CITY OF FLINT EXPECTED IN GERMAN PORT

By United Press
BERLIN, Nov. 3.—Responsible German quarters said today that it is most likely the City of Flint will be taken to Stettin, German port, where it will arrive sometime after Saturday night.

A party of American newspapermen have been invited to be at a port to meet the vessel. The vessel was plying to and from, apparently waiting for a passenger by sea or air.

Police at Haugesund patrolled the movements of the vessel, which is still under control of a Nazi prize crew.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 3.—The German government has informed the United States that it has asked the naval authorities to exercise for the safety of 41 Americans on the freighter City of Flint, a state department said today.

LONDON, Nov. 3.—The British navy announced today that it has "sighted" naval units heading south within Norwegian territorial waters. There were indications the British were unlikely to do anything to endanger the American crew.

Feeding Co-Eds Is Big School Problem

LUBBOCK, Tex.—Three hundred-odd pretty coeds living in Texas Tech's residence hall consume enough poundage to founder the first string line-up of Red Raiders, a recent survey shows. They eat 500 loaves of bread, drink 60 gallons of coffee brew and 210 gallons of milk in a week. Only three days are required to tuck away 130 pounds of fried chicken, 62 pounds of fat, and 504 pork chops.

Twelve gallons of fruit juice, six sweet rolls and 340 bacon slices go at a single breakfast; one crate of "frams" or 70 pounds of Irish potatoes, 10 gallons of ice cream and 42 cakes at a single evening meal. At lunch time, when desserts are lighter, 36 sand tarts or 52 pies will suffice. Vegetable salads, navy beans, cabbage, cauliflower and sauerkraut in unestimated quantities are consumed besides.

ATTACK CLAIMS OIL BUSINESS AREA PIONEER

BRECKENRIDGE, Nov. 3.—E. J. Dunigan, familiarly known wherever oil is found in the Southwest to nearly every one as "Pop" Dunigan, died in the West side hospital Thursday afternoon at 1 o'clock, following a heart attack here last Monday.

Mr. Dunigan had been seriously ill in the hospital for the past few days and members of his immediate family were here. It was said this afternoon that a brother and a sister are to come to Breckenridge, and funeral services probably will be held Saturday.

Mr. Dunigan was born in Marquette, Ohio, 76 years ago, and came to Breckenridge in 1930 where he joined his son, James B. Dunigan, in the tool and supply company which bears the Dunigan name.

Since that time he has been an active figure in the oil business, and enjoyed a wide acquaintance. A few days ago he complained of feeling ill and was keeping close to his room in the Lurch hotel when he became the victim of a stroke early this week.

Surviving Mr. Dunigan are three sisters, Mary, Margaret, and Nellie, and James D. Dunigan, all of Columbus, Ohio. Of his immediate family four boys survive. These are E. J. Jr., of Pampa, F. A. of Breckenridge, James B., Ft. Worth and Florence of Dallas.

Mr. Dunigan was preceded in death by his wife about four years ago.

Urges a Boycott On Japanese Silk

SAN FRANCISCO, Cal.—Not only are the schools, colleges and hospitals that were built in China with American money being destroyed, but thousands of Chinese are being killed because American women wear silk stockings, the Rev. Walter H. Judd, Congressional medical missionary to China is telling Pacific Coast audiences.

"Every pair of silk stockings that an American woman buys, enables Japan to purchase five bullets with which to kill Chinese," he declared.

Unless an immediate boycott is made in America against Japanese silk, Judd declared, "you women are facing the choice between silk stockings now or your sons in the future when the United States may become involved in the conflict."

Judd returned from China to conduct a campaign for an American boycott of all Japanese products.

"If a Chinese were to come here and tell what is taking place in China now, you would merely say it was propaganda, but as a loyal American who has seen the devastation that is being wrought in China with American made products, I have the right to return and tell you of it," he said.

Russian Demands Bring New Crisis

Public announcement of Russian territorial demands against Finland by Soviet Foreign Minister V. M. Molotov increased Baltic tension and brought a near-break in negotiations between the two nations.

Next To the War, Germans Talk Most About Food These Days As That Subject Is One of Big Importance

By DANA A. SCHMIDT
By United Press
BERLIN, Nov. 3.—Next to the war, Germans these days talk most about food—and the lack of food.

