GERMANS BOMB DEFENSELESS POLISH TOWN

EDITOR'S NOTE: Edward W. Beattie, Jr., United Press correspondent who spent the opening days of the war in Warsaw, has reached Bucharest, Rumania, and has filed the following uncensored dispatch.

By Edward W. Beattie, Jr. BUCHAREST, Rumania.—On the road from Warsaw to the Rumanian border there is a little market town called Tomaszow, and tonight half of it is in ashes and 30 of its inhabitants lie dead.

The town and the dead—including the village doctor—are the victims of a German air raid against a village that seemed to be of no military value whatever.

I rode into Tomaszow five hours after bombardment and saw what explosive and incendiary bombs can do to a town built of wood and plaster.

The terror from the sky struck Thursday, a day on which big two-motored German bombers turned their attention to Poland's agricultural center.

Aside from the fact that Tomaszow lies across the wide road from Lemberg to Lublin, one of the best in Poland and important in the transportation of troops, the town has no military value.

But the Germans struck from the sky, and when they winged away flames were leaping from the houses, 30 were dead and a score wounded. There was no hope for the seriously wounded.

The village doctor, only man who could aid them, lay dead, too.

The Germans were able to penetrate so deeply into Poland, because the Polish army, on advice of British and French general staffs, retreated in good order.

The strategy was to try to keep as many troops as possible massed in Poland until France and Britain could strike a telling blow on the western front.

Apparently it was successful. There can be little doubt the Polish army is largely intact. Much of it never went to battle at all against the Germans, and in all cases that I observed, the morale of the Poles seemed excellent.

Individual deposits in the Commercial State Bank of Ranger reached an all-time high Friday afternoon, it was announced Saturday by W. F. Creager, cashier of the bank.

"This showing is very encouraging," Creager said, "not only for the Commercial State Bank, but for the entire Ranger trading area, and we are proud of the showing the bank is making."

Roosevelt Studies Plans For Session Of Congress Soon

By United Press HYDE PARK, N. Y., Sept. 9.—President Roosevelt, ostensibly spending a quiet week-end at his family home, considered plans for a special session of congress which will be asked to repeal the neutrality act arms embargo that has blocked further shipments of airplanes and war materials to Great Britain and France.

Seeking respite from the job of preserving neutrality, he retired to almost complete seclusion.

He was in communication with the state department, receiving latest reports from Europe, and with his white house aides, who forwarded background and information in connection with the special congressional session, which he will call.

Mr. Roosevelt, in position of broader powers than any president since Woodrow Wilson, was expected to bide his own time in calling the session.

14th Session Of Ranger College To Start Monday

With the largest enrollment in its history anticipated, Ranger Junior College opens its 14th annual session Monday morning, September 11th.

The public is cordially invited to this opening.

Pedestrian Deaths Claim Attention Of Safety Department

AUSTIN, Tex.—Department of Public Safety officers today prepared to combat pedestrian deaths with renewed activity as schools opened over the state, shopping increased and public gatherings became more numerous.

Recalling that the pedestrian death list rose disastrously to 291 from last September to June while 1,335 others were seriously injured, state police warned that a repetition of that toll is likely unless walking precautions are taken.

Seventy-four school age persons were injured fatally when struck down by vehicles in that period. This, safety officials pointed out, shows the need for pedestrian drills among students, more precaution on the part of parents and increased pedestrian and driver vigilance.

Preliminary to its autumn, winter and spring campaigns for pedestrian safety state police offered rules for the walking public, violations of which have caused the greatest number of deaths and injuries. The rules are:

- 1. Cross only at intersections and then only when the signal light favors you and vehicular traffic has cleared.
- 2. Look in all directions while crossing streets and highways.
- 3. Discharge passengers at curbs and have them alight from the side of the vehicle nearest the curb. Discharge school children at the curb on school sides of streets so they will not have to cross streets.
- 4. Do not stand off of curbs but remain on sidewalks.
- 5. Face oncoming traffic when necessary to walk on streets or highways.
- 6. Pedestrians should carry flashlights at night to warn approaching vehicles of their presence.

ENGLAND SAYS NO PEACE UNTIL NAZIS REMOVE ALL TROOPS

By United Press LONDON, Sept. 9.—Great Britain made known Saturday night in advance through an official spokesman that it refuses to negotiate peace with Germany until the eRlich forces are entirely withdrawn from Poland.

