WEST CENTRAL SCOUTS MEET AT EASTLAND

West Central Texas Oil Scouts, who observe and report oil developments in 32 counties, held their weekly check meeting Wednesday at Eastland.

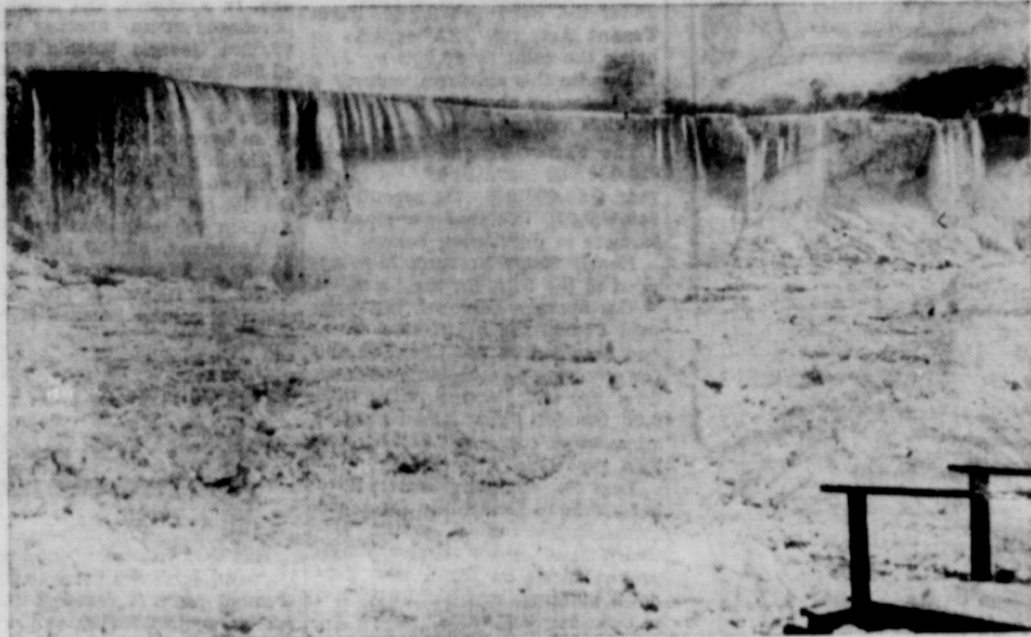

It was the first time in many months that the scouts have convened in Eastland for their weekly check. Usually the meetings are held in Abilene.

The meeting was held in the Sinclair Prairie Oil Company building with C. D. George of Abilene, scout for the Texas Company, presiding. He is "kingfish," or president, of the scout group, affiliated with the National Oil Scouts Association.

Others present were: Joe Cling, Abilene, Shell Petroleum Co.; Percy Booth, Abilene, Humble Oil Co.; G. A. Plummer, Eastland, Lone Star Gas Co.; Todd Ehlman, Abilene, Abilene Elevation Service; Mr. Galligan, Abilene, Stanolind Oil Co.; A. E. Black, Abilene, Phillips Petroleum Co.; W. A. Phelps, Eastland, Sinclair Prairie Oil Co.; W. A. Maloney, Breckenridge, Gulf Oil Co., and Frank Pierce, Eastland, Sinclair Prairie Oil Co.

All scouts were invited by J. J. Tanner, secretary-manager of the Eastland Chamber of Commerce, to hold any or all of their meetings at Eastland.

At Last All Is Quiet On Finnish Fighting Fronts

HELSINKI, Jan. 10.—The shortest war communique so far was issued today by official sources. It said merely that "there is a lull on the fighting fronts."

Finnish troops are being held in check, awaiting colder weather, which would be a material help in their war with Russian forces. Colder weather would bring hunger and would weaken the enemy and would lower their morale.

Reports of a new onslaught on the central front, where two divisions have already been annihilated, are expected to be received in the Finnish capital soon, as troops have surrounded another Russian division of between 15,000 and 20,000 and are awaiting the opportune time to rush in for the kill.

