IRISH BELIEVE NEUTRAL ROLE LOGICAL ONE

By RUEL S. MOORE
United Press Staff Correspondent
DUBLIN.—The Irish government's policy of neutrality in the European war is briskly championed by Irish leaders whenever observers in Britain or America suggest in her own interests Eire should join forces with Britain in the war against Germany and Italy.

They insist that it is only want of knowledge of conditions in Ireland which prompts these suggestions.

"Ireland's neutrality is essential for continued existence," is the way one well informed Irishman put it in discussing the question. His opinions are not official but his analysis of the situation constitutes a clear exposition by an objective Irishman of Eire's point of view.

"To surrender Ireland's neutrality in favor of Great Britain, as it has been suggested it should do," he said, "would provoke civil war and chaos, a state of things which would be no help to England.

"On the contrary, at this critical moment, it might seriously interfere with her prosecution of the war. It would constitute a danger from without, but also from within, because an Irish civil war now would have a socialist content sufficient to make its results felt among the working classes in England.

"A civil war in Ireland might be followed by a civil war in England, where socialist and communist propaganda has been allowed a free rein.

"Ireland's neutrality is the best protection for England as well as for herself. Her soldiers are increasing in number and strength every day, and their defense of their territory would be inspired by memories giving them a tenacity and stamina which no external troops fighting in Ireland could possess. There is no comparison between Ireland's position and that of the neutral countries on the fringe of the continent, and our military problem is entirely different." In Ireland, as in most countries, there are partisans on both sides. The long antagonism between the Irish and English has left some Irishmen embittered, and some would welcome a German victory over their old enemies out of hatred for the British.

But the Irishman whose opinions are quoted here said no objective Irishman desires to see Britain beaten or holds any hope it would improve the country's lot.

"The reign of Toryism and of the upper classes in England is drawing surely to an end," he said. "The mass of the people in England are coming into their own, and governments of the future in the new Britain will have no sympathy with the ideas of the class which in the past kept Ireland down and which is still responsible for the division of Ireland.

"There are millions of Irish people in England, and a very real friendship was developing between the two nations, increasing in depth as interference by England grew less.

"This evolution was making steady progress in England before the war, and the war, whatever its consequences otherwise, will speed up the process.

"In the past, it was England's policy to have weak Ireland on her flank so as to secure England's domination of Europe. If Germany wins, relations with England may become more difficult because a continental power may want to acquire privileges in Ireland to keep England down, which Ireland may not be able to refuse. Ireland, which, in the past, had only to fight on one political front, may be obliged to appease the claims of two European powers.

"The war came at the wrong moment in the history of Anglo-Irish relations. Had another 20 or 30 years passed, a united Ireland might have made a pact with England which would have made both countries stronger.

"But as things are, Ireland, while preparing with all speed to meet any invader, is watching the future with calm and trust. The country has met harder days in the course of its history, and is not afraid to face its new destiny whatever it may be."

Jones Is Nominated Commerce Secretary

WASHINGTON, Sept. 13.—President Roosevelt today nominated Jesse Jones of Texas to be secretary of commerce as well as federal loan administrator.

Patient's Doing Well, Thank You

Tommy Henrich, whose knee injury will keep him out of the New York Yankee outfield indefinitely, makes the best of the situation in St. Elizabeth's Hospital, New York. Not bad, though, when you can get attention such as Nurse Eileen Flannigan is offering.

NEW QUOTA OF RED CROSS IS NOW RECEIVED

Mrs. L. H. Flewelling, one of the leaders in the Ranger Red Cross Station, announced today that the quota of garments to be made in Ranger had been received, and a large number of workers were needed in order that they might be made as quickly as possible.

The quota for Ranger has been announced as five women's dresses, 25 girls' dresses, 10 layettes, 15 boys' shirts, 10 operating gowns, 15 hospital pajamas and 15 children's sweaters. Anyone desiring to aid in making these garments can get further information by calling Mrs. L. H. Flewelling, at telephone number 568.