The spokesman's statement constituted a reply to the address earlier in the day of Marshal Hermann Goering, second in command to Adolf Hitler, in which Goering indicated Germany is ready for an "honorable" peace.

The spokesman described the withdrawal of German troops from Poland as Britain's minimum condition for cessation of hostilities.

The British war cabinet has decided to base its policies on the assumption the war will last three years or more, the ministry of information announced.

The cabinet made its decision at a meeting Saturday morning. It instructed all government departments to make certain plans for the future shall be prepared on the assumption that the war would last three years.

Meanwhile, the information ministry said, measures for which preparations have been made are being brought into active operation.

The official spokesman lent emphasis to an intensified British drive to control "contraband" and cut off Germany's supply of essential war materials.

Explaining Britain's unwillingness to talk peace with Hitler now, a responsible British authority declared that Britain went to war to right the wrong inflicted on Poland, and that the government of Prime Minister Neville Chamberlain is determined to insure that such attacks as those on Czechoslovakia and Poland will not be repeated on the remaining independent European states.

The conviction was expressed in quarters close to the government that peace parleys now would mean at best a short breathing space, after which German aggression would be loosed on Hungary, Rumania and probably Yugo-Slavia.

Game Warden In Move To Breck.

BRECKENRIDGE, Sept. 9.—O. F. Etheredge, formerly of Brownwood, where he was game warden in two counties in that section has moved to Breckenridge and will have charge of seven counties in this section.

The greatest trouble being experienced by wardens at present, he said, is road hunting. When any one road hunts he usually break two laws, he said. Hunting from an automobile and shooting in the road. It is also illegal to stand on one side of the road and shoot game on other side.

It Is Now the Time for Performance...

One hundred per cent of the electric power facilities of the state of Tennessee are now publicly owned. Public ownership of power, for 50 years a dream of the comparatively small coterie of its backers, is today a reality throughout one of the 48 states. In a Wall Street office, with 200 representatives of the TVA and the 34 cities, towns, and electrical co-operatives of Tennessee looked on, David E. Lilienthal, TVA director, passed over to Wendell Wilkie, president of Commonwealth and Southern, a check for $45,000,000. And privately owned electric utilities moved out of the state of Tennessee. Public ownership had won its first state-wide victory.

And so it is. The TVA was created May 18, 1933. For six years the twin struggles have been going on—the struggle against nature in building the great dams across the Tennessee river system, and the struggle against human nature as the privately owned utilities fought to keep their place in this gigantic field. Now in Tennessee the public ownership principle has won out. The struggle is over. Now the new system is on trial.

The government has its yard-stick. Lilienthal believes that within five years half the country will be getting power at TVA rates, not because of the direct competition of other TVA's, but because TVA will show that it can be done.

This, of course, remains to be seen. But most immediate will be the trial of TVA itself.

"We have made good our assurances to Congress that the business would be self-liquidating," says Lilienthal. With the completion of dams already provided for by 1946-47, TVA will be fully self-supporting and will then no longer require appropriations of new capital from Congress.

We shall see. Wilkie, whose stubborn defense of his corporation against what is to him "unfair and subsidized government competition," won praise even from his opponents, says no. He is skeptical of the government operation, especially if the government will operate under the rules it has laid down for private utilities as to bookkeeping, tax charges, and financing.

He doubts that public utilities can render as good and as cheap service as private companies without burdening the general taxpayer with a perpetual subsidy load. Lilienthal says they can.

Naturally, cheap power can be produced and distributed if the general taxpayer simply pays the deficits which make low rates possible. On the other hand, perhaps TVA will not actually begin to pay back the cheaply borrowed capital advanced by the government, as well as provide its own running expenses. It is a national job of administration and of bookkeeping, both of which the taxpayer and consumer ought to watch with a redoubled interest now that it is actually and finally his business.

BRUCE CATTON IN WASHINGTON

BY BRUCE CATTON

NEA Service Staff Correspondent

WASHINGTON.—The Dies committee on un-American activities is preparing what it hopes will be a knockout blow against the Communist Party in America.

It hopes to prove conclusively—and it will start shortly after it gets through examining Earl Browder—that the party is in fact an organized, fully-instructed agent in the United States of the Russian government.

Chairman Dies says the committee has in readiness at least 25 witnesses, including a number of "high-ranking ex-party people." Through their sworn testimony the committee expects to demonstrate that the party comes under the law requiring foreign propaganda agents to register in this country with the Department of State.

