Two Boys Caught After Bus Holdup And A Gun Fight

By United Press GRAND PRAIRIE, Texas, Feb. 3.—Two Fort Worth boys, 16 and 18 years old, were jailed here today and officers sought three others after an automobile chase and a gun fight through the streets of Grand Prairie last night. City Marshall Perry Nash said the boys had admitted that they and three companions were responsible for the robbery at Dallas last night of R. T. Pickle, city bus operator, and two passengers. The youths refused to make other statements, but Nash said he believed they also committed two other robberies at Dallas during the night.

Riding in a blue coupe, stolen in Fort Worth, the five boys were en route to Fort Worth about 10 p. m. when the Marshall and a deputy, W. E. Davis, spotted them. Dallas police previously had broadcast a description of the car involved in the bus robbery. "We met the car at the city limits," Nash said, "and noticed that it fitted the broadcast description of the bus bandit's car. We turned around and overtook them about the middle of town." When the officers' car drew alongside the coupe and flashed a spotlight on it, the coupe raced away. "I told Davis to start shooting," Nash said. "He cut loose with his .35 automatic rifle. He shot three or four times. All shots hit the car. By the time we reached the city limits, we were going at least 75 and gaining." Nash said he pulled to the side of the coupe twice but each time the fugitive car started swerving dangerously, forcing him to drop back. The third time, Nash said, the coupe driver lost control and finally turned crosswise on the highway as the officers swept past. Returning, the officers saw the boys scattering. They fired twice but did not believe they hit any of them.

Puzzle Picture: How Many Finns Can You Find?

Now you see them, now you don't. The Russians evidently didn't see the Finns hidden like these seven white-clad soldiers hidden by the foliage and snow background on the Petsamo front in northern Finland. Arrows will help you spot them in this exclusive puzzle picture by Eric Calcraft, NEA staff photographer now operating with Finnish forces in the north.

NEW LOCATIONS CHALKED UP FOR AREA OIL TESTS

Important developments in oil activities of Stephens and Eastland counties for the week included one location for each county, showings in two wells in Stephens county are the beginning of preparations to drill new operations in both. Eastland County W. A. Stiles and others made location for No. 1 Mrs. J. P. Hearn, 220 feet from the south and east lines of the southwest one-quarter of section 15, block 2, H TC survey, six miles southeast of Eastland. Dobbs Oil Corporation was reportedly moving in materials for a 3,600-foot test, No. 1 Mrs. R. L. Poe, section 37, block 3, H&T survey, five miles west of Carbon. Four and one-half miles south of Cisco, E. J. Keough and others No. 1 L. Walters, section 83, block 3 H&T survey, at 1,450 feet was drilling. Stephens County A new operation, Panhandle Refining Company No. 1 Frank Magers, was preparing to spud for a 4,100-foot Marble Falls lime test three miles southeast of Ivan. It is located in section 1, block 3, SPRR survey. Location is also 13 miles north of Breckenridge. Clyde Greathouse and others No. 1 J. J. Robertson, Porter Norton survey, one-half mile of Horwitz and Odum production, was rigging up to test depths to 3,600 feet. Five miles west of Crystal Falls, one-half mile west of Horwitz and Odum production, Grace and Wods No. 1 George Healy, Hales survey, swabbed a small amount of oil after 10,600 gallons acidization treatment from 3,610-58 feet, total depth. Testing was being continued. Stedman Petrol Company No. 1 Powers, George York Survey, one-half mile north of the Horwitz and Odum production, with a show of oil from 3,586-3,615 feet was drilling ahead after setting pipe at 3,642 feet. Rigging up was reported for Earl McNabb and others No. 1 W. E. Pruitt, southwest corner of the county, section 37, block 7, T&P survey. The No. 1 Pruitt will be a 4,000-foot test. Pitzer and West and others No. 1 N. G. Price, southeast corner of the county, section 67, Asylum lands, was drilling at 3,700 feet.