All material and yarn will be furnished by the Red Cross and it will be distributed among the workers as soon as it arrives. Mrs. M. H. Hagaman will then call a general meeting.

It was pointed out today that approximately 700,000 chapter-made garments had been received at the Red Cross export warehouse and practically all of these had been shipped abroad by August 3. Shipments have been going forward regularly to Great Britain for French and Belgian refugees.

The Red Cross is also planning on sending additional shipments to Finland in the near future, it was stated for the information of many who had inquired where the garments were going and who would get them.

It's a Man's World In Railroad Realm

WASHINGTON.—As far as one of the largest employers of labor in the United States is concerned, it's still a man's world.

The railroad industry, with more than 1,000,000 persons on its payroll, offers opportunities to young men trained in science, engineering, commerce, finance, and law, but limits its hiring of women mainly to office workers and telegraph operators, according to a study recently made public by NYA administrator Aubrey Williams.

Dog Finds His Way Home In 70 Days

JACKSONVILLE, Fla.—It required 70 days for him to do it, but Monk, a bulldog, found his way home to his master, Hudson Humphries, 12.

Separated from the Humphries family during a picnic near Green Cove Springs, 30 miles away, Monk was given up as lost. No word was ever heard of the dog by the Humphries until 70 days later, when he scratched at the back door of the Humphries home here.

FUNERALS FOR BLAST'S DEAD ARE PLANNED

Funeral services were to be held in Sweetwater Friday for one of two victims of an oil pipeline fire Thursday morning five miles from Baird, while the body of the other was to be transported to his home in North Zulich for burial.

Dead from burns suffered in the tragedy are Durwood Henderson, 17, Sweetwater, and Hugh McMahon, 39, of North Zulich, Madison county. Henderson succumbed a few hours after being taken to the West Texas hospital in Ranger and McMahon died at Baird a few minutes after being taken there.

Young Henderson was the son of Mr. and Mrs. Edgar Henderson of Sweetwater. Other survivors are a sister, Celia, cashier for Sears-Roebuck in Sweetwater, and two small brothers. His father was working on the pipeline at the time of the accident, but was uninjured.

McMahon's body will be transported to North Zulich, but other arrangements for his funeral were not completed immediately.

McMahon and Henderson, his helper, were welding screw collars on the Gulf Oil Corporation's 10-inch, high-pressure pipeline from the Odessa field shortly after eight o'clock. While there are conflicting reports as to the tragedy details, it was thought that pressure forced one of the collars off and the oil caught fire. Flames shot 100 feet in the air, and drenched the two men.

The fire continued several hours until the flow of crude oil through the line could be stopped. The Abilene fire department assisted in fighting the fire.

C. N. Deaton of Ranger, inspector for Gulf, suffered burns on the hands when he dragged Henderson from the pipeline. He was given first aid treatment at Baird.

The accident victims were employed by Williams Brothers, contractors for repairs on the pipeline.

McMahon is survived by his widow, a daughter, Minnie Sue, 11, three brothers and six sisters.

Young Lawyer To Represent District In Next Congress

SHAMROCK, Texas.—A tall, witty young lawyer named Eugene Worley next year will succeed Marvin Jones of Amarillo, as congressman from the 31st Texas District.

Jones, a democratic leader, has for 24 years represented citizens of the upper Texas Panhandle area in Washington. He became an outstanding legislator on farm affairs, and has remained in congress this session at the request of President Roosevelt, who has appointed him a judge on the U. S. Court of Claims.

Worley, aged 31, won his spurs during six years' service as a state representative. He began his political career in a $25 Model-T Ford, which carried him around his district in a house-to-house campaign.

Miss Montgomery In School Library

WACO, Texas, Sept. 13.—President Pat M. Neff of Baylor University announced Friday the employment of Miss Mattie Beryl Montgomery of Ranger as librarian in the Baylor law school.

Miss Montgomery graduated from the Baylor law school last June. She took her pre-law work in Ranger Junior college. Her post as full time librarian is an innovation in the law school.

