Recreational Activities To Be Taught At Meeting In Ranger on February 10

Streamlined methods of learning to play tennis will be demonstrated in Ranger in the Ranger Recreation Community Center, Feb. 10, 10:30 p. m. by C. O. Brown, executive vice-president of the Athletic Institute, Inc., of Chicago, a special feature of the athletic training institute sponsored by the Ranger Recreation Department of the Recreation Section of the Works Projects Administration.

The morning session will be held at the High School building at 10 o'clock, the afternoon session at the Ranger Corral Community Center at 1:30 and the evening session at the High School auditorium at 7 o'clock.

The one-day athletic training institute will be conducted in three sessions: morning, afternoon and evening. The morning session will be devoted to methods of organization and promoting athletics, the afternoon period to administration and coaching. The evening session will be devoted to the organization of a local district baseball association. The new National All-Baseball League talking picture will be shown at this evening session.

It is Brown's claim that the method of learning tennis which he will demonstrate during the afternoon session, and which is widely used in college, high school and recreation departments, produces players of fair ability much more readily than the conventional types of coaching. After two lessons the average pupil is able to return easily hit balls to within six feet of a designated spot. This method of instruction is the result of ten years of experiment conducted under the supervision of William E. Parkhill, supervisor of tennis for the Chicago Public Schools and consultant for the Chicago Recreation Department.

During the morning session of the institute, which begins at 10 o'clock, there will be a discussion of practical methods of financing tennis, athletic and athletic club sports, illustrated by the case of Spring Valley, Illinois, a town of 1,800 which without any governmental aid attracted national attention last year through a feature article entitled "Way Down Yonder in the Corn Field" printed in many newspapers and sports magazines. This article told how Spring Valley, suffering an economic depression, organized a series of "Older Boys Clubs." These clubs obtained a portion on a corn field for no cash outlay, to be used as a recreation center. The city sponsored the use of grading equipment, and members of the local trades unions gave their services to prepare the field. The boys divided the 800 by 600 foot field into 2500 "lots" which they sold for $1 each to cover the cost of purchase and construction. They erected a big sign board on the public squares to stimulate sales. Passers-by, civic club members and casual visitors were "sold" lots which they promptly carried back to the "Older Boys Club."

Ninety days after the operation was undertaken, the corn field had been converted into a civic recreation field with facilities for baseball, softball, tennis, horseshoes, croquet and a children's playground. At present the city is planning to install floodlights for night play.

This and many other methods of community financing for sports activity will be discussed and demonstrated at the sessions of the institute. The entire institute will be under the direction of C. O. Brown, who in addition to being executive vice-president of the Athletic Institute, Inc., is also president of the American Baseball Congress in whose amateur world series Randolph Field represented Texas last fall.

All three sessions of the training institute are open to the public without charge.

Brotherly Aid To Erring Boys Gives A Second Chance

By United Press
PITTSBURGH—Seven hundred volunteer assistants or "big brothers" are helping Allegheny county's parole and probation department to aid young lawbreakers make good on the "second chance" extended by the court.

Among the new assistants are civic leaders of the district, clergymen and industrialists, 43 of whom have been working since September, when the plan was inaugurated by county criminal court judges headed by Judge William H. McNaugher.

Thus far, only two of the 43 youths on probation have failed to "go straight."

The plan was an outgrowth of an understaffed parole staff, a condition which previously had made it possible to supervise parolees or probationed defendants.

Each "officer" is assigned a probationary youth who lives in his own community. The duty of the volunteer is to act as a "big brother" to his charge.

Once a week, the "big brothers" meet with the youths in their care and report on their conduct monthly to the parole office.

Directing and coordinating the work of these volunteer officers is Howard R. Haines, probation officer, who has been assigned specially to the task by J. C. Coulter, head of the county probation department.

"Even if we had enough probation and parole officers this system would still be valuable," its founder, Judge McNaugher, explains. "A neighbor can get into the heart of a boy the officer can't. He can become a boy's friend."

The would-be robber was disarmed, chased five blocks and captured by Tindall. Tindall said he had $275 cash on him when the ex-convict attempted to rob him.

In an engagement with the ex-convict, Tindall struck him on the head with the ex-convict's gun and inflicted a minor laceration.

Attempted robbery charges were filed against the ex-convict. Tindall is a brother of Jack Tindall, Eastland.

Built around the cannon in its nose that fires explosive shells, this new army "Aircobra" is the fastest single-seater fighting plane in the U. S. and is believed to be the only single-engined pursuit plane in the world so armed. It is a product of the Bell Aircraft Corporation of Buffalo, N. Y.

