charity Hospital at New Orleans, which will cost approximately $13,000,000 when completed, and will be one of the largest in the world. Standing 22 stories, the building will be able to house 3,000 patients at one time.

In addition the project includes a nurses' home and a number of smaller auxiliary buildings. Another large hospital under construction under WPA supervision, Bull said, is the $2,000,000 tuberculosis sanatorium for the state of Arkansas at Booneville—largest institution of its kind in the United States.

Other large hospital projects in Texas include: Houston, $2,283,000; Dallas, $510,000; Galveston, $504,369; Wichita Falls, $227,000; Fort Worth, $100,000; Amarillo, $309,600; El Paso, $99,999; Austin, $113,000; El Paso county, $110,500; Tyler, $274,025, and Sweetwater, $84,700.

A large federal project also is under construction at Fort Sam Houston, San Antonio, Texas, where a hospital and nurses quarters costing $1,981,785 are being built.

Total cost of both federal and non-federal hospital projects under the PWA program in the fifth region by states: Arkansas, $4,627,588; Colorado, $2,647,628; Kansas, $1,349,105; Louisiana, $12,978,156; New Mexico, $1,443,866; Oklahoma, $2,833,216, and Texas, $7,116,958.

APPEALS COURT RULES UPON A GATE RATE

AUSTIN, April 12.—The third court of civil appeals today decided in favor of the state in the Lone Star Gas Company gas rate case.

The decision puts in effect a rate of 32 cents per 1,000 cubic feet, as ordered by the state railroad commission.

Two cases originally decided by a jury in district court in Austin in favor of the gas company was appealed by the commission, sustained by the Texas courts and carried to the U. S. Supreme court, which sent it back to the court of civil appeals here for reconsideration.

The decision today reversed the district court ruling in favor of the gas company and handed down a decision in favor of the state commission.

The "gate rate" is the rate charged by the company for delivery of the gas at city and town gates. The municipal or private distributing company then adds a distribution charge to make up the rate paid by the consumer.

Texas Lost Bet So Is to Give Barbecue

EL PASO, Texas.—Because Texas lost a bet that it would complete its section of the El Paso-Carlsbad Caverns highway before New Mexico could finish hers, El Paso will stage a "beer bust" and barbecue for the winners.

Gov. John E. Miles, Former Gov. Clyde Tingley, members of the New Mexico highway commission, and other New Mexico officials will be honor guests at the affair.

Tingley was governor of New Mexico when renewed campaigns were underway to improve and pave the highway between El Paso and Carlsbad, N. M. Tingley bet a barbecue and "all the trimmings" that the New Mexico section would be completed before Texas could finish its link.

New Mexico finished its part of the highway some time ago. September probably will see the finishing of the 12-mile section which remains to be blacktopped by Texas.

R. L. Bobbitt, former chairman of the Texas highway commission, recently remarked that "somebody owes New Mexico a barbecue." The El Paso Chamber of Commerce, recalling Tingley's offer of a bet, announced that it would pay off in behalf of Texas.

TWO POWERS MAKE DISPLAY OF THEIR ARMS

LONDON, April 12.—Great Britain and France today staked the peace of Europe on a vast display of armed force.

The French fleet sailed into the Mediterranean to join British fighting ships in an impressive warning against totalitarian expansion in the Balkans.

Additional Russian warships were reported to have moved through the Dardanelles into the Mediterranean.

Behind this scene of potential power around the Italian end of the Rome-Berlin axis, Prime Minister Neville Chamberlain and Premier Edouard Daladier rushed diplomatic negotiations, which may disclose, by tomorrow, how many nations are now in the peace front against aggression and may also reveal the exact point at which the two big powers will fight.

In reply to these preparations for war, which included virtually every nation of Europe, Italy ordered her war fleet to be ready for action at any moment and announced that she has 1,000,000 men under arms.

To date Britain and France have definitely brought only Poland into the front against further expansion by Germany and Italy. However they have made it plain that they will fight if Greece is endangered and probably will add Rumania and Turkey to the list tomorrow, especially if they are successful in getting support from Russia.