As a student in the Baylor law school, she was secretary-treasurer of her Mid-Law class, of her Senior law class and of the Forum Law society. Also was a member of the International Relations club, the law school year book staff, the university orchestra and the Barrister's Temple.

SEVENTY HUNTERS, 3 COYOTES

CALDWELL, Ids.—An unusual record for coyote hunting was established here when seventy horsemen accompanied by 56 dogs participated in the hunt. One coyote and two half grown pups were taken. Approximately 125 persons participated in the hunt and eggs breakfast held in celebration of the "kill."

Torpedo Boats of British Navy Not All Some Believe

By PAUL MANNING
NEA Service Staff Correspondent
LONDON.—its exhaust roaring, Motor Torpedo Boat 10 sliced its way across the heavy waters of the English Channel at 2:00 o'clock one morning last week.

On the tiny bridge inside the metal cabin 23-year-old Lieutenant James Terry Mannoeh peered through the narrow windows into the darkness ahead, proud of his crew of youngsters, his torpedoes, depth charges, Lewis guns and shining boat.

Sitting almost on top of the steersman, he shouted his orders through a small megaphone. Delicately the helmsman twisted the car-sized wheel to take the waves easier.

Down in the engine room three engines deafened the eardrums, made speech impossible.

Suddenly two German boats loomed out of the darkness, racing abreast toward some coast objective. Too close to release a torpedo, Lieutenant Mannoeh shouted an order, his helmsman swerved the small craft into the trough between the two enemy ships, and with Lewis guns blazing, plowed into the side of one of the German boats. But the enemy ship, wrenching away, raced off into the night.

Motor Torpedo Boat 10, its front stove in, limped slowly back to the naval base.

This adventure, multiplied many times during the course of a night by other M. T. boats, shows the dash which these young veterans of the British mosquito fleet are employing in their daily sweep of the mine-dotted channel.

But colorful though the flotillas may be, motor torpedo boats during the past months of war have proved themselves to be a vastly overrated sea weapon.

Prior to the outbreak of war in September, 1939, fabulous claims were made in their behalf. And because a flotilla could be built for the price of one destroyer, many predicted that more torpedo boats and fewer big ships would be built.

Italy, pointing to a sea victory of the last war when an Italian H. T. B. sped into the Adriatic harbor of Pola and sank an Austrian battle cruiser, constructed more than a hundred of the boats.

Britain in 1937 also started to build the flashy little speedboats. But unlike Italy, England did not forget that it is the great lumbering dreadnaughts which win the decisive sea battles.

In their role of patrolling the sea lanes of the channel against U-boats and small German E-boats, the motor torpedo boat is excellent. But in the open seas they cannot stand continuous use. Like light whippet tanks, they will not stand up under hard wartime use without constant and skilled attention. They must be frequently hauled up on the shipways for repainting and conditioning if they are to last.

And with the Battle for Britain now under way, that is an operation which is only occasionally possible.

Wound Victim's Condition Grave

Reports from the Eastland hospital at noon today were that Arnold Kirk, who is being treated there for a shot wound in the right leg and through the right chest, had had a very satisfactory night and little or no change was seen in his condition which remains grave.

Attendants at the hospital were reported as being of the opinion that the crisis in Kirk's condition would be reached within the next few hours.

Kirk, 35, was shot while in the lobby of the Connelley hotel at Eastland last Thursday morning. Jack Tindall of Eastland, who surrendered to officers immediately following the shooting, is being held in the Eastland county jail on a charge of assault with intent to murder pending the making of bail which was set by Justice of the Peace E. E. Wood at $2,500.

In his talks Willkie promised never to send Americans to fight in any foreign wars.

SENATE HOLDS UP ACTION ON CONSCRIPTION

WASHINGTON, Sept. 13.—The senate's acceptance of the conference committee's draft of the conscription bill was delayed today when Senator Russell, democrat of Georgia, objected to the house version of the industrial conscription provisions.

