America Wants the Truth!

Whatever history's final verdict on the causes of the collapse of France, we now know this: there were many causes.

But one of them has not been much stressed up to now. And it is important.

It is simply this: the French people were not told the truth about their situation. The result was that, fed on a diet of "credulity, complacency, and imbecile optimism," they were not prepared for the worst when it began to happen. And so their morale crumbled.

A writer for the Manchester Guardian, formerly its Paris correspondent, has called attention to the havoc wrought by the French censorship on the morale of the people.

The censorship, he said, "did not merely suppress unpleasant truths, but it encouraged pleasant falsehoods." For instance, the censorship would not have passed, he said, any reference to the shortage of sugar in Paris. (Yet every Parisian knew it existed). All articles suggesting that Italy and Spain might split off from Germany were eagerly passed. Anything that suggested that Italy or Spain were unfriendly to the allies was blue-penciled.

The result was that the French people lived in a pleasant fog of self-deception. And when military disaster came, most people were so stunned that they could scarcely believe it, let alone cope with it.

Britain hasn't been making that mistake thus far. From Churchill down, their leaders have cried calamity, preparing people for the worst. The British press has freely criticized the state of Britain's readiness.

The result: Britain has not yet shown any sign of cracking.

It should be so in the United States. We are a people accustomed to know the truth. Any attempts to suppress it would have a very bad effect.

The American people is like that. It will not respond unless its leaders take it completely into their confidence.

It does not thrive when spoon-fed on a pap of complacency and witless optimism. It grows strong only on a diet of the truth, the whole truth, and nothing but the truth.

Not to be overlooked is the tradition that still stands. There is to be no third term for vice presidents in 1940.

As the stars have it, Hitler has had his last lucky day for some time. Thus there is nothing left in the sky to aid the Nazi cause except Goering's air force.

The first U. S. gas mask was patented in 1849. Even then people knew there would be total wars and political campaigns.

We see where the perennial flapper has had her face lifted for the third time, but this is stretching things a little too far.

Tall Story Contest Held Friday at City Playground

Products of vivid imaginations were very much in evidence on the city playgrounds Friday as the children vied with each other in a "Tall Story" contest. The contest was under the direction of the WPA Recreation leaders, and was held in honor of Isaac Walton, the famous fisherman and teller of tales.

On the Hodges Oak Park ground the thrilling story of the horse which was shot in two by a bomb, galloped on home with its rider, and the remarkable description of the reassembly of the various parts of the horse won first place for Jimmy Smith.

The "almost unbelievable" narrative of a trip from Tennessee to Texas in a Model T Ford indicated that D. I. Simpson was the best "spinner of yarns" at the Hi-Way Park.

Killer of Five Starts Prison Term

LOS ANGELES, Aug. 10.—Verlin Spencer, 37, former South Pasadena educator, planned today to strive for a "career" in San Quentin prison, where he was sentenced to spend five life terms for the murder of five associates.

"I plan to carve out a career at San Quentin," he said as he embarked for the state prison last night. "As a teacher, I believe I could serve best in the penitentiary."

Hudson Steamboat Era Loses A Link

KINGSTON, N. Y.—Another link with the days of the old Hudson river steamboats has been lost with the death of 89-year-old Captain Zael "Ziah" Roosa.

Roosa was said to have once known nearly every Hudson river steamboat sailor between New York and Troy when he captained freight and passenger ships for the old Central Hudson Steamboat company and the Rother and Tremper lines.

with tricks; denying her real emotions, ignoring the voice of conscience until her sense of values was hopelessly confused.

"I don't know what to make of you, Johnny," Jean was saying. "I ask you a question and you just stare off into space."

And Johnny told her. He didn't leave out anything, and Jean listened with a serene little smile.

"Come along now. You and I have work to do. We're going to find Masters and get your cameo—tonight."

THEY walked down Cottage Street. "He's at Molly's. I saw him go that way."