Meanwhile Chamberlain held to his hope of reaching an understanding with Italian Premier Mussolini after the fascist leader gave a pledge to respect the independence of Greece. British Government spokesmen officially denied that there had been any exchange of messages between Chamberlain and Mussolini, but the British position has been made known that she would fight for Greece as vital to her empire communication.

Chamberlain was notably concerned over the continued presence of Italian soldiers in Spain. France, which is now surrounded on three sides by totalitarian powers, was still more concerned, despite the fact that Mussolini has indicated he will withdraw the fascist forces from Spain next month.

Uncle Midas May Yet Regret the Golden Touch

Once there was a king in Thrace called Midas. He loved gold, not because of what it would buy, or for the good he could do with it, but for itself.

Dionysius, spirit of spring and youth and gladness, granted him a wish. And Midas wished for the Golden Touch—the power that would cause everything he touched to turn to gold. As Dionysius vanished, Midas sank into a chair. It turned at once to gold. Enraptured, he walked through his halls, turning every object to golden splendor. Even in his garden he walked down the rows, turning each blooming bush to gold.

Soon his daughter came running to him, crying, "Look, father, someone has killed all the beautiful roses." "No, child," he said, "I turned them. Are they not more beautiful so?"

"No, no!" sobbed the child. "Turn them back!" And she flung herself into his arms. He felt her stiffen, and in a second his dearly beloved little daughter was only a golden statue.

At that point Midas began to realize that there was something wrong with the Golden Touch; that some things are better than gold.

He found that gold is in itself nothing. Only its uses are of value.

Unless something is done shortly, Uncle Midas may find out the same thing. For the stocks of monetary gold in the United States have now crossed the $15,000,000,000 mark, 57 per cent of all the envious gold in the world.

Why is this gold of any value at all? Because people have always been willing to give useful things in exchange for it. And yet, if Uncle Midas' Golden Touch continues to draw to him all the gold in the world, it is possible that many countries, having none, will say "Hereafter we do not want gold, and will not take it."

Then Uncle Midas might wake up to a realization that gold in itself is nothing. Only in its use as a medium of exchange is monetary gold valuable.

We are a creditor country. We can not use this gold to pay off debts, nor even to settle trade balances which are in general already favorable to us.

What can we do? We can use it to buy useful goods which do not compete with domestic production.

We can see that some of it gets to friendly countries which will use it to keep trade and money tied to gold.

In short, we can use it, which is the only way to prevent our Golden Touch from becoming the curse of Midas.

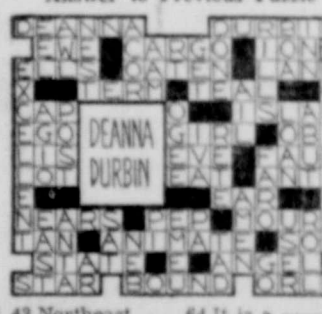

A mob fight broke out at a Hollywood meeting of an actor's union. We'll probably see it in the films as a gang battle.

Margie: Well, if I did you'd be finding fault with my spelling.

Some children from the lower East Side of New York, on their first visit to the country, were watching a terrible hailstorm, and one small girl expressed her disappointment: "God is getting awful fresh, throwing down those big stones! First thing He knows, He'll hit somebody."
"You mustn't talk like that about God," exclaimed a little comrade, poking her vigorously. "Most everybody on our block likes Him."

A THOUGHT

Take care that the face which looks out from your mirror in the morning is a pleasant face. You may not see it again all day, but others will.

In men whom men condemn as ill, I find so much of goodness still; in men whom men pronounce divine I find so much of sin and blot, I hesitate to draw a line between the two, when God has not.

SERIAL STORY BORDER ADVENTURE

BY OREN ARNOLD

Yesterday Barro waits all night to watch for the Border Patrol in the canyon. When they do not appear he decides to run his mine across the border the next night.

CHAPTER VI
THERE is a strict law in Border Patrol tradition which says that an officer must not shoot until he has absolutely no other recourse. Ten minutes after Hope Kildare heard the rolling pebble he was to give silent thanks for that law.

There in the darkness he quickly unholstered and cocked his pistol, and knew that Sherry Starr was doing the same thing. In the same instant Hope challenged. "Manos arriba!" he commanded. "Hands high, and stay where you are!"