The measure is expected to pass the senate late today, however. The bill as agreed upon by the joint conference from the house and senate calls for registration of all men between the ages of 21 and 35 years of age. These men will be available for military training, with certain exemptions which have been outlined.

President Roosevelt revealed today that the national defense council has adopted a plan giving defense orders priority in industrial plants over the nation in an effort to speed up any work on defense equipment for which contracts are being let as rapidly as possible.

BOMBS STRIKE PALACE, HOUSE IN DAY RAIDS

Bombs rained on London today as Nazi airmen attempted unsuccessfully to drive the British government from the capital.

Five of the bombs and showers of incendiaries hit the royal palace and an incendiary bomb hit the house of lords. Small bombs also fell in Downing Street, near the home of the prime minister.

The bombs did some damage to Buckingham Palace, but the king and queen were safe in the underground air raid cellars, with the palace servants, and the only ones injured were three workmen repairing damage that had previously been done to the palace.

The incendiary bombs which fell upon the house of lords were quickly extinguished and the ministry of information denied that the government had any intention of fleeing, despite the belief that today's air raids were aimed at the nation's leaders in contradiction to previous war customs.

The bombardment stopped business completely until mid-afternoon for the first time since the war began.

British Deny a Claim They Do Not Need Ambulances

NEW YORK.—The British Red Cross Society has cabled William V. C. Ruxton, president of the British-American Ambulance Corps, of 420 Lexington Avenue, a categorical denial of statements which have been circulated for the last couple of weeks that England no longer needs ambulances.

The cable read: "Am informed that motor ambulances lying on quay in New York are not being shipped to us because statements made that we need no more ambulances. This statement wholly incorrect. Please ship ambulances as early as possible. Letter follows."

Mr. Ruxton said that twenty ambulances were on the docks ready for shipment.

"Since Wallace B. Phillips, director general of the American Ambulance Great Britain, said in London on August 21 that England's needs had been filled, our donations have dropped to half what they were before this statement was made. Not only the British Red Cross Society but also various other organizations in England and throughout the empire have made it crystal clear that they are in urgent need of many more ambulances. Thus, at a time when we need to intensify our drive, this statement has hurt us badly."

"To assume for a moment that England's need for ambulances is filled is inconceivable, in view of the letters and cables which we have received almost daily during the time that this false statement has been circulated. Typical is a letter we received this week, from Viscountess Cranborne, whose husband is Paymaster General in the British cabinet. It was written to Mrs. Anne Crawshaw, one of our representatives in England, who sent it to me."

"I went to see the matron of Salisbury Hospital last week, who said that they were terribly short of ambulances. In fact, the only ones they had were converted lorries (trucks), which were very unsuitable for casualties."

"We had a great many air raids last week end, and ambulances would be of the greatest value. It is a scattered countryside, constantly bombed and the transport of casualties is a real problem."

The cost of an ambulance is $1,350, which includes $200 to maintain it for a year. Checks or money orders should be made out to Wilton Pierce, treasurer of the British-American Ambulance Corps, 420 Lexington Avenue, New York City.

With the exception of the murder case which was the result of a negro shooting at Cisco, arrests had not been reported.

Cult Leader Found With Abdomen Slit Probe Is Started Into Powder Blast

KENVIL, N. J., Sept. 13.—Eight different agencies sought today to learn whether sabotage had anything to do with the blast at the Hercules Powder Plant that cost a possible death toll of 100.

Thirty-five bodies have already been removed from the wreckage of the plant and rescue workers continued to search the debris for additional bodies.

Blitz-Year Ends;

Heavy Burden on U. S.

Can it be only a year ago that the world's peace machinery thudded to complete breakdown, and war spread like an ugly blot over the face of Europe? Can a single year have so changed the world?

Yes, only a year. On Sept. 1, 1939, Hitler's legions crossed the border into Poland. On the 3d Britain and France declared war, the effort to make Hitler draw back having proved useless. On the 10th Canada went in.

So short a time ago, and yet so long. We almost forgot the spark that set it off. It was the argument over Danzig and the Polish corridor, a not insoluble problem which the slightest good will would have peaceably settled. The cause lay deeper, but the immediate spark was Danzig and the corridor.

