German Peace Terms Handed To The French

RETALIATION FEAR HOLDING UP BOMBINGS

By J. W. T. MASON
United Press War Expert

Though Germany is now sending large squadrons of night raiding air bombers over Great Britain, it is noticeable that attacks on the civilian populations of big cities have not formed part of Hitler's tactics, as yet, in his war against the British. In France, however, German aviators have been attacking residential cities, killing many non-belligerents. Paris, Tours and Bordeaux have suffered severely, but London and other British civilian centers have escaped deliberate bombing.

In Great Britain the Germans have been aiming at military objectives and few civilians have suffered. In France the Germans give the appearance of being far more indifferent in scattering their bombs. German efficiency is such that there must be a definite reason for the dissimilarity in the air offensives against the British and France.

France has done little retaliatory bombing in German territory. The French high command has had pressing need for its aviators in active battle. Few French aviators could be spared from front line operations. The terrible battlefield struggles since the German invasion of Holland and Belgium have taken such heavy toll of French aircraft that Hitler has been able to disregard the possibility of effective replies by France to his aircraft assault on the capital cities of France. The French, in fact, to safeguard their civil population, have proclaimed all places whose inhabitants exceed 120,000 to be "open cities," hoping thus to keep German airplanes away.

The British have not had to announce such non-belligerent zones. They have challenged the Germans in the air to a far greater extent than the French by continual bombing of the enemy's reserve positions and storage centers far in the interior of Germany. Indeed, it was the British, not the Germans, who took the offensive in behind-the-line bombing, although holding their attacks to military objectives.

The Germans thus know that the British are competent to retaliate against attacks against civilians. This fact must have had important influence on the way Germany is directing her air tactics. The British and French air forces have not been coordinated in the same way as have the Allied military and naval units. Each country has had freedom to carry the war into Germany according to its own individual ideas.

The British have shown such persistent activity in this field, especially since the beginning of the battle for France, that the Germans have developed discretion. British civilians thus have suffered far less than the French. Whether there will be a reckless disregard for civilian lives as the fighting between Britain and Germany reaches a more intense stage is at least doubtful. Even in France there has been some restraint by the Germans. The expectation that poison gas would be used to "strafe" civilians from the air has not been realized.

Indeed, the conflict, to the present time, has been more humane than during the last war. Correspondents who have followed in the wake of the German army in Belgium and France report much less devastation than they had expected, while the French government has advised civilians not to flee before the German advance. The reason to believe that the banal effect on neutrals of reckless "strafing" is remembered from the last war.

COMMITTEES PICKED FOR POOL OPENING

A tentative draft of committees, which will have charge of the grand opening of The Willows on the night of July 2, has been drawn up, with more committees likely to be added to the list between now and the time for the swimming pool to open.

At the same time it was announced today that Herman Scruggs, principal of Hodges Oak Park School and assistant athletic director of the Ranger Schools, had been named as manager of the pool for the summer.

Plans for the pool opening are still in a tentative form, but they include a band concert by the Ranger High School band and a big bathing review, in which practically every firm in Ranger will be represented.

After the grand opening, which will be one of the biggest celebrations in Ranger this summer, the pool will be open to the public each afternoon and night, with a small admission charge being made.

Committees named to function between now and opening night include:

Two Newsmen Prefer Stable to Bombings

(Editor's Note) Two members of the Paris staff of the United Press left Paris just before the Germans moved in. Traveling on bicycles, they accompanied vast streams of refugees to Tours, making the journey in four days and arriving in time to report the terrific bombing of Sunday. Then they continued their bicycle trip to Bordeaux. Here is their story:

By SAMUEL DAIHELL and STEVEN FULTON
United Press Staff Correspondents
BORDEAUX, France.—Sleeping in stables at night, as we have frequently in the past seven days, gives you a friendly feeling for cows, goats, and even rats.

At least, they don't bomb you. When you're tired to the point of exhaustion, surfeited with misery and aching with hunger, they don't come upon you suddenly with machine-guns.

One impressive fact, however, keeps you from becoming a complete cynic, and that fact is the incredible spirit of the peasants of France.

