One Reason Why Recovery Lags

The world can never attain prosperity as long as it is kept dangling in a state of suspense, staggering from crisis to crisis like a drunken idiot.

Here is a little story that may show to Americans, who, after all, feel somewhat remote from Europe's troubles, just what this state of suspense means, in concrete terms. An Englishman was telling the story, an intelligent and well-informed Englishman who was quite calm about it all, and related it without a sign of panic.

He and his wife had been thinking of installing a new hot water heater in their little cottage on the outskirts of London, he said. The amount involved was about $25, but that was an important item in the family budget. The new heater was not absolutely necessary, but an improvement they both wanted very much to install.

They considered the situation. "What," they quite calmly considered, "if the bombers come over some night? We are warned. We save our lives by the dugout. But our little house is blown to smithereens or burned. This might very possibly happen any night, practically without warning. Then with our house gone our new heater and our $25.

"Would it not perhaps be better to lay by the $25. If we were thus deprived of our home and became just two more of a wild mob of desperate refugees trekking wearily toward the country districts and comparative safety, wouldn't the $25 be doing us more good if we had it in our pockets and might buy with it some desperately-needed food or clothing?"

They decided on putting by the $25. Quite soberly they weighed the chances, quite soberly they decided that their $25 was worth more to them as a defense against such a desperate emergency than it was in the form of a comfort which needed some assurance of permanence to be realized.

Does it sound fantastic? Not at all. This was the deliberate decision of two excellent, intelligent, sensible, unpanicky people of London.

Multiply their decision by similar decisions of millions of families throughout Europe, and no doubt of some even in the United States. Watch the ripples of these decisions enveloping the entire economic world.

Now imagine what it would mean to world trade if all these millions of little decisions were made the other way if these people, feeling secure and safe, would decide normally, and buy what they need and want. And then you get some idea of what the militarists and glory-hunters are doing to the world.

Senator Andrews advocates a congressional revolution, asking the public to read the Bible. The public might well counter with a resolution, asking senators to read it, too.

Texas Is Leading In Conservation Of Game In U. S.

AUSTIN, Texas.—Texas, leading the nation in Pittman-Robertson game projects, is eligible to receive $71,696 of federal game funds during the 1939-40 fiscal year, according to work received by the State Game, Fish and Oyster Commission from Washington. That sum will be augmented by $17,924 by the Game Department, as required under the Pittman-Robertson Act, is announced by Will J. Tucker, Executive Secretary of the Commission. The money will be used to continue research work by biologists into game conditions and for financing several important wildlife restoration projects in a number of sections of the State.

Texas, the first State to submit a program of game restoration last year when the Pittman-Robertson Act went into effect, is leading the nation in the work. A report by Ira N. Gabrielson, Chief of the U. S. Bureau of Biological Survey, administrator of the project, points out that only $70,000 has been spent to date by the cooperating States, and of that sum approximately $30,000 has been used by the Lone Star State in furthering game restoration.

Texas, on the ground floor as soon as the U. S. Congress made available funds for game work, has had thirteen specialists conducting surveys and researches into game conditions for almost a year and the outgrowth of their work will be many projects which will tend to aid in increasing several species of birds and animals in the Lone Star State.

Tentative plans of the Game Commission, Tucker said, include projects for increasing antelope, turkey, quail, deer, dove and chachalaca. Various methods will be used to aid in game propagation. Pittman-Robertson funds cannot be used for fish work. A bill to provide a fund for similar projects on streams and lakes is now before the U. S. Congress.

Ranch Terms Are Different in South American Country

FORT WORTH.—Argentine beef production differs from United States methods in more ways than the recently-publicized lower raising and packing costs of the South Americans.

F. H. Finch, Australian-born rancher from Argentina, reported while visiting here that in his land:

A herd of stock is a "mob."
A pasture is a "paddock."
A roundup of range animals is a "rudo."

Finch, manager of 250,000 acres in Provincia de Corrientes, Argentina, is raising about 30,000 head of cattle designed for the London market.

He visited Fort Worth after stopping at the King Ranch of South Texas and inspecting the Hodgins Brahma herd near Wharton.

'Nothing But Scratch' Often Is Dangerous

CHICAGO.—"Oh it's nothing, just a scratch..." But "just a scratch" and comparable small cuts and lacerations were a million dollar item last year for organizations that pay compensation to employees.

The 1939 edition of Accident Facts, the National Safety Council's statistical yearbook, notes: "One out of ten compensated occupational injuries involves infection. Many of these cases begin as small scratches or lacerations that would have resulted in no disability if proper medical treatment had been given promptly."

The yearbook points out that if all states had similar proportions of infections and paid compensation on the same basis as four states in which a survey was made, the national compensation total for infected occupational injuries in 1938 was about $11,000,000.

Barbecued Chicker Supply For Sunday Greatly Increased

Last week when members of the St. Paul Baptist Church (colored) barbecued chickens to sell to the public, they made one big mistake—they underestimated the popularity of the sale and ran out of chickens long before they ran out of customers. So that Sunday they are going to do it over, and be sure they have enough chickens to go around.