Within a month Poland lay prostrate. Within two months the United States had repealed the embargo on arms that had been designed to keep war aloof. Within three months Russia had attacked Finland, and within three more had overpowered her. The eighth month saw Norway and Denmark invaded and conquered. The ninth saw Belgium, Luxembourg, and the Netherlands invaded; the 10th saw the surrender of France and Italy's entrance into the war. The 11th month saw Russian seizure of the three Baltic states, and the final month of the year found England herself at death grips in defense of the island empire.

The same 12 months have seen the United States turn resolutely to arming itself and to building a water-tight dike of defense around the New World. Sparks of war economy and psychology have leaped the ocean and burn brightly in the United States despite its unshaken resolution to keep clear of the European holocaust.

Perhaps never in history have such tremendous changes come in a single year. The tempo of human affairs has speeded up almost beyond understanding or endurance.

"Look what's happened in Eu-...rope because of the money grab-...bers. They've kept the common... workers ground down for centuries... and it's only now that they are... being liberated.

"Well, over here in the grand... little old U. S. A., we have a... chance to vote and run the coun-...try and we're going to have our... voice. Fred King is running for... governor in the primaries. Maybe... that seems unimportant in the... whole country, but if every group... does its job well, we'll have the... right men in the key posts all... over the nation.

"Right now our job is to help... Fritz get the votes around here. And now how about typing copies of this letter?"

SUE MARY typed and thought. Anyone who could talk with the ease and assurance that Vera used left Sue Mary helpless.

Politics—that strange world that one associated with headlines and newspaper stories—also left her helpless. Yet she felt that it was a weakness on her part not to know and be interested in the affairs of her country.

As a little girl, she had listened to her grandmother tell about the "old days." About coming out west from New York state in a covered wagon, after her own father had believed the east too crowded for a man with a growing family; of seeing Indians asleep before the fireplace in the cabin on a cold night; of hearing her father talk about Abe Lincoln, and of watching him go off to war while her mother wept.

The stories had been endless, making Sue Mary's history lessons later on more than dull pages in books. Her own family had a part in making that history, and a surge of pride had flowed through her. But in growing up, she had forgotten that pride until now, when she was conscious of her duty to take a part in the life of her country.

A funny way to spend a day off, Sue Mary told herself hours later, when she was back typing again after a breathing spell. The gang had stopped work for cigars and talk.

Talk went on about her in a swiftly moving stream. Talk that made the idle chatter at her own office already seem childish and trifling.

There, a new hairdress, a new frock, an evening's date, a new movie were subjects of tremen-...dous importance in the day's routine. The arrival of young Ross Clark, Jr., the son of old M. Ross Clark himself, would throw the entire feminine stuff into a ditch.

Young Clark, tall, blond, a Har-...vard graduate and a new partner in the firm, came to the office on rare occasions. He would dash in wearing polo clothes, an old coat...

thrown casually over his broad shoulders, a few papers in his hand to give to Miss Grant, with a hurried plea. "You know what to do with these. I got to get out to the club for practice." And away he would go.

But from then on Kitty would stare into space with that pre-occupied expression in her green eyes, and Babe would smile know-...ingly and whisper to Sue Mary, "Kitty just can't bear to have a handsome, eligible guy pass her by like that. I wonder if she ever will make the grade."

Once those things had been enough to lift the day right smack out of the dull routine, but now, typing copies of the campaign letter, her thoughts struggled for expression. Around her moved these competent, knowing boys and girls working with a purposefulness that left her bewil-...dered. Others came and went and the conversations changed with them.

SOME were upset because there was to be a cut on welfare. "They can't do that," someone was shouting to Vera. "They can't cut off their messy little handouts and expect the people to tighten their belts and grin. Why, that family's been on relief for three years—"

"Well, if that contract isn't signed in a month, you can bet we'll be out on the picket line again." Another voice rose above the noise.