Somewhere south of Tours we were caught in a terrific thunderstorm and cloudburst, and took refuge under trees. A prize-winning French peasant, who had been fleeing southward as long as we had, and must have been exhausted, handed us some milk. We didn't ask where he had found it at such a time. While we gulped, he pointed to the skies from which lightning bolts were crashing uncomfortably near.

"That racket," he remarked, "must make Hitler jealous."

But neither the racket nor the storm kept Hitler's planes away. They kept coming.

We left Paris just before the Germans entered. From Paris to Bordeaux as the crow flies is about 320 miles. On foot, or even in carts, along the refugee-jammed roads it must seem like 1,000 miles. We traveled every inch of the way on our bicycles and our leg muscles for some time to come will remind us that 320 miles as the crow flies is something else again as the bicycle wheels.

It seemed that half of France was on the march south—half of France plus thousands of citizens from every nation in Northern Europe, all burdened with what possessions they could carry and all seeking some peaceful refuge which none had any good reason to suppose existed anywhere in the country.

We were bombed half a dozen times between Paris and Tours and for two days steadily while we rested in the provincial capital. From Tours, through the beautiful chateau country on the way to Bordeaux the already clogged roads were jammed further by streams of refugees converging on the routes to the southwest.

Enemy strafing of the roads let up somewhat as we entered the sunny regions just before Bordeaux, but as we arrived at this provisional capital we were greeted with new blasts from the air, and the refugee thousands, who had hoped for a little surcease, were told they would have to keep moving. No one, however, could suggest a destination. It was "just keep moving."

The peasant of France has been celebrated in print before. All we can add is that he never could have comforted himself more nobly or revealed his innate kindness more fully than he has in the past seven days.

In the babel of conversation we listened to in wine shops, village cafes, stables and roadside groves we never heard "What will become of us?" Always it was "What of France?"

Hardly ever did anyone even mention Italy. The talk, accompanied by gestures of frustrated anger, was always of the Germans, followed inevitably by the simple expression of continued faith in Providence.

Bordeaux, France's wine capital before it became, as in the world war, her provisional seat of government, is a city of tragedy relieved only by the unpretentious courage of a people which insists on going about its business despite bombings and the imminence of death.

Its normal population of 225,000 has been swelled to more than 750,000. It is as though all of Boston were jammed into Toledo. For thousands there were no better accommodations than a hallway corner in which to stretch out. Anyone with a mattress is looked on with friendly envy. All conventional values have been altered, and one fruit of the commonly shared hardship has been a comradely kindness which manifests itself even between total strangers.

Thus far there is no shortage of food, although sugar, bread, fruit and meats have been rationed.

Naturally there is an atmosphere of gloom over everything. But all you have to do to get a chuckle is to ask:

"Had a bath lately?"
"Nobody, it seems, has."

Tax Collector Gets 65 Cents of An Oil Dollar

ODESSA, Tex., June 21.—The tax collector gets 65 cents for each dollar paid the West Texas oil worker, George C. Gibbons, executive vice-president of the Texas Mid-Continent Oil and Gas Association, told the Permian Basin Association at its annual meeting here Friday.

"State and local tax-collectors get approximately ten million dollars a year from the West Texas petroleum industry," Mr. Gibbons said. "Since this one industry employs directly 12,380 persons in West Texas, its tax bill amounts to $800 a year per employe. With the average West Texas oil worker earning $1,225 a year, this means that the tax collectors exact 65 cents from the employer for each dollar he pays his employes. These figures do not include Federal taxes, which the oilman must also pay, or the gasoline tax which the consumer pays."

The West Texas oil producer nets an average of only $2.36 per day from each well he owns, Mr. Gibbons reported.

"The daily average production per well in West Texas is 21.4 barrels," he explained. "At 79 cents per barrel average selling price, the well grosses $16.91 a day. But it costs an average of 68 cents per barrel to produce this oil, or $14.55, which leaves a net daily income of only $2.36."

"But these are average figures. Nearly half of all the producing wells in West Texas today are on the pump, and that means lower than average production per well and substantially greater unit cost of production. In many instances it also means higher taxes per barrel, which represent the difference between a small profit and a loss."

"Those who constantly strive to make oil carry an increasingly larger share of the rising cost of government through ill-advised tax measures should consider the conditions which now confront the West Texas oil operator. The present State and local taxes already make up 13 per cent of the cost of producing oil in West Texas today. In several West Texas counties in which oil is being produced the petroleum industry pays as much as 99 per cent of all local tax levies."