"Oh, Johnny, please don't make me go in. You know how I hate a row. If you must do this horrible thing, don't drag me into it."

"We're both going. I'm intending to show Molly there's a limit to what she can do and get away with."

Carter Earl came to the door. "Hello, there, you two," he said. "I've been wanting to thank you for everything you did last night. Come on in. Miss Travers was just saying she hadn't seen you since the fire..."

"We didn't come to be polite," Johnny said. "Mr. Earl, this concerns Miss Travers and Mr. Masters. You can do whatever you like about staying."

"Oh, Johnny, you don't mean that," Miss Travers said. "Not now... Please!" Molly's hand was on his arm.

"If it's about the Theater, I'll stay," Johnny pushed Molly aside and went over to Andre Masters.

"May I see the cameo you bought from Miss Travers. I'm interested in old jewelry."

Masters frowned slightly. He reached in his vest and handed Johnny the pin. It was the Reynolds cameo, all right.

"Jean, is this your cameo?" he asked. "The one you lent Miss Travers for her part in the play?"

Jean looked at Molly, then at Johnny. "Johnny," she whispered. "Let's not, please."

"Molly," he said sternly. "Is this the cameo you borrowed from Jean?"

"Oh, what's the use," she said, desperately. "It's Jean's cameo, and all of you know it. You know it yourself, don't you Andre?"

In spite of this exquisite pretense, I hadn't any right to sell it. But I wanted that contract so terribly. I didn't realize what I was doing.

Carter Earl was coming to life. He stopped twirling his watch chain. "What contract?" he demanded.

business. Desdemona's annual homecoming celebration Friday and Saturday, Aug. 9 and 10, was well attended.

A major attraction Saturday was an address by Hon. Sam Russell of Stephenville, candidate for congress from this district.

The Rev. N. A. Sanders began a revival meeting at Johnson (Rucker) Friday night.

Mr. and Mrs. T. F. Morrow and Mrs. Tug Underwood and children of Eastland, left Sunday morning for a vacation with Glenn Morrow of Beaumont.

Clyde Garrett, candidate for reelection to congress, spoke here Friday night. He was present at the Young Men's regular weekly luncheon.

"Aunt Matty" Woods, who has been sick for some time, has been removed from her home to the hospital where she is reported to be improving.

John Blackwell of Staff underwent a major operation at a Gorman hospital Tuesday and is reported doing well.

The meeting at the local Church of Christ will continue through Sunday night, Aug. 11th.

"Andre and I went over to Dennis this morning," Molly explained, tearfully. "He got Babbitt to give me a try-out for the new fall show. I got the contract for the part. But what good will a contract do me—in jail?"

"So that's it, Masters," Carter Earl was almost shouting. "What a low trick to play on the girl. That contract was sealed when Babbitt saw Molly opening night. You were there when we discussed the matter. My dear," he said to Molly. "I was waiting until the show was over to tell you. Good luck and an offer like that so often upsets a novice."

Molly jumped from the sofa. Her eyes blazed. She came toward Andre Masters with her long fingers outstretched like claws. He covered and backed toward the door. Then Molly's arms dropped limply.

"What a complete idiot I've been," she said hopelessly. "I'm sorry, Jean. Take your cameo. I didn't get any money from Andre Masters. It was a gentleman's agreement, he said, I'm guilty of any charge you want to make against me."

"Don't be foolish," Jean said. "I'm not going to make any charge. Good night everybody, and thanks for my cameo."

JEAN was too good for all of them. Johnny was proud of her. She was so splendid and fine that dishonesty never occurred to her. He ran after her and caught her arm as she started down the steps.

"Jean," he said, "can you forgive me for being such a fool? I felt now you were right. What I felt for Molly wasn't love. What I feel for you is. Do you think you could ever care about me again?"