Wesley Johnson, lay leader of the church, stated today that when the barbecue sale started last Sunday morning at 11:30 the chickens didn't last long, and were soon sold out.

"The sale will start this Sunday at 11 o'clock," Johnson said today, "and we have made sure there will be enough to go around and we won't run short."
Since the chickens, which are expertly barbecued, are sold for but little more than live chickens bring on the open market, the demand was much larger than was anticipated last week.

Attractive Grill At Coffee Shop To Open on Saturday

Tony Toti, proprietor of the Gholson Coffee Shop, has announced the formal opening of his grill, at the rear of the coffee shop. The formal opening will be Saturday afternoon.

When the coffee shop was remodelled several years ago the kitchen was moved closer to the cafe, leaving a large space at the rear. This space has been remodelled by Toti and made into one of the most attractive grills to be found anywhere in this part of the county.

Booths have been installed along one wall, with a large display refrigerator case on the other side, adjoining the bar. The entire grill has been repainted in white, with attractive red flooring.

Venetian blinds have been added to the cafe proper, giving it a much cooler and inviting appearance.

Since Toti, who was formerly chef of the Gholson Coffee Shop, has taken over the business he has made numerous improvements, and now has a delightfully-arranged and decorated cafe throughout.

Toti takes particular pride in the cleanliness of his kitchen, and is always delighted when customers visit that department.

"In some places you see signs over kitchen doors reading 'For Employees Only,'" Toti said Friday, "but I like for people to come in and see how clean my kitchen is. And if it isn't kept just as clean as it is now I will get someone else who will keep it that way."

Only the choicest cuts of meats, the best fish, the freshest vegetables and well known brands of other foods are bought and served in the cafe, which, under the guidance of Toti, who is a chef of long experience, is rapidly making it one of the most popular eating places in town. And the new grill is expected to make it even more popular.

International feeling cracks so much quicker than it cements. Royal's visit consumed several days. But it took Sydney Wooderson only a few minutes to lose a track meet.

SERIAL STORY GHOST DETOUR

and the personal letter from Briscoe & Son in Phoenix. And for the fact that Mr. Felch forthwith called in the burly field manager...

CHAPTER VII TO the surprise and delight of the four young workers at Goldcrest, tourists discovered their most town immediately, and in rapidly increasing numbers...

BRISCOE & SON, Assayers and Metallurgists, advertised their business partnership with a sign in front of a cluttered laboratory on First street in Phoenix, Arizona...

ROSELEE DALE, "Mayor" of Goldcrest, Arizona, a ghost municipality, received her business caller in her private office—really a room of Ace High hotel which had in it an extra chair...

The result was that all four workers soon were kept busy serving as guides. They worked at neat, entertaining little lectures to give the tourists at each walk through Goldcrest...

For 10 minutes then he searched, "prospected" through the litter of papers, rocks, darts, envelopes, keys, pencils, whiskey glasses and cat hairs before him. Even the cat himself was moved, with a protesting meow...

"Geel!" breathed Roselee. "Good! I knew you would see it our way. Now we can of course show you a nice profit to start. You paid us a mere $500. Now, for all your assets in the place, I can offer you, say, $1200 cash..."

"Thinking for you to do," his friend quickly considered one busy Monday morning. "I'll take some of the average samples of the ore and send them in by stage for formal assay. I'll go on in to Phoenix easy, and if the assay looks good, then that's all you need..."

Which accounts for the fact that four days later, President Felch of the Western Metals and Minerals Corporation, headquarters in El Paso, almost had a spasm of surprise and anger when he read the formal assay report...

When he had gone away in his automobile, Roselee ran from the hotel calling, "Richard! ... Dick! ... Oh Dick!" (To Be Continued)

SERIAL STORY GHOST DETOUR

BY OREN ARNOLD

Yesterday's Assayers send the report of the rich gold values at Goldcrest to the mining company by mistake and the company works to buy the town lights but fails. The Roselee rushes out, calling for Dick after the mining man leaves.

"No!" "Yeah! I'm sure I recognized him as the same man. Whatever will we do?" "Um. Nothing we can do but lay low and wait. And listen, Roselee—don't you lose any sleep about it, see? I'm hired to do the worrying. My 200 pounds can worry better than your 100."

help to make it safe and clean enough to bring guests in." They were interrupted then by other guests who wanted to talk, so that she forgot the matter until the following evening after supper when she was alone in her room with Christine. Counting money and comparing mental notes on the day's activity, Roselee remembered what the tourist had said. She also saw a note on her work calendar, reminding her to look into the dungeon matter this night.

CHAPTER VIII ALTHOUGH efficient Mrs. Hogan had established Dick and Franklin comfortably in bunks down the street in the Grand Central barber shop (called Tonsorial Parlor on its sign) Dick had never yet slept there.

"Listen, Frank," he had told his friend that first night, "just don't bother to mention it to the girls, because they'll be jittery, but I'm gonna camp up there in the bank. I've got this light canvas cot. It folds up easily, and these nights are warm so that I don't need a lot of cover. I'll just flop inside the teller's cage and boop at anybody that might happen in. See?"