"Oh!" came a startled answer, shrill, almost a shriek. "Los federales! Don't move or you'll get shot! You are under arrest by United States officers. Stay where you are!"

In truth, Hope was doing a bit of bluffing. When he first challenged he had fully expected a shot or a volley in answer, a quick rifle "CRACK!" followed perhaps by a whine as the bullet glanced off the rocks. Or, at best, a whimpering plea for mercy and safety.

When neither reply came, both Hope and Sheridan were confused. Unquestionably they had ambushed somebody, and only a few yards from them too. But they couldn't see a thing, and the shrill "Oh!" had been disturbing.

"Stand up with your hands high, all of you!" Hope barked like a hardened army sergeant, in Spanish. "The first man that moves will get shot. You first six officers keep your rifles trained on them, and fire at the first one that moves. The rest of you advance with me, pistols cocked. When it's time to shoot, shoot to kill!" Hope was bluffing hard now, suggesting to the unseen enemy that there were a dozen or more seasoned Border Patrolmen surrounding them. "Come on, Sherry, we'll disarm them first."

"Oh!" the same shrill voice. "Mr. Starr? Mr. Kildare? Is it you?"

THE handsome pair crouched there a full 10 seconds, tense in the darkness, before either spoke again. "For crimony's sake!" breathed Sheridan at last. "Did you—did you hear—?" Hope whispered back, uncertainly. "It's her!" Sherry declared. "Mr. Kildare? Here I am—Betty Mary Jordan. Isn't it you? Is Mr. Starr with you? I'm sure it was your voice. Where—?"

"Betty Mary?" Hope called. "Yes. Are you all right?" "My lord, yes. What are you doing there? What are you doing out here? Who's with you? Was that you made the noise? Don't you know you almost got shot? My lord, you—"

"Oh!" said Betty Mary from the dark. "I had no idea it was so far, or so—so rugged and all. I—"

"Be still until we can come to you. And be quiet. Who is with you?" "Nobody."

"Huh?" Hope and Sherry both grunted their surprise at that. "N-nobody. I—I just came out, and—"

Three or four minutes of careful crawling through the rocks was necessary to reach her. She had topped the ridge behind them, worked her way partly down into the canyon and was almost on a level with them when she had sent the pebble tumbling. The miracle was that they hadn't detected her before, but she was up canyon from them; their attention had been centered down hill, toward the border, and the night wind naturally carried sounds the other way. When they reached her, she was sobbing a little.

"For goodness sakes, Betty Mary!" Sheridan whispered, his strong arm around her. "What in the devil are you doing out here? Why, this—why you could have been killed a dozen ways! Why you don't have any idea what—"

"You boys d-didn't—come in," she answered, still crying. "And I was the one who sent you out here. All day I waited. I—I was responsible. I just—got a map—and rented a car and came out to a ranch—and walked on from there."

"It's six miles!" Hope exclaimed, in low tone. "Lord!" breathed Sheridan.

SHE stopped crying then. She admitted, smiling in the darkness, that she had been scared out of her wits after the moon went down and left her stranded alone in the rocky hills. The landmarks which she had memorized from the map, and which had been so easy to find by day and even by moonlight, had vanished by night.

"But I was too worried, and too hard-headed, to go back," she admitted. "Where have you been? What happened to you? Did you see any smugglers?"

"They talked for half an hour, the officers almost forgetting to maintain a guard for aliens in their concern for Betty Mary. Hope and Sherry next tried to agree on who should take her back home and who should stay in the canyon."

"You had planned to wait here another whole night!" Betty Mary interrupted, still whispering, but incredulous. "Yes. Are you all right?" "Why sure. They haven't come yet. They may come at any time now. Wasn't it San Felipe you said? Say, you were kidding us!" A sudden suspicion struck Officer Starr.

But Betty Mary quelled it as quickly. "No indeed I wasn't! The was a good one. I'll bet anything on that. Listen, Sheridan, Hope—" It was the first time he had called them by first name "when I went to that jail I got a 22 rifle cartridge in that Salazar's personal effects. Just a guess, I used my knowledge Spanish to advantage. I posed an old Mexican woman, and in cell I showed Salazar a 22 cartridge of my own, hoping it was—a sort of clan token, see? It was—He thinks I was a member of Luis Barro's band, a Barro worker and spy! Honest!"