And then Nick arrived. He saw her as he entered and his eyes lighted. He came directly to her; past Vera, past the other girls who stopped work for a second to smile.

"I knew you'd come, but still it's nice to actually see you here with us." That barely perceptible accent did something to his voice. He sat on the desk and read the letters she had typed. He ran his fingers through his black hair in a gesture she had already come to associate with him.

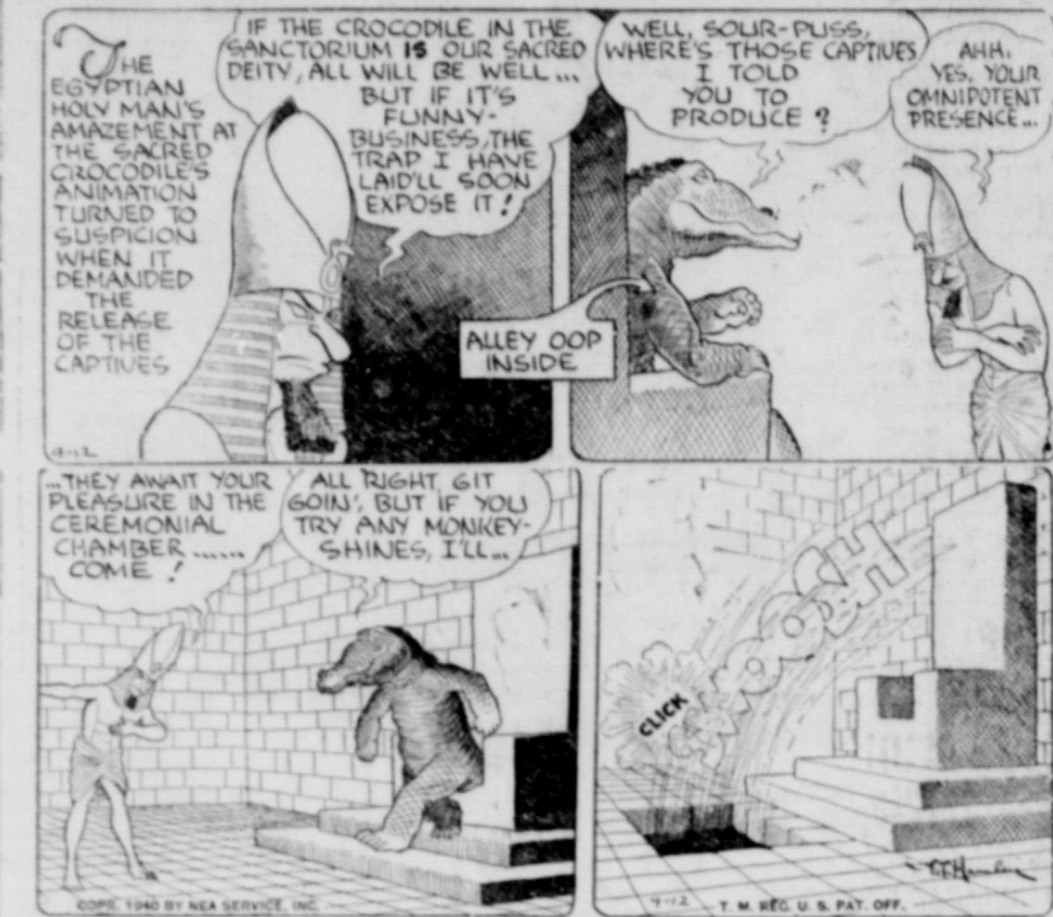

"You haven't loafed, either, lit-...tle comrade. For a first day's work I'd say you've done right well. And for a good worker there is always recreation. How about going to a concert tonight? Good music and me. That should be pretty good, huh?"

"I'd love to go." She hesitated, feeling her cheeks flush. "Only—only like everything else, I don't know much about music."

"I'll teach you. There's lots to teach you, and I think I'll like it because you're going to be the ideal pupil."

