Colored Yolks In Eggs Being Used As An Experiment

CLAYTON, N. M.—To demonstrate the direct relation between feeding and egg production, R. W. Forrell, Clayton High School vocational agriculture teacher, and his students are experimenting with four hens, each of which now lays an egg with a different colored yolk.

One of the four lays an egg with the conventional yellow yolks from another hen have a blood-red yolk, while yolks in eggs from the remaining two hens are different shades of green.

The demonstration was shown today at poultry shows and farmers' meetings during the winter months, looking intently at the yolks, opined that he might at the ones with red and green yolks, "but," he added, "I'd have been hungrier than I've been lately."

Senate Group Votes Against Personal Income Questions

WASHINGTON, Feb. 12.—The senate commerce committee today went on record as being against the personal income questions in the 1940 federal census. The measure goes to the senate, where sentiment is regarded as being against these questions.

Meantime the senate continued debate on the Hatch clean politics bill, to increase the navy by 11 per cent, was being discussed. Rep. Carl Vinson, democrat, Ga., author of the bill, predicted its passage in the house.

WASHINGTON, Mar. 12.—Sen. Ellison Smith, Democrat, S. C., in debate on the Hatch bill said today, "If we are going to have clean politics let's have a clean president and clean cabinet." He denounced President Roosevelt's attempted purge of anti-New Dealers in 1938.

LONDON HEARS PEACE TERMS ARE REACHED

LONDON, Mar. 12.—Exchange Telegraph reported from Stockholm tonight that the Russo-Finnish peace agreement is expected to be signed in Moscow Wednesday and that hostilities then will cease.

HELSENKI, Mar. 12.—The Finnish parliament was meeting tonight in an apparent attempt to reach a final decision on peace terms with Russia. A heated debate was in progress.

Dispatches were received in London today from a former Finnish foreign minister, announcing that terms of a settlement of the Russian-Finnish war had been reached at Moscow and that these terms were to be received by the legislature at Helsinki for approval.

Meantime Premier Daladier of France announced in the chamber of deputies that 50,000 French troops were in readiness to depart for Finland to aid in the war with Russia, as soon as Finland called upon them for aid. The announcement was a complete surprise to the Chamber of Deputies.

Famed Lost Mine Believed Revealed By A Cave-In

By FRANK WHITE
United Press Staff Correspondent
CARMEL CALIF., Mar. 12.—Old tales of the hidden treasure of Joaquín Murietta, bad man of the gold rush days, were revived today when cave-ins on the Mission Ranch Club disclosed what appeared to be the Lost Mine of the Padres.

If treasure is hidden there—or even silver ore reputedly mined for a half century by Franciscan fathers of the Carmel mission—it soon will be disclosed, because bulldozers and hoisting equipment were moved to the property before the secret leaked out.

Don McFadden manager of the club, admitted preparations were under way to explore the workings. Associated with him in the treasure hunt are Ray C. Force, whose father is chairman of the board of Caterpillar Tractor, and Taylor Pillsbury, son of the late Horace D. Pillsbury, chairman of the board of Pacific Telephone and Telegraph Co.

There was backing for the tales of Murietta's buried treasure, for after he was given refuge in the Carmel mission in the early 1870's, octagonal gold pieces he supposedly stole in a raid on a mint at Auburn Calif., circulated in the Carmel valley.

Direct examination of Blanton's son, who is 39 years of age and Shackelford County Attorney, and cross examination continued for more than an hour.

Blanton is handling the case with his sons, Thomas L. Blanton, Jr., and Bill Blanton, representing the defense are Carl Springer and John W. Turner, both of Eastland, and J. C. Muse of Dallas.

TOUR OF WEST WALL REVEALS NO FIGHTING

Editor's note: Five foreign correspondents, for the first time since September, have been permitted to visit the Siegfried line fortifications. In the following dispatch, George Kidd of the United Press Berlin Bureau tells some of the reasons for the quiet on the Western Front.

