New Chief For Iowa Tribe

Succeeding his father, James White Cloud, Louis White Cloud is made chief of the Iowa tribe at the reservation in White Cloud, Kas. Indians representing five different tribes were present to take part in the ceremony which is the first of its kind to take place in that tribe since 1870.

Testifies On Migration of Farm Workers

E. R. Hensen, of Amarillo, Texas, coordinator for U. S. Dept. of Agriculture, testifies before a congressional committee in Oklahoma City, Okla., is attempting to determine the cause for and a resolution to the problem of the "Okies."

Health Service Is Offered As An Aid To Draftee Group

BOSTON—A group of health educators have organized a non-profit social service organization, the North American Physical Fitness Institute, which seeks to "raise the physical fitness of the nation's people by at least 10 degrees."

The institute will offer physical fitness testing and guidance services developed by 20 years' research that began at Harvard and Columbia Universities. The program will be established chiefly in industry and commercial, military and transportation organizations.

One of its projects will be to help the Federal government by examining CCC boys, any drafted men, members of the military service and industries under governmental control. Institute officials plan to assist men who are rejected for the army.

The method used is to give standardized examinations which yield numerical scores on the individual's physical powers. The cause of weakness is discovered and the person is advised of corrective procedures. Finally, the person is retested to determine results.

Officers of the organization include Dr. Shailer Upton Lauson and Richard F. Hayes of New York and Dr. Frederick Rand Rogers and Dr. James G. Reardon of Boston.

Army Recruits In Arkansas Setting Peacetime Records

LITTLE ROCK, Ark.—Arkansas youths are not waiting to be drafted into the army—they are enlisting voluntarily in record peace-time numbers.

The state has been the leading one in the 7th Corps Area, which include several mid-western states, in army recruiting for three or four years and the past several weeks has been a rapid increase.

Lieut. Carl C. McCauley, publicity officer for the state, announced that recruiting for the first week in September was 33 1-3 per cent ahead of the same period in August.

At the central office in Little Rock and at branch offices over the state, army men have had to work overtime to handle the unusually large number of applications, McCauley said.

The state's quota for new recruits is large enough that none of the men who are eligible for enlistment are being turned down.

Automatic Speed Meters Are Devised

DES MOINES, Ia.—From now on when Des Moines police bring in a motorist for speeding, he will have to dig hard for an alibi.

He no longer can protest that the officer made a mistake in "clocking" his speed, as the city is installing an electric "speedometer."

The device consists of two electric contact tapes, 10 feet apart, and an electric meter. The meter measures in miles an hour the time it takes the vehicle to travel the 10 feet.

Four municipal court judges have agreed to accept in court charges based on evidence of the detector.

Cotton Drying Has Increased Income

TIFTON, Ga.—Agricultural experts pointed out today that by use of modern drying methods farmers can save nearly $5 a bale on their damp or wet cotton.

The cost for drying—previous to ginning—costs only 28 cents per bale and increases the gin capacity 28 per cent. Improvement of dry cotton by means of the drier increases the value $1.23 a bale.

House Shortage At Rock Island Arsenal Growing

DAVENPORT, Ia.—Col. Norman F. Ramsey is the commandant of the Rock Island arsenal, one of the largest in this country. Thus, he is charged with the production of armaments. But one of the colonel's biggest problems has nothing to do with national defense. It is the housing problem.

Employees at the arsenal have jumped from 3,500 in a single year. In the near future there will be more than 8,000 men employed there. And should the present emergency continue, the total may reach the 15,000 peak of the World War.

When the peak was reached, most of the workers lived in Davenport, just across the river from Rock Island. Now, however, more than half the workers live on the Illinois side of the river.

On both sides of the river, however, workmen face high rents and a scarcity, if not absence, of places to live for almost any price.

In Davenport, for example, 15 families live in tarpaper barracks. Many live in trailers parked in the woods near town—and pay about $4 a month rent for the use of the lot. A storeroom brings from $22.50 to $25 a month.

Card Mailed In 1909 Still In Post Office

LA LUZ, N. M.—Mrs. C. R. Phillips, who left La Luz 31 years ago, has a postcard in the La Luz postoffice bearing a postmark of August 8, 1909, mailed at St. Louis, Mo.

The card carries a picture of her brother, and was originally mailed to La Luz and was forwarded to Houston, Texas.