This same maneuver has been highly successful on three other occasions, the first on New Year's Eve, and the second the latter part of the week.

By taking weather conditions into consideration, and carefully planning the time of their attacks, when the Russians have been weakened by cold and hunger, after being separated from their main forces and communication lines, Finland is hopefully awaiting word that still another Russian attack on the central front has been completely frustrated.

Second Article By European News Editor Gives Developments Which Point Toward Future of Present War

(Editor's Note: Here is the second dispatch in a series by the foreign news editor of the United Press reviewing the March of Mars across Europe in terms of developments which point to the future course of the war.)

By JOE ALEX MORRIS,
United Press Foreign News Editor

This war is in a battlefield state of siege that might well last a century. But on other and probably more decisive fields it is being waged at unprecedented speed.

Now, after four months of conflict in Europe, it is possible to bring into focus some of the gains and some of the losses on both sides. Many momentous factors are involved. Their results cannot be foretold.

But for the purpose of clarification and study of progress so far, the conflict may be reduced to the fundamental struggle between Great Britain and Germany and to these primary opposing war aims:

1. Great Britain's purpose is to defeat the Nazi bid for domination of Europe by closing a devastating economic and military blockade around Germany and thus, as the ultimate goal, reassert Great Britain's position as a great, if not the greatest, single influence in world politics and trade.
2. Germany's purpose is to destroy the British Navy as ruler of the seas and thus remove greatest single traditional obstacle to Nazi leadership in Europe.

Those are the barest fundamentals. They may be modified by necessity. They may be abandoned only by failure for the governments now in power.

So far, the British and French have sought to force Germany to fight on allied terms, believing that economic power will mean ultimate victory without wholesale loss of fighting men. They have been successful to the extent that Adolf Hitler, by failing to strike with Germany's full military power, accepted the challenge to an economic war. But in one respect Hitler has amended the allied plan of war. He has taken the offensive against the British Navy.

Now, what are the gains and what are the losses? They fall normally into four classifications: land, sea, air and economic.

On the land, the use of armed force by both sides so far has had only incidental or indirect results. On the western front, it is estimated that there have been not more than 4,000 casualties, rather evenly divided between Germans and French with the British probably a score of dead since their arrival in the front lines. Patrol fighting is very real warfare to the men who take part; but to date the result is merely to emphasize the state of siege.

In the air, Germany admits the loss of only 29 airplanes, including three shot down in Poland. British official statistics claim 86 German aircraft have been downed by British fighters and French claims boost the total to 105, with a score of others believed destroyed.

The British admit the loss of only 26 planes. Neutral sources—to say nothing of German claims—boost the total to at least 85. But these losses, including an estimated total of 1,200 casualties in air force personnel on both sides, represent little more than recon-

PREPARATIONS ARE MADE FOR A BITTER WAR

By LOUIS F. KEEMLE
United Press Cable Editor

Both the Allies and Germany are giving increasing signs of preparing for a bitter war, long or short.

Prime Minister Neville Chamberlain's speech Tuesday was designed to reassure the British people and encourage the will to victory, no matter what the cost. The British also are being given indirect warning that the present modified system of rationing may have to be extended.

Similarly in Germany, Nazi local readers have been ordered to watch more closely the morale of the people, to discourage grumbling and see that the German broadcasts are listened to.

It is the uncertainty and the "war of nerves," leaders fear, which may tell on the people.

The anxiety is almost as great in the neutral countries. All over Europe, people are wondering where the blow will fall. Will the whole continent be dragged into war?

A recast of dispatches from England and the continent shows at least half a dozen possibilities.

One is that Germany's threat to the English of an attack more terrible than anything yet seen means a furious German onslaught from the skies and by sea. If Hitler should choose such a method, the English believe it will come soon because the preferred German method has always been lightning attack.

They do not believe it will be a frontal attack on the Maginot line, at least not before March.

The alternative suggested would be an attempted smash through Belgium and Holland and perhaps Switzerland. Belgium and Holland have been ready for months. They can add more than 1,000,000 first class fighting men to the Allied armies which would come to their aid. Belgium already has 600,000 men mobilized and Holland nearly 400,000. Both countries are ready to flood a wide area in the path of the invader.

