FIRST AND EXCLUSIVE PHOTO OF NAZI-RULED PARIS

The Streets of Paris—Now

This first photo since the Nazi occupation shows the Place de l'Opera today. In background is the world-famous Opera House itself. The white island before it is an entrance to the Metro—Paris' subway. About it once swirled an endless merry-go-round of traffic. Today that traffic consists of an occasional porter's handcart, a bicycle, perhaps a peasant's cart or two.

The Ranger High School band, the Eastland High School band, and the Bradshaw band of Taylor county will be present, according to reports from District Garrett-for-Congress headquarters.

MAN LOSES AN ARM IN TRUCK CRASH FRIDAY

Elvis Weaver, part-time employe of the City of Ranger, was critically injured in a truck collision 10 miles south of Breckenridge Friday afternoon, necessitating amputation of his left arm and sewing up several head and face wounds.

Weaver and Bob Johnson had been to Graham with a city truck to obtain Diesel oil for the city-owned tractor, and were returning home when the accident occurred.

According to their version of the accident they were sideswiped by a Vernon Packing Company refrigerator truck, driven by Barney Ramsey of Vernon.

Fire Chief G. A. Murphy, who aided in the investigation of the accident, quoted Ramsey as saying that he was blinded by the sun and did not see the approaching truck.

36 BILLS ARE RETURNED BY GRAND JURY

The Eastland County Grand Jury which recessed Friday after having been in session 14 days, made the following report to Judge Geo. L. Davenport:

Grand Jury Report, 91st District Court, June Term, A. D. 1940 August 2, 1940

State of Texas County of Eastland To the Honorable George L. Davenport, Judge of said court: We, the Grand Jury for the June Term 1940, desire to submit our final report.

During the June term of the 91st District Court we have been in session fourteen days, during which time we have examined 143 witnesses. As a result of our examinations and investigations we have returned 36 indictments. The grand jury has made a thorough investigation of all matters which have been brought to our attention by the citizens and the officers. We have endeavored to dispose of all matters under consideration to the best of our ability and in keeping with the court's charge and in compliance with our laws.

We wish to commend Loss Woods and the other officers and all citizens who have assisted the grand jury for their faithful attendance and efficient service during their term and we wish to express our appreciation to the police departments of the various towns in the county for their cooperation with the county officers and for their active interest in behalf of their respective communities in the enforcement of the law. We wish to especially thank the District Attorney, Earl Conner, Jr., for his untiring efforts and assistance in making independent investigations for us in other counties which have made it possible for us to more readily discharge our duties, and which has meant considerable saving to Eastland County in witness fees.

DELEGATES SELECTED TO STATE CONVENTION TO BE HELD ON SEPT. 12

THEFT RING OF WIDE SCOPE IS BROKEN UP

District Attorney Earl Conner, Jr., of Eastland, and Eastland County Sheriff Loss Woods and his men, working together, have broken into what appears to be an inter-state and possible an international ring of thieves that have been stealing mercury from gas meters over this section.

Sixteen indictments for theft of mercury, mostly from the Phillips Petroleum Company and Lone Star Gas Company meters, were returned by the Eastland county grand jury which adjourned late Friday. On these indictments 11 persons have been arrested and are either being held in jail or have been freed on bond.

According to the sheriff's office there was a large number of men going about over the country breaking into gas meters, extracting the mercury and selling it to a "fence" who paid them seventy cents a pound for it. The "fence" then sold it at $2.60 wholesale, making a net profit of $1.90 per pound.

Due to the fact that mercury is very valuable for use in making high explosives there was a ready market for it. Also there is no way to identify one pound of it from another after it has been removed from its container, and it has been a hard matter to run down and catch the parties guilty of stealing it.

The Eastland County Democratic convention meeting in the 91st district court room at Eastland Saturday afternoon, was called to order by County Chairman O. E. Lyster, who presided while a temporary organization in which B. A. Butler of Cisco, was named as chairman and Miss Boss Terrell was selected as secretary.

The temporary organization was made permanent. There were 27 delegates present and taking part in the proceedings.

With the approval of the convention a committee on delegates was appointed composed of B. T. Drummett, H. R. Gilbert and Oscar Wilson.

A committee on resolutions appointed and approved by the convention was composed of Milburn McCarty, Walter Smith and Mrs. Ruth Harrogan.

The committee on credentials was composed of Mrs. M. H. Hagaman, Tip Ross and Will St. John. The committee on permanent organization was composed of Walter Gray and Jim Flornoy.

Let's Not Expect Too Much

We of the United States like to see a problem tackled hard, wrangled furiously, and then all neatly buttoned up and labeled "solved." It is one of our weaknesses. For not one of the great problems that plague the world has ever been zipped up that way with one motion, and not one is likely to be.