It was the lack of food, Nazis say, which cost Germany the victory in 1918. Now propaganda leaders have proclaimed war on "the inner front," a drive to prevent the fatal collapse of morale such as occurred 21 years ago.

The German Government ordered food rationing even before hostilities started, and Nazis say a system has been perfected under which the populace can go on eating indefinitely at the present rate with prospects of dietary improvement as Poland is exploited and supplies roll in from Russia and the Balkans.

Nazis say "Germany can not be starved out."

Neutral experts agree that if the present ration card standard can be maintained it will be adequate. No one will starve on the present rations. It is, however, believed that as vegetables and fruits grow scarcer during the winter, Germans will feel a vitamin pinch.

Responsible German agricultural authorities believe that by intensive cultivation German Poland can double the surplus available to the reich and produce enough to feed 7,000,000 Germans. Moreover, some 2,000,000 Poles, it is estimated, will be available for labor on German farms.

The arrangement to import 1,000,000 tons of feed and grain from Russia will enable Germany to raise 1,900,000 in addition to the more than 23,500,000 she now has, it was added. This Russian grain will be distributed as soon as it arrives because all available storage space—dance halls, gymnasiums and the like—already is packed with the reich's reserve of 4,500,000 tons of bread grains.

With present reserves, on the assumption of 28,000,000 tons of grain, Nazis say that as far as grain is concerned, Germany could survive two or three years of poor harvests without any imports.

Enormous reserves of meat, potatoes, canned goods and other foodstuffs also have been piled up but figures on them have never been published.

It is understood also that the present strict rationing of butter has made it possible to accumulate large reserves of that commodity, and it has been stated that butter production has been stepped up 50 per cent above recent years.

It is not the calory and protein adequacy of their diet or the tons of reserves that women talk about in queues at the markets. They discuss the fact that since the war there is no chocolate or cocoa and no buy only one egg a week for each member of the family.

ROOSEVELT IS WELL PLEASED WITH REPEAL

WASHINGTON, Nov. 3.—President Roosevelt said today the neutrality bill on which congress is about to complete action, restores the historic position of United States neutrality.

"I am very glad that the bill has restored the historic position of neutrality of the United States," Mr. Roosevelt said.

The president expressed gratification at the 62-vote margin by which the house, yesterday, approved repeal of the arms embargo.

Senate democratic leader Alben Barkley, democrat, Kentucky, expressed hope congress would complete action on the neutrality bill and adjourn tonight.

Mr. Roosevelt's comment was made as six senators and five representatives in a conference committee, put into final form the administration's cash and carry bill, permitting export of arms and munitions.

Anticipating quick completion of congressional action, Mr. Roosevelt said that enactment of the bill will be followed promptly by his issuance of proclamations required by the new measure.

Pension March Upon Capitol Reaches Austin

AUSTIN, Nov. 3.—Bustery winds met early arrivals today for a scheduled old age pension parade to Gov. O'Daniel's office.

Leading the parade was Zephyr Davis, son of Cyclone Davis, of Sulphur Springs, former Texas congressman.

The paraders were to urge the governor to call a special session of the legislature to finance old age pensions. He has promised to announce his decision Sunday.

A delegation of six from San Antonio found the governor "out" when they called at the office. They were told the governor does much of his work at home.

"I wouldn't have come if I had known the governor was not going to see us," one of them said.

Legislators said they would ask O'Daniel to submit reallocation of funds and revisions of present appropriations to raise old age pension money if a session is called.

"It is just as easy to raise the money by paring down other expenditures as it will be to increase taxes," a spokesman of the group said.

Lester Clark of Breckenridge and M. A. Bundy of Wichita Falls are to join in the request, it was said.

Jury Cases Slated In 91st Tribunal

Three jury cases have been set for next week in 91st district court, according to Judge George L. Davenport.

Set for Monday is the suit of T. Clyde Langlitz and others vs. American National Insurance company. This suit is for recovery on a policy.

Other cases are set Wednesday. They are C. M. Heason vs. Wichita Falls and Southern Railway company, an action for damages, and Brown vs. Coca-Cola Bottling company, also a damage suit.

