Eastland County Fair Will Open Tomorrow

RANGER PLANS PROGRAM FOR COUNTY'S FAIR

Rangers' part in the Eastland county fair, which starts tomorrow morning, has been planned by the Ranger Chamber of Commerce, it was announced today by N. Larson, president.

Thursday night, the opening night of the fair, has been set as Ranger and Cisco night, with each town furnishing about 15 minutes of the program.

Green will have the first portion of the program, it was announced by a conference between Pleasant Moore, secretary of the Ranger Chamber of Commerce and H. J. Larson, secretary of the Eastland Chamber of Commerce.

The Ranger High School Band, playing at a pep rally in preparation for the Ranger-Stephenville football game, will be at Stephenville Friday night, will go to Eastland, where short concert will be staged.

In addition to the band tapesses will be presented by Miss Dorothy Henry, who was in the chorus of Casa Manana this year, and Margaret Watt, Mrs. Watt will accompany them on the piano. Mrs. Helen Shaw, supervisor of the NYA girls' project in Ranger, also will be presented in vocal numbers.

56 VOTES FOR REVISION ARE CLAIMED TODAY

WASHINGTON, Sept. 27.—Administration leaders today claimed 56 assured senate votes, seven more than a majority, for President Roosevelt's arms embargo repeal.

Friends and foes of neutrality revision looked radio time to carry their fight before the people, who already have responded with thousands of telegrams and letters.

NEW YORK, Sept. 27.—The National Republican Club, at its monthly meeting last night, voted 46 to 6 in favor of the proposed neutrality law revision.

CHICAGO, Sept. 27.—The American Legion foreign relations committee presented its recommendations to the 21st annual Legion convention today without committing itself on the arms embargo issue. The issue was expected to bring a fight on the convention floor.

The report recommended that congress remain in session during the present "grave crisis" that President Roosevelt and congress pursue a policy that will prevent involvement in the conflict and that the armed forces be expanded immediately to maintain neutrality.

Pep Rally To Be Staged Thursday For Jacket Game

A big pep rally, in which the Ranger High School Band and the school's pep squad will participate, will be held in Ranger Thursday night, it was announced today by school officials.

This will be the first pep rally held by high school students in the county this year, and will be a forerunner of the Ranger-Stephenville football game, to be played in Stephenville Friday night. The Ranger-Stephenville game will be first played by the Bulldogs since they were crowned a majority of the fans to attend, and the first conference game of the season for District 5-A, all other teams playing non-conference games.

There is no way in which the Bulldogs and Yellow Jackets can be compared to estimate the probability of each, though both teams have won all their games late.

Sept. 15 the Bulldogs journeyed to El Paso, where they played the first game in a driving rain to win by a score of 7 to 0. The Yellow Jackets were idle that weekend. On Sept. 21, after only two days rest, the Bulldogs played San Antonio Tech at San Antonio, winning by a score of 13 to 0.

The Yellow Jackets opened their non-conference schedule last night against a Comanche team, winning by a score of 14 to 0. Coach Hill Tipton of the Bulldogs, who coached the game previously, reports that the Yellow Jackets showed much promise of being one of the strongest teams in the district, as judged by their play with Comanche.

More interest is being shown in football locally, and in the Bulldog-Yellow Jacket game particularly, and large crowds are expected to be out for the pep rally and to attend the game at Stephenville Friday night.

Stevenson Silent After His Visit With Governor

AUSTIN, Sept. 27.—After a conference with Gov. O'Daniel here today, Lieut. Gov. Coke Stevenson of Junction was silent on the question of a special session of the Texas Legislature.

A number of senators have been in Austin since the announcement that old age pensions must be reduced $6 each in October.

Resignation of Rep. Marvin London of Montague, the fourth representative to resign since the legislature adjourned its regular session was placed before the governor today.

The governor has called no special elections to fill the vacancies, which will be necessary if a special session is held.

Royal Arch To Meet On Thursday

A regular stated meeting of the Eastland Royal Arch chapter will be held Thursday night, Sept. 28, at the Masonic temple beginning at 8 o'clock, it was announced today.

More interest is being shown in football locally, and in the Bulldog-Yellow Jacket game particularly, and large crowds are expected to be out for the pep rally and to attend the game at Stephenville Friday night.