After 31 years the card was returned to La Luz, forwarded from the Houston post office.

Mrs. Phillips' friends do not know her whereabouts.

Progress Oasis Is Rising In Bayou Area Of Louisiana

By United Press
PORT SULPHUR, La.—This town that sulphur built has brought modernization to the bayou.

Out of the marshes has grown a town as modern as today's calendar. Electricity lights the rows of brightly white houses, children learn at a $40,000 school building, a recreation center gives diversion from toil, a $30,000 hospital cares for the ill, and a drug store keeps its patrons as up-to-date as any metropolitan dweller.

It all started back in 1932 when a sulphur company decided there was sulphur in sufficient quantity below the marshes on Bayou Ecaillon to warrant expenditure of some $6,000,000 for a plant. Sulphur, like gold, is "where you find it," so the builders and engineers moved in.

First problem was to provide a place for employes and their families to live. A great dredge pumped mud out of the bayou at a selected site. The ooze dried and settled, then was covered with two to three feet of sand pumped from the banks of the nearby Mississippi river.

Houses Rest on Piles
Forty-foot pilings were driven for floating foundations on which to build houses. Crushed shell provided roads. Now, there are 134 of the three-to six-room houses and all the other buildings essential to a modern town.

Ten miles down Bayou Ecaillon are the "mines." Those "mines" are wells—1,200 feet and more deep. Hot water at approximately 300 degrees is pumped through the wells to melt the sulphur from rock formations and bring it to the surface in a boiling, blackish stream.

The blackish stream solidifies in huge vats and the product is commercial sulphur—99.7 per cent.

Plant Cost $6,000,000
But the company spent its $6,000,000 before it got its first pound of sulphur in December of 1933. Building a plant on the marshes five miles off the Gulf of Mexico was a major task. The entire plant is built on 75-foot pilings, pilings which dropped 45 feet through the mud on their own weight. Approximately 8,000 of those long pilings were used—enough that if laid end to end would stretch for 500 miles.

The boilers that heat the water for the mining also power the generators that produce electricity for the plant and the town.

Transportation for the workers is provided by six 55-foot cruisers. Each boat carries 55 passengers, taking some 400 to and from the plant to keep three shifts going night and day.

Those were strange crafts for the trappers and oyster luggermen of the bayou just 45 miles from New Orleans—as strange as a hospital, the drug store, the parks, the white houses and six-man football which the sulphur miners brought to this oasis in the marshes.

Free French, British Continue Attack On DAKAR, AFRICA, TODAY

General De Gaulle's "Free French" Government headquarters in London announced today that operations against Dakar, French West Africa, were resumed today and that an early victory was expected at the vital port where the Italians and Germans reportedly have infiltrated.

The nature of the operations was not announced, although Gen. De Gaulle has French troops and warships, backed by British Naval units, at his command. The French Government at Vichy ordered the defenders of Dakar to resist Gen. De Gaulle and reported tonight that a large French submarine was sunk after a "successful" attack upon a British cruiser.

About 500 casualties occurred in the first clash at Dakar Monday.

Meantime French Indo-China was under a renewed attack by the Japanese after French colonialists had recaptured the frontier town of Dongdang.

Aerial warfare in Europe continued intense today. The British gave Berlin its worst bombing of the war last night, and Germans admitted that damage had been done to factories, an interurban line and gas works. The German press demanded furious reprisals on Britain, and several large German bombers were shot down en route to London today.

The British bombed three German minesweepers and downed a flying boat in the English Channel besides attacking coastal "invasion" bases almost constantly, as well as bombing objectives inside of Germany.

The Spanish news agency reported that unidentified planes, believed to be French, today bombed Gibraltar, the British stronghold at the entrance to the Mediterranean, for more than two hours today.

Italian sources claimed that the attackers of Gibraltar were French planes from North Africa, angered over the attack upon Dakar.

London newspapers reported that a "considerable number" of the largest German troops were killed on barges in the English Channel, practicing for the "invasion" when they were surprised by a fleet of British bombers and a sudden channel storm.

Freshmen Gridders From Many States

FORT WORTH, Texas.—From Texas' smaller towns, and from points as distant as New York, Washington and Wyoming, come this year's crop of freshman football players at Texas Christian University.

Coch Walter Roach's 33-man squad included Doug Ogburn, a back whose home is Rawlins, Wyo.; Ted Reeves, 292-pound tackle from Newark, New York; and Bob Kirk, 210 pounds, candidate from Washington, D. C.