SOVIET SAYS FINLAND HAS PLOTTED WAR

By United Press
Soviet Russia charged Finland with plotting a new war today and the nazis threatened an intense u-boat campaign against ships exported to carry many millions of dollars worth of American war material to Britain and France.

Opening the "final" phase of negotiations between Russia and Finland, the communist party newspaper charged the action of Finland toward the soviet union could be regarded as that of a country preparing for war.

The Finnish delegation, with instructions turning down some of Russia's demands for naval bases on Finnish soil, was in Moscow to resume conversations. The outlook was not bright.

Nazi threats of wider u-boat warfare came as a result of the action of congress toward repeal of the arms embargo and the opening of war purchases by allied powers in America.

German sources charged that the congressional action was like some as the United States "taking sides" with the allies and hinted the British and French might find it more difficult than anticipated "to get the staff across the Atlantic."

The British and French, however, were encouraged, and estimated that perhaps a billion dollars worth of trade with the United States would result, regardless of the fact that allied nations have cut down on "non-essential purchases" in the United States since the war started.

In London it was forecast that some American planes of larger types might be flown across the Atlantic by allied pilots and convoys carrying others would be strongly protected.

On the fighting front the Nazi artillery shelled more French villages and Paris reported heavy German troop movement in the Saar region sector.

Eastland Resident Dies On Thursday

Funeral arrangements for Mrs. James W. Spence, 35, of Eastland, who died in a Ranger hospital Thursday night after a short illness, had not been completed today.

It was expected, however, that funeral services would be conducted in Fort Worth, though no time had been set.

The deceased had lived in Eastland about a year moving to the city of Fort Worth.

Roosevelt Family Scored By Nazi

By United Press
BERLIN, Nov. 3.—Nazis sharply criticized the United States embargo repeal legislation today and one newspaper asked whether the family of President Roosevelt was trying to get Americans "accustomed to being in the European war."

The Zeitung published an editorial commenting on a statement it said was made by Mrs. Eleanor Roosevelt, quoting her as saying it was most difficult for the United States to keep out of war.

SERIAL STORY

JOAN OF ARKANSAS

BY JERRY BRONDFIELD
COPYRIGHT, 1939, NEA SERVICE, INC.

YESTERDAY: Through Elaine's maneuvering, Joan is named co-chairman with Rhoda for 'Last Week' ceremonies. Dan is afraid Keith will be angry, but Rhoda shows little interest. Wednesday, three days before the Pitt game, three mysterious strangers wait for Joan outside a classroom building, study her intently as she comes toward them.

CHAPTER XX

THEY waited until Joan was well on her way down the walk before any of them spoke again. Sam, the driver, shifted his hat to the back of his head, turned and faced the bulky one.

"Okay, so we saw her. So what do we do now? I'm tellin' you, Ed, this is gotta be quick." He jammed a cigaret in his mouth, inhaled for a match. "I like to work fast, see? Fast. Like this, see?" He snapped his fingers twice, rapidly.

The big one called Ed blinked owlishly. "You ain't askin' you how you like to do things." He spoke jocosely but there was an undercurrent of authority in his voice. "Rocco back there," he jerked a thumb over his shoulder. "Rocco thinks this is gonna be easy. Me, I ain't so sure. We're gonna 'ook it up and down both ways before every step."

Rocco, the scarface, smiled thinly. "Sure, Ed, sure." He gestured with the nail file. "Meanwhile, what about her? Do we follow her home?"

"No. All I wanted to do was take a gander at the gal today. We know where she lives so there's no use trailing her now." He nudged the driver.

"Let's go, Sam. We've got some 'ginner' to do." "Yeah," said Rocco. "Fifty G's worth, hey Ed?" "Yeah . . . yeah, sure," said Ed slowly.

JOAN had planned to stay in that night but Marianne talked her into going to the library. "I'll just take me an hour at the most," Marianne promised. "I've got to skim over some outside reading for that silly economics course. It's a swell night and we can stop in at the Varsity for cokes or something. C'mon."

Marianne didn't do as much reading as she planned and they wound up at Varsity a little before 10.

They were dallying over their drinks and did not notice when a short, dapper man in a dark blue suit entered and bought a pack of cigars at the tobacco counter.