Mrs. Virginia Bowles, 98, Pioneer of County and this Section, Succumbs

Funeral services for Mrs. Virginia Bowles, 98, one of the oldest persons in West Texas and a pioneer citizen of this section, who died Saturday afternoon, were held Sunday afternoon at the First Methodist Church in Eastland.

Rev. P. W. Walker, pastor of the church, conducted the services. Burial was in Eastland cemetery.

Palbearers at the service were Eugene Day, Fred Davenport, L. A. Hightower, Earl Conner, Jr., Sid Fowler and John Harrison, all of Eastland.

Mrs. Bowles was born in West Virginia. Her former name was Virginia McIntosh. At the age of 16 she was married to Bettor Bowles.

She had lived for about 58 years in Eastland County and about 62 years in Texas. She came with her husband to Texas from Oxford, Miss. Her husband fought in the Civil War. Her husband had been dead for nearly a half century.

Mrs. Bowles brought the first negro to Eastland county. The negro had been the daughter of a slave and when coming to the county, was three years of age. The negro, now past 70, is known as "Aunt Jane" Bowles and was a devoted friend to Mrs. Bowles and Mrs. Bowles' children and relatives. She is still living.

Before the Civil War Mrs. Bowles' husband is said to have had 1,000 slaves. Mr. and Mrs. Bowles first lived where Abilene now stands and then they moved to Eastland. They had constructed the first brick home in this section. Remains of the house, called the Old Rock House, east of Eastland, still stand. The brick home when first constructed was considered a mansion.

There being no public schools in Eastland when they first came to the city, Mr. and Mrs. Bowles employed a teacher to come from Waco and teach their children music and literary subjects.

The family later moved to Eastland and had a frame residence constructed. It is stated the first screen for a door in Eastland was bought by the Bowles.

When Mrs. Bowles was 88 years of age she appeared as a guest at the Rotary club. At the meeting she sang old favorites, including Barroom, Midnight Serenade, Come, Haste to the Wedding, Run Negro Run, Weight for the Wagon and Dixie, which she played on the piano.

One of Mrs. Bowles' prized possessions was a certificate issued by the American Red Cross to Mrs. Bowles "in recognition of service."

Present grandjurors have less to do than those from a period from 1922 through 1935, a study of records in the office of District Clerk John White discloses.

With the exception of one year, 1936, there were less indictments returned last year than any year in the past 18.

Standard Oil Plans Appeal From Order In Chain Tax Case

Standard Oil company of Texas has given notice of appeal in Big Spring district court from a judgment that service stations owned by or associated with an oil company are liable for the state "chain store" tax.

The case, if appealed, would be heard in the 11th Court of Civil Appeals at Eastland.

Judge Cecil Collins has entered judgment for the State against the company for $2,288.67, the amount the state charges the company owned on 20 stations since the graduated levy took effect in 1936.

Some fear was expressed, however, that Rurania might be contemplating entering into a private non-aggression agreement with Russia.

The Allies, Germany, Russia and Italy all claimed to have seen encouragement from the meeting.

Senator Indicates Not In Favor Of Committee Parley

W. B. Collie of Eastland, chairman of the state senate investigating committee, indicated Monday morning he is not in favor of a proposal to convene the senate investigating committee and call upon Gov. W. Lee O'Daniel to prove charges that there is "rottenness" in government.

Gov. O'Daniel in a radio cast January 28 stated that state employees had told him of "rottenness" in government.

"I attended the board of control hearing last week in Austin at which sordid testimony was given. The big portion of the spectators at the hearing were high school and college students. I can see no beneficial result when such testimony is brought out in the open and spread on the front pages of the newspapers," commented Collie.

It was understood that Senator Joe Hill of Henderson was to demand in a radio address that the senate investigating committee convene and ask O'Daniel to prove his charges.

FINNS THRUST BACK ATTACKS BY RED ARMY

Russian forces today continued mass attacks upon the Mannerheim line in an attempt to smash the Finnish ground defense, which has consistently thrust back each Red army drive against the main Finnish defense on the Karelian Isthmus.

Reports from the front, which is the scene of Russia's fifth day of major offenses, indicated that the Finns had not lost ground, but that both Russian and Finnish casualties were running high. The fighting was reported to be the most severe since the war started in December.

Red army casualties are running into the thousands with each day's attacks, it was indicated, while Finnish losses are believed to be much heavier than official communications have shown, and the mass attacks are believed to have begun to have their effect.