By GEORGE KIDD
United Press Staff Correspondent
WITH GERMAN ARMY ON THE UPPER RHINE, Mar. 12.—The southern half of German's frontier with France bristles with guns, but there isn't any shooting. On a tour of the Nazi "West Wall," we saw German soldiers walking about casually in front of their first line defenses, without drawing fire from the French guns 200 yards away. We stood with German troops on the bank of the Rhine watching French soldiers walk unconcernedly along a railroad track within easy rifle range. We heard a dozen tales from German defenders of the Siegfried line of clandestine meetings between the lines with French soldiers at night for a cigarette and a whispered chat.

The reasons for these amazing contradictions in the Rhine front to the desperateness of the war in which Germany and the Allies are locked apparently are three:

1. Many Frenchmen stationed along the Rhine are German speaking Alsatisians living in the neighborhood which they are defending and who have friends and relatives across the river on the German side.

2. The Rhine, with its unbridged expanse of 200 yards separating two heavily fortified lines, discourages the thought of invasion anywhere across a front 120 miles long.

3. There is tacit realization that of one side shells the enemy shore the enemy will retaliate. That would mean the destruction of villages along the German bank of the Rhine which, with one exception, have not been evacuated. Our tour showed clearly that there exists what practically is an armed truce in this area, although the opposing armies are ready for instantaneous action.

Explosion Wrecks Weslaco Building Injures Several

The gas tank was used to furnish fire for a stove in the building.

It was presumed that Von Ribbentrop carried assurances to Mussolini that Russia would not invade the Balkan States.

20,000 Quail Have Been Planted Over State This Season

AUSTIN, Tex.—Practically all of the 20,000 quail which the Texas Game, Fish and Oyster Commission will distribute this year have been planted in practically every section of the state it is announced by the executive secretary of the Game Department.

The birds are obtained from Mexico where they are trapped and shipped to sportsmen and other persons interested enough in restocking their places with quail to pay half of the cost of the birds.

The policy of distributing quail on this basis has been followed by the Texas Department for several years. In addition, the Department is planting several thousand birds this year on quail restoration areas which are being set up in various parts of the state with aid of federal Pittman-Robertson funds. More than fifty of these areas have already been established by the Division of Wildlife Restoration of the state game department and as many more will be completed by the end of the year.

Correspondent Back from Finland Reveals She Was Prepared for Any Peace Move Russia Might Suggest

Editor's note: First American correspondent back in this country from the Finnish fighting front, German B. Deuel, of the United Press, gives in the following dispatch an authoritative report on Finland's viewpoint on a settlement of the Russo-Finnish war, before going to Helsinki, where she covered the early stages of the Russian invasion. Deuel had served four years as manager of the United Press Bureau in Moscow, and therefore is familiar with both sides in the present conflict.

By NORMAL B. DEUEL
United Press Staff Correspondent
NEW YORK, Mar. 12.—Finland was certain more than six weeks ago that a Soviet peace proposal would be made early in March and carefully organized her diplomatic moves to be able to lay down her strongest cards to the Kremlin if a basis for peace negotiations were found.

Competent Finnish circles in Stockholm told the writer early in February the date of the expected Soviet offer and said the only question which prevented immediate peace was the port of Hanko, which dominates the entrance both of the Gulf of Finland and the Gulf of Bothnia. The plans are determined never to surrender it.

If Scandinavian reports are true about some sort of agreement has been reached, it seems quite likely that Finland will retain Hanko. In spite of the great Soviet military pressure, Finland did not go empty-handed to the conference and was able to play both Germany and the Allies against Russia.

Finland counted on Germany to exercise her influence for peace and to avoid the possibility of Allied influence and control of Swedish territory. Germany also wants to free the Balkans and renew the hope of Soviet economic aid to the Reich.

The danger of complete conquest of Finland and domination of Scandinavia by Russia, Finland feels, would be sufficient to bring Allied help in force. She knows that Russia, disillusioned in her blitzkrieg, does not want to start a war in which the forces could be more nearly equal.