Rocco lighted up and leaned back against the showcase. He puffed a stream of smoke into the air and stared around the place absently.

The nickelodeon was going full blast. Students straggled in looking for empty booths. Waiters rushed around helplessly as usual. Rocco smirked at old Uncle Jim, the cashier, behind the counter and jerked his head at the scene in general.

"Those kids never get tired of this stuff, do they?" "Hope not," Uncle Jim said dryly. "I stop eating when they do. At least I stop eating regularly."

Rocco laughed, good-naturedly. "You've got something there, grandpaw." And then: "Say, tell me—any tickets to be had for that ball game Saturday? Understand it's a sellout."

"Sellout? Son, I'm tellin' you I've been here close to 24 years and I've never seen a demand for tickets like this is going to be. Why, the crowd ain't going to be room for an undernourished gnat in that stadium, come 2 o'clock Saturday."

Rocco flicked ashes into the tray. "Look, grandpa, I never saw the football game a guy couldn't get a decent to someplace. There'll be guys scalping 'em for 20 bucks a pair by Friday."

"Oh . . . that way? That's different. Maybe you can pick one up. You're something of a stranger, aren't you? I mean, you're a stranger in here."

"Oh, just sorta. I'm a salesman. Get through here every six weeks or so. I shoulda made some arrangements for a ticket, I guess."

Rocco blew another stream of smoke into the air as Uncle Jim rang up two sales. Rocco looked at a picture of a girl on the wall inside and riveted his eyes on Joan and Marianne.

He saw they were through with their drinks but he knew they'd be sitting there awhile. He flicked ashes to the floor with a slight movement of his finger.

He turned back to Uncle Jim. "Kid brother of mine went to Tech a few years back," he lied, just to make conversation.

"Is that right? What was his name? Maybe I knew him. They all come in here sooner or later," he began. "This gentleman here stayed here a year—his freshman year."

"Oh, I see."

THE outside door opened and Tommy Peters came in. Uncle Jim called him over. "Tommy," he began, "this gentleman here wants to pick up a ticket for the game Saturday. You know—anything at all will do. Think maybe one of the kids would be willing to pass over his ticket—for a price?"

Tommy laughed. "Pass up the Pitt game? Jim, you must be getting slug-nutty. There isn't a kid on this campus who'd miss that thing for 50 bucks."

He turned to Rocco. "Your best bet is to camp down in the hotel lobbies. That's where the gambling crowd operates. You usually can pick up a ticket, there, too."

Tommy looked at Rocco more closely, glanced at the scar. Rocco toyed with his cigaret. "Haven't I seen you before?" Tommy inquired, "or are you a stranger around here?"

"Stranger," Rocco said easily. "Total."

Tommy nodded and wandered inside. He waved to Joan and Marianne when they stood up to leave.

The girls stopped and chatted with him for a moment or two and then moved on.

ROCCO was browsing through the magazines when the girls stopped to pay their check. He looked up and studied Joan intently as Uncle Jim made change.

When they had gone he approached the showcase again. "Very striking gal, that dark-haired one. Student here, I suppose."

"Yep . . . Joan Johnson's her name. Awful nice girl. Pretty as a picture, don't you think?"

"I think," Rocco replied succinctly. "But how come a gal like that ain't squired by one of the college boys?"

"Oh, she usually is. By Keith Rhodes. He's our crack halfback, you know. But the football boys aren't out much this week."

"Keith Rhodes, hey? Interesting. Well, I'll drop back, grandpaw. Let me know if you hear of a good ticket on the loose."

He drifted out and Uncle Jim looked up again to confront Tommy Peters.

"Say, Jim, who was that guy, anyhow?" "Let's see." He scratched his chin. "Said he was a salesman traveling through here. Had a brother at Tech some years back, get it. Now I'd swear I never for-fella's picture somewhere. In a newspaper. Yeah, Jim, I think it was in St. Louis a couple years back. But I can't recall what the connection was."

YESTERDAY: Rocco, one of the three strangers who are interested in Joan, trails her to the campus Varsity shop. He idles there, waiting for Joan and Marianne to leave. He meets Tommy Peters, who recalls seeing Rocco's picture, but Tommy can't remember the connection.

CHAPTER XXI

ROCCO hailed a cab and went downtown. At 11:30 Sam and Big Ed drew up to the intersection of two back streets and picked him up.

