JAPAN DECIDES TO ABANDON FOREIGN PLAN

By United Press
TOKYO, Aug. 25.—Japan has decided to abandon her European foreign policy as a result of the Soviet-German pact, Kono, cabinet secretary, announced today.

He said that a meeting of the cabinet agreed to jettison the policy "previously being prepared in regard to Europe, where we have cooperated under the anti-communist alliance with Italy and Germany."

In the future, the announcement said, Japan will pursue an independent foreign policy. The government was understood to have changed its attitude that Germany was the anti-communist ally by concluding the non-aggression pact with Russia.

Eastland County NYA Quota For Schools Now Set

J. C. Kellam, State Administrator, this week advised T. C. Wilcox, County School Superintendent, that Eastland County's quota of NYA school aid jobs for the 1939-40 school year has been set at 100 for white schools and 100 for colored schools. The State administrator said that quota was based on the county's relative population and its participation in the NYA school aid program.

Mr. Kellam asked the County Superintendent to call a meeting of the local NYA County Placement Committee for the purpose of distributing NYA jobs to the schools within the county. As soon as the committee report is received, the jobs will be mailed to schools recommended by the committee and approved for participation in the program. He said the school program would operate throughout the next school year in the same manner as it did last year, with only a few minor changes in administration and details.

The quota of NYA school aid jobs for the entire state was placed at 12,546. This is an increase of approximately one third over last year's quota, and the State Administrator estimated that 20,000 students in Texas secondary schools would be enrolled to continue their education through operation of the aid program.

Jail Awaits All Who Do Not Wear Western Regalia

The Ranger rodeo jail is completed, and those who do not wear cowboy regalia, beginning Saturday, will go to jail and pay a fine, they were warned today.

This does not, of course, include people from the rural area, nor those who are not financially able to buy cowboy shirts or pay the fines that will be assessed.

The jail will be located on one of the prominent street intersections in Ranger Saturday morning, though it was placed in front of the Commercial State Bank building this morning as a warning to the people of the city that they must cooperate or go to the hoosegow.

The jail has been mounted on the big, portable handstand, and it was said today by Fire Chief G. A. Murphy, the jail may be hooked behind a truck and paraded through the streets if some prominent citizen is jailed. The jail, also, will be entered in the big parade to be staged Monday morning, Sept. 4, at the beginning of the big celebration.

Roosevelt IS STILL HOPEFUL ABOUT PEACE

By United Press
WASHINGTON, Aug. 25.—President Roosevelt said today that there still is hope that war may be averted in Europe.

Because that hope still exists, he said he cannot make any decision now as to calling a special session of congress to consider revising the neutrality laws.

His remarks were made at a press conference while he awaited replies to his three urgent appeals for peace efforts, which were directed yesterday to the rulers of Germany, Poland and Italy.

Although Mr. Roosevelt described European prospects for avoiding war as a "lovely hope," he made it clear that he regarded the current international situation as one of the utmost gravity.

Mr. Roosevelt said he believed he had made his position clear as regards a special session when he said, at Hyde Park, Aug. 11, that he would not call congress until it became clear war was imminent. He said he would not regard the present European situation as certain to result in war.

Police Hospitals Ready for Meeting Of the Communists

By United Press
SAN ANTONIO, Aug. 25.—A communist meeting will be held tonight in San Antonio's municipal auditorium—a memorial to the city's World War dead.

One hundred and twenty persons, communists or otherwise, will be admitted to one room of the auditorium. When the 120 are seated the doors will be excluded.

On guard outside the auditorium will be 150 policemen.

Other preparations include making ready of the emergency ward at City-County hospital and assigning of extra attendants at the ward.

Militant Mayor Maury Maverick who has withstood a concerted attack by various groups to make him rescind the permit for the communist rally, remained silent today.