Red planes continued their bombardment of Finnish cities, with mass flights reported all along the border from Lake Ladoga to the far north. Foreign correspondents have been advised by officers to leave the city of Viipuri and have been refused permission to visit the front near Salla.

Russian casualties in the Summa area have been reported at approximately 3,000 over the weekend with 11 armored cars captured. Eleven Russian planes were shot down in the air raids from the Arctic zone to the southeast coast.

From London have come reports that German aviators are flying 120 planes in the sub-Arctic zone near Petsamo, with most of their activities being confined to flying supplies to the Russian army in that area.

Farm Income Has Increase For 1940

WASHINGTON, Feb. 5.—The Agriculture Department today reported that the farm cash income was higher for January, 1940, than it had been in January in the past two years. It was indicated that the continued higher farm income might be expected to last throughout the year.

Cash prices for farm commodities for January were reported higher with the exception of tobacco, hogs, poultry and eggs.

It is expected that the increased prices are due largely to commodities moving into domestic consumption and that the movement will continue to benefit farmers.

Democrats Do Not Select 1940 Site

WASHINGTON, Feb. 5.—The National Democratic Executive Committee today delayed action upon selection of a site for the 1940 democratic convention.

Philadelphia, with its offer of $135,000 cash, and an indication that the city might "raise more if necessary" seemed to have the inside track in the running with Chicago, St. Louis, Los Angeles, San Francisco and other cities. Chicago was believed to be favored by the president.

Leaders today stated that only Mr. Roosevelt himself can prevent a third term movement.

Horse Collision Is Fatal To One Animal

BROOKLYN, Feb. 5.—Two riders were injured and one horse was so badly injured that he had to be destroyed following an unusual accident in Brooklyn Park late yesterday.

Two horses, ridden on the bridge path, collided head-on throwing their riders to the ground and injuring both slightly. Both horses were traveling at high speed.

At the hospital where the riders were taken it was reported that neither was badly injured.

Japs Claim Victory Over Chinese Army

SHANGHAI, Feb. 5.—The Japanese army today claimed to have scored new victories against the Chinese, and to have captured several guerrilla strongholds.

Entente Nations In Accord At Session

BELGRADE, Yugoslavia, Feb. 5.—Foreign ministers of the Balkan Entente countries of Rumania, Turkey, Yugoslavia and Greece, today returned home after a conference in which the solidarity of the Balkan states was re-affirmed.

The Allies, Germany, Russia and Italy all claimed to have seen encouragement from the meeting.

Open Letter to the World

To Whom It May Concern:

There may be some fine, young American boys joining the Finns along the Mannerheim Line any one of these days. A few are already there. They're mostly strong fellows, with adventure in their souls or ideologies in their hearts.

The President of the United States has said it's all right for them to be there. They won't lose their citizenship rights, as long as they don't take any oaths of allegiance to foreign governments. When they come home—if they come home—they can vote and run for office and do all the things the rest of us are doing. That is, unless their legs have been blown off or their shell-wracked minds have become useless.

During the Spanish civil war lots of fellows went over to do their bit for Democracy and Joe Stalin, and nothing but a lot of trouble and disillusionment came of it. Lots of the youngsters are still over there—buried beneath Spanish soil. Some who were injured came back and wanted federal compensation. Most of the survivors have been trying to figure out what it was all about, ever since Comrade Stalin reached over and clasped the hand of Adolf Hitler.

So we want to make it clear, before this thing goes too far, that the United States is not responsible for anything its boys may do on European battlefields. We don't want them to get killed; but if they do, remember, we didn't send them. It was their own idea.

It isn't that we don't like the Finns. We do, and we want them to win. Practically everyone over here is cheering for them. We've even sent them money that our people have dug out of their own pockets, and there's some talk of extending government credit. We think the Russian invasion of Finland is one of the most unjustifiable international atrocities.

But that's as far as we're willing to go. We're not sending troops over to Europe. If anyone tries to invade American soil, we'll be ready for them. But we'll wait right here until they come. We don't intend to go over after them.

If "smellies" ever reach the popularity of talkies, movie censors will have something on their hands in stockyard sequences.

Word is going around that Dewey, at 37, is too young to be President. If he were looking for any other kind of a job, they'd tell him he's too old.

Hollywood no longer has business relations with Germany, so producers can call Hitler all the nasty names they've been saying under their breaths during the past years.