"Well?" Ed said. "Ed, I'm tellin' you I know so much about that dame I even know what she's gonna have for lunch tomorrow," Rocco grinned in the darkness.

"Yeah . . . sure," Big Ed told him. "You're simply amazin', but I'll pin the medals on you later. Give out with the dope."

Rocco spoke quickly. "Tomorrow she goes on some trip with her sociology class out to an orphanage . . . she uses this Rhodes kid's car . . . she gets back at 3 and takes the car to the stadium so's he don't have to walk back from football practice . . . when she drives down to the stadium, that's when we work."

"Yeah, and what if she decides to keep the car all afternoon and take it back at 5, or maybe later."

"Nine chances outa ten she won't. I know, I'm tellin' you." "How'd you pick all this stuff up since 4 o'clock?"

Rocco laughed mirthlessly. "Tell me, Ed . . . you know anyone as smart as your boy Rocco? I got methods."

Big Ed hit off the end of a cigar and lit it. "Sam, you get up early and give this bus a good going over, hey?"

Sam stared straight ahead. "She ain't never run better."

"Mebbe not, but you'll do what I say, hey Sam?" "Sure, Ed . . . Sure."

IT was a beautiful fall day, and Joan, walking over to pick up Keith's car, wished it were two miles instead of two blocks to the Gamma house.

She picked up the keys from the cook and drove over to one of the dorms to call for three girls in her class who were to make the trip with her.

They joined the rest of the group at the orphanage and spent the next three hours making observations and taking notes on the institution's system of operation.

They ate a late lunch at a downtown tea shop and then returned to the university district.

Joan took the other girls back to the dormitory and stopped in at the Varsity for a minute.

"Hi, Uncle Jim," she greeted. "How about some stamps?"

He pulled out his postal box. "Say, Joan, there was a fella in here a few minutes ago lookin' for a football ticket. He wanted to know if you usually stopped in during the afternoon. He was in last night just about the time you were, and asked me who you were when you went out."

Joan frowned. "That's funny. He wasn't a student, was he?" "Nope. And I noticed he got into a big sedan across the street with a couple other fellows."

"Thanks, Uncle Jim . . . couldn't have been very important or he'd have called me at the house."

She returned to her room and wrote a couple of letters before taking Keith's car back to the stadium.

"I'll be back in 45 minutes or so," she told Elaine. "If I get any phone calls insist on a message, will you?"

SHE dropped her letters in a corner box and drove across campus. Stopping at the library to pick up a book she bumped into Dan Webber.

"Hi, there," she said. "Going down to the stadium soon? I'll take you down."

"What do you mean—you'll take me down?" She explained she was returning Keith's car. "Can you imagine that lazy so-and-so making me walk all the way back from the stadium when I could have left it at the fraternity house?"

Dan grinned. "Sure I can. That's Keith. But maybe I shouldn't blame him at that. The way Slocum has been running us ragged this week that car comes in handy when it's time to go home."

They walked out into the bright sunlight. "Think I'll turn down your offer," he said. "The walk'll do me good. Anyhow, Slocum screams when he spots any of the boys getting chauffeur service. He claims the modern athlete is going soft because of the automobile and stuff."

"And you believe him, of course?" "Absolutely," he said solemnly. "Well, if you don't want to ride with me . . . I'm very good company, you know."

He grinned again. "Okay . . . let's get going before we start squaring off."

"Who's squaring off?" she flared, but he covered his ears and pretended not to listen.

Once in the car he relaxed deep in the leather seat and sighed. "Just think—three more days and life'll be worth living again. No more practice . . . no more charity-horsing . . . no more Slocum-bellowsing in our ears."

"What about the Rose Bowl?" He was silent for a long moment. "We'll talk about that after Saturday's game—maybe."

"You think we'll win, don't you?" "I think so."

SHE skirted the university power plant and swung onto the long gravel road which led down to the stadium. At the same instant a heavy blue sedan moved out of the stadium parking lot and started slowly toward them.

Joan didn't notice the other car until she rounded a curve. The sedan came toward them slowly, smack in the middle of the narrow road.

"It's about time for that guy to move over," Dan muttered as they drew closer.