SURVEY SHOWS EASTLAND HAS 125 'FLU' CASES

A survey of Eastland doctors Saturday disclosed there are approximately 125 cases of influenza in the city. The total was reached by the addition of cases each doctor is caring for. Most of the cases reported are those in which the patient is confined to bed although some are only remaining about the house and are not in bed. Doctors agreed, however, that the type of influenza now being experienced is not the dangerous type as was prevalent in 1918 and even in recent years. Many of the doctors pointed out those with influenza should "take care" of themselves and not go places where there are crowds. One doctor, reporting 15 cases, said that many were those in which the patient only secured information as to what to do and did not require his active assistance. "Yes," said one doctor, "there are quite a few cases of influenza now, but they are not keeping the doctors especially busy. I remember several years ago, back in 1931, I believe, when every doctor in town was kept busy night and day with influenza patients." Not one single case of pneumonia was reported to have developed from the influenza cases in Eastland. Most of the doctors interviewed said more cases of influenza were reported when the cold weather abated the first of the week. With fairly cool weather the remainder of the month, said one, the number of influenza patients should gradually decrease.

Effect Of War On Food, Clothing To Be Seen In Bids

By United Press AUSTIN, Texas, Feb. 3.—Effect of the European war on American food and clothing prices is expected to be revealed by bids to be made to the State Board of Control this week for grocery supplies for state institutions. Last bids were taken before the war began. Grocery bids will be taken on Feb. 6 to cover a six months period. Flour and beef bids will be taken on Feb. 19 to cover a three months period. Bids on dry goods will be taken on Feb. 20, for a six months period. Flour and beef bids are for a quarter year only, because of difficulty experienced in getting bids for a longer time in the unsettled market conditions. The estimated amount of flour required for three months is 11,510 sacks of 98 pounds and 463,700 pounds of corn meal. Beef consumption in the same period is estimated at 532,500 pounds. There will also be contracts for smaller quantities of liver and pork. Biggest single bulk item in the grocery list is beans. Various types including Lima, Navy and Pinto are to be bought.

Formal Opening Of Craft School Set Mon. February 26

Mr. Winnie R. Instruction will be free but those receiving the courses must buy their own material. When the formal opening of the department is held persons may enroll for instruction in basketry, woodcraft, leathercraft, tincraft, jewelry craft and needlecraft, the supervisor declared. The general public was invited by Mrs. Grady to attend the formal opening of the new department. When the opening is held, which will be at a night program, demonstrations in the craft will be conducted and types of work in the handicraft department will be displayed. Program for the opening is being arranged. State WPA recreation department officials are expected to attend. Instructors in the new department will be as follows: Mrs. Mildred Collins, basketry; Aubrey L. German Air Raids, Economic Moves Feature War News

By United Press German bombers renewed their slashing attack on shipping off the British coast today in the latest phase of the war at sea, designed to increase the destruction wrought by submarines and mines. The British, who have developed faster and more efficient types of fighters to offset such raids, claimed success in this instance, reporting the destruction of two and possible three German Heinkel bombers. In the economic field, the British signed a commercial agreement which was expected to result in further losses of German markets in Turkey. The British believed the agreement would bring a substantial increase in British-Turkish trade based on recent British credits to Turkey. It was reported from Belgrade, where the Little Entente is meeting to discuss Balkan solidarity and neutrality, that Britain may send troops to the Turkish Dardanelles to tighten the British blockade of Germany and aid Turkey to protect the strategic strait. The report was without confirmation. It was not clear how it would strengthen the blockade, although diplomats suggested Allied and Turkish military activity in that region might cause some Balkan nations to increase their armies, thus cutting down their exports of food and other supplies needed at home. Britain's determination to carry on the war relentlessly, which has been voiced by a succession of government leaders, was repeated in a speech today by Oliver Stanley, who succeeded Leslie Hore-Belisha as war secretary. Stanley said his only aim is to win the war. He argued that it must be won, picturing what would happen if Germany were to dictate the peace terms. "Shorn of our empire, our fleet and our trade," he said, "we would be a small, over-crowded island. Its recovery would be impossible and even its survival would be in doubt." Nothing except patrol activity was noted on the Western Front. Operations were made impracticable by a dense fog. In Finland, the Russian forces were reported to have been forced to halt their offensive after an unsuccessful assault with armored sledges and tanks, and parachute troops dropped behind the lines from airplanes. Continued raids by Russian planes were reported all over Southwestern Finland and at Rovaniemi, in the Northwest. Helsinki announced officially that 12 Russian planes were shot down in yesterday's raids. Moscow asserted that 11 Finnish planes had been shot down and one Russian plane was missing. The British embassy at Shanghai reported that five foreigners had been killed in a Japanese bombing raid on the Indo-China Yunnan Railroad, part of an offensive in which the Japanese claim to have trapped 200,000 Chinese troops. Several shots were fired near the U. S. S. Luzon, flagship of the United States Yangtze patrol, a few miles above the river port of Wuhu. Nelson T. Johnson, United States ambassador to China, was aboard the Luzon. Some discussion arose in Tokyo over the army's course in China. Takao Saito resigned from the powerful Minseito political party after he had caused a furor in the diet by demanding an explanation and statement of policy. Army and political leaders conferred and there was a move to hold the Minseito party responsible for Saito's statement.