Possum Kingdom To Have Huge Park Coasting $7,000,000

By United Press MINREAL WELLS, Tex.— One of Texas' greatest vacation spots, a $7,000,000 park along the Brazos River above Possum Kingdom dam, is to be built during the next five years.

The Brazos River Construction and Reclamation district, charged with improving the river for flood control and power development, has deeded 3,300 acres of land to the State Park board. The park board has agreed to spend $7,000,000 in developing the property within the next five years.

The property deeded to the park board is situated northwest of Possum Kingdom dam, which is under construction in Palo Pinto county on a bend of the Brazos River. The park will be located on both sides of the river, above the lake created by the dam. The site is about 30 miles from here and a similar distance from Breckenridge and Graham.

Russell Whitley of Mineral Wells, a director of the Brazos River district, said that plans already submitted for the park include construction of recreational centers, club houses, boat houses, swimming pool, tourist cottages, scenic roads and picnic sites.

Two camps of Civilian Conservation Corps workers will be established to help construct the park, and the National Park Service and Department of Interior are aiding in plans for the project.

Some local officials have estimated that the park will attract 750,000 local visitors and tourists each year when it is completed.

Work on Possum Kingdom dam probably will be completed this year. Several towns have voted bonds for building auxiliary dams, to increase municipal water supplies. Throckmorton will build a $55,000 dam this spring and Anson has approved a $115,000 bond issue for similar work.

Smallpox Still Is Important As A Health Problem

AUSTIN, Tex.—"Smallpox, historic scourge of nations, is still an important public health problem," states Dr. Geo. W. Cox, State Health Officer.

The number of reported cases last year in Texas, according to epidemiological reports reaching the State Health Department, totaled 592, which is the lowest of the decade 1929-1939, except for the year 1936.

Prevalence of smallpox in Texas in 1938 accounted for 23.5 of the nation's total of 15,000 cases, although Texas' percentage of United States population is only 4.7.

In 1936, Texas, with a population of 6,300,000, had six times the prevalence of smallpox as England, Wales, and Germany, with a population total of 108,000,000.

"In view of the success of other nations of the world in practically stamping out smallpox," says Dr. Cox, "the situation prevailing in the United States and Texas reveals indifference to the existence of a disease which can be prevented and controlled by well-known methods."

"No other disease of mankind," Dr. Cox states, "is so easily controlled. The efficacy of vaccination needs no further demonstration, and with modern methods, this simple prophylactic procedure causes little or no discomfort. The cost is so small as to make it readily available and within the means of everyone. With a proper regard for, and the application of, this effective means of prevention, there is no doubt that smallpox can be eliminated from Texas."

The answer to the question, "Why do we continue to have smallpox?" is found in three words: failure to vaccinate. One of the explanations—not excuse—for this state of affairs is probably the comparative mildness of this disease in recent years and the reduction of incidence as compared with that of two decades ago. Except in outbreaks of virulent type, relatively few persons die of smallpox as compared with earlier years; and, although authorities differ in opinion regarding the possibility of the malignant type developing spontaneously from the milder forms of the disease, past experience demonstrates that this possibility must be considered.

In addition there is also the danger that the malignant form may be introduced from outside our boundaries. In either instance the building up of a large group of non-immune persons by the neglect of vaccination presents an exceedingly serious situation. It may be noted that in recent years, with compulsory smallpox vaccinations being made prerequisites to school attendance in many localities, children have become protected against smallpox in a high percentage of cases, and the disease has become more prevalent among adults who have neglected vaccination than among children.

Highway Week Is Set For May 26th Through May 31

AUSTIN, Tex.—The Texas Highway Commission has designated the last week in May (May 26 to 31, inclusive) as "Texas Highway Week" during which those interested in furthering the progress of Texas through completion of the highway system might call attention to the essential services rendered in the past by highways and review the present and prospective highway needs of Texas.

The Commission has requested Governor O'Daniel officially to proclaim May 26 to May 31 "Texas Highway Week."

Matters affecting highway finance, new procedures developed in construction and maintenance of roads, highway safety and highway economics will be stressed during the week.

In designating the week, the Highway Commission stated "highway transportation has contributed immeasurably to the progress of Texas and has been a prime factor in development of commerce, agriculture and industry within this state, Texas, in general, firmly believe in a sound public policy whereby the construction and maintenance of highways daily touches the lives of more of our people than any other governmental activity. It is the belief of this Commission that a people enlightened on the subject of highway transportation and aware of its important place in Texas' social, economic and recreational life will best safeguard the continuation of a highway program on a firm and progressive basis."