Forty yards away and the sedan showed no inclination of drawing over to its own side of the road. And then Joan noticed there were three men in the other car.

A sudden thought made her swing wide in an attempt to move around them, off the road, but around them, nevertheless.

But they swung wide with her and when she jammed on the brakes the cars were only three feet apart. She was completely blocked.

"Hay!" Dan shouted. "What's going . . ." But even as the two cars screeched to a stop, Rocco was scrambling out of the sedan. There was an automatic in his hand. Joan gasped and clutched Dan's arm.

News From The Court House

By Staff Writer

Many people interpreted Gov. W. Lee O'Daniel's words and actions contradictory some time ago. In a radio address he urged citizens of Texas to pay more attention to their local tax matters by attending public hearings on budgets for counties, schools and other governmental units. Then the state tax board had a session—which was secret. Even representatives of publications were barred.

Justice of Peace Wood found the other day the old saying "when it rains it pours" still rings true. Some persons when marrying seek a minister and still others a justice of peace. Recently a week had been passed without Justice of Peace Wood performing a ceremony. Then on Saturday afternoon three couples sought his services for pronouncement of the old, familiar rites when he obliged. Paid on a fee basis, justices of peace in Eastland county, naturally, are always glad to oblige prospective brides and benedicts. Most pay the justices from $2 to $5 for the ceremony.

County Judge W. S. Adamson is always cordial to the many visitors who find him in his office from around eight to five each day. An interesting conversationalist, Judge Adamson is well-informed on practically any subject from the chances of any Southwestern football team in its next game to the latest development in World War II.

The county political pot apparently is beginning to figure in the picture again. More frequently you hear someone ask: "What do you hear on county politics now?"

An amusing incident occurred the other day in the sheriff's office. A reporter had obtained the name of a man who had been indicted for an offense. Then, Deputy Sheriff Underwood told the reporter: (the name mentioned here is fictional for practical purposes) "I don't know whether or not it would be alright to publish that item. There's more than one B. Z. Seemore in this county. The man indicted has the same name as a prominent in Better call him Hutch Seemore."

"That, too, Underwood was told, might be embarrassing to a man in his name, too is Hutch Seemore." The reporter and deputy decided that the case might not be too important and it wouldn't hurt much just to wait until the case had been set for trial.

County officials are subjected to many solicitations for funds. Many are legitimate and worthy. Still others are in reality unfair to the officials. They try to get along with everyone as public-officials should but it's hard sometimes. County officials don't make as much as it seems to some. Campaign expenses and contributions whittle down their salaries considerable. And they're on the job with regularity practically 99 per cent of the year.

It is surprising that the general public is apparently uninterested in attending public hearings on budgets for the county and other political subdivisions. The hearings are well-advertised both by news stories and legal notices.

At the public budget hearing of the county this year only one person was present who asked questions or evidenced interest. He was a non-resident of the county and was compiling figures for statistics of a company.

Speaking of the governor brings to mind a recent occurrence in the county. Several persons were assembled at a meeting and were discussing ways in which more interest could be aroused in their campaign. One suggested that they have printed the governor's proclamation urging cooperation in the drive, which is both state and national-wide. This suggestion discarded, however, when it was stated the governor's popularity is not what it was at one time.

Those who live in or visit in the rural sections of Eastland county will tell you, however, that Gov. O'Daniel's popularity is still strong in those sections.

County Clerk R. V. Galloway says that the number of mortgages recorded in the office is not as great at this time as it has been. "This is the time when people are paying off mortgages," he explains.

Analysis of Soil In West Texas Is Object of College

LUBBOCK, Tex.—Analysis of West Texas soil to aid in prospecting for oil, salt or potash, and to detect deficiency for crop growing is the threefold objective set by three graduate students at Texas Technological college working in quantitative spectrography. Experiments on foods, cosmetics, textiles, machine gun shells, automobile parts, and cotton burs, to detect metallic content, have already been made under direction of Dr. W. M. Craig, professor of chemistry.

Preliminary report of student progress in applying this comparatively new science to problems of everyday life will be made by Craig at the Panhandle-Plains section of the American Chemical Society meeting at Amarillo Dec. 9th.