Finland knows that if left to fight alone, eventually Russia will win and every Finn feels that would mean the death or enslavement of their people. She believes she will not be left to that fate because Britain, France and Ger-

"The Russian Soul" Is Causing Concern As Germany Prepares for Eventualities That May Arise in the War With Allies

By FREDERICK C. OEGHSNER
United Press Staff Correspondent
BERLIN, Mar. 12.—A factor which German industrialists refer to as "the Russian Soul" is causing serious concern here as Germany prepares to cope with a possible turn of events this spring in her war against the Allies.

The phrase originated with German experts who returned from Moscow with smiles on their faces because of the optimistic estimates they had been given as to Russia's ability to supply the Reich war machine with grain, ore, manganese and, ultimately, with oil.

Now the experts are wondering whether the "Russian Soul" will permit those supplies to be exported as promptly as Germany may need them. Observers here complain that "time just doesn't mean the same thing to the Russian soul that it does to us. We are wondering whether the Russians are not so much like other Easterners that they will be unable to keep up the momentum."

Germany is fighting for life against the British blockade and is counting on Russia as an ace in the hole. That explains German anxiety to see the Finnish war ended so that Russia will not be using up all its oil and other vital supplies and can divert a substantial part of them to Germany.

Germany's need is not immediately urgent, say for this spring and summer, but the sooner Russia is free of the Finnish tangle and starts speeding up production to create a surplus for Germany, the better the Germans will be pleased.

Estimates vary on how soon Russian deliveries in large quantities can begin to flow, but some German experts have stated it would take two years before German-Russian trade could reach volume enough to sustain German economy materially.

Until then it has been stated, Germany will be forced to live on her reserves and on imports which—as in the case of such vital war materials as Rumanian oil and Yugoslavian copper—are insufficient or, as in the case of Turkish chromium, have ceased.

Four Who Escape Sought By Officers

Germany's Reserves are Depleted, She Might Be in a Serious Position unless Replenishments Have Really Started Flowing Steadily and in Quantity.

If the German-Russian pact does not live up to German expectations, it will not be the fault of the Germans. They realize its importance and are trying everything possible to remove the links.

Its importance was perhaps best expressed by Adolf Hitler himself in his statement that Germany must "export or die," which means that the exports must send needed goods flowing in the other direction.

The German man in the street has been told these things and understands them. He is ready to suffer a long haul, or to fight for a knockout when the order is given.

The general public is convinced that nothing but a miracle can prevent a violent increase in the fighting as soon as the weather permits.

Not sure whether Germany or the Allies will take the offensive, the public seems certain that the drive will come in the air and that it will be vicious. There is no sign of tragic apprehension, but just a stolid acceptance of facts.

Public speeches by Hitler and other Nazi leaders have told the people that Germany must and will win the war; for one thing, because the right is on her side, and, for another, because she is prepared.

March is traditionally Hitler's "lucky month" and that thought unquestionably is bulking large in the average man's—and perhaps Hitler's—speculation on the chances of a sudden military or political triumph.

The newspapers and the radio have incessantly pounded home the claim that so far the advantage has been all in Germany's favor and that the enemy is afraid to admit his losses.

German figures of almost 2,000,000 tons of enemy and neutral shipping sunk are pointed to as an achievement unapproached by the enemy in any field.

He Still Pays— After 68 Years

A cheering testimonial in the solidity of the American home is the story of Horace G. Smith, 75-year-old property owner of Denver, Colo.

Several days ago, Mr. Smith went down to Denver's city hall and paid $21.50 in taxes on his home. Thousands of other citizens came down to pay their taxes, but Mr. Smith's appearance was remarkable inasmuch as it was the first time he had paid taxes on the same house. Together, rather and son have paid the city four times what the house is worth today.

The Smith house was built in 1873, after the family decided to tear down the log cabin in which they were living on the same site. In 1875, the house was valued at $3000. Today it is worth $520. During the years the Smiths have paid a total of about $2000 in taxes.

It is good that there are people like the Smiths—people who value all the things for which home stands. They keep the nation anchored. They are the folks who maintain a stolid faith in the future of their country. They know that, while life all around them may change, democracy and common rights need not be disturbed so long as they hang on to the idea that a house is worth paying taxes on for 60 or 70 years.