Another possibility is in the north and Norway, Sweden and Denmark are apprehensive. Norway and Sweden are determined to continue aiding Finland because they fear that if Russia conquers their neighbor, they may be next.

Although Russia seems stopped for the moment in Finland, the Scandinavians do not think the Red Army is defeated but merely blocked.

In aiding Finland, the Swedes and Norwegians are worried by Germany's vague threatening attitude. They fear Germany may decide to give military support to Russia and move into Scandinavia. In that event, Britain and France undoubtedly would feel obliged to come in.

Turning from the west, the other danger area is in Southeastern Europe and the Near East. Allied and neutral fears of a German or Russian or joint German-Russian attack there have been repeatedly manifested.

The Allies have guarantees to Turkey, Rumania and Greece, so that they would be drawn in. There also is danger that Italy might be involved, especially if the attack came from Russia.

At Sea

Germany is on the offensive at sea with u-boats, mines, airplanes and armed sea raiders in a campaign to blow the British navy out of the water.

Known results include destruction of at least 18 British warships, of which ten were auxiliary vessels such as armed trawlers. The others include the Battleship Royal Oak, the aircraft carrier Courageous, the Merchant Cruiser Rawalpindi, the submarine Oxyer and the destroyers Gypsy, Blanche and Duchess. In addition Germany has claimed five other important British warships were set out of action and it has been established that sixteen British warships in addition to those sunk were more or less seriously damaged. Navy casualties total 2,132 dead.

Although navies were larger in numbers in 1914, the German victories in four months may be compared to the following losses in approximately 50 months of the World War:

British	French	German
Battleships 16	4	2
Cruisers 25	5	23
Destroyers 67	12	66
Submarines 54	14	199

On the other side of the ledger, Germany has lost the Pocket Battleship Graf Spee, two coastal patrol ships, and five submarines which are officially admitted destroyed as compared to allied claims that at least 40 u-boats have been captured or sunk.

In Nazi eyes and on the basis of official German claims, the British navy has suffered damaging blows. Certainly the spectacular triumphs have been on the German side and the prestige of the British at sea was at a new low until the vaunted Graf Spee ran from the guns of three British cruisers off the Uruguayan coast and eventually was scuttled. But in the estimates of most qualified observers the Nazi victories have been largely against older British warships and must increase to a far greater scale to endanger British domination of the seas.

The allied offensive has been mainly on the economic front, where Britain moved with spectacular speed to institute a "double blockade" of exports to and from the Reich and to enforce it from the beginning with a ruthlessness that did not appeal until after many months in the World War.

The outstanding result in four months has been to destroy Germany's overseas trade, cutting off an estimated 60 per cent of normal imports and slashing the Reich's purchasing power by seizure of exports.

Against this double blockade, Germany has used mines, u-boats and airplanes on a vast scale to frighten neutral shipping away from England. The results, as comparable to 50 months of world war, are:

Sunk in World War	British Merchant Ships	2,098
French and Other Allies	1,542
Neutral	1,280

Roosevelt Has No Definite Plan For A Permanent Peace

WASHINGTON, Jan. 10.—President Roosevelt has denied that he has any definite and concrete plans for a lasting peace, and attributed the claims to over-enthusiasm of clergymen, with whom he conferred.

Mr. Roosevelt stated that he had called a group of clergymen in for a conference, with the hope that the churches might be organized into a movement for peace, but that, contrary to reports that followed the conference, he had no definite plans for peace by spring.

Mr. Roosevelt assured the clergymen that sending Myron Taylor as an ambassador without portfolio to Vatican City did not mean that he had offered a plan for peace, but had hoped that cooperation with the church and the Pope might be a means of aiding any peace movement that could be developed.

PLANS FORMED FOR EASTLAND COUNTY FAIR

The fourteenth annual Eastland County Fair will be held the week prior to the State Fair of Texas at Dallas, according to decision of members of the Eastland Chamber of Commerce fair committee.