U. S. Army War Casualties are Eight as Armistice Comes

By United Press
PLATTSBURG, N. Y., Aug. 25.—Mimic warfare between 16,000 U. S. Army and 35,000 National Guard troops in the nation's largest peacetime maneuvers, was halted by a surprise "armistice" today, two hours before the scheduled close of battle.

Headquarters of the First Field Army gave no reason for the order, stopping a two-day battle designed to test efficiency of mechanized army units. It came the day after three soldiers, huddled under a tree in a cloudburst, were killed by lightning, raising the death toll of the war games to eight.

FBI Withholds All Reports On Capture Of Labor Racketeer

By United Press
NEW YORK, Aug. 25.—The Federal Bureau of Investigation today withheld all details of the surrender of Louis (Leppy) Buchalter, head of a band of labor racketeers and a fugitive for two years with $50,000 on his head.

J. Edgar Hoover, head of the FBI, announced last night that Buchalter had surrendered under a hour earlier "to me, personally."

He added that "Leppy told me he never left New York City since he became a fugitive."

MUTUAL ASSISTANCE PACT IS SIGNED BY POLAND AND BRITAIN

By JOE ALEX MORRIS
United Press Foreign News Editor
A mutual assistance pact was signed by Great Britain and Poland today in the midst of the climactic phase of Europe's war of nerves, as Adolf Hitler, reported in "high spirits," directed, from Berlin, a vast mass campaign to hasten a triumphant showdown with Poland.

For the moment the Polish government, mobilized on a war basis and backed, firmly, by Great Britain and France, stood its ground against a barrage that shook all of Europe.

In the Nazi chancellery Hitler worked out final plans with his government and military leaders and was reported to have had a long telephone talk with Albert Foster, the Nazi leader in beleaguered Danzig.

All Berlin was busy with military activities, and anti-aircraft guns were mounted on the big general buildings in full view of grim-faced passersby on the streets.

In Rome, where two more army classes were called, an effort was made to help increase the pressure on Poland, according to Paris reports, by urging France to advise Warsaw's capitulation before it is too late, Paris refused.

Some Nazis expressed hope that the new German treaty with Russia would lead Moscow to exert pressure against Poland, but most Berlin sources discounted the possibility of any direct action and took greater interest in Hitler's attempts to wean Turkey away from the British-French front.

Authoritative sources in Paris said Turkey had informed France she would stand firmly in her allegiance to the British-French security front.

Nazi diplomats also were attempting to reassure Japan the new pact with Moscow did not mean an end of the anti-communist structure.

At the same time, the German press onslaught against Poland was intensified with charges that eight Germans were shot dead by Polish police and that 10 shells were fired by Polish batteries at a German air liner carrying 17 passengers over the Baltic, outside the Polish area.

The German press rejected President Roosevelt's peace message to Hitler and it was indicated that it would be officially ignored—thus attempting to put further strain on Poland's nerves.

That's Where the Money Goes—

Even the most cursory study of the spending authorized by the past "economy" congress shows certain salient truths:

1. Despite the "economy" name, and despite the fact that the Congress definitely checked the President on his "splending" program, the $13,000,000,000 appropriated, is a greater sum than ever before appropriated in a year of peace time.
2. Many of the big increases are in fields where it will be extremely hard to reduce them without eliminating whole services and activities which are today a part of government, but which were not 10 years ago.
3. Interest on the public debt is now far higher than it was in 1930 $1,000,000,000 as against $660,000,000. It can no longer be said that carrying a larger debt is no more costly than carrying the former smaller one because interest rates are so much lower.
4. Without a definite and large increase in the national income, so that more taxes can be collected without taking a large percentage of that national income, it is very hard to see any path out of the woods.

Let's have a look at some of the expenditures for 1939-40 which did not occur at all in 1930. First, there is $1,755,000,000 for relief. There is nearly a billion for social security. There is nearly $300,000,000 for the CCC. Many will argue that the expenditures for these things ought to be reduced, but voices demanding that they be abolished are simply not heard at all in 1939. This means that while the amounts may be reduced somewhat, they will remain as substantial items on the annual budget which did not appear at all in 1930, no matter who is running the government.

