Peace Parley Will Have Tough Assignment

No international commission ever had a problem so intricate and confused as the peace conference will have when war finally ends in Europe. Theirs will not be mere questions of dividing the spoils, shifting boundaries, placing the blame.

Whole peoples have been juggled around central Europe. Some have been driven out of their homelands, forced to seek refuge elsewhere on the continent or on another part of the globe. Others have swept into their domain, taken over the land, moved into their jobs. Dictators have mixed up Europe's population to a point where logical solution of the problems fomented will be a gargantuan, if not an impossible, chore for peace conferees.

Long before war began, Jews were being driven out of Germany in great droves. Then, in line with the policy of his axis-brother, Mussolini finally agreed to the exile of all Jews who had not been in Italy before 1919. The repatriation of Germans from the Baltic states is under discussion while azi leaders plan the exchange of minorities with Jugoslavia.

Russia has now decided to send her own people into mining areas in the conquered Polish regions. There will not be room enough for both the Russians and the Poles. The Poles will have to get out. Germany, too, plans to use her half of Poland for settling her own people. Jews are to be driven out; but it is apparent that a number of non-Jewish Poles will also be forced to leave simply because there isn't room enough for everyone.

In co-operation with Germany, Italy recently announced that 200,000 citizens of the Tyrol, granted to Italy after the first World War, will be compelled to seek new homes in German territory. These people have lived in Tyrol for the past 600 years. They are simple, home-loving people—rooted to the soil, not accustomed to the vicissitudes of empires.

The Tyrolese, before the World War, were part of Austria. Essentially, they are similar to the Swis. During the past two decades, all of Mussolini's efforts to Italianize the Tyrolese have met with notable failure. These simple folk have clung tenaciously to their own customs, their own language.

Now they are to be "repatriated"—which means, in less pretentious language, they will be kicked out.

Will the peace that must finally come be no more conclusive than was the Versailles treaty? Can any settlement that accepts the turmoil of population as an irrevocable fact accomplish permanent security?

The attitude of the extreme pessimist—that Europe's second war is paying the way for a third conflict—cannot be summarily cast aside. Even at this early stage, it is apparent that the eventual peace may be balanced even more precariously than was the peace of the past two decades.

If it isn't one thing, it's another. After a tongue-twisting session with Polish cities, the radio announcer now must tangle with names of star players in collegiate backfields.

BRUCE CATTON IN WASHINGTON

BY BRUCE CATTON

NEA Service Staff Correspondent

WASHINGTON—The inner strategy by which the Department of Justice hopes to smash the building racket now is becoming apparent.

The campaign is based on the theory that if you have a big stick for law-breakers and find a couple of dozen likely places to swing it, you don't need to sweat every law-breaker in sight to get action. If a few and the rest are likely to start behaving.

This was brought out vividly a few days ago in one of the cities where a grand jury investigation is under way. In this instance the department is succeeding in breaking up what it considers one of the worst rackets to boost building costs—and is doing it without criminal proceedings. The department is not yet ready to reveal the name of the city.

This racket involves use of the so-called "bid depository" in sub-contracting fields. In different cities the "bid depository" is found in almost every branch of the building supply industry—plumbing, heating, painting, excavating, brick, tile, electrical supplies and so on.

It works like this: The sub-contractors in one field—painting, for example—club together and set up a trade association office. When a general contractor calls for bids for painting a new construction job, all painting sub-contractors submit their bids to this association office, the "bid depository."

Then, when all bids are in, the group goes over them and eliminates the lowest ones—say the lowest 15 per cent. The sub-contractors who submitted those bids are not allowed to bid again on the job, or, if they are allowed to, they are required to submit bids higher than the lowest of the bids which were not eliminated.

In the end, then, the bids which go to the general contractor have an average level much higher than the one which would otherwise be the case.

Now in the city referred to above, the department did not take the "bid depository" matter before a grand jury at all. It sought indictments in an entirely different branch of the building industry.

But when the young lawyer who was handling the case for the department got in touch with officials of the sub-contractors' trade associations and mentioned that he would like to talk to them, they came in to see him without delay.

Twenty-four hours later, one of the associations announced that it had closed its office and was going to discontinue the "bid depository" system at once.

