FIFTH COLUMN SCARE BRINGS CLOSER WATCH

The fifth column scare was spreading today in Latin America, and the United States government indicated that it was watching the situation closely.

At Washington, there were reports that an American concern, Pan-American-Grace Airways, was negotiating with Ecuador to take over the German-operated Sedta Line, which operates air mail and passenger service between Western Ecuador and the Oriente region, not far from the Panama Canal.

At Guayaquil, Ecuador, officials of Pan-American-Grace Airways denied the report.

In Buenos Aires, Argentina, the newspaper Nacion suggested today that Nazi fifth columnists had supplied the information that led to the sinking of the wheat-laden Argentine freighter, Uruguay, by a German submarine off the Spanish coast, on Tuesday.

Nacion urged the Argentine government to investigate reports of foreign espionage. Demonte Taborda, radical party member of the Argentine chamber of deputies, said he would introduce a bill calling for the creation of a committee similar to the Dies committee of the United States congress, to investigate fifth column activities.

A "fifth column" party member of the Argentine chamber, Silvano Santander, demanded that the government investigate the "German Union" which he said was a fifth column enjoying the aid of the German embassy.

Anger over the sinking of the Uruguay has caused two anti-German demonstrations in Buenos Aires.

President Alfredo Baldomir of Uruguay urged his congress to pass a law banning foreign-affiliated groups and alien propaganda in the country for the duration of the war. He assured Germans in Uruguay, however, that their personal rights would be protected. There had been anti-Nazi demonstrations in Uruguay last week and a delegation of Germans had asked the president to "take steps to safeguard the physical and moral welfare of the German community on the name of law and justice."

The Brazilian National News Agency reported from Rio de Janeiro that the Sao Paulo director of schools had ordered five Japanese-language schools closed in accordance with a federal law banning foreign language schools in Brazil.

In Panama, intermittent reports of "fifth column" activities have caused American army and navy authorities to adopt special precautions against possible sabotage attempts.

United States air missions, on the invitation of governments involved, recently have visited Brazil, Chile, Ecuador, Argentina and Colombia. Venezuela's minister of war visited the United States recently and was reported to have discussed Caribbean defense problems, including aviation.

Capt. Colon Eloy Alfaro, Ecuadorian ambassador to the United States, conferred yesterday with Under-Secretary of State Summer Welles in Washington.

The fast, 10,000-ton cruiser Quincy, carrying two airplanes, was started toward the East Coast of South America. Its mission was described in Washington as a "good will cruise."

Ranger Selected for Royal Neighbor District Meeting

The Royal Neighbors of America held their district meeting in Fort Worth at the Odd Fellows Hall Thursday, and selected Ranger for the next meeting site, with the date as yet undetermined. Mrs. Ora Baldwin, president, presided at the meeting.

Luncheon was served to about 150 guests, including members from Breckenridge, Comanche, Graham, Ranger and Abilene from the Oil Belt.

New district officers elected were Mrs. Mabel Southers, Ranger, president; Mrs. Smith, Breckenridge, vice president; Mrs. Josephine Strickland, Eastland, secretary-treasurer; Mrs. Naoma Arterburn, Ranger, marshal; Mrs. Childs, Ranger, assistant marshal, and Mrs. Bertha Babcock, Fort Worth, chancellor.

The Ranger camp put on the Virginia Reel as their part of the entertainment and followed this with the Heel and Toe for an encore.

Progress Camp of Comanche was taken into the Oil Belt District at the meeting.

MOST TRAPPED TROOPS LEAVE RING OF IRON

Allied Garrisons at Calais With Planes Dropping Food and Supplies To Men Remaining There

BY JOE ALEX MORRIS,
United Press Foreign News Editor

Allied armed forces threw back powerful new German attacks along the River Somme today, struck through the air with tremendous force and battled to save the entrapped but unconquered remnants of British and French armies of the north.

The rescue of a large part of the British expeditionary force from the German trap in Flanders, the battle of "lost" French troops to break through the Nazi circle and the refusal of at least two Belgian army corps to obey King Leopold's order to surrender were hailed in Paris and London as a triumph snatched from the midst of disaster on the battlefields of north France.

The story of heroism and daring and skill that may be comparable to any chapter in British or French military history was only one phase of the swiftly expanding picture of total war in Europe.