The accent is on linemen among this year's pollwag players, and there are few whose names are recognizable outside their home districts. Dee Ezell, lineman, and his twin, Don, a back, were stars of the fine Wink, Texas high school last fall. Bob McCullum was blocking back on the fine Waco high eleven in 1939.

The freshmen play their first game against North Texas Agricultural College here, Oct. 9.

Prize Cow Gulps A Bankroll Of $100

PUTLER, Pa.—Max Luther's cattle feed bill went up $100, but the quality of the milk he sells failed to improve.

One of the prize cows he keeps on his 60-acre farm fished a roll of handkerchief-wrapped money from his pocket at feeding time.

Luther managed to salvage two $20 bills and one $10 bill before bossy's $100 gulp.

Canadians Taking Up Religious Study In Iowa College

LAMONI, Ia.—War and not coincidence led all Canadian students who entered Graceland College here this fall to enroll in the religious education department.

They were required to tell customs officials they desired to study certain courses not available in Canada to take money out of their country.

Graceland is maintained by the reorganized church of Jesus Christ of Latter Day Saints, and by enrolling in the religious education classes the students kept the letter of the law.

Relics Revealing Indian Traders

POUGHKEEPSIE, N. Y.—The Indians that once roamed the Hudson River valley centuries ago were neat campers with a merchandising and industrial system not unlike today's, an archeological survey has revealed.

The survey, by Vassar College scientists through a Carnegie grant, resulted in a collection of hundreds of utensils and hunting weapons used by tribes that once lived in the Orange, Dutchess and Westchester counties areas.

The field party, directed by Dr. Mary Butler of the University of Pennsylvania Museum and Carlyle S. Smith of Columbia University, discovered a cache of quartz ready to be worked into weapons that indicated the industrial system.

The heap of broken pieces of rock was found at Shad Run. Some were roughly shaped.

"Such quarry blocks, chipped with a few blows into pear-shaped objects, often were traded about the country in that form to be finished off into whatever specific type point the individual buyer preferred," the report said.

That the tribes were good campers was indicated by the absence of tools or ornaments in the ancient dumping ground. The field workers reported the Indians at Shad Run—an oyster-eating tribe believed related to the Delaware Indians of Pennsylvania and New Jersey—apparently lived in a hilltop campsite at Shad Run, Westchester county, and threw their refuse over the Hudson river bank.

A total of 1,731 objects were recovered in the area explored. They included whole and broken arrow and spear points, knives, scrapers, drills, choppers, bone awls, fish gouges, a bone head and conch shell cup.

Future expeditions are expected to throw light on the extent and strength of the connections between "the peoples of this meeting ground of early cultures and their neighbors in New England and Western New York."

Town To Mark Utah Copper Strike Of '63

BINGHAM CANYON, Utah.—Workers in the Utah copper company's great open cut mine here—the largest in the world—this month celebrate the 77th anniversary of the discovery of ore in the district.

For two days residents of the canyon community, crowded into the narrow ravine which leads to the giant mine, will revel in what has come to be known as "Galena Days."

Just what the significance of that appellation is no one seems to know. But the history of the ore discovery is less obscure.

The first outcroppings were noted in 1863 by George B. Ogilvie. He took his samples to Fort Douglas, in Salt Lake City, and there the commandant, Col. Patrick E. Connor, pronounced them genuine.

Connor allowed many of his soldiers to prospect the territory. It was not until July, 1887, that the Utah Copper company was founded.

Ogilvie's choice of Col. Connor as a confidant in the discovery was dictated by necessity, for Brigham Young, president of the L. D. S. church in Salt Lake City, vigorously opposed development of a mining industry. Young believed always ended in a loss of human that the quest of precious metals values.

Auto Horn Ruled Out As Love Call

SALT LAKE CITY, Utah.—Salt Lake City's mayor, Al Jenkins—who recently banned "joke boxes" in beer parlors—is pushing his campaign against noise in another direction.

The mayor proclaimed the unnecessary blowing of automobile horns a misdemeanor.

"The auto horn should be used as a warning—not a love call," said he, professing a firm belief in the old formalities which provided that a dating swain should at least be willing to climb the stairs to his beloved's door.