Mercury Thefts Bring Most of Jury Indictments

BRECKENRIDGE, June 21.—Returning a total of 19 indictments against eight persons, 16 of which were returned for thefts of mercury from meters throughout the county, the Stephens County Grand Jury has submitted a report saying that a number of the cases considered by the jury have not, as yet, been closed.

In its report to County Judge Bryan Atchison it was shown that the jury had been in session a total of six days, during which time the jurors examined 77 witnesses and returned a total of 29 bills, 27 of which were for felonies.

In the bills returned seven were against W. E. Langford, two against Gordie Langford, and two against Elton Langford in connection with alleged mercury thefts, one name with five counts brought in the mercury charges not being made public pending developments.

Other bills brought charged driving a motor vehicle while intoxicated, one was for burglary, and one for forgery.

R. R. Williams and L. E. Whitehead were charged with driving while intoxicated and W. V. Dean with burglary by breaking and entering property of Coke Martin. The forgery case was against Lowell Stoker alleging forging of another in a $10 check payable to Ollie Berry.

The investigation was asked following reports that Secretary Woodring was forced to resign.

'Miss Democracy'

Democracy remains pretty attractive, as it is symbolized by Roseanne Murray, above. A New York committee recently declared she "most typifies the American girl of today" awarded her the title of "Miss Democracy of 1940."

Association Will Be Represented At Hearing In Austin

John M. Hendrix, executive secretary of the Highway 80 Association, who has offices in Sweetwater, has notified local officials of the organization that a group from here was expected to make a trip to Austin Saturday, June 29, to present requests for Highway 80 improvements before a hearing of the State Highway Commission.

One of the main objects of the association is improvement of U. S. Highway 80, and elimination of the "bottle neck" of the strip of narrow paving west of Cisco, is one of the chief objectives to be stressed at the highway hearing at Austin.

In the bills returned seven were against W. E. Langford, two against Gordie Langford, and two against Elton Langford in connection with alleged mercury thefts, one name with five counts brought in the mercury charges not being made public pending developments.

Other bills brought charged driving a motor vehicle while intoxicated, one was for burglary, and one for forgery.

R. R. Williams and L. E. Whitehead were charged with driving while intoxicated and W. V. Dean with burglary by breaking and entering property of Coke Martin. The forgery case was against Lowell Stoker alleging forging of another in a $10 check payable to Ollie Berry.

Lessons from World War II

(EDITOR'S NOTE: This is the first of two articles by Dr. C. E. Ayres, University of Texas economist, giving the economic background of World War II, and attempting to answer the question: "After the War—what?" Dr. Ayres is an authority of economic theory as it relates to the new industrialism.)

By Dr. C. E. Ayres, Professor of Economics University of Texas.

1. Why are the Germans winning?

How do the Germans do it? By frightfulness? That is a natural supposition. I find myself thinking that the Nazis' greatest crime is their success.

Lack of scruples is a great asset in total war, certainly, and the Nazis have taken full advantage of it. Their great army—only yesterday considered the greatest in the world—is outclassed.

The Germans do it, as everybody knows today, with planes and tanks and great fleets of automotive vehicles. They did not originate these things. The airplane is an American invention, the tank British. But the Germans have made more of them than anybody else. They saw the possibilities of these devices and went after them. Others, in France, in England, and perhaps in our own country, did not.

Why? France gave the answer by dismissing Gamelin. A recent issue of Time tells the whole story in three sentences. "The French Army leadership, canonized by a great weight of professional autonomy, was smothered by routine thought, opposition to change."

The old German Army was disbanded at Versailles. Relieved of the sniffs and sneers of elderly Junker leadership, the younger officers of the then small Reichswehr were wholly free to develop new ideas.

This advantage goes far beyond weapons. The British have just discovered that their steel cartel, protecting production to "stabilize" (high) prices, has been curtailing the output of England's only fully modern continuous-strip rolling mill, and the Canadians have just discovered that "in aircraft and tank plants production has been delayed by the reluctance of British patent holders to supply plans and specifications." (Time, June 10, 1940.)