The Inter-American conference now going on at Havana is a little like that. We of the United States would like to see some one bold stroke made there which would settle forever the troublesome problems of political interference in the Americas, trade among them and with foreign lands, disposition of French and Dutch possessions, and military defense collaboration.

This is too much to expect. The world isn't run that way. The southern countries are impressed by the military power revealed by Germany. They would be foolish to disregard the economic power that may be wielded by a Europe "united" under German sway. Ten or 15 years of "good neighborliness" have not entirely effaced the distrust of "The Colossus of the North" which was built up through many decades. They are dealing with an administration that has only four more months in office unless re-elected. How permanent are its commitments? They must, after the war, trade somehow with Germany. What is wanted is not shut Germany out of all American trade, but to devise safeguards such that trade will not mean domination.

All these things and scores of others complicate the problem. What, then, can we hope? We can properly hope for an even stronger realization that the American countries are "all in the same boat" and for notice served to the world that they will fight for each other's independence.

We can hope for a start on plans for economic unity, and a basis for military collaboration. We can hope for increase of mutual understanding and better machinery for quick co-operation in the face of future dangers which can never be exactly foreseen in advance.

SERIAL STORY SUMMER THEATER

BY MILDRED WILLIAMS

COPYRIGHT, 1940, NEA SERVICE, INC.

YESTERDAY, Molly's introduction to the Cape crowd is successful, mainly through Jean's efforts. Jean promises to leave Cape town when she knows Molly loves Johnny. Molly goes and Johnny sends Molly too busy for him. Jean tells him Andre Masters, the leading man, is interested in Molly. Jean also says she is leaving.

CHAPTER VI

JOHNNY busied himself picking up the bits of broken pottery bowl. Jean was leaving for Boston. She said she would leave when she found out Molly loved him. Was she sure of that?

"Did Molly tell you that? Is she in love with me?" Jean laughed unhappily. "You're bawling, Johnny. She thinks you're cute as a bug's ear."

Johnny cursed himself for letting Jean see his heart. He'd spread it out before her and she was sneering.

"Why go home, then? Why not stay here and heehee? Think I can't take it?" She looked at him, almost with pity. "Oh, Johnny, what's the use? I've tried to like the girl, honestly I have. She's so smooth and beautiful she frightens me to death. And she's a grand actress. But she's ambitious, Johnny."

Johnny snorted. "Ambition isn't any crime. Let me tell you something, my sweet--poisoning my mind isn't going to help. I'd marry Molly tomorrow, if she'd have me."

"I won't be here tomorrow to see that, thank heaven," Jean answered. She sat down on the sea chest and swung her feet. She was still a little girl, Johnny thought. Drown legs and socks, cardigan buttoned once at the neck, silly little ribbons tucked into her brown curls. Nothing alluring or mysterious about her. Just a little girl, hurt and angry because somebody had broken her favorite doll.

"Jean," he said, "I'm so truly I am. Don't think I haven't missed our Cape God, the one of our summers. Sometimes I wish I'd never laid eyes on Molly. I'd be happier, I suppose, digging quahogs and sailing with you, not being in love."

"Is it love?" Jean asked with a flash of wisdom that hardly belonged to a little girl. "I wonder."

THEY were silent for a minute, so still that they could hear the clock ticking. It's the perfect moment for me to say, "Let's be friends," thought Johnny. But he said nothing, busied himself swishing imaginary dust from pine cone parrots.

THEY were silent for a minute, so still that they could hear the clock ticking. It's the perfect moment for me to say, "Let's be friends," thought Johnny. But he said nothing, busied himself swishing imaginary dust from pine cone parrots.

"What I really came to say," Jean was speaking steadily, as if she had taken a deep breath and it was safe to continue, "is that I've lent my cameo to Molly for her part in the play, and since I won't be here to retrieve it, I want you to send it to me."

"Why, Jean, Johnny gasped, "that's a foolish thing for you to do. The Reynolds cameo is a museum piece! You know that."

He sounded like the stern parent. What was Jean thinking? The Metropolitan was still negotiating for the Reynolds cameo. It had been made especially in Italy for Jean's grandmother. There were certain peculiarities about its design which made it invaluable.

Jean looked at him intently. "Sure you're not thinking of the legend? It's unlucky if anyone but a Reynolds wears it, you know."

"That old legend is pure fiction. I was thinking of the value of the brooch, and what your father would say if he knew you lent it to Molly."

"Oh, she'll take care of it," Jean assured him. "I was wearing it the afternoon she came to tea. She said, 'What a lovely old cameo. I had imagined Mrs. Lyons wearing one just like it at her throat.' Mrs. Lyons, that's who she is in the play."