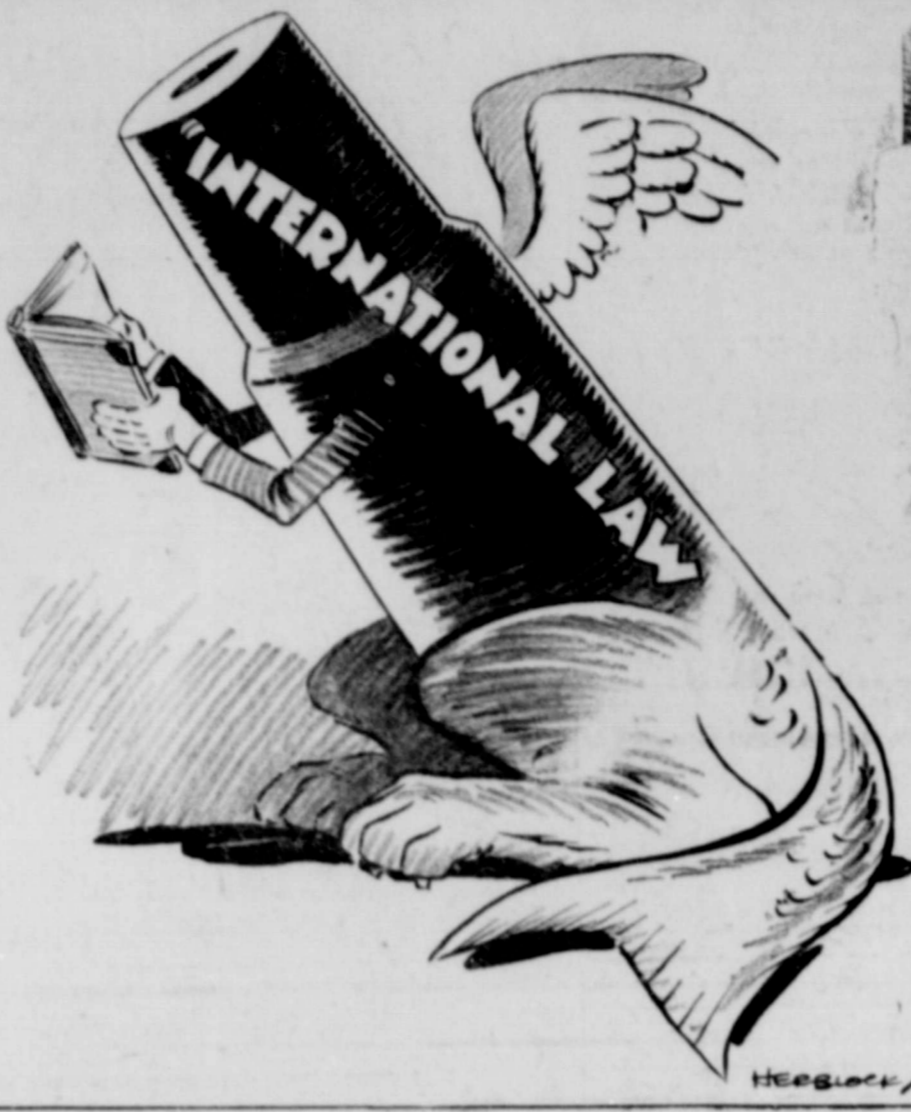

In this particular city there exist four other similar associations; and they, too, indicated that they will shortly follow suit.

In the end, the department expects to get a set of consent decrees covering those five sub-contracting fields in that city, outlawing the "bid depository" practice and rendering the bidders liable to punishment for contempt of court if it is ever resumed.

It is in ways like this that the department expects to get its biggest results out of its campaign. The indictments will be numerous and will be sensational, and—if they stand up—a number of people will be liable to get fined or go to jail.

But their chief value will be that they will enable the department to break up a great many restraints of trade without going to the expense of criminal proceedings.

The Great What-Is-It

Negro Hauls Railway Loot Away On Train

By United Press

TYLER, Tex.—A railroad not only provided the loot for a theft here, but also afforded means of carrying it away, police related today.

A Negro confessed, officers said, that he stole four brass railway engine bearings from the St. Louis Southwestern Railroad roundhouse here, loaded the 250 pounds of metal on one of the railroad's freight trains, accompanied it to Corsicana, and there unloaded and sold the bearings as junk.