Saito Resigns As Jap Army Raps His Criticism

TOKYO, Feb. 3.—Takao Saito, Harvard educated leader in parliament, resigned from the Minseito political party today as army chiefs considered demanding his expulsion from the diet because of his "slandering" remarks concerning Japan's China policy. Today's session of the diet, the lower house of parliament, was delayed for two hours while army leaders conferred among themselves and with political leaders at the war office. Before Saito resigned from his party, which is one of the two principal ones in Japan, the minority Jikyoku Doshikai party had announced in a formal statement that the Minseito would be held responsible for his statements. Saito, in a speech yesterday which caused an uproar in parliament and a sensation throughout the country, denounced the government's announced Chinese peace terms as indefinite. These were the terms which Prince Fumimaro Konoye, then premier, proclaimed Dec. 22, 1938, and have remained the basis of Chinese policy. Saito demanded that the government state precisely the scope and nature of its proposed settlement with China and say how long the country might expect the Chinese war to continue. He asked just what the government meant by its "new order in Asia," and just what it thought of the expressions of policy made by the dissident Chinese group under former Premier Wang Ching-wei which is to set up a "government" in Japanese occupied areas of China in an effort to undermine the influence of the Chinese government.

Shots Are Fired Near U. S. Ship On Yangtze Patrol

SHANGHAI, Feb. 3.—Several shots were fired today near the U. S. S. Luzon, flagship of the United States Yangtze Patrol, a few miles above the river port of WUHU today. Nelson T. Johnson, U. S. Ambassador to China, was aboard the gunboat. It was not definitely established whether the shots were fired at the Luzon or whether they were aimed at a Japanese merchant ship on the Yangtze river not far from the American gunboat. It was recalled that last month Japanese official circles in Shanghai warned that a Chinese attempt to "assassinate" Ambassador Johnson would be made while he was making an inspection of conditions along the river. Aboard the gunboat with Johnson was Rear Admiral William C. Glassford, commander of the United States Yangtze Patrol. They were returning to Shanghai after a cruise up the river which took them as far as Hankow. Japanese sources in Nanking said today that the shots fired in the direction of the Luzon above Wuhu had been fired by Chinese Guerrilla soldiers. There was no other indication, however, as to who fired the shots. The Luzon was not struck.