STORAGE FOR CARBON WELL IS PROVIDED

Owners of the C. L. Mahaney well, brought in Saturday 2 1/2 miles south of Carbon on the A. S. Jackson lease in the S. H. Key survey of Eastland county lands, are busily engaged in placing storage. One 500-barrel tank was set Monday and another has been ordered.

The Mahaney well, which came in for a potential production of 1,200 barrels per day following a heavy shot at a depth of 2,641 feet, is reported as showing up well. It has been let lose only for a few minutes at a time.

The test is a quarter mile extension to a small producing well drilled by the Dobbs Oil Corporation of Eastland last year.

Acresage surrounding the new producer is held in small tracts. It is the second Eastland county well to attract attention in recent weeks by Caddo showing. The other was Jones & Stansley and Groover & Rose No. 1 McElreath five miles south of Cisco.

Interest in the Carbon territory is increasing daily and many operators are looking for opportunities to secure acresage in that vicinity.

Rotarians Will Hold Inter-City Meet In Eastland

The annual inter-city meeting of the Rotary clubs for this district yet to be named, it was stated at the regular weekly meeting of the Eastland club Monday. At the Monday meeting a committee composed of Carl F. Springer, Dr. J. H. Cason and Jack W. Frost, was named to make arrangements for this meeting.

Towns and clubs included in the Eastland district are Breckenridge, Cisco, Ranger and Eastland.

At the Eastland club meeting Monday, Judge W. P. Leslie, president, presided.

Carl Johnson, program chairman, took charge of the meeting and turned it into a discussion of matters of general interest to the club by members and visiting members.

Among the Rotarians visiting from other towns and clubs were Pete Nantz, Clark Roberts and E. Hooks of Cisco; and Andy Naylor of Breckenridge.

Garner Ends Exile; Willkie, Roosevelt Gives Out New Views

Fast-Action Brake For Autos Designed

MINNEAPOLIS, Minn.—A device which enables a driver to start braking his car in one-eighth of a second may reduce traffic hazards, according to Stanley E. Anderson, Superior, Wis.

His "gadget," as he calls it, combines an accelerator and brake pedal.

At 30 miles an hour the average driver travels 33 feet before he can jam on the brakes, but with Anderson's invention the time is cut to only five and one-half feet, a demonstration in the Twin Cities disclosed.

The accelerator is mounted directly below the brake; both are operated by one master pedal which fits the driver's shoe.

A 'Seventh Column'?

How about mixing a fine metaphor in true Irish style, and saying that the Fifth Column is now on the other foot? Reports from several of the occupied countries of Europe suggest that a little Fifth Columning is now being tried in reverse.

Like this: Hitler takes over a country, with the aid of sympathizers within, who sabotage and disorganize defense. But those people were only a minority, after all. There is an even greater minority, perhaps a large majority, of people who are not fond either of Nazism or Germans, and who bitterly and silently resent the occupation of their fatherland by alien troops, no matter how polite and ingratiating the invaders are instructed to be.

As the initial shock wears off, these people begin to turn their resentment into deeds, small and unorganized at first, but later more daring and better organized, which tend to undermine the occupying forces.

For instance, three Norwegians have been sentenced to death for radioing information to the British. That is merely a straw. The wind evidently blows in such a way as to indicate widespread spying by Norwegians, and a constant relaying of information to the British. Certain British air raids clearly suggest inside information on the exact location of military objectives.

Similarly in Denmark, one air raid in particular suggested "inside collaboration." There were four oil tanks in this town, and air raiders concentrated on only two of them, ignoring the other two. They were empty.

Such things may be repressed. But repression tends to destroy whatever good effect has come from studied efforts to mollify the population of conquered territories.

This is not to suggest that any of the conquered territories are ripe for an uprising against the conquerors. That is highly unlikely, even if food should become scarce this winter. But the position of the German armies of occupation can scarcely be pleasant, and the efficiency of producers working without a shadow of incentive or hope cannot be of the highest.

Meanwhile a gradually-organizing opposition, spying, sabotaging in every conquered country is a distinct possibility. We know the Fifth Column. Now perhaps Europe is seeing the beginnings of a Seventh Column, the Fifth reversed and backfiring against its own originators.

RED RYDER By Harman

Freckles and His Friends—By Blosser

THE PAY OFF BY HARRY GRAYSON NEA Service Sports Editor

RICHARD BARTELL was reported to be a broken-down rheumatic when the Chicago Cubs traded him to the Detroit club last winter for Billy Rogell.