Persons who attach that much sentimental value to a home are pretty apt to take their government seriously. They are likely to be discerning about the type of officials they elect, and they will probably recognize political charlatans when they come along.

You've got to be pretty fond of a place to stay in it for 68 years. You've got to be particularly passionate about it when the plumbing begins to leak and the porch has to be bolstered up and the ceiling needs to be replastered for the eighth time. You've got to be oblivious to the modernism of the day, content with the old and established.

Not so much in dreadnaughts and fortresses but rather in the staunchness of people like the Smiths lies America's defense against the intrusion of foreign concepts, the invasion of alien armies.

If Russia progresses into Finland during the ensuing weeks as she is doing now, Soviet troops will be just in time for the Olympic games.

People who think coyotes are cute are having them brought east for pets, thereby causing the neighbors who have seven dogs and a flock of chickens to complain of the prairie animals as nuisances.

Unless the coal question is settled between Italy and Britain, Mussolini will have to warm his hands over a cigaret lighter.

Maybe Admiral Byrd won't get the $250,000 to keep his expedition going. Future explorers may find Antarctica strewn with rubber checks.

"OUT OUR WAY" BY WILLIAMS

WHY MOTHERS GET GRAY

Albany Son Witness

had invited questions from those in the audience.

He had asked him about a tax matter of Garrett. Garrett had stated that he did not compromise some tax matters with the Eastland County commissioners' court.

Blanton, Jr., said he did not see Garrett distribute circulars one day in August in Stamford.

The defense entered as an exhibit campaign literature which it was shown was issued by Blanton during the campaign. The Albany man admitted helping to prepare the literature and said he assisted in the publication of it. "My father and I will stand behind it," stated Blanton.

Cross examined further by Springer, the witness declared that he was unable to name "paid agitators" allegedly mentioned in the Blanton campaign literature and whom it was indicated the Blanton literature said were working in the interest of Garrett.

Springer asked the witness about "foreign cars" and others with District of Columbia license plates which it was indicated the Blanton campaign literature mentioned as being in the district at the time of the political campaign. The witness answered that he had seen several of the cars and that persons riding in them distributed campaign literature for Garrett.

At one point the senior Blanton observed to the court that there was no cause for Springer to be angry in his questioning of the witness. "I'm not mad," said Blanton. The court at several times had told Blanton to avoid needless delay and only deal with things germane to the case.

The first witness was Gaines Stover of Albany Monday afternoon. He testified he received a circular from Clyde Garrett, Jr., preceding a speaking Aug. 21, 1936, in Stamford. The circular was entered as an exhibit for Blanton. Stover is an employee of the Shackelford County highway department and a rancher.

Stover was cross examined by Springer. He admitted that he was in "the liquor" business for a time in Shackelford County. Questioning showed that he was in the liquor business when it was legal in that county.

The members of the jury in the case are G. R. Nance of Cisco, J. L. Dorsey of Eastland, A. D. Baker of Deedemona, E. E. Toddy of Gorman, Calvin Brown of Ranger, R. L. Hand of Olden, Roy Tucker of Carbon, Cyrus I. James of Olden, Onis E. Littlefield of Ranger, Hoyt Bryant of Gorman, C. B. Wellman of Eastland, M. L. Bransford of Mangum.

Early Monday morning after the court had announced rulings on the defendant's exceptions to plaintiff's reply to defendant's answers, Blanton, the plaintiff handed to the court a motion, which proved to be plaintiff's motion to have the court transfer plaintiff's suit to another district court or call in another judge to try this case, which plaintiff had just filed.

Judge Patterson announced a recess of the court in order to consider this motion.

When Judge Patterson returned he asked Blanton if he desired to argue the motion and Blanton replied that he did not care to do so. Judge Patterson then said in substance, "After giving due consideration to the motion just filed by plaintiff, I find: In the first place I do not agree, as counsel charges, that this court is prejudiced and biased against plaintiff in this matter, or if he were that it would affect him in the trial of this cause. There are affidavits of other parties attached to the motion to the effect that they believe this court could not render a fair and impartial trial to the plaintiff. It might be sufficient under the law were this case in the justice court to require the justice of the peace to transfer the case to an adjoining justice court. This applies to justice courts only. This is probably because a justice court is not a court of record and it is generally conceded that justices of the peace are not informed as to the law and an injustice might be done the parties without remedy. While in district court cases if prejudicial error is committed a record is made and is subject to review and correction by the court of civil appeals or the supreme court in case of appeal. This being a district court the law referred to is not applicable.