It is expected, however, that the dates for the event will be Sept. 6, 27 and 28. Definite decision on those dates has not been decided because members of the committee have not been advised of the state exposition dates.

The county fair is to be held the week before the state exposition to enable exhibitors at the county fair to take their displays in ample time to Dallas.

Members of the chamber of commerce's committee have also authorized H. J. Tanner, secretary-manager of the Chamber of Commerce who serves as fair manager also, to contact officials of the Southwestern Peanut Growers association and determine if they will co-sponsor a peanut festival in connection with the fair as last year.

Should the officials prefer not to co-sponsor the peanut festival then peanuts will be featured nevertheless at the county fair, agree the committee members.

The fair committee members also have voted that Tanner attend the annual meeting of the Texas Association of Fair conference school Feb. 1, 2 and 3 in Dallas. C. L. Foecher of Denton will be program chairman at the meeting.

IS ARRESTED BY OFFICER AFTER SEARCH

Letter Mailed To Her Under An Alias from Pocahontas, Ark., Led To Capture.

Mrs. Victor Bryant, 22, alias Venus Bryan, Venus Slayton and Sandra Allen, wanted for murder of Victor Bryant in Pocahontas, Ark., was arrested in Ranger today at noon by Chief of Police Guy Pledger and Constable John Barnes.

Mrs. Bryant was traced to Ranger through a letter mailed from Pocahontas and addressed to "Sandra Allen, Ranger, Texas," Sheriff O. F. Spaulding of Van Buren County, was notified the letter had been mailed and he, in turn, notified Pledger.

A picture of the woman, together with a description and a warrant for her arrest was forwarded to Ranger, and the search was begun.

At noon today the woman called for a letter at the Ranger post office and spotters who were watching for her followed her from the building and the arrest was made.

According to Chief Pledger the woman readily admitted the shooting, but refused to discuss it further. She signed a waiver of extradition, which was witnessed by both Pledger and Barnes. A young man who was with the woman at the time of her arrest was held for investigation.

According to Pledger the woman had been in Ranger for about 10 days, and he had seen her on a number of occasions. She stayed at a Ranger hotel for some time, but checked out Saturday night, it was revealed today when he started the search for her.

The warrant issued for her arrest, and which was forwarded to Ranger, and that she was wanted for:

"Feloniouly, willfully, deliberately, premeditatedly, and of her malice aforethought, assault one Victor Bryant with a .22 calibre rifle, by shooting the said Victor Bryant through the back, thereby killing the said Victor Bryant."

The woman's description, as given in the letter containing her picture, said she weighed 160 to 170 pounds, was 22 years of age, five feet eight inches tall, had dark brown hair, brown eyes and a thick upper lip.

Mrs. Bryant signed a waiver of her extradition at the Ranger police station, where she was taken awaiting officers from Arkansas.

Sheriff Spaulding was telephoned immediately, but he said it would be several days before an officer could arrive in Ranger as the snow was so thick there one couldn't see to drive.

Pledger said that the young man arrested with the murder suspect would be held pending an investigation, but that no charges had been filed against him, as yet.

Rents Come Down to $12

The Chicago Housing Authority, for the past year or so, has been charging its tenants $19.95 per month rental. Heat, light, and gas were extra; but even with these items added to the rent, the total was low enough to enable most families to meet their rent bills comfortably.

What's more, it didn't matter whether a tenant needed one room or four, the basic rent was the same $19.95. The apartments and buildings furnished by the Authority were new, modern, clean. There was nothing better in all of Chicago that any of the tenants might have picked up for the money.

On Jan. 1, the Chicago Authority did an amazing thing. It lowered the rents! Despite the uncommonly low rates offered, the officials discovered they could operate their $16,000,000 project and the additional $16,000,000 worth of units now under construction by charging even less than $19.95 per unit. The result was that rents in the existing project were lowered to $15.25. The rate in a Negro project, to be completed this year, will be $14.75; and the rental in the newest project, to be opened in 1942, will be $12.