But it is now obvious that Dick Bartell was suffering from nothing that Dennis Carroll couldn't cure.

Though the Cubs were desperately in need of a shortstop, Bartell is authority for the statement that the management didn't even bother to check up on his physical condition before shipping him.

"And I was sound as a dollar," he laughs, "and happy to be sent to a high class club like Detroit . . . given a fresh slant on things at 32 . . . after a dozen years in the National League."

"With no other club would I have Denny Carroll to put and keep me in the game."

BARTELL'S is the latest tribute to the veteran Carroll, the finest trainer in baseball.

Carroll has kept the ancient Charley Gehring and his aching back on the firing line day in and day out.

He restored life to Schoolboy Rowe's dead arm.

Carroll believed ankle trouble had kept Bartell on the sidelines in Chicago, but the shortstop pointed to a pulled muscle in his groin. Carroll promptly corrected the difficulty and showed Bartell how to train to prevent a recurrence.

Carroll, one-time amateur boxer and champion swimmer, spent 22 years with the San Francisco Seals before the Detroit club passed him in the spring of 1932. He had many previous offers, but preferred the Pacific coast, where sailing major leaguers went to him with astonishing results.

AT the conclusion of the 1931 campaign, Gehring was riding the bench . . . unable to throw the ball 30 feet. In Carroll's care, he started the season of 1932, and has been in the thick of things ever since.

Carroll, who professes to be nothing more than a masseur, but who mixes osteopathy with chiropractic and polishes it all off with a large dose of common sense, brought back the arms of Mickey Cochrane, Goose Goslin and General Crowder to help the Tigers to pennants in 1934 and '35.

Denny Carroll's magic hands have as much to do with the Tigers' success as the way clubs of Greenberg, York and McCook and the strong right arm of Bo-Bo Newsom.

The unfortunate indifference to such symptoms is based on the fact that because of a total lack of pain, no significance is attached to them by the average person. This explains one of the reasons for cancer's great power to kill," states Dr. Geo. W. Cox, State Health Officer.

In the beginning cancer is never recognizable to the patient as cancer. The danger signals are (1) Any lump in the breast or any other part of the body; (2) any persistent sore, particularly on the face or mouth; (3) any unusual discharge or bleeding; (4) chronic indigestion.

As already indicated, in the pre-cancerous stage there may be no physical discomfort or conscious physical impairment. While the above mentioned manifestations do not necessarily mean that cancer is in the offing, such an assumption never is justified. That is a question for the doctor, and only the doctor, to decide. Delay in the face of such symptoms is dangerous and may result in death.

If the present rate continues, one out of every thirteen fatalities of men from all causes, and one out of every eight in women would be due to cancer. In fact, cancer is only exceeded in Texas deaths by heart disease. It is important; therefore, logically cannot be overlooked.

Cancer is not contagious, is not a blood disease, is not caused by food or aluminum cooking utensils, nor does constipation have anything to do with it. Chronic irritations of certain types are precursors of cancer, but the underlying reason for the change in normal tissue cells to the wild growth characterizing cancer is yet unknown.

It follows that wisdom is involved in a properly balanced curiosity when warning symptoms appear, and that means a prompt visit to the family physician for immediate diagnosis; better still, annual visits for complete examination by a physician may result in discovery of the very earliest conditions which yield to medical care. On the other hand, an unjustified fear of cancer is foolish. In YESTERDAY, Sue Mary saw through the whole scheme now, began to question the aims of the party. Nick recognizes a change, but Sue insists everything is just the same.

NICK PREDICTS TROUBLE

CHAPTER XV

HER eyes newly opened, as it were, to the undercurrents about her, Sue Mary doggedly concentrated on her work at the office while in her secret mind she tried to discover what goal Vera was working towards.

Across from her Kitty, too, watched. Her eyes took in every detail of Vera's cool black sheen, with the starched ruffled collar; the severe black braids coiled around her head; the red slash of lips across the tanned face.

Kitty watched Vera because a few moments ago young Ross Clark had come in the office. He always kidded the girls, teased Miss Grant and teased the breakfast table before dashing out again.

But today he had stopped at Vera's desk and the low murmur of their voices came to Kitty and Sue Mary. Kitty sat frozen, her face pale except for two crimson spots that matched the red in her candy-striped wash frock.