"And so you took it right off and put it in her hand," Johnny was exasperated. Jean jumped from the chest and came over to where he stood, straightening his desk to hide his annoyance.

"A friend of yours is a friend of mine," she told him, "and I'm not going to embarrass myself by asking her to give it back before the play. Now get over your mad, and kiss me goodbye for old times' sake."

Jean was in his arms kissing him as she had never kissed him before. Somewhere in his heart Johnny stirred. He was away from him.

"Johnny, I love you so, and I'll go on loving you forever. I haven't any pride to say it. That's why I can't stay here. When I go where we used to go, walk where we used to walk, it's like stamping on a grave, Johnny." She was crying softly in his arms.

"Stop, dearest," he said, patting her shoulders. He hated himself for what had happened to them, but his feeling for Molly was the same. He couldn't deny that, even with Jean so near to him.

THEY didn't know that Molly had come in until she spoke. "Am I interrupting? I thought the bell jangled, but I can go back and knock."

Jean jumped from Johnny's arms. They both looked like children caught robbing a cookie jar. Molly smiled superciliously. "If that's what you meant by kid stuff, I'm sorry you consider me grown up."

"I was simply telling him good-bye," Jean explained. "I'm going back to Boston in the morning."

Molly took a step toward Jean. Her voice was grim with authority. "You can't go back to Boston. Mr. Earl has you on props, and you wouldn't dare walk out at the last minute like this."

Jean reminded Johnny of a very small kitten spitting at a huge important Angora? "I've given him everything he asked for. I even know where I can find that old oil lamp to hang from the ceiling. Everything will be ready in the wings, and the rest of the committee can do a little work. The theater is not my life. I'll walk when and where I please."

"That's just what I thought would happen," Molly retorted angrily. "Junior Leaguers and society girls, always so willing to help, and then at the last minute something else turns up."

Johnny interrupted then. "Don't talk like that to Jean, Molly," he said quietly. "She's worked like a dog, and if she feels she has to go home now, I don't think any of us should try to stop her."

"So you were trying to stop her with a few kisses? What kind of man are you, Johnny Regan? I don't believe I know your particular type." She had turned on Johnny and was whipping him with her words.

"I'll ask Mr. Earl," said Jean. "He'll tell me whether or not any of his bird-brained apprentices can get the stuff back where it belongs."

She snatched out of the shop. Molly ran after her, calling to her. Jean went into the stage entrance of the theater and slammed the door. Johnny laughed. "You don't know Jean. The hurricane that hit the Cape in '38 couldn't keep her here. That time it was a good thing she started. Both our cottages were washed out to sea."

"Molly wasn't listening. She was staring at the stage door of the theater, her blue eyes boring through its entrance. "Afraid you wouldn't have a chance to wear her cameo?" Johnny asked idly.

"What on earth do you mean by that?" Has Andre Masters seen her? Molly demanded. (To Be Continued)

We also expect a great day on Sunday, August 4, in sinners trusting the Lord and also in people joining our church. There are many Baptists in and around Ranger not connected with any church, who ought to come and cast their lot with the Second Baptist Church.

God is going to send you to us. We are organizing departments from the cradle roll through the adults, with a thorough organization the main object for every department to be soul winning. Then another reason you should come is that we are going to arrange departments and beauty each. You should be in at the beginning to have a voice on beautifying the department in which you will work. We are also going to have the most beautiful auditorium in the city when we have finished it. And the last reason why I mention that you should come now: Those who come now and join with us will be charter members in this forward marching organization.

Chatter Box

We are told that in 1884 the Suez Canal company's stock was worth $40,000 per share and though the price has no doubt dropped considerably we'd hate to own much of that stock under the present circumstances. . . . A woman recently sought employment on our paper for her son because she had been told that our editor was unusually capable in training reporters. We thought we'd add our word of thanks for the training he has given us and he said, "Well so far that has been no compliment" . . . We were told recently that a medical specialist had expressed puzzlement over the sudden outbreak of certain

Those who complain of the roar of airplanes might find some comfort in the fact that they are not dropping enemy planes and reminds us of the Ranger during World War and who tells us planes flying overhead at still give her the jitters. . . . Cgeyer, who recently served as grand juror in the re-enactment of the famous Indian trial Jackshoro had that privilege cause he is the grandson of one of the original grand jurors. . . . Co-oper's father, who at the of the trial was a very small and attended the trial, served a juror in the re-enactment. We think Carl Garner's nickname which is "Mickey Mouse" could improved upon because when comes to cockiness Mickey is slouch compared to Carl. . . . Rooster seems more accurate.

A young lady friend of good reputation must be slipping. Recently she appeared for work with black eye which she refused explain and a few mornings she limped in for work explaining the limp by saying that she "fell down" in her own front yard when all by herself . . .