Defense carried appropriations of $1,523,000,000, as compared with $698,000,000 in 1930. Nobody objects. But until something is done about world conditions, it is hard to see how this cost will ever be reduced any—it is much more likely to double again in the next 10 years, as it has in the past 10.

The farmers dragged down $1,272,000,000—incidentally the "economy" congress granted them $338,000,000 more than President Roosevelt asked—as compared to $453,000,000 in 1930. In 10 years the expenditures of the Agriculture Department are up a billion dollars.

So it goes. Everything hinges today, just as it always has, on business recovery. Only business recovery will provide the jobs that will lower that relief cost, increase consumption of those farm products provide the added taxes that will enable the government to start whittling away the billion-dollar debt charge.

On that everyone, Republican and Democrat, Communist and Townsendite, can agree. It is only when you ask "How shall we do it?" that disagreement begins.

Citrus Growers Are Jubilant Over New Canned Juice

Hope that Texas citrus fruit growers will be saved from the curse of over-production through sales of canned grapefruit juice in the soft drink market was expressed by G. O. McDaniel, sales manager for the Engleman Gardens Association of Edinburg, Texas, canners of Won-Up, pure Valley grapefruit juice. According to McDaniel, the nickels spent for grapefruit juice in the 5-3-4 oz. can may, within a very short time, completely re-establish the Texas citrus industry, which is one of the state's leading agricultural pursuits.

There is a potential outlet, he says, through the soft drink trade for approximately 10 million of its 15 million boxes of grapefruit juice annually, and in order to obtain an outlet of this size, it would only be necessary to get an estimated 1-40th of the cold drink business. "An actual shortage soon of citrus fruits, instead of a staggering surplus, is easily possible," Mr. McDaniel explained, "in view of the ready acceptance this year throughout Texas, Oklahoma and Louisiana, of Valley grapefruit juice as a healthful thirst quencher. In April, when we placed Won-Up, canned grapefruit juice, in soft drink outlets over the state," he said, "the results were astounding. Within a few weeks more than 4 million cans of Won-Up have brought healthful refreshment to the parched throats of Texans."

Many Aspire To Gain Crown of Late Kingfish

By TED MALOY, United Press Staff Correspondent
NEW ORLEANS, Aug. 25.—Election day in Louisiana is only five months away and the struggle for the mantle of Huey Long is on.

New leaders and new ideas may come out of the investigations that are being made and the voices of the politicians are loud in the land. Foremost among them is Huey's brother, Earl K. Long, present governor. When he became governor on June 26, he spoke this text: "Better a little with righteousness than great revenues without right."

Long had a choice between doing "a Huey or a Dewey"—in other words, he could adopt the tactics of his late brother or he could sweep Louisiana clean of corruption with the technique that district attorney Thomas E. Dewey used in New York City.

At the start he seemed to be "doing a Dewey." He ordered state officials either to quit office or sever their business connections involving the state. Some 76 legislators were reported to have dropped remunerative state jobs.

But the purge seemed to lessen in severity as the days went by. There were reports that Earl had received suggestions from the powers behind the throne to lay off. A month after his inauguration long seemed to be "doing a Huey"—he was talking about "Poor Huey." The difference between Huey and Earl is that the latter lacks the kingfish's political resourcefulness; he is deliberative where Huey acted with lightning speed.

James H. Morrison, scythed kingfish of the strawberry belt, is another aspirant. He has a following in the Louisiana farmer's protective union and is using some of Huey's technique in the publication of the Farmer's Friend, which occasionally sounds like the Kingfish's American Progress. However, Morrison is opposing the remnants of the Long machine.