She rubbed her forehead with an ink hand and wished that somehow she could see clearly all the ramifications. All she knew was that she sensed danger; that much as she desired to, she couldn't yet break from Vera and Nick.

Perhaps it was hurt pride that was driving her on. And snger at having been outsmarted or a desire now to prove to herself that she could stop them in whatever it was they hoped to accomplish.

She wanted desperately to see Joe. She wanted to talk to him, to confess the facts she had discovered. She wanted to admit she had been a fool and hear him tell her that nothing mattered but that she loved her.

Instead, she had to go to the hall for a special meeting of the campaign publicity committee. At that, she thought, it would be better than going to the apartment where she would have to face no only Natalie but Vera and possibly Nick as well.

It was going to be hard to try and assume a pose of innocence. "And he probably could use some extra money. He's probably trying to unload some of his real estate through this airport deal. Anyway that's the talk about town."

"Talk about town—I'm sick of it," Kitty said, banging her hands down on her typewriter. "Talk around here—I'm sick of that, too."

"I'm sick of the way these government men keep snooping around here. This isn't an office anymore; it's a prison, a concentration camp. Just because the legal work for a plane and automobile factory is done here, every piece of paper has to be checked and filed and guarded."

WHAT she's sick of, Sue Mary thought, is the way young Ross Clark looks at Vera. And so that makes her sick of the whole world.

She wondered if he was trying to unload some property for an airport site. She supposed the YP group would make use of such material. The idle rich trying to milk the taxpayers by selling high-priced land for a site that could be obtained more reasonably elsewhere.

Yes, that would be right up the YP alley—particularly now that the election was in the offing. The present governor was a former law partner of old Ross Clark. The picture would fit together perfectly. He had appointed young Clark on the committee; he was running for re-election.

She rubbed her forehead with an ink hand and wished that somehow she could see clearly all the ramifications. All she knew was that she sensed danger; that much as she desired to, she couldn't yet break from Vera and Nick.

Perhaps it was hurt pride that was driving her on. And snger at having been outsmarted or a desire now to prove to herself that she could stop them in whatever it was they hoped to accomplish.

She wanted desperately to see Joe. She wanted to talk to him, to confess the facts she had discovered. She wanted to admit she had been a fool and hear him tell her that nothing mattered but that she loved her.

Instead, she had to go to the hall for a special meeting of the campaign publicity committee. At that, she thought, it would be better than going to the apartment where she would have to face no only Natalie but Vera and possibly Nick as well.

It was going to be hard to try and assume a pose of innocence. "And he probably could use some extra money. He's probably trying to unload some of his real

AT the hall she took notes of the meeting for the records and then afterwards, when Vera and Natalie brought out salami, cheese, olives and beer for a lunch in the office, she listened to the by-now familiar talk with a new understanding.

I was blind, she kept repeating to herself. Blind and stupid. A naive child, as Vera said.

The implications made her break out into a cold sweat. She had been hearing these arguments for weeks but only now did she comprehend them.

There were no subversive elements at work within the country. None except certain government officials. And when the YP succeeded in getting Fritz King in as governor they would be doing the same as a real service because he would immediately introduce changes in the state; changes that could well serve as models for others.

"But we have to wake the people up before we can do anything," Vera said, her face alight and her eyes searching Nick's moody face for an answering smile.

"Well we will. They'll soon see just how far money goes without man-power," Nick said. "There's going to be trouble out at the Smithson factory."

The union has a new contract ready. It comes up in a week and if the company doesn't talk terms, that outfit makes carburetors for the Gull plane and it wouldn't be helpful with all those plane orders in to have a strike at Smithson."

SUE MARY sat her beer glass down on the scarred desk. Her hand shook and some of the beer spilled. She tried to keep her voice steady. Smithson was where Joe worked. Trouble at Smithson would mean trouble for Joe.

"But Nick," she said when she could control herself. "I thought the union and the management were friendly at Smithson."

"The management wouldn't be if a picket line suddenly started up around the plant."

"But why should there be a picket line? Isn't negotiating done over a conference table?"

"Yes, little one, but maybe the workers would get impatient with the negotiations and start picketing. That has been known to happen if someone gets to the workers and tips them off as to what's going on."

"You're still learning, Sue Mary," he added. "And if a strike does start you'll see how smart operators really work."