BOMBINGS AND LAND ATTACKS ARE CONTINUED

By United Press HELSINKI, Feb. 3.—An air raid alarm sounded in Helsinki at 2:25 p. m. today. The all-clear signal was given at 3:05 p. m. Bombs were heard in the southwest outskirts of the city. Five planes were visible to the south from Helsinki. Reports said that Soviet planes operating over the southwest outskirts dropped 36 bombs on two communities about 15 miles from the capital. New heavy Russian attacks against the Mannerheim defense line especially in the Central Summa sector, were repulsed with heavy Red army losses, an official Finnish communique said today. The communique said that more than 200 Russians had been killed and 70 were captured. The Finns said that they had captured 25 tanks and three Russian guns northeast of Lake Ladoga. In fighting for the strongly fortified Finnish Ladoga Islands yesterday 150 Russians were killed, the communique said. For weeks the Russians have been attempting to capture Mantzi and adjacent islands, chief obstacle to Russian penetration of the northeast shore of Lake Ladoga, from which they hope to turn the Mannerheim line. In the Kubno region the Finns claimed to have destroyed 11 Russian tanks and three guns. They said they captured large quantities of war materials in this area. Yesterday's attacks on the Summa sector of the Mannerheim line were launched after intensive artillery preparation, the communique said. The Finns claimed also to have repulsed a Russian attack in the Saa area of the Centra front. Two hundred Russians were left dead on the field of battle.

War Secretary Of Britain Denounces Hitler In Speech

By United Press NEWCASTLE, Eng., Feb. 3.—War Secretary Oliver Stanley, in his first important public speech since he succeeded Leslie Hore-Belisha, bitterly attacked Adolf Hitler today. Exactly five months after the start of the war, Stanley said "I have only one war aim—to win the war; only one peace aim—that peace shall be lasting." Addressing a public meeting at city hall as part of the cabinet's campaign to rally the country behind the government's war program Stanley said: "It is not only our physical and material security which Germany, under Hitler, threatens to destroy. They challenge every standard of value that for generations we have set for ourselves. Our virtues are his (Hitler's) vices and our vices his prized virtues. What we term progress to him is decadence. Kindliness, tolerance, justice, truth and those individual liberties won so hardily and prized so dearly to him are objects for contempt and pity. "His ideas challenge ours and his standards are set against ours. One or the other must prevail. The world cannot survive half slave and half free and we are determined that it shall be free."

County Is Active In Oil Search Says Scout's Publication

Of all activity the past year in Eastland county the National Oil Scouts Association 1939 Year Book said the following: "Eastland county has been active, especially from a deep drilling standpoint, and normal from a shallow drilling view. On the basis of deep drilling, the most important wells were the nine wells drilled into the Ellenburger by the Lone Star Gas company and the Hickok Production and Development Corporation. Those wells are located in the northwest part of the county, approximately five miles northwest of the town of Cisco. None of the shallow wells were of any importance, or caused any extra activity. All the shallow wells were drilled by independents. The only exploration work in the area was the Sub-Terrex (soil analysis) crew working for the Lone Star Gas company in the northwest part of the county, and extending over into Stephens county."

Moscow Denies A Major Offensive In War With Finland

MOSCOW, Feb. 3.—Headquarters of the Leningrad military area directing the Red army campaign against Finland, issued a series of denials today, among them that there had been a major Russian offensive against the Mannerheim line or that Finnish planes had raided the Russian Kronstadt naval base. Referring to Finnish reports of a Russian offensive against Summa, which the Finns said they had repulsed, the Russian communique today said: "Possibly from the viewpoint of the microscopic scale operations on the western front in Europe the clashes of several companies (in Finland) appear as a 'big offensive.' We, however, find such a scale ridiculous and cannot consider the clashes of several companies either a big or small offensive."

Fewer Words—More Sense

Everybody would be much better off if lawyers, drawing up legal documents, would eliminate 75 per cent of the words. That's not the radical, crack-pot recommendation of some disgruntled layman, who's just had a summons slapped on him. Instead, the idea comes from Charles A. Beardsley, president of the American Bar Association.

A lot of legal documents don't make sense to anybody, not even to the lawyers who draft them. They include a lot of phrases and words that have accumulated an aura of tradition and have lost all meaning.

People who run into legal papers sometime in their lives—and most folks do—would be happier if they could read the documents. Mr. Beardsley would have attorneys prepare papers so they can be read intelligently. They can be just as legal, if they are less legalistic.

• BRUCE CATTON IN WASHINGTON

By BRUCE CATTON
NEA Service Staff Correspondent

WASHINGTON.—It is possible now to get a pretty clear idea of the changes which critics of the Wagner act and the Labor Board will demand at this session of Congress.