"Don't apologize, Johnny. I told you I love you, something I turned on and off like a water faucet. Love with me comes in like the tide, and when the tide goes out I go along with it. I'd have gone on loving you, my darling, till I got to be an old maid like Miss Bessie Carstairs."

In the east the moon was rising. It lighted up the horizon like a spotlight, revealing turrets o' clouds. Then suddenly a gray wave of a fog dropped over it like a curtain. The play was ended. Jean read his thoughts.

"Look, Johnny," she said, pointing toward the sky. "It's exactly like a stage at the Summer Theater. It's over, but you and I have just begun."

"Yes," said Johnny and kissed her.

CHRISTIAN SCIENCE SERVICES

"Spirit" is the subject of the Lesson-Sermon which will be read in all Churches of Christ, Scientist, on Sunday, August 11.

The Golden Text is: "Teach me to do thy will; for thou art my God; thy spirit is good; lead me into the land of uprightness" (Psalms 143:10).

Among the citations which comprise the Lesson-Sermon is the following from the Bible: "But Jesus answered them, My Father worketh hitherto, and I work" (John 5:17).

The Lesson-Sermon also includes the following passage from the Christian Science textbook, "Science and Health with Key to the Scriptures" by Mary Baker Eddy: "The calm, strong currents of true spirituality, the manifestations of which are health, purity, and self-immolation, must deepen human experience, until the beliefs of material existence are seen to be a bald imposture, and sin, disease, and death give everlasting place to the scientific demonstration of divine Spirit and to God's spiritual, perfect man" (page 99).

News From Cisco And Vicinity

CISCO, Aug. 10.—Little and Bennett have a two-million gasser in their Clinton No. 2 at Scranton. Production is from a formation encountered at 600 feet. The well was drilled about 50 feet from the same firm's Clinton No. 1, an oil producer.

Plans are nearing completion for the re-opening of Randolph Junior College here within a short while.

Plans are being perfected for the annual out-door revival meeting held by the Cisco Baptist Church on vacant lots across the street from the church building, beginning Aug. 25 and continuing for two weeks. Evening services will be held out of door while the morning services will be conducted in the church.

Only Child Adverse To Physical Course

BOSTON.—Miss Marguerite Lee Gourville, professor at Lowell State Teachers College, believes that an only child will have a definite aversion to physical education programs when it reaches school.

Having her belief on 823 answers to 900 questionnaires, Miss Gourville wrote in a thesis for a Master of Arts degree at Boston University that "children who played alone in childhood dislike physical education in high school in a 2-to-1 ratio."

Candidates Add To Campaign Worries

GONZALES, Tex.—Both the run-off candidates for state representative from Gonzales county have something to keep them from worrying about the result of the August primary election.

Durwood Manford, leader in the July primary, is a bridegroom. He married just a month before the first primary. Rep. John M. Mohrman, seeking re-election, is an officer in the National Guard and has gone to Louisiana with his organization to take part in a three weeks' intensive military training course.

Man Himself, Not God, Responsible for World of Destruction and Grief

Text: Psalm 19

BY WILLIAM E. GILROY, D. D. Editor of Advance

MAN lives in a wonderful world. The stary heavens have always challenged his imagination and interest, and the beauties of the earth have stirred an emotional response that has given to us our richest poetical literature.

Among the noblest of these responses to the immensity, glory, and beauty of the universe is the 19th Psalm. As the Psalm says concerning the heavens which declare the glory of God and the firmament which shows His handiwork, "There is no speech nor language; their voice is not heard."

Nevertheless, poets like himself have given voices to these wonders of nature, which speak a language of the soul that is no less real because it is not in words. "The music of creation is suggested in the passage, "Their line is gone out through all the earth," for the reference seems to be to a line, or chord, that is struck in music.

THIS universe is not merely one of immensity and beauty; it is a moral universe related to the law of its Creator. How different is this song of creation and of the world in which we live from the voice of atheism that finds nothing in the universe of spiritual law and order, nothing that corresponds to man's own free spirit.