"I think we'll get enough evidence to justify the government in holding them to strict accountability as a foreign espionage agency," Dies says.

"Since the Russian government joined hands with Hitler we've got a much better chance to get the government to help us. Previously I used to encounter a good deal of sympathy for Russia among people in key positions here, but those people are beginning to feel differently now."

Chairman Dies and other members of the committee are convinced they will have little difficulty in proving their case. They expect to be able to present the same sort of proof in regard to the German-American Bund, which they say should also be compelled to register.

To date the Department of Justice is maintaining an air of interested inactivity in this matter.

If definite proof can be dug up by the Dies committee, the department would move swiftly to force the party—or the Bund—in register. Refusal to obey the law would render leaders of an organization liable to fines of $1000 and prison terms of two years.

Committee members believe that if the Communist Party could be almost completely crippled as far as its activities in this country are concerned. They predict that such organizations as the American League for Peace and Democracy, which are not strictly Communist organizations but in whose activities the party has played a leading role, would draw completely away from the party; that the "united front" of leftist and labor groups which the party has worked to build up would collapse; and that the left-wing group in the government service would be unable any longer to show any friendship for the Communists.

Meanwhile, the Dies committee also proposed to undertake a continuing exercise in propaganda analysis. Chairman Dies plans to call as a committee witness Prof. Harold D. Lasswell of Yale to tell the committee all about the techniques of foreign propaganda.

The committee will muster a staff of half a dozen or more university professors who are trained propaganda analysts. This group will study the day-by-day output of American newspaper columnists and radio commentators and try to separate the wheat of fact and honest opinion from the chaff of willful foreign propaganda.

Dies says the committee will probably issue a weekly analysis, telling which writers and speakers the experts believe to be propagandists and which ones it believes to be above-board.

After a hectic day, Marian longs to have Dan come home, kiss away her worries...

might not go around again. No time for a gradual build-up. The young man tensed closer, he spoke hurriedly.

CHAPTER V
MARIAN took a deep breath. She must steady her nerves. She must make an effort toward a smile...

RIDING out Sheridan in the cheap little car, Marian sat quietly, remembering. The night she first met Dan. They never had been properly introduced...

THE remainder of the evening had been blurred like the faces. Marian's emotions had been a jumble of shamed consternation at her own behavior and a bewildering, heart-quickenning elation...

He came over her that Dan was longer a sustaining influence. Her life. How had they wandered so far apart? Had she gone without him—or had he done it deliberately veered his path away from her here? She longed for the old life, its closeness and understanding.

The band had been playing "Always." Marian softly hummed the tune and again Dan glanced down at her, frowning.

They had talked. Dan had seemed determined to establish his background and identity. His family lived in Iowa, he'd had two years at the State University, working his way. He'd been in Chicago six months. He'd just happened to go out to the pavement dance—just happened.

"Fraid not," he answered impatiently. "I'm just about covered up."

Afterward Marian thought that the fate must have realized the importance of meeting the red-headed young man. Afterward Dan said that he had been cudgeling his brain for a way—any way. It happened simply.

Within two weeks they were engaged to be married, blissful two weeks in which Marian forgot her ambitions in the Grant Fellows office, when a great new gladness wiped out the lesser joys. Dan was making $35 a week, they'd start on a small scale and spread out gradually. It sounded delightful. Nothing was so important as making a home for Dan. The location or desirability of the home did not matter.

"Go on, go on," he said promptly. "Dan, we must begin to look for a house. We can't go on spending money like this. What if one of us should get sick—or something?"

Then, one Sunday afternoon, they drove out to see Bill and Amy Ellen Sands. The married life of Dan and Marian might have been vastly different if they had not gone to see Bill and Amy Ellen Sands.

Foretells Birth of Messianic King

Text: Isaiah 7:14; 9:1-7; 11:1-5

BY WILLIAM E. GILROY, E. Editor of Advance

THE lessons for the last quarter of this year bring us back to the story of Jesus and the Kingdom of Heaven that He came to establish. It is fitting that this final lesson of our studies in the prophets should set before us a great conception of the Messiah and the servant of His people in the prophecy of Isaiah.

A generation ago critics were deeply in controversy over whether these prophecies referred specifically to Jesus of Nazareth and were the foretelling of His coming and of events that were to take place centuries later, or whether they were Isaiah's preachings concerning things more definitely related to his own time.