German Shells Fall On French Villages

Fear Swiss Lie in Nazi's Path to France

Allies fear Switzerland may become a German war path into France. In his first press interview since the war, Nazi Propaganda Minister Goebbels said that the neutrality of Holland and Belgium will be held inviolate. Significantly, no mention was made of Switzerland, so far as press reports indicate. Maps shows possible Nazi routes to France and indicate the Swiss plans of defense.

Ranger Girl Given A Student Position At John Tarleton

Genie I. Barrag of Ranger has been given a student position at John Tarleton College where she is enrolled as a student.

Dean J. Thomas Davis has always operated the many enterprises of the college by student labor, selecting outstanding boys and girls for the positions and placing them at jobs related to their studies.

Known as a school "run by the students", Tarleton has boys and girls operating the College dairy which has a herd of one hundred registered Jerseys, the 500 acre demonstration farm with all the fine live-stock, the college dining hall where eight hundred students are fed, the poultry plant and the many other enterprises of the college. "While the financial aid has enabled many worthy students to obtain an education," said Dean Davis, "the experiences these working students obtain is invaluable."

Commercial Mines In Central Texas May Be Studied

AUSTIN, Tex.—Commercial mining possibilities of Central Texas, particularly "war materials" of which the United States lacks sufficient known deposits, will be studied this fall by University of Texas geologists.

Dr. V. E. Barnes, research geologist, will survey mining possibilities in the "Llano area" which includes Gillespie, Burnet, Mason and Blanco counties. Most important known deposits in the area are granite and marble—reported by the nation's largest supply—but surveys have shown traces of chromium, nickel, copper, lead, graphite, gypsum and gold in the area.

Dr. E. H. Sellards, director of the university Bureau of Economic Geology, said that a $5,000 appropriation by the legislature remedied one handicap in determining the mining possibilities.

Development of electric power on the Colorado river will make possible the industrial development of the minerals if any are found in commercial quantities, he added.

SURVIVORS OF TCU WRECK ON WAY TO COAST

SWEETWATER, Sept. 27.—A special train carrying the T.C.U. football team, the band and fans, left here at 6:45 a. m. today, bound for Los Angeles, where the team plays the University of California at Los Angeles Friday night.

The team, which arrived here yesterday afternoon, worked out for two hours last night.

MILLSAP, Sept. 27.—Two train crew men were dead today and six persons were injured as a result of a wreck five miles east of here last night of a special Texas and Pacific train carrying T. C. U. fans and the band to a football game in Los Angeles.

The dead were Leonard J. Perry, 31, Fort Worth, engineer, and Neely McClell, 69, Fort Worth, conductor. Miss Vivian Smith, 17, of Fort Worth was killed a few miles east of Weatherford when the automobile in which she and two friends were riding to the scene of the train wreck overturned.

Passengers who required hospital treatment were C. D. Reimers, prominent Fort Worth business man, and Mrs. D. T. Swint, of Fort Worth. Several other passengers were treated for minor injuries.

Four of the most seriously injured were railroad employees. They were J. B. Hammer, of Fort Worth, fireman, who suffered severe burns; A. F. Pistoie, of Big Spring, division T. F. superintendent; a negro porter and a negro cook, both from East Worth.

Two persons were injured in the automobile wreck in which Miss Smith was killed. They were Jean Cox, 19, and Paul Parks, 20, both of Fort Worth. Young Parks, a junior student at T. C. U., whose parents were killed in an airplane accident seven years ago, was unconscious today in a Fort Worth hospital.

The train left Fort Worth shortly after 6 p. m. yesterday, carrying 131 passengers, including 40 members of the T. C. U. band. More than an hour later, according to the fireman, there was an explosion in the engine. The locomotive was almost demolished. Six coaches careened from the track, and only the lounge car remained on the rails.

After a six-hour wait another train picked up the band and most of the passengers and continued the journey west.

BRITAIN DENIES NAZI PLANES SINK VESSELS

Great Britain and Nazi Germany made conflicting claims of success today in the first battle between warships and war planes.

The Nazi high command announced a British aircraft carrier had been destroyed and a battleship damaged by a swift aerial attack against the British fleet in the North Sea.

The British government, through first lord of the admiralty, Winston Churchill, announced that two of 20 attacking Nazi planes had been shot down and that the British fleet suffered no damage.