The sensitive poets and prophets of Israel manifested their faith and their courage in linking man with the Creator. They saw a universe not only upheld by physical law, but a universe in which there is moral law.

It is not God, but man, who is responsible for the failure of a world in the grip of war. How can we ever change all this until we get back into the spirit of the Hebrew prophets and poets? They are good guides to a new life for man and for society.

DEMOCRATS MAY INJECT MISSOURI UTILITY SCANDAL INTO PRESIDENTIAL CAMPAIGN

BY BRUCE CATTON NEA Service Staff Correspondent

WASHINGTON.—Fireworks are just about due to start popping in the long-standing Union Electric utility scandal.

Union Electric is a Missouri company which has been in hot water with state authorities and the Securities and Exchange Commission for more than a year. Principal accusation is that it set up a huge slush fund to buy legislators and other public officials and influence elections generally.

A full-dress public hearing into this tangled situation has been ordered by the SEC, and in the ordinary course of things would be due to get started in a little more than a fortnight. Edward C. Johnson of the SEC staff has been named trial examiner; likely schedule is for a week or 10 days of hearings in Washington, followed by transfer to St. Louis.

Former official indicted. TWO things, however, may interfere with this schedule. First is the recent conviction of Frank J. Boehm, former executive vice president of Union Electric, on a charge of perjury in the federal court at St. Louis. Boehm's will file a motion for a new trial; until that motion has been disposed of finally, SEC cannot proceed with its hearings.

Second is the chance the Department of Justice may step in and take the whole case out of technically an SEC inquiry. It should find itself airing a "hot" case just as the campaign got moving. Democratic sharpshooters could be depended on to make full use of it.

THE DEMOCRATS have already indicated they are going to stress the holding company-public utility angle in their attack on Wendell Willkie. Willkie, of course, has had nothing whatever to do with either Union Electric or North American; nevertheless, if SEC should find itself airing a "hot" case just as the campaign got moving, Democratic sharpshooters could be depended on to make full use of it.

THE PAY OFF

NEA Service Sports Editor

PUBLIC links golfers do not have to apologize for their 1940 national champion, Robert C. Clark of St. Paul... especially when he is on his game.

Like most municipal players, Bob Clark, 31 and one-time caddy, is an in-and-outer.

Of the public links titleholders, the games of Frank Strafaci, Pat Abbott and Andy Szedko compare more favorably with those of topnotch amateurs. Strafaci, Brooklyn boy, is one of the most consistent of our simon-purees. Abbott, the slight movie extra, took Willie Turnesa to the final of the National Amateur at Oakmont in 1938. Szedko, Pittsburgh steel worker, was not out of place in this year's National Open.

Before going to Detroit, Clark, a Scotch-Irish medical supplies and hardware salesman, was far off stride.

He stands surprisingly close to the ball, which leads to an inconsistency which can easily find him shooting a 69 one day and up in the 80s the next, but when the St. Paul city champion has the feel, he is terrific.

PUTTING and a fine short game formerly were his strong points, but now he is rated a right-hand hitter with unusual power in that hand.

Clark, the father of two sons, is an all-round athlete. He was a good basketball player, and now is a bowler of note. His 12-year-old son already has shown signs of being a comer in golf.

Clark stands six feet... weighed 174 pounds when he started the tournament over the flat Rockham course.

After playing 172 holes in six days, most of it under a blazing sun in the hottest weather Detroit has had this year, he weighed 160.

ALL four semi-finalists in the public links tournament have accepted the invitation of the United States Golf Association's executive committee to compete in the qualifying round of the National Amateur.

This is the first time the U. S. G. A. has extended such an invitation to public links players. It is about time, and the governing body didn't go far enough. All public links players are entitled to the right to attempt to qualify for the National Amateur.

Barring players from the National Amateur, because they cannot afford the luxuries of a private club, is un-American.