In North France and elsewhere, the conflict brought quick developments:

1. An allied garrison was disclosed to be still holding out at the French port of Calais after an heroic battle in which British airplanes dropped supplies to the besieged men in the midst of the burning city.

2. Rome, London and Berlin took the position that entry of Italy into the war on Germany's side must be expected at any time—possibly about June 4—but in London a responsible Turkish source warned that any move by Italy to attack France or the Balkans would result in immediate Turkish aid to the allies.

3. The German high command reported that German bombers had sunk five allied transports and badly damaged three warships and 10 merchant vessels and that the last French resistance in Flanders had been broken. The Germans claimed to have repulsed a French counter-blow near Abbeville, at the mouth of the River Somme, and said progress had been made in attacking the last British lines before Dunkirk.

4. The London air ministry reported that British planes had sunk a German torpedo boat, destroyed or damaged 66 German airplanes and strongly bombed German positions in North France.

5. Reports in England were that only about one British division—probably 15,000 men—remained to be evacuated from Flanders. That would indicate that the greater part of perhaps 300,000 B.E.F. troops and many French and Belgian soldiers had been safely withdrawn from the German trap by a miracle of naval, air and army cooperation aided by fog.

6. The British and French governments declared that any possibility of a German attempt to make a separate peace by dividing the two countries had been frustrated as a result of a meeting of the allied supreme war council in Paris yesterday when they "reached full agreement on all measures" required to meet the war situation.

The German attacks which the French said they repulsed along the Somme front were described in Paris as a serious attempt to counteract recent gains there by the French troops and by British expeditionary forces which were not in the Flanders battle or have since been sent over as reinforcements.

The Nazi thrusts followed German warnings that a new and greater offensive would soon be launched, possibly with the aid of Italy, in an attempt to end the war.

Italy At War Will Increase Petroleum Needs of Axis and Reduce Oil Supply

By V. R. Garfias

From the point of view of petroleum supply and demand the German war program is predicted on the ability of the Axis to defeat the Allies during 1940 before the Axis feels the paralyzing effect of a petroleum shortage.

Under these conditions it is of the utmost importance for the Axis to have Italy remain out of the war and thus obtain its petroleum requirements without cutting into its own stocks or interfering with Germany's supply until such time as the Axis feels sure Italy's cooperation will swing the tide of war to the Axis' favor in a few months.

Conversely it seems of vital importance for the Allies to prolong the war at least for the balance of this year and otherwise to prevent petroleum supplies from reaching the Axis or destroying the oil stocks and synthetic petroleum plants of the Axis, keeping in mind that the destruction of a 70,000 barrel gasoline tank is equivalent to keeping 1,000 planes on the ground for a week.

A continuation of the offensive at the present intensity and the entrance of Italy into the war as Germany's ally will come close to depleting the entire available oil supply of the Axis within one year, probably in a shorter time, but the effect of this depletion would be practically impossible to time the supply of all the needed products in such a manner that they would meet the requirements up to the time the entire supply is suddenly exhausted.

The total consumption of petroleum and related fuels of Germany and Italy and of Roumania which should furnish, in case Italy enters the war, the bulk of these requirements, totaled 107,000,000 barrels during 1939, and it is estimated that the consumption of these countries during the next 12 months will reach a minimum of 116,000,000 barrels, divided as follows:

Civil and Military Consumption
1939	12 Months
Germany	62,000,000 70,000,000
Italy	30,000,000 30,000,000
Roumania	15,000,000 16,000,000
107,000,000 116,000,000

To meet these requirements, the Axis relies on its reserve stocks and on the production of the following countries:

Reduction of Petroleum and Related Fuels
1939	Next 12 Months
Roumania	50,000,000 50,000,000
Germany	20,000,000 25,000,000
Poland	4,000,000 4,500,000
Hungary	8,000,000 2,000,000
Italy	1,400,000 1,500,000
76,000,000 83,000,000

It will be seen that if Italy, as expected, goes to war against the Allies in the near future the production of petroleum and related fuels available to the Axis, during the next twelve months, will fall 33,000,000 barrels short of meeting their needs. In fact the actual deficiency will be larger as, for instance, the "available" production includes the output of the Hungarian fields estimated at 2,000,000 barrels and all of which will likely be consumed within the country.

It may be noted also that in order to provide the Axis during the next twelve months, with all the Roumanian exportable oil, the following countries, neighboring the Axis and Roumania, must be deprived of all their requirements which during 1939, for civil purposes only, aggregated 55,210,000 barrels.