As we read these prophecies in the light of the story of Jesus of Nazareth and see how essentially his coming and all that he said and did fits in with what the prophets foretold, it seems inevitable that we should regard these prophecies as related to Him.

It seems doubtful that the prophets hundreds of years before should have discerned this with exactness. It seems rather that what they saw was the vision of the Messiah that Jesus fulfilled, and it is a marvelous conception of a kingdom of righteousness, justice and truth coming among men through a Messiah who was to be their Savior and their leader.

THE prophecies have all the deeper and greater meaning for us when, in addition to seeing them as related to Jesus, we go back in the age of the prophet himself and catch something of what the matchless vision meant for him in relation to the environment in which he lived.

Perhaps both Jew and Christian are learning with greater realism that it is this vision and hope that keeps life and liberty alive. If it were not for this, the world would lapse even more deeply into barbarism and evil.

We believe that Jesus has come as the Messiah, establishing his kingdom, and we apply to Him all these great names that Isaiah applied to the Messiah—Wonderful, Counsellor, Mighty God, Everlasting Father, Prince of Peace.

It is necessary to remember also that if the Messiah has come, His kingdom is not fully established. He Himself told us to pray to the Father, "Thy kingdom come, thy will be done, on earth as it is in Heaven."

It is only as we live in the spirit of that prayer and seek to fulfill it in our daily lives that we live in the reality of his great Messianic vision. Only thus do we share the fellowship of the prophets and the saints whose glory was that they lived and suffered for it.

In these days when so much racial and religious conflict is rife in the world Jew and Christian, however they may differ concerning the fulfillment of the prophecies, must find common ground in living for the glory of God—in seeking to establish the Messianic kingdom, which is the kingdom of love and righteousness and truth.

TOLEDO BUILDING BOOMS

TOLEDO, O.—Construction work during the first half of 1939 showed an increase of 224 per cent here. Part of this gain was due to the upturn in the small home market which has come about because of lower interest rates on mortgage financing and the shortage of single-family dwellings.

Chatter Box

Headlining a recent safety bulletin is a wise bit of advice contained in a clever rearrangement of an old adage, "children should be SEEN, not HURT..." Which reminds us that two or three young chaps with adolescent slants about driving automobiles should come in for a bit of parental or police control. When they make us old folk take to the curb or the ditch to dodge their crazy antics with their "new toy" we just wonder what an unsuspecting and inexperienced school child would do under the same circumstances... If we ever had any illusions about our being a crack reporter they would have been disillusioned this week when by chance we learned that the touted Yacopis troupe, double-jointed performers from New York, were stopping at a local eat shop, we rushed over to meet them, and immediately all the bright questions that we had thought up to ask them vanished and all we learned was that they are headed for an engagement in California and from there to Mexico... A local man has our sincere sympathy in a remark made recently. Being the husband of an "away-for-the-summer" wife he remarked upon her return, "Thank goodness, I'll get a pot of boiled cabbage, now..." And there's the couple who will leave soon for Washington and New York with personal invitations from two congressmen to be their house guests while in the capitol... Ranger's Casa Manana dancer, Dorothy Henry, back home and all thrills over her summer's experiences and the lovely autographed pictures of all the stars, their gift to her, and she says that the people of Ranger and the Chamber of Commerce have her deepest thanks for the backing they gave her...

Miss Edna Lee Hicks who has been a guest in the O. G. Lanier home, has returned to her home in Eastland.

Arthur Murrell left Friday to join his family in Colorado City, where they are the guests of Dr. and Mrs. Harry Logsdon.

Max Williams has returned from Austin, where he has been studying at the University.

John Hassen was a business visitor in Hamlin, Saturday.

Keith McLaughlin and Bobby Powell left Saturday for a visit in the northwestern states and California.

Mr. and Mrs. L. H. Flewelling have returned from a trip to south and west Texas, and have as their guests, Mr. and Mrs. V. H. Flewelling and son, Gene Hardy, of Big Spring.

Mr. and Mrs. J. D. Johnson and son have returned from a visit with Mr. and Mrs. Bob Love in Odessa.

Miss Mattie Beryl Montgomery, who has been visiting her parents, Mr. and Mrs. S. O. Montgomery, for the past three weeks, will return to Waco Monday to complete her apprenticeship as a senior law student with Judge Nat Harris of that city. She will resume her studies at Baylor University, September 20.