"My gosh!" exclaimed Hope in awe. "This girl from Washington, D. C., had been moving too far for him. Her ingenuity as well her personal charm had impressed him deeply. He listened in awe she gave all the details.

"And I'm not going home if you aren't," she concluded, is foolish to make that long a back at night. Anyway I'm out now, and anyway you're duty in this canyon. And away—"

"And anyway you'll freeze, get shot, or get in the way of Sheridan Starr was trying to emphasize. Hope echoed his arguments in the matter, adding, "sprain an ankle or starve or something. Betty Mary, my goodness. One of us'll take you back, once."

"And leave the other here also to arrest smugglers and alien Whizz-Whizz I'm thrilled at. Honest, I am. Having the time of my life. Nothing like this happens to me in Washington—"

"Phooey!" Sheridan interrupted. "You'll go back now. This is any tea party, missy, and He and I'll draw straws to see who one does which, and we got horses staked out, so you've have to—"

It was Hope Kildare who had grasped his friend's arm in the darkness. A sudden hiss of a squeeze of warning. "A horse snorted!" Hope declared. "Down canyon!"

For a long while the three crouched there motionless, listening to hear, breathing, Betty Mary felt her hand on Hope's arm. After a bit Hope whispered again. "It's hell to pay now enough, Sherry!" he declared. "They're coming—a whole founded caravan!"

Old Cartoon Shows Uncle Sam In A Hitler Attitude

By United Press

AUSTIN, Texas—Pat Dooley,

chief clerk in the State Comptroller's office, had to find some records in the basement of the state capital this week. He found them wrapped in a copy of the Houston Post of May, 1939.

A front page cartoon in it pictures Uncle Sam in a Hitler-like state of mind. Uncle Sam is sitting in a steam-chair. His accustomed hat has been laid on a table, a traveling cap replaces it on his head. He is scrutinizing a map about him in his baggage along with Panama, Cuba and Philippine tags.

"Where do you go from here?" the caption over the cartoon.

It's a fact... millions from coast to coast are turning to Chesterfields for what they want in a cigarette. They find Chesterfields have a better taste and a more pleasing aroma. Chesterfields show them what real mildness means in a cigarette.

WAKE UP YOUR LIVER BILE—

Without Calomel—And You'll Jump Out of Bed in the Morning!
 The liver should pour out two pounds of bile into your bowels daily. If this bile is not flowing freely, your food does not digest. It just decays in the bowels, gas builds up your stomach. You get constipated. Your whole system is poisoned and you feel sour, weak and the world looks pink.

A more bowel movement doesn't get at the cause. It takes those good, old Carter's Little Liver Pills to get those two pounds of bile flowing freely and make you feel "top and up." Harmonize, gentle, yet amazing in making bile flow freely. Ask for Carter's Little Liver Pills by name. 45 cents, 80-cent, 100-cent bottles.

H-S.U. Founder's Day To Be Noted Monday, April 17

ABILENE, Tex.—The annual Founders' Day at Hardin-Simmons University, to observe the forty-eighth anniversary of the founding of the pioneer West Texas school, will be observed next Monday, Mrs. H. A. Pender, president of the H-SU Alumni Association, announced today.

The occasion annually observed is the birthday of Dr. J. B. Simmons, New York minister and a founder of the school for whom the institution was named.

Charter Day at Hardin-Simmons is February 6, and H-SU is already making plans to observe its Semi-Centennial Jubilee, in 1941-42.

On Founders' Day, services will be held here on the campus at the graveside of Dr. Simmons, whose remains, and those of his wife, are laid to rest.

At the same time, at Burk Burnett, Wichita County alumni will hold services at the grave of John G. Hardin, late Texas philanthropist who endowed the school heavily in the early '30's.

Jerome Newman, Wichita Falls, is planning the Burk Burnett memorial service, and Lucy Beckham, Abilene alumni president, is arranging the program here.