Few Texans realize that with four-cents per gallon state gasoline tax, less than two cents goes to the construction and maintenance of the primary rural highways carrying the bulk of the traffic. One cent of the gasoline tax goes to the schools and one cent goes to the retirement of county road debts and other county expenses. Few persons also realize that only about one-third of the motor vehicle registration fees are available for primary state highway construction, the remaining two-thirds going to the county road and bridge funds.

Canada Seeking Blood Donors To Aid Her Soldiers

TORONTO, Ont.—The Canadian Red Cross has made a call for 1,200 volunteer donors, to give blood for Canadian troops overseas. Those men wanted must be in good health and between the ages of 21 and 50.

About half a pint of blood will be taken each time a donor presents himself, and he will not be called more than once every two months.

The Connaught Laboratories are to prepare serums to be transported to troops overseas.

Only recently have means been discovered to keep blood serums safely for an indefinite period. Formerly, it was only possible to keep the serum for 10 days.

In England, there are 100,000 donating one pint of blood a month.

Press Is Placed on Sound Practices in Venereal Disease

AUSTIN, Tex.—America's public health forces in the campaign against syphilis and gonorrhea are being present concerned with the lesson of opportunists who see in the campaign against these diseases a once-in-a-lifetime chance to cash in on the misfortune of others.

Stressing the importance of correct information about the venereal diseases and how they spread, for instance, Geo. W. Cox, State Health Officer, said that "not until every release thinking man and woman knows of the simple facts about syphilis and gonorrhea, how to avoid them, and the path to do if infected, can permanent gains be realized against them."

ent nostrum manufacturers and other unscrupulous opportunists was unfortunately too common.

"These individuals are seriously hampering efforts of physicians, health officers, and educators in their attempts to conquer venereal disease," he said. "Until they are eliminated through non-patronage by victims of these maladies plus adequate law enforcement, they will continue to exact their heavy toll of human life and happiness. Such unscrupulous individuals remain one of the barriers to the control of the venereal diseases through recognized channels of medical care."

Dr. Cox stressed the fact that if persons infected with the venereal diseases would go to doctors, clinics or hospitals, they could be cured in a very high percentage of cases and in all cases could be rendered non-infectious to others. The best protection against spread of unscrupulous, fly-by-night opportunists in the field of venereal disease treatment is widespread education of the people, who through ignorance and gullibility, make up their customers.

Calling attention to the statewide observance of Social Hygiene Day in Texas on February 1, Dr. Cox said that the object of the event, sponsored by the American Social Hygiene Association in collaboration with state and local health departments and other organizations throughout America, was to increase "our common fund of knowledge" about syphilis and gonorrhea and the program directed toward their extermination.

Many cities and towns in Texas are scheduling observances of Social Hygiene Day, at lectures, meetings, and displays, for as wide dissemination as possible of information on the control of the venereal diseases, and long-range planning for the future.

Gainesville Turns To Thoughts of Its Famous Circus

GAINESVILLE, Tex.—Gainesville, in the midst of winter has turned its thoughts to spring and the circus.

Residents can't help but be reminded of the approaching season of the Gainesville Community Circus. They have Geraldine and Doris Saylor and Rosalie Brown, and their calliope to jog their attentions.

Householders of West Gainesville are almost going so far as to wear cotton in their ears these days, for over in fair park auditorium, Mrs. Marie Henry is teaching the three girls to play the calliope.

The calliope is a new feature of the Gainesville circus, now preparing for the opening of its 11th season, scheduled for three days, April 24-26, under the big top of the fair grounds.

Mrs. Henry and her husband, Arthur, who have performed in the center ring of a half a dozen notable circuses are tutoring half a hundred performers for varied acts.

Jane Sims, high school senior, for instance, is learning to fall out of her trapeze and catch by her toes. Catherine Fischer, another school girl, and J. D. Stephens, 40-year-old city electrician, are doing a double trapeze act in which Stephens supports the girl by a loop around his neck as he hangs by his toes, and Catherine spins like a top, suspended by her teeth.

Geraldine Murrell, department store clerk, is teaching her horse to jump a high barrier soaked in gasoline and set afire. Verne Brewer, trucking contractor, is tutoring a stubborn mule in the art of kicking footballs, which the clowns will retrieve from the audience.

Harry Lewis, who runs a ladies' ready-to-wear shop, is wondering how he is going to carry his props. Harry's clown gag starts with him trying to deliver a nine-inch palm tree in a tiny pot to "Mrs. Jones." Before the show is over, and before Harry finds Mrs. Jones, the

BRUCE CATTON IN WASHINGTON

WASHINGTON—There is a distinct chance that President Roosevelt will make a far-reaching move for peace in Europe before spring.