State Senator James A. Noe, former lieutenant governor, apparently is the only pretender to the throne who clings strictly to Huey's ideas and methods. Teary still well into his eyes when he mentions "Poor Huey." He, too, is a bitter foe of the Earl Long administration and much credit for bringing about investigations of the Louisiana scandals has been given to him. He made many trips to Washington during the early months of 1939, ostensibly to obtain title to radio station WING in New Orleans. But he had many contacts in Washington and he disliked Gov. Earl Long and former Gov. Richard Leche.

Rev. Clayton W. Bennett resigned the pastorate of the Roseland Memorial Congregational Church at Roseland to "mount every public stump in the State of Louisiana, and my voice shall never be silenced until Louisiana is rid of the present political organization. He, too, may be a factor in the struggle for power.

Shirley Wimberly, who once shared a law office with Earl Long, is another. He delivers weekly speeches over a radio station with all the free-swinging style that the Kingfish once used. He attacks "lying newspapers" and "corporation lawyers." He criticizes attorney General Frank Murphy and the man who is conducting the federal government's investigation, O. John Rogge, assistant U. S. attorney general.

Two songs—"Every Man a King" and "Sweetheart of L. S. U."—of which Huey claimed authorship, are sung at each broadcast. Those are the men who aspire to be the Messiahs who will lead Louisiana back to decent government.

SERIAL STORY Murder on the Boardwalk BY ELINEORE COWAN STONE

Yesterday Bill's key holder is found on the bench. He tells of...

CHAPTER VIII

CHRISTINE waited uncomfortably while the inspector gave some final instructions to his subordinates.

Christine steeled herself, tried to revive her dwindling courage. Nevertheless, she must have looked pale under the brilliant lights of the office, for no sooner were they all seated than the inspector said to an officer at his elbow, "Get the young lady a drink. She looks sick."

Meantime another subordinate hurried in and put an envelope on the desk. "They've found Mrs. Talbert's car, Chief," he said in an undertone. "Locked and parked at the end of the 27th street dock. The number checks at the State office."

"Inspector Parsons glanced through the contents of the envelope. "Okay," he nodded. "Get one of the Amalgamated officials and check up on the rest of the stockholders. . . . And wait a minute—see if any of these keys open that car."

"He took a key holder from his pocket. "Now, Mr. Yardley, how long have you known Mrs. Talbert?"

"After a fashion for 10 or 12 years." "But—why, he didn't tell me this Christine thought. "What do you mean by 'after a fashion'?"

"I met her at a horse show where I was riding. Since then I've trained several thoroughbreds for her. But I've seen her very seldom."

"But often enough to borrow money of her?" "That's a matter of record. You can easily find out—"

"I have already found out," the inspector cut in coldly. "The note who always witnesses her. . . . Remember the transaction. Several years ago Mrs. Talbert lent you $20,000."

Christine listened incredulously. "In return," Inspector Parsons went on, "for a silent partnership in your firm—which, at the time, wasn't worth $10,000."

"Mrs. Talbert knew that." "But which is now worth many times as much. Your agreement" with Mrs. Talbert was unusual. At the death of either of you, your joint property automatically reverted to the other. On your repaying the loan, it reverted to you. . . . Have you repaid that loan?"

CHAPTER VIII

THE inspector swung on Mr. Wilmet. "Mr. Wilmet," he said, "you own some Amalgamated stock, I believe?"

Mr. Wilmet moistened his lips. "Why, yes—yes, I have a few shares," he admitted. "It might be interesting to know how you voted on that merger between Amalgamated and National stockholders' meeting yesterday."

"Well," Mr. Wilmet said nervously, "as a matter of fact, I didn't go to the meeting at all. "You didn't have to go. Someone else could have voted your stock by proxy."