Awakened from a sound sleep by what sounded like the lusty screams of a wild cat, Yeager grabbed his shotgun, rushed to the back porch of his home and fired in the direction from which the screams were coming. Co-ed Of Fame At Rose Bowl Back On Father's Farm

HARTSELLE, Ala.—A year ago she was the toast of Alabama, the University of Alabama's all-American cheer leader, the envy of a thousand other high school and college girls all over America.

As late as January, 1938, she "stole the show" when Alabama's football team played in Pasadena's Rose Bowl. For a year she was perhaps the best known college girl in the country, and her picture appeared in newspapers over the United States.

She was, and is, Miss Martha Witt Burleson—and she's milking cows on her father's North Alabama farm.

Since Miss Burleson received her diploma at the University of Alabama, she has been living quietly on the farm near Hartselle, feeding the pigs and chickens, milking the cows, and generally helping around the house.

Martha Witt has not forgotten her college days altogether, and she continues to practice dancing.

Nor does she expect to settle down and remain a farmerette.

Big Locomotive Is Sent Around Tunnel

DANBURY, Conn.—The engineer of the world's largest locomotive virtually had to have one hand on the throttle and the other on a tape measure as he piloted the huge engine from the Baldwin Locomotive Works to the World's Fair grounds on Long Island.

When the engine arrived in New Jersey, it was found the tunnel under the Hudson River to New York was not large enough to accommodate it. So the locomotive was routed through Eastern New York State and across the Connecticut line at Danbury, from where it was to run due south to Newark and then on to New York City. The tunnel problem, however, again arose.

Only one route remained—the old Danbury division to Devon. Out came the tape measure, and the locomotive was on its way.

across Fairfield county into New Haven county, then south to the Long Island shoreline and west to New York City.

It was estimated roughly the engine traveled nearly 400 miles in re-routing because the Hudson River tunnel, about a mile long, could not accommodate it.

RARE PYGMY SHREW FOUND
INDIAN HEAD, Sask.—A rare animal, a pygmy shrew, was found here by Mrs. J. Kirehner. She was mystified by its snout, far longer than that of ordinary field mice. A letter to the Toronto museum cleared up the animal's identity, the museum advising that the discovery was a rare one.

Sport Glances By Grayson

NEA Service Sports Editor

CLEARWATER, Fla.—Leo Ernest Durocher's rise to the management of the Brooklyn Dodgers is one of the great stories of baseball. Leo Durocher had to beat himself to be a success in his profession.

It wasn't because Durocher was not of major league caliber that the Yankees let him go to Cincinnati on waivers in 1929. Lippy Leo had bad habits, to put it mildly.

Branch Rickey, director of the far-fung St. Louis Cardinal system, straightened Durocher out. Rickey considers the deal that switched Durocher from the Reds to the Red Birds, May 7, 1933. . . . Paul Derringer, Allyn Stout, and Sparky Adams for Durocher, Johnny Ogdan, and Frank Henry . . . as the finest he ever engineered.

Durocher shortstopped and captained the Cardinals to the National League pennant in one of the most spectacular finishes in baseball history and then helped them to the world championship at the expense of the Detroit Tigers.

He was the fiery genius of the Gas House Gang.

ASKED why he chose Durocher after sifting candidates for the Brooklyn management, Leland Stanford MacPhail replied: "If I hadn't named Durocher, who would have played shortstop?"

It was with an eye to getting good years out of one of the grandest defensive shortstops who ever played the game that the business head of the Brooklyn club made

U. Of T. Baseball Team To Play At Oleander Festival

By United Press
GALVESTON, Texas — Uncle Billy Diech's University of Texas baseball team, perennial campaign of the Southwest conference, has been booked for a game here with the Todd-Galveston Dry Dock team on May 13, during Galveston's annual Oleander Festival. The game will be played in Moody stadium.

A baseball game is one of the new features which are being added this year to the annual festival. Colleges of the southwest will play a more important part than ever before in the celebration, and have been invited to send their school bands and an "oleander belle" to represent each school. The "belle" will be introduced at the Oleander Ball which will follow the baseball game.

Dr. Henry Frantham of Baylor

University, president of the Southwest conference, sent congratulations to the festival officials who arranged for the sports events.

"I am confident the prestige of the Southwest conference will be upheld by the team representing the University of Texas, and I trust that baseball as a collegiate sport will benefit appreciably from the contest with Galveston's fine amateur club," he said.