The dramatic story of Warsaw's defiance to the Nazi war machine neared its climax. From Berlin the Nazi high command announced the Polish commander had offered to surrender after 19 days of siege. The German embassy in Washington said that Warsaw had surrendered.

But almost at the same hour the British Exchange Telegraph reported the defenders still were holding out.

Of still greater importance was a series of diplomatic developments that took the foreign ministers of Germany, Turkey and Estonia to Moscow.

Conferees there were expected to result in drastic realignments in Eastern Europe. Estonia appeared most directly in the path of Soviet expansion, and her government protested that Russian war planes had violated Estonian neutrality.

In London Sir John Simon, chancellor of the exchequer, announced that Britons would pay heavily for their war to crush Hitlerism. The income tax will be increased to 35 per cent. There will be a 60 per cent war profits tax and higher levies on beer, wines, whisky, tobacco and sugar.

Healthy Political Body Best Infection Safeguard

In the debate about the American attitude toward the war now sweeping Europe, there are varying points of view. There are certain points, however, that are common to almost all.

First, an overwhelming majority of Americans don't want to get mixed up in the war. Second, a perhaps even greater majority are determined to defend our free government and free way of life at any point where it is shown to be definitely threatened. On these points practically all are agreed.

Where differences begin are on questions of means. What is the best way to stay out of the war? And how best preserve for ourselves the freedom we know and love?

The Senate is about to embark on a great debate of the first point. But basic, and underlying both, is the second consideration—the question of at just what point American freedom and the American way of life are threatened.

Nobody can question the fact that the European war is in some ways closely allied to the imperialistic wars of the past—another of the great struggles for the control of Europe and as a result the control of foreign colonies. Genghis Khan fought for this, and Sobieski, and Charles Martel, and Gustavus, and Napoleon, and Wellington, and Bismarck, and Wilhelm II. This war is like those wars.

But it also has a new phase. It is shaping up also into a conflict between two ways of life—the ideal which western Europe inherited from the Greeks, of a state as a mere administrative machine set up by free and individualistic citizens to serve the ends they decided on; and the totalitarian ideal of the state as Moloch, served by anti-subjects, whom it conditions and controls.

As between these two philosophies, the United States chose 150 years ago, and it stands today for freedom and a free civilization as it did in 1776. How best protect that heritage?

There are some who maintain that Europe during the past 20 years bred a pestilence of totalitarianism which must infect our own lives unless we stamp it out—that as long as this pest-house exists unsterilized across the sea we must become infected—that patches of infection are already seen in our own political body.

But there are others who believe that the best defense against infection of any body, political or physical, is its own rugged and glowing health, which will provide its own best immunities. Unless this condition of health is present, any monkeying around pest-houses would be fatal and dangerous enough in any event.

This is certain: no step must be omitted to insure the health of our own political body against any contingency—and that means to preserve rigorously our freedoms, our right to free choice of policies, while fighting with unabated vigor the focal points of infection, unemployment, insecurity, the waning of faith in our domestic future.

Michigan police have captured the trombonist who escaped from prison last June. The band can now carry on with "Sextet from Lucia."

• BRUCE CATTON IN WASHINGTON

BY BRUCE CATTON
NBA Service Staff Correspondent

WASHINGTON.—If European war is bringing a boom to American industry, the boom has not yet generated a shortage of skilled labor—not, at least, as far as anyone here knows.

There have been occasional reports of skilled labor shortages, and it is admitted here that such isolated shortages may appear in certain lines in individual cities; but if any general shortage is imminent for the country as a whole, no sign of it is visible in Washington.

At the headquarters of the American Federation of Labor, it is said that any such shortage would probably be visible first in the metal trades group, which includes skilled machinists in various lines—including airplane factories.

For the United States as a whole, about 15 per cent of all metal trades workers are now unemployed, according to AFL statistics. This is about twice the percentage of unemployment normal in good times—1929, for instance, or the best months of 1937.

It is not spread uniformly over the country, however. In certain industrial centers, AFL records indicate that there is practically no unemployment in the metal trades.

Shortages might develop in those cities, but the AFL statisticians say they would be only temporary; their best guess is that even a man-sized industrial boom would not cut metal trades unemployment down to normal before the end of the year.

In the electrical and radio manufacturing industries, CIO statisticians say, there are 50,000 skilled men unemployed, with an equal number holding unskilled production line jobs. The CIO people say a recent survey showed that there are at least 10,000 skilled machinists who are willing to "go anywhere" to take jobs in the airplane factories if they are needed.