"But I—why should they?" "Mrs. Talbert was interested in preventing that merger. Yet two days before the meeting, Mrs. Talbert's house was suddenly closed, the servants sent on vacation, and the telephone discontinued; and Mrs. Talbert, who owned enough stock to stop that merger singlehandedly, apparently went off somewhere on a trip. I believe some of the Amalgamated stockholders might know where she went and why. . . . Now when my men found you in that drug store, about 1, you said you had been attending a show from 9 until after 12 o'clock. Could you prove that?"

"No, sir," Mr. Wilmet was white, but he spoke with a spirit that surprised Christine. "Why should I expect I'd have to?"

Bill Yardley moved as if to speak; but apparently thought better of it. The inspector glanced at him with interest; but Mr. Wilmet was going on: "And I must say, Inspector, that I resent your men's taking away the only comfortable pair of walking shoes I had. I've got bad arches, and those hurt me."

Christine remembered that she had seen the little man stumble several times after he had appeared on the Boardwalk. Now he was wriggling his small feet in their trim dress shoes in obvious discomfort; and he seemed about to expand on his grievances. But the inspector cut in: "You'll get them back. . . . By the way, Yardley, suppose you step into the next room—and you"—he indicated Jasper. "We want a look at the shoes you're wearing."

AS Bill and Jasper filed obediently out, another officer announced by E. E. Garner, manager of the theatre.

In explaining the revival week, Garner stated that everyone in Ranger, or in the Ranger territory was entitled to vote. The seven pictures being given the largest vote will be brought back to Ranger for one day only, making a total of seven pictures being shown during the week.

The seven pictures receiving the highest number of votes will be played one each day for a week.

stipped in and handed the inspector a report. "As I expected," Inspector Parsons commented after glancing at the paper. "The city prints on that dagger are identical with those Miss—Nevin, did you say the name is?—made on that glass she drank from a while ago. If there were any others, someone has cleaned them off."

CHAPTER VIII

Christine started to say, "Inspector, my name isn't—"

But Inspector Parsons had swung again upon Mr. Wilmet. "Now," he snapped, "suppose you tell me why you introduced this young lady as 'Miss Grace Nevin'?"

"Why shouldn't I?" Mr. Wilmet's ineffectual chin waggled truculently. "This young lady told me her name was 'Miss Grace Nevin.' I naturally believed it was. I haven't any reason to think it isn't."

"Yet an employe from the Crestview identified her as the young woman who registered at the hotel as Miss Christine Thorntons."

"I'm sorry, Mr. Wilmet," Christine said. "I did give you an assumed name. . . . I tried to tell you Inspector."

"Did you, indeed?" the inspector asked dryly. "I hadn't noticed it." "But," Mr. Wilmet persisted, "if this young lady chooses to use a—pen name, I can't see why it makes any difference to any one else."

"It makes just this difference—that it seems a singular coincidence that Mrs. Talbert's body should have been found in the very concession where you were paying her own cousin to work."

For a moment the inspector sat, studying Christine with curious attention. Finally he said, "Miss Thorntons, there was a letter in your cousin's bag—stamped, sealed, and addressed to you. . . . Perhaps you'd better read it."

He handed Christine a folded sheet of paper. "My dear Christine," the letter ran, "I am distressed by the repeated reports I get of your reckless extravagance. I have already warned you that unless you gave me reason to believe that you had learned something about the care of money, I should have no choice but to change my will—in which, as of course you know, you are named as my chief heir. I am about to take steps to make that change."

Sincerely yours, Emma Talbert. When Christine looked up, she knew that her face must be as blank as her mind.

Dry Soil Chart Of Plains Now Made

WASHINGTON.—Revised farming practices to conserve limited subsoil moisture in the Western Great Plains are essential to the successful growth of wheat. Department of Agriculture officials insist.

An exhaustive, 30-year study of moisture measurements in the semi-arid plains shows, officials said, why the summer fallowing of wheat land is necessary to prevent evaporation of summer rains and conserve the moisture for fall seeding.