By prowling around, the Chicago group has found many places where little economies were possible without impairing the quality of the project. It was also determined that if the tenants contributed to the maintenance of their homes by doing the necessary work, making minor repairs and generally assuming responsibility, more savings could be effected. The result: rents that are incredibly low.

There is one phase of the reductions, however, that is not altogether bright. Because housing authority laws restrict residence in projects to families with incomes of not more than five times their rental, a number of families who have already taken up quarters in the project will be forced to move. They will be evicted because they are too well able to meet their rent!

The income maximum for families living in the present project will be cut from $1641 to $1149. Top income for prospective residents in the unfinished Negro project will be $1059 and the project just started $900.

A great deal has been done in the interest of better housing since the mid-depression years. Much more remains to be done. In the Chicago project, for example, families with incomes between $22.10 a week and $31.75 must be evicted from the municipal homes and must be sent back to the poorer standard of dwellings they knew before admittance to the projects.

A great deal of attention has been shown people in the very lowest income strata. It is time someone, private enterprises or government agencies, concentrated more on those in the middle—the people with small incomes who may be forced eventually to inhabit the very places which lowest-income families are now able to vacate in favor of better homes.

School of the Air To Be Inaugurated for School Students

AUSTIN, Tex., Jan. 9.—State School Superintendent L. A. Woods announced today that the "school of the air" which will reach 3,000 Texas public schools through regular statewide radio network programs will start in February.

Plans for the school were announced late last year and now three definite series of broadcasts have been planned for the second semester of the present school year. The semester begins with February. Each of the series will present 16 weekly programs.

The University of Texas Bureau of Research in Education by radio will offer a series on junior and senior language arts to stimulate reading in junior and senior high schools. These programs, thirty minutes in length, will originate in Radio House on the University of Texas campus under the leadership of J. Howard Lumpkin, university radio production director.

The second series will be one on intermediate grade social relations, consisting of a fifteen minute program each week on the task of living together in a democratic society. These programs will originate in Dallas, being presented by the Dallas Radio Workshop.

An elementary science course, designed chiefly for the lower grades, will be presented under the joint direction of Dr. J. C. Matthews, professor of education, North Texas State Teachers College, and Emory Horger, professor of speech, Texas State College for Women, Denton.

Eventually the Texas school of the air intends to present a minimum of five programs per week of not less than fifteen minutes each. Most of the programs will be broadcast between 11 a. m. and noon.

Senate Votes For Investigation Of The 1941 Budget

WASHINGTON, Jan. 10.—The senate, after hearing sharp attacks on the new deal spending and defense policies, voted today for a joint congressional investigation of the 1941 budget, submitted to congress by President Roosevelt in his annual budget message last week.

The measure now goes to the house, which is not expected to approve it, and where it is thought it will be pigeon holed.

The house, meantime, was debating the anti-lynching bill, which is expected to pass this afternoon.

LOANS OF FSA PERMIT BUYING OF 6,180 FARMS

By United Press

WASHINGTON—The Farm Security Administration has revealed that it has helped 6,180 tenants, sharecroppers and laborers purchase farms during the past two years.

With increased funds available under the Rankin-Jones Farm Tenant Act, the FSA expects to bring the total to 13,000 by July 1. Despite this aid farm tenancy is increasing by about 40,000 a year, officials estimated.

The Farm Tenant Act made $10,000,000 available the first year, $25,000,000 the second and $40,000,000 this year for loans to farmers in purchasing homes.

Nearly 200,000 tenants have applied for the FSA for the loans. The average borrower last year paid $5,562 for a 134-acre farm, and obtained an additional $1,198 for repairing or rebuilding of farm dwellings and barns. More than 2,000 farmers built new homes at an average cost of $1,313, the FSA reported.

Very few of the purchasers have been able to find fully developed farms at reasonable prices. Virtually all of them bought unimproved farms or farms with run-down buildings and had to borrow to make improvements.

More than half of the borrowers were able to repair existing houses on the farms at an average cost of $378. Usually additional loans were needed for farm machinery, livestock, fences and land improvement.