In the automobile field, the CIO claims that improved production processes have caused an increasing displacement of skilled workers during the last seven or eight years.

A violent boom might exhaust the current "reservoir" of immediately available skilled men; many more would soon be available, however, it is asserted, if formerly skilled workers who have drifted into other lines (or into no lines at all) were given a bit of re-training.

The same thing is true in steel, says the CIO, only more so. The steel industry today, say CIO leaders, could produce its 1937 output with 85,000 fewer workers than it needed in 1937.

Government figures won't reflect any war boom increase in employment for some time. Both the Labor Department and the U. S. Employment Service draw up monthly tables on employment, but they figure from the mid-month payrolls of the previous month. Right now they are working on the August figures, which won't show the effect of the war boom anyway.

PEEPING THRU THE KNOTHOLE

WITH BILL MAYES

Due to insistent demands (meaning one request) by our numerous readers (meaning Wesley Johnson, shine boy at the Gholson Barber Shop) we have been forced into starting this column again, now that the football season has started.

The reason it was not started sooner was that we had so little about which to write, because both the Bulldog games played to date have been so far away from home that reports upon them have been meager, and so little has been learned from watching the practice sessions.

The espionage system which has been used in the past has mostly graduated, or they have given up all hopes of graduating and have left the scholastic and espionage fields, leaving us with no one to depend upon for the various morsels of misinformation distributed at random.

But, en passant, and also sub rosa, we have it on very reliable authority that Stephenville is going to be no setup by any means, and it is a little doubtful in the mind of our informant that the Bulldogs can win. No, not that they can, but that they will. Heheists they can win, but may not, just as they did last year against the jackets.

At San Antonio, when the Bulldogs won from Tech by 13 to 0, they are reported to have loafed considerably in the first half, only to come to life in time to win in the last half. And, if the past three years are any criterion, loafing against Stephenville is fatal.

The Jackets are reported exceptionally tricky, with a number of fancy pass plays that leave the defense running aimlessly in circles. A number of names appear on the Jacket roster that were there last year, and were often in the headlines, Whitesacre, for instance, and Welch, and Garrett, and Jones, and Tudor, all being starters last year. It was Welch who was particularly effective against the Bulldogs, accounting for practically all the Stephenville touchdowns, and especially the one in the last minute that went for a touchdown that gave Stephenville the game, 26 to 20.

Whitesacre, last year, was the passing star of the Yellow Jackets, while Welch's forte was sweeping and runs, sometimes after laterals, that outran the field. But don't

Dance Saturday To Be Feature Of Fair Celebration

Special attention was called today to a dance, part of the county fair and peanut festival celebration, to be held Saturday evening at the Connellee hotel in Houston. Joe Buzze and his orchestra from Waco will furnish music for the dance which will be held after the coronation of the southwestern peanut queen at the Pex Department Softball Field in Eastland. Buzze's orchestra has been heard before and engagement for the dance Saturday night was interpreted as indication of a popular demand for his return.

The dance is sponsored by the fair association.

Brewers Convene On Public Service

BREWERS of America who have been conducting a three-fold educational, advertising and self-regulation campaign to sign their industry with the public interest, will review progress and plan future operations at the United Brewers Industrial Foundation's Convention in New York City, on Wednesday, October 4.

All brewers in the country have been invited to attend the Convention, to discuss long range plans for an industry which has made tax contributions, created employment and stimulated local business in six and a half years to the extent of 10 billion dollars. The Foundation was established three years ago as a non-profit organization to interpret the brewing industry to the public and the public to the industry.

State directors of the industry's self-regulation movement will present reports of active cooperation during the past year with local law enforcement officials to "clean-up or close-up" establishments where objectionable conditions surround the sale of beer. This phase of the program is being pursued to date in Nebraska, Alabama, Kansas, Tennessee, North Carolina, Mississippi, Oklahoma and West Virginia.

Plans for continuance of the self-regulation activities and of the newspaper advertising campaign which the Foundation has been conducting in many states will be discussed at the meeting. Following the Convention, brewers and their guests will participate in Brewing Industry Day at the New York World's Fair on Thursday, October 5.