The study—from records kept at Harve, Mont.; North Platte, Neb.; Mandan, N. D., and Hays and Colby, Kas.—disclosed that wheat usually draws all available moisture from the ground by harvest time, leaving it as dry as after several years of drought.

"This moisture must be renewed before another crop can be grown," the department said. "The dryland wheat farmer has not one chance in a hundred of a 20-bushel an acre yield if he seeds when the soil is dry."

"The chances are about 70 out of 100 that his crop will be a failure (four bushels or less) if subsoil moisture has not been restored. Even with three feet of moisture the chances are only 47 out of 100 of a crop of more than 20 bushels to an acre."

There is little likelihood of an improvement in the moisture situation for many years, officials said. It is questionable, they said, whether moisture ever has or ever will penetrate beyond the depth of roots in some sections.

"In general," the report on the study said, "it may be said that under sod or under continuous cropping to small grains, penetration of water to depths not reached by roots has been so rare and so limited at the stations under study that the addition of any appreciable quantity of water to the water table is a matter of centuries."

"At Harve, Colby, Hays and on one field at Mandan it is questionable whether water has ever penetrated beyond the reach of wheat roots—three or four feet—and at North Platte this occurs only once in 10 years."

A "revival week" in which seven of the past year's most outstanding pictures, as selected by Arcadia Theatre audiences, will be presented at the Arcadia, beginning Sunday, Sept. 10, it has been and the person voting for the most pictures requested by the theatre's patrons will be given a month's pass to the theatre. Second prize in the contest will be a two week's pass and the next five will receive two passes each.

First Air Mail In U. S. Was Carried Just 27 Years Ago

By United Press BOONEVILLE, Ind.—Twenty-seven years ago Capt. Horace Kearney piloted his Curtiss pusher biplane from the Booneville fairgrounds to the city's postoffice to establish the first official air mail route in the United States.

His mail flights covered only a few miles, but had the authorization of the postmaster general.

Capt. Kearney's plane was the pride of the Booneville fair during the last week in August, 1912, and the late John F. Richardson, postmaster and Fair Association secretary, decided to capitalize on his prize attraction.

He wrote the postoffice department at Washington and received authorization from the postmaster general to deputize Capt. Kearney as a carrier and to give him a route number. A fair concessionaire was sworn in as deputy postmaster and the route began.

Each day at 4:30 P. M. the mail was deposited in a regulation post-office lock pouch. Capt. Kearney placed it in the plane, circled the field and was off for the Warrick county courthouse a short distance away.

Flying low, he gripped the pouch on the court house lawn to be retrieved by Fred Johnson, assistant postmaster, who holds the same position today.

The cost of airmail then was low—one-cent for postcards and two cents for letters, but today the few remaining cards and letters sent over the route have been bought up by collectors for from $5 to $70.

Flying the mail in 1912, however, was not without its hazards. Capt. Kearney, flying from the Rockport fair to the Booneville fair, a distance of 21 miles, missed the city by half a mile on his first try, due to inaccuracies of his compass.

And the courthouse lawn was not the largest target in the world, Johnson recalls. One day, for instance, the mail bag hit the window ledge outside the county recorder's office and scattered the postage all the way through Warrick county.

Summer flowers were used in decorating and a color scheme of lime and wine was carried out in all features of the party. Marking the places for guests at the luncheon tables were tiny envelopes bearing the name of the honored guest on one side and the name on the other and containing score cards. Small pencils were attached. High score in the games went to Miss Billie Gordon and low score to Mrs. Catherine McHenry.

After presenting a shower of gifts to Mrs. Fox, a delicious salad course was served to the following: Misses Willard Vaugen, Inez Marlowe, Nedra Barnett, Raymond Steele, Roney Jones, Iva Mae Hooks, L. E. Irwin, Catherine McHenry, Raymond Brown, Francis Fendler and Misses Helen Coalson, Gene Peterson, Billie Gordon, Doris Williams, Frank Fox and the hostesses.