These changes are apt to be much less "destructive" and sweeping than has been expected. According to one of the most prominent and influential of the board's foes in Congress, they will probably include:

Creation of a five-man board in place of the present board of three, with some provision for geographical representation in naming members.

Requirement that the board follow established rules of evidence as followed by the federal courts.

Definition by Congress of the method of procedure, removing the board's power to make its own rules and specifically requiring certain changes such as the right of petition by employers.

In other words—present personnel and practices of the board will be assailed, but not the basic principles of the Wagner act.

VOORHIS DID HIS WORK TOO WELL

IT'S very odd, but Congressman Jerry Voorhis of California is in very bad with New Dealers these days, although he's as devoted a New Dealer as there is in Congress. His crime: toning down the Dies committee report.

Argument is that if he had let the report ride as originally written it would have been so wild and exaggerated that New Dealers couldn't have found the committee's appropriation successfully in Congress.

The report as Voorhis fixed it is sane and factual and restrained, no good fighting points were left. As a matter of fact, of course, there never has been a plea of beating the committee's plea for another year of life. What Voorhis did was to put a frequently unrestrained committee on record with a liberal and intelligent document which may come in very handy later on. The New Dealers ought to be thanking him for it, and probably will some day.

IF YOU ARE DUMMY TELL SOCIAL SECURITY

If you know a southern worker named Dummy, the Social Security Board would be glad to hear from you.

"Dummy" is the prize sample of faulty returns that get into the board's old age insurance accounts. His boss sent his name in that way—just Dummy, no first name or initials—and forgot to give his card number. When a board official tried to check up, Dummy had left his job and couldn't be found. Meanwhile his card is on file, some day he may have money coming to him which he won't be able to collect.

The board has between 700,000 and 800,000 similar cases—workers who have paid the old age insurance tax for a while but who can't be found now, or whose account numbers are missing.

The number is much smaller than it first was. When the act was first passed, about 10 per cent of all the returns were in error in one way or another; now the number is under one per cent.

W. C. Campbell, home service chairman of the Eastland County Red Cross Chapter, has received a communication from the midwestern branch of the American Red Cross at St. Louis, which asks his aid in the location of Henry F. Colston, missing war veteran.

The communication states that Colston enlisted August 1, 1917, at Abilene, Kansas, and was honorably discharged June 17, 1919, at Fort Worth. At the time of his discharge he was serving as a private with H. Q. Company, 142nd Infantry.

Colston is about 46 years of age, weighs approximately 200 pounds and is five feet and one-half inch in height, has dark brown hair, brown eyes and ruddy complexion.

The man suffered multiple shrapnel injuries to his right arm and right leg. He is rated 10 percent disabled and compensation payments from June 14, 1938, have been accumulating since then and will be paid as soon as he can be reached. He has been missing since August 3, 1938.

His wife, Mrs. Maude Colston, and six children reside in Houston, 7228 Avenue H., and are on relief. There is no provision under the present legislation for payments of part of his compensation to his dependents since it is less than $20. His parents are Mr. and Mrs. George T. Colston, Rt. 11, Box 161, Houston.

Any information as to Colston should be sent the executive secretary, Harris County Chapter, American Red Cross, 2206 Milam street, Houston.

McDONALD IS CANDIDATE TO RAILWAY POST

William H. (Bill) McDonald of Eastland, former district clerk for Eastland County, has announced he is a candidate for the State Railroad Commission. The term of Lon A. Smith as a member of the commission expires next January.

McDonald was born in Eastland county 40 years ago. He is a World War veteran, is married and is the father of two children.

Mr. McDonald is a lawyer, having obtained his legal education by working nights as a railway clerk, in order that he might attend law school.

During the two years he served as Land Commissioner, McDonald collected $5,000,000 more for the Permanent School Fund of Texas than did any of his predecessors in a like period of time, he said.

His early training in railroad service gave him sympathy with every man who works, the candidate declared. It gave him understanding of transportation as supervised by the Railroad Commission. His early years of work in one of Texas greatest oil fields, in every job from roustabout and truck driver to operator, has given him intimate knowledge of the oil business, he continued.