That gives us something to think about. The influence seems to be that patent monopolies and the curtailment of production to "stabilize" prices and such like things too numerous to mention turn out to be a handicap to the national effort of defense. A nation at war has to dispense with such luxuries of peace.

But what about a nation at peace-time home? Is it for the privilege of wasting their resources that the Democracies are fighting Totalitarianism? Or, to put it another way, is industrial efficiency necessarily linked with Totalitarian frightfulness?

(In the concluding article, Dr. Ayres will attempt to answer some of the questions he has raised about the future of democracy.)

PREAMBLE IS ONLY PORTION MADE PUBLIC

Car in Which Armistice of 1918 Was Signed Is Used By Hitler for Armistice Terms Meeting.

Adolf Hitler today healed Germany's wound of 1918 by handing the French emissaries the terms under which he will permit hostilities to cease.

In the dining car, in the forest of Compiègne, where General Foch told the Germans in 1918 the terms of surrender, Adolf Hitler today reversed history.

While a German band played Germany's national anthem and the Song of Triumph, Col. Wilhelm Keitel, chief of staff, read the preamble to the terms of peace, which declared:

1. Germany must have assurances that France cannot resume hostilities.

2. Germany must receive assurances enabling the Reich to continue the war against Great Britain.

3. Germany must be compensated for the wrongs committed against her by force.

Only the preamble of the peace terms were read, after which Adolf Hitler left the car, and telephone facilities were provided for the French emissaries, so they could transmit the terms of an armistice to the French government.

As word of terms of the armistice was awaited the war continued, but reports indicated that it is now a military occupation, rather than a battle. French units still are resisting in Alsace Lorraine, but these were being mopped up, while Germans pursuing southward found virtually no opposition.

The Nazi high command claimed the sinking of a 10,000-ton transport, while submarines took four British merchant ships and an 11,000-ton mail steamer.

British planes meanwhile raided Germany and killed 10 persons and wounded many, while the Nazis said six planes were shot down.

Italy was drafting its own armistice terms while the high command claimed real damage had been inflicted upon the British naval base at Malta and on another French base in Northern Africa.

The Italian press continued to give prominence to dispatches which said that the British Army demanded the return of the Duke of Windsor.

Jacksboro Trippers Will Visit Ranger On Mon. Morning

In the letter from the Jacksboro Chamber of Commerce it was mentioned that last October the motored came through there found that the slogan of Ranger, "There are no strangers in Ranger" really had a meaning.

Loyalty

It is the fashion right now to go back to the World War experience to show how "Fifth Column" activities were prevalent even then, and to draw from this a warning for today.

That is right enough, but we ought not to forget the lesson graven on the other side of that coin. That is the fact that when the showdown came and war was actually declared, the overwhelming majority of Americans of German descent flocked into the ranks with all other Americans and served this country well and faithfully.

So today the action of Sons of Italy in Ohio is a beacon light of loyalty! Through Raymond A. Bocca, grand venerable, a letter has been issued saying that the members of that order are "stunned" by Italy's declaration of war, but that "we as Americans stand ready shoulder to shoulder with other Americans in assuming the responsibility of upholding and safeguarding our form of government."

For American citizens who take this attitude, no matter what the country of their origin, other Americans should have respect and brotherly hand of welcome in every activity of our great American society. For it is of such loyalty from all conditions and groups of men that America is made! It is from such loyalty that she draws her magnificent strength.

Those who allow sentimental regard for, or political attachment to another land or another kind of society, and who allow that interest to overrule the loyalty they owe to this country are the real "Fifth Column." It is they who are to be watched with care, never trusted in positions of responsibility, and always rendered powerless by vigilance.

But citizens of foreign descent who are loyal, who "will support and defend the Constitution and laws of the United States of America against all enemies, foreign and domestic," and "bear true faith and allegiance to the same"—these are one of the chief glories of our common country.

Engineering graduates of an eastern school set up a fund for first member to marry and become a father. Incentive or consolation?

The Cincinnati religious cult which uses reptiles in its services has been ordered by police to keep its snakes in the grass.

With England forbidding publication of weather reports, the rheumatic gent next door becomes the best informed person in the neighborhood.

German peasant youths who dreamed of some day visiting Paris are sure getting there the hard way.