"Mr. Blanton moved to transfer this case to Judge Davenport's court and in the alternative to transfer it to some other court or to call in another judge to try the case because of the bias and prejudice of this court against plaintiff. In the second place, I hold that even if the allegations of the motion were true, I would not be authorized under the law to grant the motion. I did not make the law. As I understand the constitution a district judge is disqualified to try cases only under three circumstances. First, is when he has been of counsel in the case. Now this fact has not been alleged in the motion, nor is it true. Second, the court must be interested in a financial way in the result of the suit. This fact was not alleged in the motion and it is not true. I would not participate in the proceeds of any judgment that might be recovered by Mr. Blanton neither would I lose anything by a judgment in favor of Mr. Blanton, nor would I be required to pay any part of the judgment that might be rendered against the defendants. The third is where a district judge is related to either party by blood or marriage. It has not been charged in the motion that I am in any way related to Mr. Blanton by blood or marriage within any degree so far as I know; neither am I related to Mr. Garrett or Mr. Cockrell in the third degree or any other degree by blood or marriage. I therefore conclude that the motion is insufficient to warrant the court in granting the same, even if I were inclined to do so.

"Naturally, a question arises whether a judge who has been accused of being prejudiced and unfair against the parties to a suit would bring about sufficient resentment as a matter of law, as to render such judge disqualified to try the case. I do not consider such condition exists in this case. I say in all frankness, that I consider the allegations of this motion are not well founded and are prejudicial against the court. It is not my purpose to comment on what the attorney's attitude is toward the motion; but I do say he must have known it would not be supported by the law. It could accomplish nothing but only to embarrass him and bring a court in disrepute. Being I naturally feel resentment against Mr. Blanton, by reason of years of experience as a lawyer that the facts he alleged do not disqualify a district judge to try a case. He has practiced for many years, has also been a district judge, and he must know that his motion was sufficient in law. If he knows as long as he says he does should also know that long as I am judge I will follow the law as I interpret it, regardless of the wishes of any party. I say to you frankly that I would have been glad to side with you in this case. It came to me that it is a matter of conscience that I should try it. I took the oath I swore to at the constitution and laws of this state and I feel that in doing it is my duty to not pass the judgment of trying this case to some judge. The motion is accord over ruled.

"If in the beginning of case in my court the attorney both sides had approached suggesting a change of judge to try this case I would have transferred it or called in a judge to try it, because of the interest of all parties. But I do not have, then, nor would I justify now in granting a motion like the one filed by you in this case."

Again, A GAIN in Gasoline Quality

Again, Humble's policy of continuous improvement gives you a gain in gasoline quality. Building on past improvements, Humble now offers you definite, new improvements in two already fine gasolines: the newly improved Humble gives you a gain in quality which means new heights of performance; Esso Extra is without an equal among motor fuels.

Humble

Motorists know that today's automobile engines* must have a gasoline of high quality to give expected performance.

To meet this demand of your modern car, Humble has made additional improvements in its regular-grade gasoline; these improvements give you noticeably improved performance.

The next time you need gasoline, fill up with Humble. Notice improved performance as you drive your car through traffic, as you "step on it" for a quick pickup. We believe that the performance of this newly improved product will convince you that there is a difference in gasolines.

* New cars in the lower-price range need just as good a gasoline as more expensive automobiles; compression ratios are every bit as high, and in some instances, higher.

Restating our policy of CONTINUOUS IMPROVEMENT

HUMBLE technical men are constantly experimenting, in the laboratory and on the road, with improved products for your car. This constant research results in continuous improvement of the gasolines, motor oils and other products you get under the Humble sign. The process of improvement is so continuous that specific improvements frequently are made without public announcement. It is only when marked improvements are made, like the improvement in quality of these fine gasolines, that your special attention is called to them.