His experience as Land Commissioner gave him a wide understanding of the oil business, the supervision of which is the principal task of the Railroad Commission; and it gave him a state-wide view of the vast problems of the oil industry, which will be of great value in rendering service to all fields and operators without discrimination. Ever since he completed his tenure as Land Commissioner, he has been actively engaged in the practice of law, specializing in oil and land litigation.

The Perils of Rejecting Christ

Text: Matthew 23:25-43

BY WILLIAM E. GILROY, D. D.
Editor of Advance

THE title of this lesson is "The Perils of Rejecting Christ." It might perhaps be more properly called "Reality in Religion." The lesson consists of several parables, and the first of these is most strongly in emphasis of the matter of reality.

In religion, we are so much disposed to put the emphasis upon words rather than deeds that few things are more difficult than to establish the fact that it is what we are and what we do, rather than what we say or profess, that constitutes our real faith and our real religion.

Jesus was accustomed to emphasize truth by stories that centered about extreme situations. When He attached to a Samaritan the god, neighborly action of caring for a victim of thieves on the road from Jerusalem to Jericho, He did not mean to imply that a Samaritan was better than a scribe or a Pharisee; but He did want to emphasize the truth that a Samaritan, despised, unorthodox and outcast, according to the Jewish estimate of the time, might in reality be a much better man than a poor and insincere person of orthodox profession.

It was precisely this fact that snugly religious people were in danger of forgetting. We are all so wont to judge men by their labels and outward professions.

SO, here, Jesus takes the case of two sons whom the father had asked to go and work in his vineyard. The one son, so far as words are concerned, is very willing and compliant. He answers very readily that he is going, but he did not go. The other son, in some mood or disposition of rebelliousness, declares that he will not go, but afterwards he repents and he actually does go.

Perhaps he does not even take the trouble to tell his father that he has repented. Nevertheless, he goes and he does the work. Jesus asks the very sensible question: Which of these did the will of his father? The implication of the teaching is very plain. He asks us, in effect, which of these two attitudes are we ourselves taking in relation to our Heavenly Father, who has asked us to go to work in the vineyard of the world and to live according to His will?

If men of religion everywhere could put the emphasis upon reality and less emphasis upon appearance, just as Jesus did, how much better this world would be! The parable of the husband and the unfaithful servants emphasizes very plainly the fact of man's disregard of a loving Father and the rebelliousness of men, even against God's own Son.

It is a sad story of life and lawlessness, but it is no more sad than what is spiritually happening in the world today, where men for the most part continue to reject the love of God and the claims of Christ.

THE parable of the stone which the builders rejected is also finding its manifestation constantly in life. Where men and women whom God has called fail in their duty, others arise, sometimes less privileged and less labeled with the sanctions of religion, to perform the tasks of real justice and mercy and truth.

The ideal is to make both our words and our deeds alike in their manifestation of truth and goodness. The complete life will not be lacking in either. Nevertheless, it is the life and the deed that matter, and words and professions are very hollow unless they are reflected in character and action.

THE FORD WAY OF DOING BUSINESS

The Ford Motor Company was founded by a working-man for working-men. Its present officers began as employees of the Company. It was the first company to pay a minimum wage, beginning in 1914, at the then astounding figure of $5 a day. That was double the prevailing wage of the time. The Ford minimum is now $6 a day for all employees engaged in production work. And from that, the wages rise to $10.80 a day, with the average wage $7.25, exclusive of salaried employees.

The Ford Motor Company was the first large company to establish the 8-hour day—also in 1914. And the 40-hour week was inaugurated by the Ford Motor Company in 1926, years before any such laws existed.

The Ford Motor Company employs men without regard to race, creed or color. It is common knowledge that working conditions in the Ford shops are the best that science and constant care can make them. A square deal, a just wage and stabilized employment for a large proportion of our employees—and as fully stabilized for all as conditions will permit—enable our men to retain their personal independence.

In consequence of these policies the Ford Motor Company has one of the finest bodies of employees in the world. The larger proportion are mature men of long service with the Company—sober, decent family men. Hundreds of them have been with the Company for more than 25 years—thousands for more than 15 years. Their health record, home ownership and citizenship records are gratifyingly high.