Man "its" are involved and no decision has been reached. It is known, however, that the President has a peace move in mind.

Two important factors are understood to be moving him. They are:

1. The fact that in recent weeks he has devoted more and more of his thought to the problem of restoring peace. One recent White House caller, for instance, told friends that "Europe is getting practically all of his attention nowadays."
2. The growing belief that a terrific German offensive will be loosed in the spring.

A direct offer of mediation is a real possibility. Before such an offer could be made publicly, of course, a great deal of quiet negotiation with the foreign nations involved would have to take place.

The offer would not be made if it were found that there was no chance to get it accepted. If made and accepted, however, such a program would mean active participation by this country in a full-dress European conference.

MADE CONFAB OFFER TO HITLER IN APRIL

IN that connection it is worth noting that last April President Roosevelt in substance offered, privately, that.

In his famous peace appeal to Adolf Hitler, the President asked the Führer to make a series of ren-egression pledges for specified European nations, and promised that if this were done he—President Roosevelt—would get similar pledges from those nations in respect to Germany. After that, said the President, the United States would summon and take part in a world conference for armament reduction and the abolition of trade barriers.

Should the President make such a move this winter he would get active support of the major peace societies, which fought him bitterly last fall on revision of the neutrality law.

Frederick J. Libby, head of the National Council for the Prevention of War, has been working actively for mediation since last September. He believes that if such a move is to be made it must be made soon.

"A terrific attack by land, sea and air is coming, and by all accounts the deadline is around March 1," says Mr. Libby. "That gives us about six weeks in which to prevent an infinite tragedy."

FEAR FRENCH DEMANDS MAY PROLONG WAR

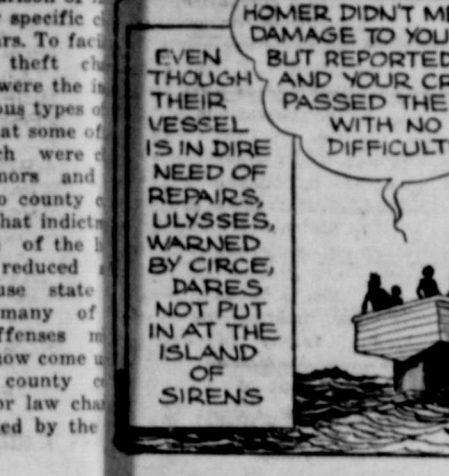

MR. LIBBY points out that once this much talked-of offensive gets under way, efforts to stop the war by negotiation will be almost hopeless.

The French are understood to be preparing to demand that Germany be "balkanized," with Bavaria joined to Austria, the Rhineland transferred to France, and Czechoslovakia and Poland reconstituted. Such a platform, it is argued, would keep the German people united behind Hitler and would make for a long war.

And in a really long war, it is argued, the ultimate winner would likely be Stalin.

One possibility which is rumored in Washington—and so far it is only a rumor—is that President Roosevelt might co-operate with Mussolini in seeking to restore peace on a basis of settling the war in western Europe first, and then taking up the Russian situation.

SERIAL STORY

THE CAPTAIN'S DAUGHTER

BY HELEN WORDEN

YESTERDAY, Mike Donovan calls on Bob, when he sees Bob determined to marry Marie. But he is really angered by the idea. "Your son's not good enough for my daughter!" he bellows at Mike. Finally Mrs. La Porte stops the quarrel. Mike calls Dan. "You'll not marry that midget man's girl if I can prevent it!"

CHAPTER XII

WHEN Marie La Porte turned into the 59th Street gate to Central Park with Tommy Ryan, she felt she had succeeded in putting Dan Donovan out of her mind. Her spirits rose. There was actually music in the air.

As a matter of fact it was only a street piano she heard, grinding out "The Sidewalks of New York." It brought back sunny spring afternoons when, holding tight to Tommy's hand, she had raced down South Street on roller skates.

The hurdy-gurdy revived early emotions. Ever since she'd been a little girl she had always thought she would grow up and marry Tommy Ryan. They never talked about it, even when they were old enough to, because Tommy wasn't the talking kind, but it had been understood. She remembered the sense of security it had given her to have life settled.

Everything seemed simple until Dan Donovan came along, or perhaps the change had occurred before that. Maybe going to work at Varnet's, wearing all those beautiful clothes and seeing the luxurians made her dissatisfied. Whatever it was she resented it—Varnet's, Dan and the whole complicated mess.