It all adds up to this: we promise you that you will find Humble products second to none, that you can depend on continuous improvement to keep the quality of Humble products up with, or a little ahead of, the performance built into your car.

Esso has always been a peerless motor fuel. Now it is so much improved, we call it Esso Extra—it gives you extra performance with every gallon.

You can't surpass the performance of Esso Extra in your car at any price. And yet—if you're an average motorist—you can use Esso Extra, you can get its superb extra performance, at an astonishingly low extra cost: you pay only an extra nickel a day for Esso Extra! And you'll get that nickel back, many times multiplied, in extra performance. We're enthusiastic about Esso Extra. When you try it, you will be, too. Fill up with this unequalled motor fuel today!

To Buyers in the Lower-Price Field

HUMBLE offers you another product of its policy of continuous improvement in Thriftane, a leaded gasoline of specified quality at thrifty price. Humble service goes with every gallon of it. Thriftane is a good gasoline—but Humble is much better, and Esso Extra is the very best you can use.

might find her still bent over the sewing machine.

SHE went to the sewing room and instantly forgot Steve. Making an evening gown, an evening gown that would pass muster at the Athens Club party, one that would make Paul proud, was an absorbing task.

It was white, a shimmering gold thread woven in and out through the length. At irregular intervals the pattern showed a slight inclination to veer off. The defect was only noticeable when the light shone across it in a certain way.

It had been enough of a defect, however, to banish it from the place of choice fabrics and Ann had picked it up for practically nothing at a basement counter.

Ignoring the vagaries of the design, she gloried in the richness of the material. Her cheeks grew rosy as she cut and sewed and fitted the lovely thing to her more lovely lines.

"I'm going to be $4 short on my budget," she thought, "but I don't care. Just this once, I don't care."

She made a little slip of rayon—it had the sheen of taffeta. She had been enough of a defector, however, to banish it from the place of choice fabrics and Ann had picked it up for practically nothing at a basement counter.

MRS. FOLLET'S third floor was in an uproar on the night of the party. The twins showed Ann the latest dance steps, Clara offered her array of 10-cent-store bangles.

Florabelle came across the hall with a black evening wrap. Myrtle stood against the wall in awed silence.

Ann had washed her own hair and set the natural wave. It was soft and lustrous. It hung loosely, the curls swung when she moved her head.

She had manicured her own nails and painted them with shell pink. When she slid the white and gold dress over her head and let the folds fall around the gold slippers, she had her first taste of real bliss.

The gown was a masterpiece of artistry. It was plain—Clara thought it much too plain—it had long, lovely body lines. Ann's back and shoulders were flawless, her bare arms would have made a sculptor sigh with delight.

Her eyes were dazzlingly bright, her red mouth tremulous with happiness.

Looking in the mirror, Ann had a moment of wistful doubt. Was it to be a Cinderella evening or another disappointment?

BRUCE CATTON IN WASHINGTON

BY BRUCE CATTON
NEA Service Staff Correspondent
WASHINGTON.—The Constitution says we take census to find out how many congressional seats each state ought to have. It orders Congress to reapportion seats after each census. But whatever interesting data the coming census reveals, it probably won't result in any reapportionment.

Congress hates reapportionment. It means that some members are likely to vote themselves out of jobs. Reapportionment was passed in 1929 a law making reapportionment automatic.

According to the present law the President should have given Congress the census figures the first week of last January. But the census isn't even started yet. That's because the Lame Duck Amendment shifted dates around since the law was passed.

IT may make the law inoperative this year. Congress had plenty of warning, of course. Last year Senator Vandenberg got through the Senate a bill to set the dates right. But the House committee tabled it. Early this winter President Roosevelt got Representative Matthew Dunn of Pennsylvania to bring the bill out again, but it's still in committee, and the committee is unfavorable.

The bill's chances are not rosy. Of course the next Congress can take the 1940 census figures and reapportion on that basis. "They could—but would they?" asks Dunn grimly. He favors it.