Plans for the new homes were developed by FSA engineers. They usually provided for five rooms, a screened work porch, a front porch and complete wiring for electricity. The building was done by local contractors.

Loans under the Farm Tenant Act are amortized over 40 years at three per cent interest. While comparatively few of the installments will come due until Jan. 1, collections are in excess of maturities, the FSA said.

Loans for farm purchases have been made in every state and in Hawaii and Puerto Rico. The number ranged from one in Rhode Island to 630 in Mississippi. Heaviest purchases were made in the southern states where tenancy has been increasing most rapidly.

Alabama tenants purchased 541 farms at an average cost of $2,729. In Arkansas, 425 farms were purchased at an average cost of $2,620; Georgia tenants purchased 568 farms at an average cost of $2,597; Mississippi, 630 at an average of $2,286; and Texas, 537 at an average cost of $4,725.

The highest average cost per farm was $9,000 in Nevada, and the lowest $2,286 in Mississippi. Average improvements cost $2,218 in Louisiana, $2,556 in Montana, $2,489 in Wyoming and $244, the lowest, in Delaware. The Nevada cost was greater because of larger acreage.

Intermediate G. A. Girls Elect Officers

At the regular Monday afternoon meeting of the Intermediate G. A. Girls, Retha Mae Jones was elected president, Martha Jane Hutchison was chosen vice-president and membership chairman, and Edna Jean Morton was elected poster chairman. The group voted to send a card of appreciation to Lillian Bishop, a past president who has moved away. Each girl was given a list of names of possible members to be contacted.

The program for the afternoon consisted of the opening song, "I Gave My Life For Thee," and a talk on "The Appreciation of God and His Word," by Mrs. W. A. Reuver.

The girls from Cooper addition had the largest number present.

WAKE UP YOUR LIVER BILE—

Without Calomel—And You'll Jump Out of Bed in the Morning!

The liver should pour out two pints of bile into your bowels daily. If this bile is not flowing freely, your food may not digest. It may just decay in the bowels. Gas builds up your stomach. You get constipated. You feel sore, sick and the world looks pink.

It takes three good, old Carter's Little Liver Pills to get these two pints of bile flowing freely to make you feel "up and up." Amazing in making bile flow freely. Ask for Carter's Little Liver Pills by name. 10¢ and 25¢. Beware of cheap imitations.

A Plant Hormone Holds a Chemical Element of Plantlife

PASADENA, Cal.—The discovery that a flowering hormone exists for plants has resulted in scientists at the California Institute of Technology launching a research effort to determine the chemical nature of this vital element.

It has been established that in precisely the same manner that hormones from the endocrine or ductless glands of the human system control the entire growth and development of the human being, similar hormones control the growth, development and flowering of plants. It is the hormone that causes plants to flower that for the moment is most attracting the attention of the institute's scientists.

The work is being carried on by Dr. James Bonner, assistant professor of plant physiology.

In collaboration with Chicago research workers, an extensive investigation is being carried on especially with the flowers of cocklebur which are regarded as the ones most likely to reveal the chemical character of the flowering hormone. Thousands of the plants are being grown at the institute's experiment farm at Arcadia.

As regards other plant life hormones it has been established that some influence the root, others the stem, and others the leaf. The one governing the flowering of a plant is looked upon as probably being the most vital one.

"It seems like," Dr. Bonner said, "that every part of a plant has its growth substance. It seems possible that the time will come when the growth of plants can be regulated for their best production and maximum benefit to mankind."

LONDON.—Police Constable Jane Hendron has an eagle eye and fears no man, as she proved when she arrested four army deserters single handed.

She was walking in Ladywell Recreation Ground, London, when she saw four men lying on the ground. She noticed that each of them was wearing one or more articles of army clothing, such as socks and boots. When she questioned them, they did not answer, so she called a park-keeper as a witness to the arrests—and marched all four off to the police station.

There they all admitted that they were deserters from the Royal Army Service Corps.

Said the Greenwich magistrate to Constable Jane: "I must congratulate you on getting such a haul in one day."