The Oleander festival is sponsored by the Galveston Junior Chamber of Commerce.

Traffic Safety To Be Subject For School On May 1

AUSTIN—Because of Texas' achievements last year in traffic safety, Franklin M. Kreml, nationally-famed safety expert, will co-sponsor with state police a traffic officers school at Austin, May 1-12. Col. Homer Garrison, state police director, announced today.

Leut. Kreml, director of the traffic safety institute at Northwestern University and the safety division of the International Association of Chiefs of Police, with his assistant, A. R. Forster, will co-direct the Texas school, limited to 50 students. Leut. Kreml gained a national reputation in accident prevention work while traffic administrator at Evanston, Illinois, a city that repeatedly led the nation in safety. He since has conducted training schools over the country in conjunction with universities.

Col. Garrison said students will be housed in state police barracks at Camp Mabry where numerous crime detection training schools have been conducted by his organization. The subjects will cover every phase of accident prevention and investigation.

Such courses as traffic control and police personnel selection, traffic division organization, accident investigation, accident records, traffic law enforcement, traffic engineering, public safety education, school safety education, public relations, intoxication tests, vehicle inspection, traffic courts, public speaking, physical laws and community safety organization will be featured in the two-weeks' school.

In addition to Leut. Kreml and Forster, 12 other specialist-instructors from the state safety department, police departments, universities and civil activities, will lecture and demonstrate to the students.

They are: Col. Garrison, Capt. J. D. Moffatt of the safety department; M. T. Greer, state highway department; Dr. P. M. Nesbitt, Arlington physician and intoxication test expert; Prof. T. A. Rouse, University of Texas; Capt. George Schauer, Texas highway patrol; Capt. B. B. Smith, Dallas police department; Capt. Roy Smith, Austin police department; Wick Fowler, state safety department; Capt. A. G. Falby, El Paso county highway patrol; Joel Tisdale, state safety department; Judge King S. Williamson, Dallas corporation court; and Robert O. Swain, ass't traffic engineer for the state highway department.

Praising Leut. Kreml's accomplishments in traffic work Garrison said: "He has no peer in his field and his offer to assist this state in furthering safety developments is a high compliment."

Texas' 1932 death reduction record, which placed it in second place among states of its division, prompted the national expert's offer to assist traffic administrators with their program, Garrison pointed out.

Danish Royal Couple Arrives in U. S.

Pictured as they arrived in San Pedro, Calif., to begin a 34-day good will tour of the United States are Crown Prince Frederick and Princess Ingrid of Denmark. Attired in natty uniform, the prince was mistaken for a naval officer by one reporter.

Following after New York restaurant Loidan, John Naumo, recently released convict, forced his way into apartment of aged couple, whom he held as hostages. Loidan, by police, he fired at them, shattering a window as shown in lower photo, while police, armed with pistols, submachine guns and tear gas pleaded for his surrender. After an hour's unsuccessful siege, they summoned Father Francis X. Quinn. The priest, braving the convict's gun, climbed in the window and persuaded him to yield. Naumo is shown at top, top, with Father Quinn after the surrender.