She glanced at Tommy. If anything, he was better looking than when she first thought she loved him. Tall, six feet and an inch or two, he had deep-chested and muscular. He had on his best blue suit, but she wished he hadn't picked a red necktie. His skin was too sun-burned for that. His yellow hair, dampened by perspiration, lay flat and smooth as he took off his felt hat and fanned his face. He was now, he handled it self-consciously. He would have been much more at ease in his old cap, rough shirt and pants, thought Marie. Then she chided herself for being over-critical. She slipped her hand in his.

"Let's pretend we're kids again, Tommy, out for a good time. The only thing missing is our roller skates."

"You're not much more than a kid now, Marie, but I get you." He squeezed her hand. "What about a boat ride?"

She nodded, her brown eyes sparkling. Together, they raced down the hill to the boat house on the south side of the big lake, her dark curls flying in the breeze. Tommy was right, she was still a little girl. The round white collar of her blue dress made her seem far younger than 18.

He went on rowing. "You didn't answer my question."

She gazed thoughtfully at the tall buildings fringing the southern skyline, their white spires painted rose by the setting sun. "I suppose I'm happy, but in a different way."

He guided the boat to the wooden landing float. When the dockman hooked it, he jumped ashore and reached out his hand.

"Well I'm not happy," he said, as they left the boat house, "and the guy to blame is Dan Donovan." He clutched her arm until it hurt. "Marie, let's get married tonight. We can go to Jersey City."

She drew away. "Please, Tommy, don't be serious today. Let's go on having fun. Here's the merry-go-round."

She ran ahead to the platform. "I want to ride the pink pony and get the brass ring. Remember the Sunday afternoon you pulled six in succession and the man who took the tickets would let you have only five rides?"

The lights were twinkling on the mall when they left Central Park. "Let's go to Diamond Jim's for dinner," Marie suggested. "Mrs. Atwood, that widow who owns those barges beyond the Molly, went there the other night with the Flanagan's. She told Pop it was swell."

Tommy scowled. "O.K." We'll go to Diamond Jim's, but if this is going to be a holiday, don't bring your Dad into it."

She jerked his arm as they passed a news-stand. "Look, Tommy, there's your name and Dan's in a headline!"

TOGETHER they read, "Young Millionaire Dan Donovan Bluffs Truckster Tommy Ryan in Waterfront Bout Over Beautiful Model. Fight to Be Continued. . . The girl in the case, Marie La Porte, ex-Varnet model, cocktailed yesterday at Larue's with Donovan."

Tommy clenched his fists. "So that's where you'd been when I spotted you two last night."

"That's all past."

Tommy paid no attention. "Listen to this. 'Donovan's engagement to Lynda Martin, it is rumored, will be formally announced Saturday night at a blow-out Mrs. William Martin, aunt of the lucky girl, is giving in their honor.' Triumphant he caught Marie's arm. 'C'mon kid, stick to your own gang. Here's a bus. I'll take us to Times Square and Diamond Jim's.'"

"Yes, we'll celebrate," Marie said, but she was crying.

Banquet Tickets Go On Sale Here Tuesday Morning

A. N. Larson, chairman of the Ranger Chamber of Commerce banquet sales committee, announced today that J. F. Killingsworth had been named as co-chairman, and that ticket sale would begin Tuesday morning.

A plan outlined by Larson is for a group of committees to meet at the Chamber of Commerce office Tuesday morning, and each take a packet of tickets, and each committee be assigned to one territory to work.

"In this way," Larson stated, "no one will have to work more than a few minutes, or an hour at the most, and the whole town could be covered adequately. If anyone is overlooked, or is not in when the committee calls, tickets can be procured at the office of the Chamber of Commerce."

The committees will be named and notified in time for them to attend the meeting Tuesday morning, when the sales will start.

C. Of C. Directors Will Meet Tonight

Directors of the Ranger Chamber of Commerce will meet this evening at 7:30, in the office of the secretary, it was announced today by Lee Dockery, president.

Cards have been sent to all the directors, urging them to attend.

One of the business items to come up for reports and planning will be preparations for the annual Chamber of Commerce Banquet, which will be held Thursday evening of this week, with Hon. Harry Hines of Wichita Falls as principal speaker.

Ship's Arrival Is A Big Event On Pitcairn Island

OAKLAND, Cal.—With Pitcairn Island—home of the descendants of the "Mutiny on the Bounty"—now isolated from the rest of the world as the result of changes in the shipping lanes necessitated by the war, two of the last letters mailed from the island before ship communications were cut off, have just been received here.