The sudden paralyzation of petroleum imports in these 12 countries will result, in fact in some cases it has already brought about the partial disruption of the economic life of the countries, and is a resulting hampering of the economic life of the Axis powers.

Recently in a radio broadcast from London a Swedish correspondent lamented the crippling effect that lack of petroleum products was already having in the industrial life of her country.

It may be claimed that adequate supplies will be made available from the Russian fields but the Russian petroleum industry is so poorly organized and managed that for years petroleum has not been available in appreciable volume for export, the country consuming a storing all the oil it produces. Furthermore, transportation facilities are inadequate to furnish, during the next twelve months, Russian petroleum products, in important quantities, to Western Europe in excess of Roumanian exports, if these include as we assume it does, all the exportable Roumanian surplus.

Iraq oil should be unavailable to the Axis while these fields are in Allied hands or in case the Allies destroy the wells, pipeline, storage and marine terminals before the Axis takes possession of same, which petroleum sources beyond Gibraltar, Suez and the North Sea will likewise be unavailable as long as these gateways and the mastery of the high seas are in Allied hands.

It will be seen therefore that Germany and Italy will have to rely, during the next 12 months, on reserve storage or storage captured in Allied or neighboring countries to make up the 33,000,000 barrels minimum deficiency and these figures have added significance when it is noted that the rather meager information at present available places the oil reserves of the Axis, before the Spring offensive at figures on the order of 40,000,000 barrels.

GEN. GORT IS NATIONAL HERO OVER BRITAIN

LONDON, June 1.—Gen. Vicount Gort, commander of the British Expeditionary Force to France, came home from the blood soaked fields of Flanders "on orders of his majesty's government" today after a miracle of military coordination had saved a great part of the Allied armies caught in a German trap.

Behind him on two battlefields that were tiny in size but may be great in British military history, Lord Gort left a handful of soldiers who fought on against tremendous odds.

One battlefield was the old citadel of the burning French port of Calais, where a little Allied force was reported still holding out against German forces that cut off all support for the British and French soldiers and forced them to depend for water and ammunition on packages that daring pilots dropped through a curtain of smoke and shrapnel.

The second battlefield was a narrowing line before Dunkirk, where Allied troops still were fighting against an increasingly powerful German offensive to hold the way open for evacuation of additional soldiers assembled on the beach and for any others of the "lost" units that may be able to cut their way through the German lines.

WPA Rolls To Be Reduced Soon Harrington Says

WASHINGTON, June 1.—Work Projects Commissioner F. C. Harrington today ordered WPA rolls reduced to 1,761,900 persons during June, the last month of the current fiscal year.

The total represented a cut of 158,100 from the May employment quota of 1,920,000.

The reduction was the third ordered by Harrington since March—tailored to bring WPA expenditures within budget limitations. The March quota of 2,348,000 persons had been reduced to 2,129,000 for April.

Congress granted the agency $1,400,000,000 for the current fiscal year to provide an average monthly employment of 2,900,000 persons. The heavy relief burden experienced during the winter months, however, forced Harrington to exceed the average.

Setting of the June quota coincided with separate committee hearings on the house approved 975,000,000 WPA appropriation bill which would permit the WPA to maintain its 2,000,000 average employment during the first eight months of the 1941 fiscal year.

This Is It

Eight weary months of jockeying for position, of sparing and watching for openings, come to a close with the invasion of Holland, Belgium and Luxembourg.

The chips are down. The game is on. This is it. There is nothing in the European events of the past several days which was not implicit in last September's declaration of war. What has happened, might have happened any day since last September 1.

Let us clear out of our minds both the glib explanations of Goebbels and the indignant protests of the allies. Neither matters now. The invasion of the Low Countries is not, and never has been, dependent on the kind of arguments and explanations which will soon be appearing in White, Yellow, and Blue books.

The simple fact is that when great powers, such as Germany and the allies, are in a death-struggle, small neutral states simply do not count at all. If the geographical accident of their existence gets in the way of one power in its plans to attack the other, no such power ever has allowed the rights of those neutrals to hamper them.

This is war. Not war as strange new monster sprung for the first time from some deep hell, but war as it has always been, and as it always must be. The whole history of Europe is this same story repeated—the endless struggles of Titans trampling beneath their blood-flecked boots the rights and lives of any and all neutrals whose fate it was to be in the way.