SERIAL STORY WORKING WIVES BY LOUISE HOLMES

Yesterday: Talking to Carma, Marian mentions Randy's party, that Pete and Julie are going immediately she is afraid of what Carma may do. As they enter the club a chilling foreboding grips Marian as she glimpses a woman, richly clad in furs and purple gowns. It might be Carma.

CHAPTER XX

THEY met Pete and his wife in the foyer. He greeted them joyfully and proudly presented his wife. Pete had changed, he was vibrantly alive, his eyes laughed. It crossed Marian's mind that he fairly swaggered with happiness, and her heart sank. With Carma he had been quiet and unobtrusive, the disinterested lover, the impatiently waiting lover.

Carma had been assured. Cocky. Dan had called her. Now they had exchanged places, Pete gaining the heights, Carma sinking to depths he had never known.

Pete held Julie's confiding hand as he introduced her to the group. She was a lovely thing, deliciously young, demurely self-confident.

Marian thought: She has the look of a woman who is loved. Dolly has it. A man's love is the most beautifying thing in the world. She looked at Dan and found him regarding Julie admiringly. Marian tossed her head. She'd had a man's love and what had it done for her? Nothing—less than nothing.

"How about a little look-in at the bar?" Randy asked. Talking and laughing, they wandered to the stairs. Descending the stairs, Marian searched the bar for the woman she had seen. Purple ensemble, pointed fox scarf. She could see no one of that description. Believed, she turned to Pete, who was walking beside her. Dan was laughing with Julie.

"She's very sweet," Pete, Marian said. "Wasn't it—rather sudden?"

"Smiled down at her. "In a way, yes. When I finally woke up, it happened fast."

They sat down at a copper-topped table and Marian again turned to Pete. "She's taking it awfully hard, Pete—Carma, I mean."

"I'm sorry." He was smiling across the table at Julie. He did not look at all sorry. "She's bitter, Pete."

"Do you think she has a right to be bitter?"

"Perhaps not, but—why didn't you let her go on working?" She was speaking in her own defense again. "There is more than one way to be happy."

"I know," he said, "but don't you agree that each person has a right to his own idea?"

"Of course—that's what I mean—Carma had a right."

"And a right. We both have what we want, so where's the kick?"

RANDY was telling an amusing story about a girl who had entered a one-way street from the wrong end, parked her car in front of a fire hydrant, and gone shopping for two hours. Pete and Marian listened.

"Did the poor thing get arrested?" Dolly asked, her eyes on Randy's face, trying not to look too worshipful.

"Lord, no—when she returned to her car she found a motorcycle cop leaning against the fender. Without a moment's hesitation, she rushed up to him, just too innocent and pathetic for anything. She said, "Oh, officer, I've been looking and looking for you. This is my first trip downtown alone. I'm in a dreadful mess. Will you help me?"

"Cu-ute," Dolly applauded. "What happened then?"

"Believe it or not, the cop stood by while she backed out, then escorted her out of the traffic. Can you beat it?" He shook his head, laughing.

"And they say it's a man's world," Pete muttered amidst the general laughter.

Randy said, "I told the story as a warning to you, Pete."

"Mr. Meats," Julie exclaimed, "don't you think you've gone far enough?" She was entirely good-natured, rosy and abashed.

"You don't mean that the little devil was my wife," Pete gasped, his eyes dancing.

"But that was before I knew you, darling," Julie laughed, leaning across the table.

They all shouted with laughter, especially the men. Dan said, "Pretty darn smart, if you ask me."

Marian made herself smile. Men liked girls like that, changing little vines, trading on their femininity. The woman who stood on her own feet hadn't a chance—the men hated her for it.

THEY went to the dining room, where a flower-laden table had been reserved for them. Marian was quiet. She seemed incapable of rising above the dull ache in her heart. The dinner had been previously ordered to obviate confusion. Plates were brought and taken away, the pleasant flow of chatter and laughter went on. Randy paid marked attention to Dolly, solicitous of her every wish. His strong face was constantly turned toward her.

They had finished a frozen salad when Marian's eyes were drawn to the door. Carma stood there, waiting to be seated. Her escort was a short, stout man, very bald, repugnant in an oily way. Carma was beautifully gowned, her clothes were extreme, slightly foreign, dark purple and silver. The lovely fur hung carelessly from one shoulder, her hat had a slightly rakish tilt. The only little man said something and she laughed shrilly.