They had the good fortune to catch the supply ship of Admiral Richard E. Byrd's Antarctic expedition, or otherwise even they would not have reached the outside world until the end of the war.

No more ships are scheduled to pass near the islands until normal conditions are re-established.

The inhabitants, however, still have their radio station so they can keep in touch with what is going on in the world.

The two letters received here were addressed to Mrs. Kathryn Greenwood, who for years has maintained a correspondence with members of the little colony.

They were written by Mrs. E. L. Cozze, wife of the island dentist.

Isle Population 211

In them, she described the intensity with which the 211 inhabitants of the island, all of British descent, gathered about the radio station and listened to the historic broadcast in which Prime Minister Neville Chamberlain and King George addressed Britain at the dawn of the war with Germany.

Aside from the emotion caused by the broadcasts to the colonists who feel that despite their isolated position, they are really a part of the British commonwealth, they knew also that it meant the end of their ship connections with the outside world.

The broadcast was made in September and it was three months later, that the unexpected passage of Admiral Byrd's supply ship gave them a chance to send off mail.

In one of the letters, Mrs. Cozze denies the story that there had been an epidemic, that half of the people on the island had died of starvation, and that they had only rags for clothing.

She wrote that only two people had died of typhoid instead of 96 as reported. One was an adult and the other a child.

She pointed out that there are not even 96 graves altogether on the island for the 150 years it has been inhabited.

Ships Feared Plague

The report of the typhoid epidemic, however, had the effect of keeping all ships from the island for months.

Mrs. Cozze also denied that the islanders were suffering from lack of meat and pointed out that as a matter of fact two-thirds of the islanders are vegetarians and for the rest there is always ample fish and meat.

Aside from the broadcast of the declaration of war Mrs. Cozze said that the only other exciting thing which had happened was an all-night vigil for a ship that never came.

"What fun we had Sunday night and Monday morning," she wrote.

No Reward For A Fireman's Helmet So Its Stays Lost

By United Press

UNIVERSITY PARK, Tex.—This is the story of a fire helmet and because of it there is doubt that the University Park fire department will give "service with a smile" the next time there is a fire in a certain part of this incorporated city on the outskirts of Dallas.

It all began with a fire. Fire Captain Birmingham plopped his red fire helmet on his head and joined the boys on the truck as it sped to the fire. En route, as the truck whipped around a certain corner, Capt. Birmingham's helmet fell to the pavement.

This was disconcerting to the captain but the fire was the business at hand and it had to be attended to first. Afterwards, the boys joined him in a hunt for the helmet. No luck.

Then came a telephone call at the firehouse.

"My little boy has found a fireman's helmet," a woman's voice said.

"Fine, great," exulted Birmingham. "It's mine. Where do I send for it?"

"Not so fast," came the reply. "How much reward?"

"Why, I can't pay a reward for city property lost in the course of duty," said the captain.

"All right," the voice said. "No reward, no helmet."

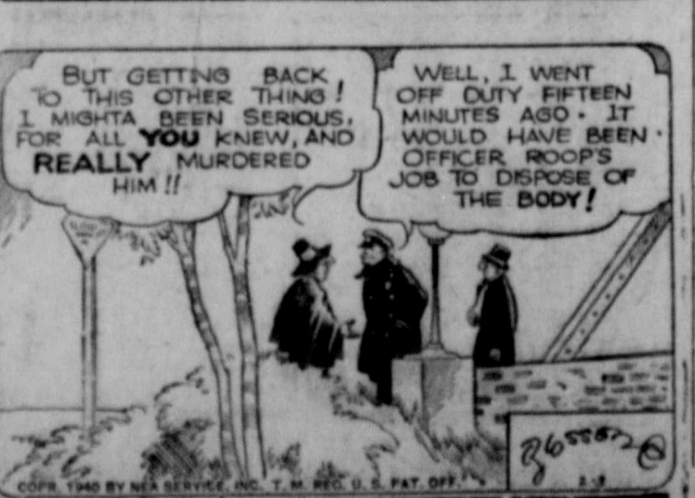

And that's the way matters stand.

"We had learned that the Rangelame would call at Bounty Bay Monday, so on Sunday afternoon we hustled about to get all our trade goods—fruits and curios— assembled at the dock before dark.

"It was raining, and we knew the roads would be slippery after dark. Some of us even went to the dock to sleep because we knew it would be too hard to roll out of warm beds when the bell rang.

"But the ship never came."