Graduate students conducting research are Clarence Ransford of Roscoe, John W. Sheehan of Hermleigh, and King I. Glass of Sweetwater. Samples containing every metallic element that can be bought, except radium, are included in the departmental library. Craig said.

First course in quantitative spectrography, offered through the loan of unused attic space in the building on the campus, will be converted into the Central for the course, beginning promptly taught again next quarter.

Town Orchestra to Be Formed Monday By Elwood Priesing

Ranger Junior College is to sponsor the organization of a town orchestra, it was announced here today by Elwood R. Priesing, head of the fine arts department of the college, who will be director of the orchestra.

The first meeting of the new organization will be conducted Monday evening, Nov. 6, at 8 o'clock in Room 18 of the high school building. At this meeting Priesing expects to organize the group and to gain an idea of the possibilities of the personnel.

It is hoped that all who play an instrument will take advantage of this opportunity to join an organization of this kind.

1939 crop. Most all feed is put up but our pastures are not much as it has been too dry for fall crops to do any good.

The electric line is coming right on. The holes are all dug and workmen are now setting the poles and will soon be ready for the wire as far north as Mr. Brownings, where the line will stop for the present.

Mrs. Lonie Melton was taken to the hospital at Gorman Tuesday. The Halloween party at the school house was well attended and enjoyed by all. The donations were good so the ball teams feel assured of new suits in the near future, for which the faculty and all pupils are thankful to all who assisted them.

A meeting called by Elmo V. Cook and Miss Ruth Raney at the school house Tuesday night was fairly well attended and the discussion enjoyed. Mr. Kyger from Dublin made a good talk along the line under discussion. We all hope to learn more along the line later.

A good many of the Cheaney ladies attended the cooking school at Ranger and enjoyed same.

Town Orchestra to Be Formed Monday By Elwood Priesing

Ranger Junior College is to sponsor the organization of a town orchestra. It was announced here today by Elwood R. Priesing, head of the fine arts department of the college, who will be director of the orchestra.

The first meeting of the new organization will be conducted Monday evening, Nov. 6, at 8 o'clock in Room 18 of the high school building. At this meeting Priesing expects to organize the group and to gain an idea of the possibilities of the personnel.

It is hoped that all who play an instrument will take advantage of this opportunity to join an organization of this kind.

CHEANEY

Cheaney people are through threshing. Hay was all put up without any rain. Peanuts have all gone to market and graded No. 1. With a few exceptions the crop was fair and the price good so all are well pleased with the important! Good personal appearance means so much in every way to a man these days. An neatly trimmed hair is necessary to good appearance. Have your hair trimmed frequently — and have it done here where we know how to make it look its best.

Motor Numbers On Auto Licenses Is Important Feature

AUSTIN, Tex.—Because car owners, in many instances, neglect to register their vehicles with proper motor numbers there may be questions raised as to ownership, state police officials warned today.

The problem rose after several applications for certificates of title contained identical motor numbers which were discovered to be parts and frame numbers. Ralph Buell, Chief of the Certificate Title Section, which administers the newest motor vehicle act, said he learned from registration receipts that, in one instance, 21 automobiles of the same make have been registered under the same motor number. Investigations revealed that the owners have registered their cars with wrong numbers.

"In another case, Buell said, Marie Garna, en route to the police station to report that her motor car had been stolen, happened to see a man driving by in it, she just hopped into a taxicab and started in pursuit.

True to Hollywood sequences, her taxi driver forced the car in to the curb, causing the driver to leap from the car and flee. Other citizens however, equally well instructed in the Hollywood fight and pursuit technique, gave chase and caught their man.

PASADENA, Cal.—When Mrs. Marie Garna, en route to the police station to report that her motor car had been stolen, happened to see a man driving by in it, she just hopped into a taxicab and started in pursuit.

True to Hollywood sequences, her taxi driver forced the car in to the curb, causing the driver to leap from the car and flee. Other citizens however, equally well instructed in the Hollywood fight and pursuit technique, gave chase and caught their man.

"an automobile had been registered three times under that many different motor numbers. Because of the fact that the motor number of a vehicle is its principal identifying mark, there may be confusion in the event of a test of ownership."

Motor numbers are the major clues in searches for stolen cars as thieves often remove license plates in an effort to escape detection, state police officials said.