"We simply must prepare it for show, Christy," Roselee declared. "People are asking about it. Maybe we can get the Indian men and the two old cowboys—they're deers—to help with the work there."

"I see. I sure do see! Have you got a gun?" "I have a pistol. It belonged to our football coach; the timers used it in games, remember. But it shoots real 38's as well as blanks. I got two boxes of shells."

ROSELEE DALE told herself that she had never seen a group of customers as enthusiastic as this one she guided now. She had 20 men and women in tow, leading them through the old Bucket of Blood saloon, the Hummingbird Bar and Gambling Emporium (a strangely contrasting names) with its furo tables and chairs still there, the Twentieth Century Club which was just another barroom with famous nudes on its walls, the several "Genl. Mdse." stores, Fry's Photo Gallery (with a lot of old negatives and pictures), McGonigle's Saddlery, the Goldcrest Hardware and Mining Machinery Company warehouse, the Goldcrest City Bank (front part only), five or six residences, the Mohave Opera House, these and several more picturesque relics of yesterday's prosperity. She gave her little talk and answered questions in each place, and steered them finally to Mrs. Hogan's refreshment and souvenir counter in the Ace High Hotel.

"Let's go look at it now and plan what to do," Christine said. When they got outside, though, they discovered a fragile filament of light, curved and beautiful, etched in the green-black sky just above Squaw Mountain to the east. Christine began humming, then singing in low tone. "In June, with you, in a canyon, under the moon, ta-tum-tum-fee."

AND so he had slept there, but nothing had happened. No intimation of the possible return of the robber, nor of any other than normal tourist interest in Goldcrest, came until the morning Roselee came running to Dick, calling him. She had received a flattering offer from a business man, she explained. The man had wanted to buy the place, and had offered her up to $3000!

"There is," Roselee admitted. "But the truth is, it isn't ready to show. It was so very dirty, and so dark, that it was positively fearsome. I have set aside tomorrow night, when the people stop coming, to go in it and see just what it needs. I may have to hire

They sat in the shadows and murmured girl talk—murmured it so as not to break the delicate spell of evening. They had wandered up their deserted ghost street not far from the mine shaft opening, for the jail dungeon was up this way, too, dug back in the rock of the same mountain. Its cells made of bars surrounded by the hardest of stone. They sat very close, in the precious intimacy of friendship and youth, resting, thinking, day dreaming by night. They had been there 20 minutes or so when they heard a step. Instantly the two girls looked at each other, then turned to look at the mine shaft, shrouded in darkness. The sound of footsteps came from it unmistakably. They said nothing—silenced by an as yet unjustified alarm. And while they remained silent in the shadows, they saw Dick Bancroft come from the shaft. He was carrying a bag, and they knew it contained the mystery money. They led him go straight to the jail dungeon, pull open the heavy oak iron gate and disappear inside. And then abruptly they heard from inside a subdued but startling wail—a blood-curdling noise as of a human being, in the greatest of agony. (To Be Continued)

Boy Runs Away Six Times; Can't Resist NEW ORLEANS—Mrs. O. S. Robertson is having trouble with her son again. He's got the wanderlust. It's a deep yearning, said O. S., aged 9. He can't overcome it. It has made him run away from home six times. The last time O. S. came home, he was apologetic. "I love you better than anybody," he said to his mother by way of breaking the ice. "Then why do you run away, O. S.?" Mrs. Robertson asked. "I don't know, mama," O. S. said. A few days later he said he had the old feeling again. Mrs. Robertson only sighed and went about beating up a cake. Maybe that would hold him a while.

FRECKLES and HIS FRIENDS

By United Press DALLAS, Tex.—Police Lt. R. W. Evans has something he wishes he knew how to get rid of. It is a 77 mm. anti-aircraft shrapnel shell. It was taken to the police station by a man who found it near some riding stables at the edge of the city—a place where officers could find no possible excuse for it to be. Lieutenant Evans called in officers of the national guard, but they said they didn't use any anti-aircraft shells, and they couldn't remember any wars that had been found in the neighborhood of the riding stables. So ownership of the shell remained a mystery, and in the meantime Lieutenant Evans has possession of it at the police property room. Experts said that the shell was loaded and ready for use, and Lieutenant Evans doesn't want it around his office, but the peace-loving city council has never made any rules for the disposition of anti-aircraft shells. Kansas penitentiary convicts staged a coal mine sit-down strike for the privilege of wearing silk underwear. Our experience in sitting in places like that has been that flannel is much more comfortable.

KIDNEYS MUST REMOVE EXCESS ACIDS

Southern Select
THE SOUTH'S ONLY DISTILLED WATER BREW

Lots of folks feel that way about SOUTHERN SELECT

SOUTHERN SELECT DRINKERS ARE a loyal bunch. There's a familiar, mellow friendliness about this famous old beer that grows better with acquaintance. We could give you lots of real reasons why SOUTHERN SELECT is such a fine beer—it's the South's only distilled water brew, made in the South's largest brewery. But, after all, one bottle will tell you more about its quality than a whole book of reasons. And that one bottle will make you a SOUTHERN SELECT booster too: why not try a bottle today? It will be the start of a long and happy companionship.