Drunk with the power of the military machine she has bled her people for seven years to build, inflated by easy success in Poland and Norway, filled with the delusive idea that the British and French cannot or will not fight, Germany has at last elected to loose the total war.

For a nation which has proposed total war as its only answer to Europe's problems, Europe can have only one answer—total defeat.

Out of the welter of hair-splitting arguments dividing guilt here and apportioning blame there, one central fact stands out like Mt. Everest. It is this: If Germany, under Hitler, had not elected to build this giant military machine and to use it ruthlessly to gain her ends by naked force, by threat of war, and then by war itself, this war would not have happened.

Once again the fate of Europe trembles in the scales. And the shadow of those wavering balances now falls menacingly across the world.

Biggest problem of sharpshooters in U. S. parachuting popping clubs is lack of target material. Until the real thing comes along, perhaps Orson could drum up a few Martians.

Germans announce the capture of Hamm in France. With butter and bacon snared in Denmark, there remains only for the eggs to be picked up on this shopping tour.

Wards Sponsors A Bicycle Parade To Promote Safety

An elaborate bicycle parade to be staged Saturday, June 2, to promote safer riding of bicycles in Ranger is being sponsored by Montgomery Ward & Co. and the Ranger Times for boys and girls of the community.

Expected to be both spectacular and colorful, the parade will be climaxed by the awarding of prizes for the best and most originally decorated bicycles. Besides a handsome mounted trophy, offered as first prize, there will be a number of merchandise prizes to be chosen from a list compiled by C. L. Crews, manager of the local Montgomery Ward store.

Three prominent local citizens will be chosen as judges for the contest, and members of the Ranger Safety Council have professed great interest in the event.

Colorful discs will be given to each boy and girl upon registration which begins June 3. All boys and girls wishing to enter the parade are asked to register with H. Wright, manager of the sporting goods department at Montgomery Ward & Co. There is no charge for registration and each person registering will be given a set of safety rules.

The parade is scheduled to leave Montgomery Ward & Co. at 10 a. m. June 2, and will proceed down Main Street around the derrick and back up to the store, where the judges will award the prizes. There will be nine prizes besides the first prize trophy.

Among the prizes are, catcher's mitt, softballs, tennis racket, tennis balls, roller skates, air rifle, bike tire, luggage carrier, and the 15 inch trophy as first prize.

All boys and girls are asked to register early and get their free discs for their wheels as well as the safety rules.

Ben Young Reported To Be Improved

Ben Young, who recently underwent the fourth amputation on a limb while in the Veteran's Hospital at Fayetteville, Ark., is reported to be much improved.

Mrs. Young has just returned from a visit with her husband and is much encouraged over his condition.

Not to be swept off its feet by all this dither about defense, the army is reported in the early editions as quietly going about its work, determining weighty problems like whether or not navigation improvements at Wabasha, Minn., are now advisable.

Eliminating Lean Months On Farm Is a Big Effort

COLLEGE STATION — No longer is the farm family's income largely confined to the fall months and cotton picking months, for rural families are finding substitutes for cash crops which no longer can be grown at a substantial margin of profit.

To solve the problem of distributing the cash income from the farm more evenly throughout the year, the Runnels County Land Use Planning Committee has developed a calendar which suggests sources of income to people in that area. Similar efforts are being made by numerous county land use planning committees over the state, according to G. E. Adams, assistant state agent of the A. and M. College Extension Service, who is directing extension coordination in the planning movement.

For instance, the "income calendar" for Runnels County has no less than four suggested income sources for any one month. Here are some random examples: February—eggs, pork products, fat hogs, and planting seed; May—wool, vegetables, berries, fryers and eggs; August—cotton, maize, melons, fruits, and hens; November—eggs, dairy products, and turkeys.

Despite the fact that the acreage planted to cotton now is about 160,000 acres less than it was five or six years ago, the committee feels that the change in income sources can be profitable not only to the people but to the land. To bring about a more permanent prosperity the committee recommended that the farm families of Runnels County (1) participate in a well-rounded livestock program; (2) build up and maintain their soil fertility; (3) increase their yields per acre; (4) improve and increase farm livestock and poultry flocks; (5) develop new cash crops such as wildlife production; (6) take advantage of better markets through cooperative efforts such as frozen food lockers; and (7) employ best farm management methods.