The Negro was fined $25 and court costs on each of four theft counts.

Blooded Bull Is Bought By Clyatt

M. A. Clyatt, dairyman who lives three miles northwest of Eastland, purchased a blue ribbon bull, Victor Sybil's Dreamer No. 380339.

This bull, purchased from F. E. Walker of Alameda, has an enviable show record, not only in county and district fairs but also in the State Fair at Dallas, where he placed second in his class.

Trained and developed into a show animal by a 4-H Club member, Victor Sybil's Dreamer gives promise of being an outstanding sire. A son and a daughter of Victor Sybil's Dreamer gained high recognition at the Dallas State Fair in 1939.

Clyatt plans to use Victor Sybil's Dreamer not only for improving his herd but also for community service.

ELECTRICITY

It's REAL ECONOMY TO MAKE FULL USE OF YOUR ELECTRIC SERVICE

TEXAS ELECTRIC SERVICE COMPANY

Thriftly housewives who keep a close check on expenses know that electricity is the biggest bargain of all household needs. They also know that the more electricity they use, the more they save in time, energy, add to the comfort of their home and protect the health of their family.

They know, for instance, that a penny's worth of electricity cleans the rugs in the entire house; that a few pennies a day is all it costs to keep food fresh and healthful in an electric refrigerator; that good light for reading costs only a penny or two an evening, and radio entertainment for a whole evening costs less than three cents.

When the end of a month comes around, they know that the cost of full use of electric service has averaged only a few cents a day, and is one of the smallest items of household expense . . . and the biggest bargain.

News From The Court House

Trial courts were admonished this week by the Court of Criminal Appeals that radios should be kept out of jury rooms. The advice was given in an opinion affirming a 10-year sentence assessed in Harris county on a murder charge.

William Jessop of Eastland made a good suggestion the other day. He said it was of interest when you have spare time to drive on the county roads of the county and see just what is in Eastland county. Eastland county has a fine system of rural roads now due to the cooperation of commissioners with the WPA. Besides providing farmers with better farm-to-market roads much employment has been provided to unemployed.

VENETIAN BLINDS TO BE GIVEN YOUTH IN LEGION A&M HOUSE

Robert Ray Herring, son of Mr. and Mrs. L. R. Herring, who is a resident in the American Legion Project House at A. & M. College, will receive venetian blinds for his room as a gift from the local post, it was announced today.

Robert Ray was one of 87 selected out of 1000 applications for residence in the house. In order to secure this appointment boys must be recommended by the post, of which their father is a member and be approved by the state commander and the department of education of the American legion.

The project which was recently dedicated has been approved by the national commander and national officers. It was built at a cost of $25,000 which sum was derived from the Legion's endowment fund for education. It is regarded as one of the outstanding Legion projects in the nation and plans are now under way for the construction of a similar project at the Texas State College for women and will be used by the daughters of the Veterans of the World War.

The house at A&M is supervised by a commandant, two senior students and a matron, Mrs. Eva Harkins.

Lapel Tags Given to Legion Members

A number of lapel tags, indicating that the wearer is one of the first 500,000 to join the American Legion, have been received by a number of Ranger Legionnaires, and are now being worn. It was stated today by R. H. Hansford, service officer of the Carl Barnes Post, and one of the chief workers in the membership drive.

The drive for memberships, for which the goal is 100, will continue through Nov. 11, Hansford stated. On that day a big turkey dinner, with all the trimmings, will be served for all ex-service men, at the Legion Hall in Ranger. A good program is being worked out for the day's activities.

Farm Extension Service Veteran Is Starting 35th Year

TYLER, Tex.—Elbert Gentry, the oldest farm extension service official in the United States in point of service, has begun his 35th consecutive year of extension work.

He started work here in 1905 as a special agent of the Federal Department of Agriculture. His job was to conduct demonstrations designed especially to combat boll weevils. Now he is Smith County agricultural agent.

At one time, Gentry held the position of extension field supervisor for Texas and Oklahoma.

He is known as the "father of farm terracing" in Smith County. Also, he was a principal proponent of the idea nationally.

During Gentry's tenure of office here, a Smith County farm became the world champion cotton producer. In 1925 the Mont Adams farm produced more than 16 bales of cotton on five acres.