Marian touched Pete's arm. In a low tone she said, "Pete, there's Carma. She's had too much to drink. I'm frightened."

He glanced at the doorway. "Frightened? Why?"

"I don't know," worriedly. "I'm afraid she means trouble. I've seen her a lot lately. She's threatened—"

Pete said easily, "You're drawing on your imagination, Marian. Carma can't dine wherever she likes." Glancing again at the figure in the doorway, he frowned. "I never knew Carma to drink. Her boy friend must be the wrong kind of company."

Marian persisted. "Be on your guard, Pete. I know what I'm talking about."

THE head waiter was leading Carma and her companion between the tables. They would pass Randy's table. Carma's eyes were darting this way and that, feverish, harassed eyes. Flinging a glance at Marian, she blushed. Her nostrils quivered as she drew a sharp breath. Marian looked at Julie, who was happily unconscious of impending trouble.

She turned to Dan; it was the first time she had addressed a remark to him. Dan always knew what to do in an emergency. She said, "Carma is here. She's up to something."

He darted a glance over his shoulder. "Hm-m," he muttered. "Push horse—light as a drum."

They were coming nearer. Marian started to push her chair back, then stopped helplessly. There was going to be a scene, she hadn't a doubt of it, and she was powerless to do anything about it. Carma, who had always been dignified and well-bred, was about to make a fool of herself. She knew it by the mad glint in Carma's eyes. Marian sat still, waiting.

Carma reached their table. She halted, catching at the back of a chair as her body showed an inclination to proceed after her feet had become motionless. Her eyes rested on Pete and he stood up. Randy and Dan followed suit.

Marian's heart pounded. She had an impulse to dash around the table and take Julie in her arms, protect her from the thing that was sure to happen.

Women: "Build-Up" To Relieve Pain
A weak, run-down, undernourished condition calls for attention!

Such a condition often enables functional dysmenorrhea to get its foothold. That's one thing which leads to much of women's suffering from headaches, nervousness, those cramp-like pains. A good way to relieve such pains, women by thousands have found, is by the proper use of CARDUL. It stimulates a lagging appetite, aids digestion and assimilation; thus helps build physical resistance to periodic pain. Taken just before and during "the time," many women also report that CARDUL lessens the pain and discomfort of the period.

AUSTIN, Tex.—Closer cooperation between state universities is the chief aim of the annual meeting here October 26 to 28 of the Association of Governing Board of State Universities, Dr. Homer Price Rainey announced.

Doctor Rainey, president of the University of Texas, said representatives had been invited from 32 universities—ranging from Oregon to Maine and from Arizona to Puerto Rico.

Chairman Len A. Smith and Jerry Sadler of the Texas Railroad Commission said they favored "putting more teeth" into enforcement provisions of the law.

Land Owners Say Deer Do Damage

THOMASVILLE, Ga.—All who think the deer is a rare animal, listen to this:

Deer are so plentiful in this section now that they are proving a problem to farmers. They are finding it difficult to keep their out-of-their-fish, where peas, beans, corn and other crops, especially the likings of a Donkey and Hiltson are grown.

For many years, deer have found refuge in the vast estate and game preserves in this county and in north Florida. They have multiplied so rapidly that farmers are at a loss as to how to protect their crops from these fleet-footed animals that are so fully protected by game laws. Were it not for these game laws, venison would be the main dish as many a dinner around here.

March of Time film, "Soldiers With Wings"

which shows how young air-minded college graduates and West Pointers are being selectively recruited and trained for service with the Air Corps and how each type of the Army's newest and swiftest fighting plane performs its highly specialized job in the scheme of national defense.

Produced with the full cooperation of the U. S. Air Corps, this latest March of Time shows vivid scenes of the Air Corps' swift pursuit and observation planes and its giant flying fortresses in action. The film also shows how scientists at the Air Corps' $15,000,000 research laboratory are now seeking new ways to make military planes fly higher and swifter, and how the nation's aircraft factories are pushing aside construction of private ships to rush to completion 3,000 new planes which the War Department has ordered in its $200,000,000 air expansion program.

In filming "Soldiers With Wings," camera crews of the March of Time participated in regular Air Corps maneuvers for several weeks. "Soldiers With Wings" thus provides an authentic and exciting first-hand view of what is probably the least known, yet one of the most important wings of America's vital defensive organization today.