Huge Fish Skull Loaned To Museum

LUBBOCK, Texas.—The skull of an eight-foot alligator fish that weighed over 250 pounds has been lent to the West Texas Museum by Raymond McWilliams, a student at Texas Technological College.

The skull measures 28 inches from the tip of the snout to the basal portion. Arrangements of several rows of cylindrical teeth distinguish it from the skull of an alligator.

W. J. Van Bibber drew eyes, and John D. Harvey bested Dick Williams 6-5. In the second round McLaughlin won over Jones 2-up; Fred Hughes won over S. C. Hughes; Townsend won from Jennings, 3-2, and Harvey bested Van Bibber 3-2. Starting time 6:45 to 6:55.

In the championship flight consolation R. V. Cole won over Bill Altman 1-up, 20 holes; Martin won over Tunnell 5-3 in the first flight consolation; Godfrey won from McCoy 8-7; Norris bested Heim 5-4 and Trower won from Creager 5-2.

Day Is Set Aside For Story Telling About Old West

By United Press
RUIDOSO, N. M.—The effect of mixing modern pioneers, modern roads, and old fashioned prairie schooners will be revealed June 14, when wagon trains will converge from all over New Mexico on this community for a gala "Old Time Pageantry" fiesta as part of New Mexico's Coronado Cuarto Centennial Celebration.

With the covered wagons drawn up in a circle about a big barbecue pit, and with an authentic "Old Timers" pageant going on in the center, the exact results of such a mixture then will come out in the gossiping which such a gathering of Southwest range inhabitants inevitably brings forth.

Wagon trains will come to this community by several highway routes, and schedules will be arranged so that all trains can converge on this community at the same time, probably around noon. The gigantic barbecue is planned for the weary travelers, followed by introductions of real old timers of New Mexico, and Apache Indian war dances.

Visitors will hear old timers of the Southwest country tell tales of Pat Garrett, famous sheriff of the Lincoln County War, and the outlaws he did not get. Tales of local bad men from the wild ranges of the Sacramento, Black Ranges, and Sierra Blancas will be told and re-told, gaining, as they have for decades, in interest and imaginativeness in each recounting.

REMEMBER YOUR FIRST INTRODUCTION TO SCARLETT O'HARA!
"Scarlett O'Hara was not beautiful but men seldom realized it when caught by her charm... Her eyes were pale green without a touch of hazel starred with bristly black lashes and slightly tilted at the ends."

A tantalizing, provocative description of a woman in a thousand! Actually one woman in fourteen hundred! For to capture and portray that elusive charm and fire on the screen 1400 actresses were screen-tested—149,000 feet of black and white film and 13,000 feet of Technicolor film were exposed at a cost of $92,000.00!
Only then was the selection of Vivien Leigh announced, whose green eyes, graceful 17-inch waist and tip-tilted nose proclaimed her a Scarlett every bit as alluring and teasing and lovely as the heroine of the book!

PASTOR REMEMBERED

By United Press
GLASGOW.—When the Rev. Michael Maginn, of St. Alphonsus R. C. Church, Glasgow, died 59 years ago his congregation vowed to meet at his grave every anniversary and sing his favorite hymn. Through the years the number has dwindled and this year only 12 were able to make the journey.

WHAT IS THE DIFFERENCE
OUR DISTINCTIVE
Dry Cleaning is an Extra Process: The first process is Regular Naphtha Dry Cleaning. The second process is a dry cleaning soap solution, and thorough rinsing. (No Water Used). This second process removes about as much additional soil as is removed by the first process; this brightens all colors and whiteness, adds body and lustre, as well as moisture and stain resistance; materials hold their press longer.

NOTE DISTINCTIVE
Dry Cleaning is Different: It is two distinct processes. First, Regular (naphtha) Dry Cleaning. The best that can be done, because our naphtha is kept in perfect condition through filtration and distillation. Only perfect method known; and only one in use in this section. Second Process is as Described Above. This dry cleaning soap solution is recognized by the industry's leaders as one of the best in use. Only the highest quality cleaners use it, and it is not sold at low prices, like regular naphtha cleaning is sold. You cannot find this high standard of quality in Dry Cleaning elsewhere in this section at any price. No one else is equipped. Nor will they stand the cost of the soap and extra run, or process.

Regular Dry Cleaning... 50c (Suit, Dress or Top Coat).
Distinctive Dry Cleaning... 75c (Suit, Dress or Top Coat).