Smooth Sailing On Labor Front Is Being Predicted

FORT WORTH, Tex.—Smooth sailing on the industrial labor front during the national rearmament campaign is forecast by Dr. Edwin A. Elliott, regional director of the National Labor Relations Board.

"Democratic process in industrial relations will contribute their part to a continuity of the defense program from the United States," said Dr. Elliott. "American industry and labor have too much at stake for it to be otherwise."

Dr. Elliott said that the chief reasons for the cheery outlook are (1) improved employ-employer relations and (2) the strike-settling machinery of the National Labor Relations Board. The railway industry, he pointed out, has operated without a single major strike since the establishment of the Railway Mediation Board.

Dr. Elliott, "has encouraged collective bargaining and... led to establishment of contractual relationships which, in the overwhelming majority of cases, are respected by both parties." "These contracts, with very few exceptions, carry provisions establishing machinery for settlement of disputes, which heretofore, would likely have proven disruptive."

Health Is a Cause Of Many Failures

United Press
MONTGOMERY, Ala.—Dr. J. N. Baker, Alabama state health officer, believes that improper health conditions are a vital factor in causing students to fail in school.
In a special report, he said that such conditions were "one of the important causes" why 40 per cent of all Alabama first-grade pupils are repeaters.
Other causes he listed as in-

Shrewd Deduction Disproves Burglary

FORT WAYNE, Ind.—A shrewd bit of deduction, coupled with an understanding of women, enabled adequately trained teachers, lack of textbooks and shortened school terms.
Pointing out that absence from school retards learning, Dr. Baker said that "a very large percentage of total absentees charged to the average pupil would, if investigated, be shown to be due to ill health of one kind or another."

Finding no definite evidence of a forced entrance, the detectives searched the garbage can and found the jewelry wrapped in discarded orange peels.

Be Formed Locally

Plans for an Episcopal Guild, to be conducted in Ranger this fall and winter, have been announced here by Mrs. G. D. Chastain, one of the leaders in the movement. Plans call for a model service to be conducted, and it has been urged that as many of the members of the church as possible meet at the home of Mrs. Chastain on Monday, Sept. 23.

Father Mitchell of Dallas is to be in Ranger at some time during the winter, when the Eucharist will be conducted.

Ranger Men Make Big Catch

These five big catfish, the largest of which weighed 47 pounds and which ranged down to 15 pounds, were caught by the group shown above while fishing at Byrd's Store, at Lake Brownwood. It was reportedly the largest single catch from the lake in five years. Other fish in the picture weighed 43 pounds, 37 pounds and 32 pounds. The fishermen are, left to right: Lyndie Summers, H. S. Packwood, Ed Harper, J. B. Harper and Raymond Turner.

Craft Skill of Past Is Lacking
In New Demands

ALBANY, N. Y.—Frieda S. Miller, New York state's industrial commissioner, estimates that more than 500,000 skilled craftsmen are job-hunting through the public employment agencies of the nation because they are unable to meet the specifications which industry demands.

Miss Miller said there was an actual shortage of A-1 tool and die men who had had experience within the past three months in the aircraft industry.

On the other hand, she said, there was no acute shortage of men who had had experience in highly skilled work in the past.

Many Out of Touch
"But thousands of them had been out of their trades for months if not years," she said. "Their skills were rusty."

She pointed out that the skills of these men were once keen and that they represent a "waste of man-power."

"Because there was neither social nor industrial responsibility felt for keeping these skills alive and keen, we face the demands of the present situation as unprepared in tool designers and die-makers as we are in trained soldiers and tanks," Miss Miller said.

"The price we pay for this shortsightedness is delay—delay while we train and re-train skilled workers."

She said the training program is not designed primarily for the apprenticeship of youth, but rather for the salvage of the valuable skills that older workers have acquired.

Health Hazard Seen
She said increasing defense activity meant increasing hazards to workers' health. The growth of radium dial manufacture for airplane and other instruments, she said, has focused attention on the dangers of radium poisoning.

The commissioner urged maintenance of labor standards for increased efficiency of production. She cited British and American experience in the World War, when the British Munitions Commission found, in 13 months' experience, that production increased as the working hours of munition workers were decreased.