Up to 1920, Congress always obeyed the Constitution and reapportioned every 10 years. But it did it simply by increasing the number of congressmen. To have done that in 1920 would have re-

Hearing Is Asked On 20-Acre Rule For Central Texas
ARILENE, Tex.—An open field hearing on granted exceptions to the 20-acre spacing rule has been asked of the Railroad Commission of Texas by the West-Central Texas Oil & Gas Association.
In a letter to Sim O'Neal, district deputy supervisor of the oil and gas division of the commission, the association asked that the commission "would set and hold, at some place in district 7-B (West-Central Texas), an open field hearing on the matter of allowing exceptions to the 20-acre spacing rule for the shallow producing horizons of this district."
The spacing rule, effective last Feb. 1, requires that special permits be obtained for oil tests to be drilled on patterns of less than one well to 20 acres, and on footage measurements less than 467 feet from lease lines and less than 933 feet from the nearest producing oil or gas well.
Officials of the WCTOGA said they understood exceptions to this rule could be, and were being obtained, but that operators were forced to go through considerable extra routine.
In a veiled protest to the rule, the letter to O'Neal read: "The West-Central Texas Oil & Gas Association is for the general idea covered by the 20-acre spacing rule. On behalf of the officers and directors of the organization, we commend the commission for this action. However, we find upon investigation that many of the small shallow fields in several of the communities of this district can not and will not be developed under this general rule."
Officials of the association contended that not only would fewer tests be drilled in this section, but that the ratio of producers would be decreased.
Statistics in the association office show that the average depth of wells in West-Central Texas is 1,000 feet shallower than the average well in all of West Texas. The average well drilled in West-Central Texas is 2,062 feet, while the average well in all of West Texas is 4,350 feet.
Average daily production in this section in 1939 was four barrels per well with yearly average of 1,476 barrels. Average daily output per well in Texas was 15.4 barrels and average yearly production, 5,665 barrels. J. C. Watson, secretary, said a large number of protests concerning the 20-acre spacing rule, and the extra trouble and expense involved in obtaining exemptions to it had been received by the association from oil operators, producers, landowners, and business people.

Trained Housewife Can Make Tasks Somewhat Easier

Life can become a tedious task to the home-maker who is not trained in the science of house-making, and what a pleasure each day can be to the woman who knows how to budget her allowance, market with skill and plan each day's menu to include something different and appetizing that the whole family will enjoy.
So that we may be of a greater service to the women of this community, The Ranger Times presents Mrs. Gertrude Burbank, noted lecturer and home economist who will conduct the free Happy Kitchen Cooking School at the Recreation Building.
Mrs. Burbank is an expert not only in the art of planning and preparing meals, but also in the art of keeping their cost well within the budget of the average home-maker. The actual preparation and the cooking of a meal will be featured, and little suggestions on serving will be given. Many hints and suggestions helpful in every home will be discussed. Every woman is given a splendid opportunity to enhance her knowledge of foods, their relations to one another, how to make the budget go farther, how to make marketing a lark, and too, recipes of new and delightful dishes will be given.
Mark the dates of March 18, 19 and 20 on your calendar and make your plans now to attend the Happy Kitchen Cooking School. Every woman is invited to attend each day.

Wealth Found to Add to Longevity

By United Press
PITTSBURGH — Possession of wealth lengthens life, according to Ralph Carr Fletcher, head of research work for the Federation of Social Agencies of Pittsburgh and Allegheny county.
Fletcher reveals that studies have shown conclusively that people living in the slums die earlier than those living in more prosperous neighborhoods. The reason, he says, is the difference in environment and health conditions.
The average man residing in the prosperous section of a city may expect to live 61 years, while his brother in the so-called "blighted districts" can hope for only 51 years of life.
As for women, he reports, 5,339 of every 10,000 members of the fair sex living in prosperous areas will live to the half-century mark, but only 7,058 of every 10,000 who make their homes in the slums can expect any such thing to happen.
Fletcher believes the solution to this problem lies in rising health, social and economic standards in the poorer sections of towns.