All this is reflected in Ford products, whether cars, trucks or tractors. The work is honestly done. The materials are the best that can be made or procured. Less profit to the Company and more value to the customer is known throughout the world as "Ford's way of doing business."

Ford Motor Company was the first to make a motor car within the means of the average family—quitting the manufacture of what was then the largest selling model in the world to do so. Its chosen field in all the 30 years since that time has been the average American family, for which it has consistently provided car facilities which formerly only the wealthy could buy.

It is the policy of the Ford Motor Company to share the benefits of advanced methods and management with workers and public alike. Increased wages and employment over a period of many years have resulted in a 300 per cent increase in the built-in value of the Ford car and a 75 per cent reduction in its price.

Henry Ford and Edsel Ford keep daily personal touch with all phases of Ford manufacture. In a conference with his staff, Henry Ford often says: "Go ahead—I'll sit here and represent the public."

SERIAL STORY

THE CAPTAIN'S DAUGHTER

BY HELEN WORDEN

COPYRIGHT, 1940, NEA SERVICE, INC.

YESTERDAY: Modeling a gown for Lynda's aunt, Marie breaks into tears when Dan's engagement is mentioned. She pleads illness. Later, when Dan calls, she refuses to talk to him. At noon she meets Tommy. He urges her to take the afternoon off, celebrate with him. She agrees, deploring that Dan means anything to her.

CHAPTER XI

DAN had put in the most miserable night of his life after he and his father came home from the West Side court. In vain he had tried to tell Mike that Lynda Martin meant nothing to him. "You can't go back on a poor girl like that, Dan," Mike had said firmly, as they walked in the front door. Ling's enthusiastic greeting had prevented Dan from answering at the time, but as soon as they reached the upstairs living room he had told his father quite emphatically that he was not going to marry Lynda Martin, not if she were the last girl in the world.

"And who, then, might you be preferring to?" inquired Mike. He stood in the middle of the room, red-faced, bluff and jovial. "When you wired your mother and myself that you had found the girl you were going to marry?"

"Marie La Porte," Dan replied promptly. "She models clothes at Varnet's. Her father owns a couple of barges."

"What the devil do you mean?" Mike stared at him with his round, blue eyes. And then the storm broke. The caustic comments about the fight on the barge pier and Dan's failure to knock Tommy Ryan out were as so much tea-table chit-chat, compared to the Jovian rage that Mike indulged in now. He grew very white and when he talked he sounded as if someone had seized him by the windpipe. Thick brogue clogged his excited speech.

"Not a cent of my money shall I have if ye marry that girl!" he cried. Dan lit a cigaret and leaned gingerly against the fireplace. He was still sore from the blows Tommy had landed. "Very well, father, you've often said it was about time I did something to earn my living."

Mike tried another line. "It's not about the money you'll be m'lad. His voice had the emotion of only the Irish can muster. "But ye'll be breakin' your mother's heart."

Dan spoke quietly. "After all, I'm marrying the girl, not mother." Mike paced angrily back and forth. "A burgomaster daughter! Have ye gone mad, boy?"

Dan smiled. "I believe her father owns the honorary title of Captain. At least I heard him referred to once or twice this evening by that prefix." Mike snorted. "A common canal boatman for your father-in-law! As if any child of his could be good enough for a son of mine."

Dan laughed. "That's very funny, Dad. As a matter of fact, Bat La Porte doesn't think I'm good enough for his daughter. He's as much as said so tonight."

"Where does this illustrious family live?" "On the barge Molly, down at Pier 6."

Mike threw himself heavily into a chair. "Have ye no pride left?" After that he refused to talk with Dan any more. His big body sagged forward, suddenly old. In vain Dan and Ling tried to coax him to eat a sandwich or have a drink. He simply shook his head and continued to sit by the fire. He was still sitting there when Dan went to bed.