She said the chief of Finance, U. S. Army, in 1917, issued an order urging upon industry the fair working conditions and a maintenance of reasonable hours, proper wage scale. The order stated, she said, that "to waive them would be a shortsighted policy, leading gradually, but inevitably, toward lessened production."

Hardin-Simmons
To Have Seventeen
Lettermen Back

By United Press
ABILENE, Tex.—Seventeen lettermen head the colorful Hardin-Simmons football squad that this year sees action from the Atlantic to the Pacific.

The Cowboys, coached by Frank Kimbrough, appeared stronger than last year on early season dope sheets. They'll play teams in four states including Catholic University of Washington, D. C., on the Eastern Coastline and Loyola at Los Angeles on the Pacific.

In addition the range men from the Panhandle will dip into Louisiana at Shreveport for a tilt with Centenary "Gents." The rest of the nine-game schedule will be played in Texas.

Hardin-Simmons, as a special feature, plays a bowl game during the regular season. Dixie Howell's Arizona Staters have been invited to play at the Rose Festival in Tyler, Texas, Oct. 5. Last year Texas A. & M. drubbed Villanova in the annual Rose Festival game.

San Francisco University heads east for a game at Abilene Nov. 23.

Prospects for the Cowboys, who won their last four games in a fast finish, look exceptionally good. Greatest loss from last year's team is Clyde (Bulldog) Turner, great Texas Conference center who entered pre-hall reportedly with the fattest contract ever offered a first year player.

However, Turner rode the bench with injuries throughout November last year and Kimbrough—of the famous football family—had an opportunity to develop Leslie (Red) Evans who'll take the pivot position this season. Murry Evans, former fullback, will back up Evans with Woodrow Coats, converted end, as third string reserve.

Southwestern "dry-land" football will be featured at H-SU this season replete with fancy passers and complicated aerial formations. L. B. (Scat) Russell and Owen Goodnight, as last year, will flip most of the aerials.

Sam Oatman, best yardage man on the team, and Dean Walsh of Ranger were scheduled for the half back positions with 204-pound Moon Mullins at the full-back post. Backstopping will come from Lloyd Flahie, letterman, and Moose Bryson, junior college transfer, and Fred Milkenh, Denver, fine defensive player, and Tommy Chadwick, a pac; slinging sophomore from Colorado City.

In the forward wall co-captain Wilford Moore and Winston Tucker were ticketed for the guard posts; Robert Thompson and Bob Russ, at tackles; and D. A. (Rodeo) Parker, Deward Marcum, and Harry Burrus, burly Big Spring youth who formed the receiving end of the Cowboys pass combination last fall, will be at ends.

Cattle Are Trained
Over Long Route

By United Press
HEREFORD, Tex.—Branded cattle traced from Deaf Smith County, Tex., to Cedar Rapids, Ia., today had brought conviction to a rustler on the Panhandle Plains.

The cattle had been sold to an Iowa stockman at Lubbock, Texas, and were traced to the stockyards in Cedar Rapids through brands. Sheriff's officers and inspectors for the Texas and Southwestern Cattle Raisers Association, Inc., led the search through a dozen states.

HAPPY RELIEF FROM PAINFUL
BACKACHE

Many of those gnawing, nagging, painful backache people blame on cold or strain are often caused by sore kidneys—and may be relieved when treated in the right way. The kidneys are Nature's chief way of taking waste acids and poisonous matter out of the blood. They help most people pass about 3 pints a day. If the 15 miles of kidney tubes and filters don't work well, poisonous waste matter stays in the blood. These poisons may start nagging in the back, rheumatic pains, loss of pep and backbone, nervousness and dizziness. Frequent or steady passages with smarting and wrong with your kidneys or bladder. Don't wait! Ask your druggist for Doan's Pills, used successfully by millions for over 40 years. They give happy relief and will help the 15 miles of kidney tubes flush out poisonous waste from your blood. Get Doan's Pills.