A year is only 88 days long on Mercury. Fertile fields for Adolf and his blitzkriegs.

MODERN MENUS

BY MRS. GAYNOR MADDOX
SEA Service Staff Writer

SUMMER suppers combine hospitality and simple but good food, though not necessarily plain. This menu is planned for about six guests and is very pleasant and easy to prepare: Jellied bouillon, chicken à la king, buttered hot peas, hot biscuits, tapioca cream with chocolate sauce, tea, milk.
The biscuits can be made far in advance, cut and kept ready for baking in the refrigerator, the peas shelled and covered well, and kept for last minute quick cooking. The chicken can be prepared in advance, too; keep well chilled and heated just before supper. The tapioca cream must be chilled for several hours and the chocolate sauce can be made a day in advance, placed in a jar, and kept ready for the supper party.

SUNDAY'S MENU
BREAKFAST: Strawberries, egg timbales on toast, Danish pastry, coffee, milk.
DINNER: Roast rolled top round steak, brown gravy, stuffed mashed potatoes, peas in cream, mixed greens salad, raspberry cream pie, coffee, milk.
SUPPER: Boston baked beans, hot buttered toast, tomato salad, fresh berry tarts, tea, milk.

slightly cool, stir in flavoring. Chill. Serve with chocolate sauce.

CHOCOLATE SAUCE
Two and one-half squares unsweetened chocolate, 1 cup water, 1/4 cup sugar, dash of salt. Add chocolate to water, bring to boil, and cook 4 minutes, stirring constantly. Add sugar and salt, and boil 4 minutes longer, stirring constantly. Serve hot or cold on ice cream, pudding or cake. Keep in air-tight container in refrigerator and use as syrup base for hot chocolate drink.
Saucepan Method: Mix yolk with small amount of milk in saucepan. Add tapioca, sugar, salt and remaining milk. Bring mixture quickly to full boil over direct heat, stirring constantly. Remove from fire. (Mixture will be thin. Do not overcook.) Beat egg white until just stiff enough to hold shape. Fold hot tapioca mixture gradually into egg white. Cool—mixture thickens as it cools. # Changes In State Constitution To Be Voted On Nov. 5

AUSTIN, Tex.—Texas voters will get an opportunity on Nov. 5 to express their views about four proposed changes in the state constitution. A drawing was held this week in the secretary of state's office to determine the order in which the proposals shall appear on the ballot for the election.
One of the propositions concerns only Red River County. It would give the county commissioners court these authority, after a majority favorable vote by the owners of taxable property, to levy a tax of not to exceed 25 cents on $1,000 valuation for 15 years to refund outstanding debts of the county represented by warrants.
To provide this long-time method of disposing of the indebtedness, the county is asking authority to exceed the tax limitations that prevail generally.
Most interest probably will be shown in a proposal to facilitate civil service in municipal jobs. Article 16, section 30 of the state constitution now limits the duration of all offices not otherwise fixed in the constitution to two years. The proposed amendment says this limitation shall not apply to appointive offices of any municipalities that are placed under the terms and provisions of civil service. If the proposal carries, the duration of offices will be governed by the provisions of the civil service where it is put in force.

Many will watch the result of this election to determine if it is practicable to propose another amendment to provide for state civil service tenure. Nearest approach to it now, is the merit system put in force by the state public welfare department.
Another of the changes to be voted upon is offered in an effort to speed decisions on the constitutionality of laws and orders of state administrative agencies.
The law sponsored by Former Gov. James E. Ferguson limiting crop rentals for tenant farmers was on the books for many years after his administration before it was finally held unconstitutional. A 1928 oil order of the State Railroad Commission has been ruled upon by the U. S. Supreme Court only last month.
The proposed amendment permits a direct appeal to the State Supreme Court from the order of any trial court granting or denying an injunction on the grounds of the constitutionality of any statute or of any administrative order. The method of appeal is to be left to the legislature to fix by statute if the amendment is carried in the November election.

The other constitutional amendment provides a new method for appointment of notaries public. At present a person wishing to become a notary public submits the request to the state senator of the district where he resides. The senator sends his list to the governor and the governor transmits all the lists to the senate as a body for confirmation.
Under the proposed change the appointment of notaries public will be made by the secretary of state.