ONCE in bed, Dan began to realize how sore and bruised he really was from the fight. Every bone in his body ached separately. His head throbbed and his eye pained him. Harder to bear than the physical pain, however, and even his father's anger, was his uncertainty about Marie. He loved her so much that he didn't see how she could possibly not love him, and yet, that might very easily be.

A jealous fear clutched his heart as he thought that tonight, when she ran so frantically out on the pier, her concern was not for him, but Tommy Ryan. Thinking of this, he wondered how he could live till morning to talk to Marie and find out for himself about her feelings for him.

Early as it was when Dan arose, Mike had already dressed and breakfasted. As they met in the hall, Mike put an affectionate arm about his son's shoulder. His tone was kind. "We'll forget last night, laddie. If ye want to marry the girl, I'll not oppose ye, though I still claim the right to stick to my own opinion." His rough voice trembled a little. "But ye know, ye're me only boy."

Dan didn't speak for a moment. He couldn't. He just pressed his father's hand. Finally he said, "Where are you going so early, Dad?"

Mike's voice became gruff again. "I've a little matter of my own I want to settle. I'm one to clean up business as I go. I like to be certain of me ground. I'll be telling ye about it in detail later."

With that he was gone. Half an hour later he was making a straggling leaning against a pile head on Pier 6 where the barge Molly might be.

"Yonder," replied the man, pointing. "You can spot it easy enough. It's the only barge down here that's got a fresh coat of paint. See its white sides and green shutters?" He leveled an index finger. "And there's Bat La Porte himself on deck."

MIKE approached the Molly amiably enough, but his tone nettled Bat when he introduced himself as Michael Donovan. Bat thought it condescending. "And why do you want to be seeing La Porte?" he demanded. Mike lost his temper. "I want to see the father of the girl my son Dan says he's goin' to marry," he roared.

Bat, who had been up since dawn trying to figure how he could reclaim the cargo which Tommy Ryan had taken last night, looked at Mike in bewilderment. His own temper, never any too good, flared as he realized the reason for Donovan's visit.

"I'm Marie La Porte's father, if that's what you want to know," he shouted, "but your call's wasted, my fellow, if you think you can persuade me to let my daughter marry your son." He snapped his fingers in Mike's face. "I have not the intention of letting my girl marry a waster."

Surprised canalboat occupants stuck inquiring heads out of hatchways as Mike bellowed back at Bat. For the first time in their memory, Bat had met his match. "Your daughter isn't good enough for my boy," screamed Mike, waving his cane at Bat. He clutched his hat with his free hand as a sudden gust of wind swept it. "Is that so?" shouted Bat, rolling up his sleeves.

MRS. LA PORTE, hearing the racket, had hurried up on deck. Desperately she caught Bat by the coat tails. "Will you never stop fighting?" she cried, pulling him back toward the hatchway.

On the pier Mike danced up and down with rage. "Your girl has no social standing," he yelled. "She lives on a barge."

With superhuman effort, Mrs. La Porte had dragged Bat to the hatchway. "My girl is good enough for anybody," Bat shouted. His conversation was abruptly cut off. Mrs. La Porte had yanked him in. The hatchway was banged shut.

Mike gave a derisive laugh and stamped off the pier. Five minutes later he was calling Dan. "I take back all I said this mornin'," he roared into the phone. "I'm not marryin' that blitherin' bargeman's girl if I kin live to prevent it."

Ranger Girl Once Played The Lead In Our Town Play

"Our Town," heralded by critics as being one of the greatest and most distinguished plays in all modern drama, will be offered to Ranger Wednesday, Feb. 14, when the Dramatic Club of Ranger Junior College presents the Baylor Little Theater in this production.

Sammy Ruth Matthews, Ranger girl who is now in Hollywood, played the leading role of Emily Webb in the Leon Lord production of "Our Town" in the Wilshire-Ebell Theatre in Hollywood recently. Miss Matthews writes "any girl would give her right arm to play Emily Webb," and after seeing this incomparable play, one can readily see why all who know "Our Town" are attracted by it.

"Our Town" is one of the suggest, warmest, and most deeply human scripts to have come out of our theater, more than adventure in playacting, a spiritual experience.