Biologist as Debunker Claims Many Of Tall Tales About Animals Are False

LOS ANGELES—Dr. Raymond B. Cowley, assistant professor of biology at the University of California, has created for himself an avocation: the debunking of the American public on animal stories that have come to be popularly accepted as facts. Here is a partial list of the things that he thinks the public ought to know about animals—popular legends to the contrary: Outrigger do not bury their heads in the ground. If they want to hide, they lie down and stretch their necks out on the ground with their eyes wide open. Bats are not attracted to the hair. As this creature feeds on insects, it has no interest in the modern coiffure. Snakes have no power of hypnotism. Some birds and animals "freeze" when danger is near, but they do so to hide and avoid attention. A bird fluttering on the ground in front of a snake is trying to lure it from the nest containing eggs or young birds. Salamanders cannot live in extreme heat. They can survive air temperatures somewhat over 70 degrees, but their surroundings must be moist, as they cannot stand dry heat. There is no such thing as a "glass snake," the parts of which are supposed to have the power to break up and reunite. There are, however, certain species of legless lizards which have the power to drop off their tails in emergencies, but reanion is impossible. There is nothing peculiar about the digestive tract of the gila monster. Its poisonous bite is not due to accumulated bacteria in the creature's body but to venom. The porcupine cannot "throw" its quills. It does raise them when angry just as a dog raises its hair on the back of the neck. Toads do not give anyone warts. Toads do have a poison secreted by the skin which causes discomfort to human beings if it touches a mucous membrane such as that of the eye or mouth. Roadrunners do not imprison rattlesnakes with a fence of cactus. A rattlesnake would have no trouble escaping through such a barrier. The hoop snake, which supposedly rolls down hill by grasping its tail in its mouth, is a purely inventive creature; and there is no record of the hoop snake living up to its reputation for lashing a victim with its tail. The only protection against rattlesnakes given by a horsehair rope stretched around a campsite is that it has the odor of human skin on it. A barricade of human shirts and socks would serve as well—if not better.

Schedule Of Trash Hauling Announced For Rest Of Week

Ranger city officials today announced the schedule the trash hauling trucks will follow for the remainder of the week, in connection with the Greater Ranger Cleanup Campaign. The city is furnishing trucks for this purpose free of charge. Anyone having trash to be hauled can see that it is visible from the streets or alleys and the trucks will haul it away.

A survey of the town, made Tuesday afternoon, showed that much cleanup work had been done during the first day of the campaign, as many trash piles were observed around the town, and many were seen cleaning up around homes.

The trash wagon schedule, through Saturday afternoon, will be as follows:

Thursday morning: West of T. & P. tracks. South of Main street east, if not the country, Hank to Blackwell road and west to hospital area.

Thursday afternoon: West of T. & P., north of Main street through Hodges Oak Park to Cad- road boundary.

Friday morning: West of T. & P., Eastland Hill area.

Friday afternoon: East of T. & P., Oak and Pecan streets, through Blackwell and Cooper Additions.

Saturday morning: East of T. & P., the area in and around Hamon and Kell station, Spring Road, Young Street.

Saturday afternoon: East of T. & P., the area of Pershing, Foch, New Strawn Road, Tiffin Road and Lackland Addition.

Trash to be in piles, bags or containers, and placed in alleys or on the curbs.

Congress has shelved the WPA investigation for a time. Proving that there is one thing slower than a WPA worker—Congress.

NEW YORK.—Regarded as the outstanding college pitcher in the east, if not the country, Hank Borowy, Fordham star, will be the object of many a big league scout's gaze this spring even though he doesn't graduate until 1940. Borowy, a right-hander from Bloomfield, N. J., won 10 and lost none for the Rams last year, included among which was a no-hitter against Rutgers.

In his first start this season he held Navy hitless and runless for six innings before being relieved. Since he started pitching in 1935 he has lost only two games in high school, prep school, and college competition.

"As a result, what was the United States' foreign market is buying cotton in South America and Africa.

"If all that cotton were released onto the work market at world prices, it would be purchased by foreign buyers and, in the end, would have a tendency to raise cotton prices."

TEXAS WOMEN AGREE WITH 15 OTHER STATES

The Query among women now takes in 2011 women of 20 cities, including our Dallas. In each city, 100 users were asked: "Were you helped by CARDUI?" Averaging replies of all 20 cities shows 93 of each 100 users helped! Of 100 Dallas users, 88 declared they were benefited. CARDUI stimulates the appetite, aids digestion and assimilation; helps build physical resistance. In this way, it helps many women avoid headache, nervousness, cramp-like pains, and other symptoms of functional dysmenorrhea due to malnutrition. Many users also say that, in larger doses, CARDUI helps allay pain "at the time."

Government Blamed For Foreign Cotton Market Confusion

By United Press
DALLAS, Tex.—The thing that is keeping American cotton from being sold on foreign markets is the fact that the United States government has tied up the supply, according to W. A. Breckenridge of Brussels, Belgium, who was sent to this country by the Ghent cotton exchange to represent it at a cotton conference in Washington.

"I can't buy 100 bales of American cotton," he said, "because 11,000,000 bales are tied up by the government. That much cotton