Changes Are Being Made In Personnel Of State Agencies

By United Press

AUSTIN, Tex.—Rapid changes are beginning to take place in the personnel of state departments. First there were drastic changes in the Bureau of Labor Statistics. Nine inspectors of the Beauty Board (State Board of Cosmetology) will be replaced by October 1; many men are leaving the state police and changes are expected in the Department of Public Welfare at any time.

The changes in state police are coming as the result of demands for trained police to guard government defense projects. The call has been particularly strong for state police captains. Resignations are being received by the state which is unable to match the salaries being offered.

French Youth Now In England Cannot Write His Mother

By United Press

FORT WORTH, Texas.—Sometime this month a mother at Montnaie, France, should learn from a correspondent in Fort Worth that her son is safe in Great Britain.

The French youth is only a short distance from home, but he cannot correspond with his mother. So he asked 20-year-old Howard Griffin of Fort Worth to "write my mother . . . very discreetly, without giving my name—so there will be no suspicion that she has a son in England fighting against Hitler's France."

Griffin declined to give his French friend's real name, but said they were close friends a year ago when both were studying sonic therapy in a French insane asylum. The French youth, 24, managed to escape with refugees into Great Britain after his own country capitulated.

Now a secretary and interpreter in the "free French" army being raised in Britain by General De Gaulle, the youth's message to his mother will travel a distance almost equal to the world's circumference although he is only a few score miles from her.

"She will understand immediately," the letter to Griffin said. "It certainly would relieve her." The writer insists that Griffin use caution "because the German police are terrible and their control is to be feared even in unoccupied territory."

The Frenchman, who said he was stationed at Liverpool, declared that "the spirit in England is excellent. Life here is still beautiful, free, and relatively easy."

Griffin roomed with the French youth in an old Chateau before the outbreak of war. The Fort Worth student stayed in France until late October, 1939, and assisted on several occasions in getting the 420 women inmates of the mental institution to air raid shelters.

ed to retire before the next football season. His last official duties were taking care of the equipment at the Aggie coaching school this month.

Assistant Coach Harry Faulkner has now taken over the equipment and "Sarge" retires for the second time at the age of 63. He is making his new home in San Antonio to wait until the Aggies play Tulsa University there October 5.

Movie Is Studied Of A Lost Colony

By United Press

MANTEO, N. C.—The story of the Lost Colony of Roanoke—now subject of a controversy between experts on early American history—may be made into a movie.

A group of movie magnates, headed by Cecil B. DeMille, recently visited Roanoke Island, and adjoining territory. They were accompanied by Paul Green, University of North Carolina instructor, who annually produces the "Pageant of the Lost Colony" at Manteo.

The "Lost Colony" is history's designation for the group of Englishmen settled on Roanoke by Sir Walter Raleigh in 1587. Immediately after the landing, John White, the governor, sailed back to England in the only available ship. When he returned to the new world four years later, there was no trace of his colonists save the word "Croatan" carved on a tree. Historians have assumed, until COLLEGE STATION, Tex.—recently at least, that the colonists were massacred to the last man by hostile Indians. During the past three years however, a series of carved stones have been unearthed in the Carolinas and Georgia purporting to be messages chiseled by Eleanor Dare, daughter of Gov. White and mother of Virginia Dare, first white girl born in America.

The stones tell a cryptic story of sudden death and hardships that beset the colonists as they fled from Roanoke inland to the mountains of western Georgia.

The stones, which are exhibited at Brenau College, Gainesville, Ga., are looked upon with suspicion by some historians. However, others say there is "no reason" to doubt their authenticity.

James T. (Sarge) Carroll, Texas Aggie athletic equipment manager for the past 13 years, has given out and collected his last towel at the haunts of the national champions.

"Sarge," who was retired from the army in 1921 after fighting in every war this country was engaged in, from the Spanish American through the World War, is a member of the Order of the Purple Heart. This honor was bestowed upon him in 1936, but it was for a wound he received in 1900. From May 1899 till May 1902, "Sarge" was in 56 engagements. His war service carried him to the Philippine Islands, Mexico, Mindaonou, Europe and various states in the United States.

In 1921 he came to A. & M. and was in charge of some of the dormitories and the student's post office until Coach Dana Bible asked him to take over the athletic equipment room. In his first year at the field house the Aggie gridders won the conference championship. That was in 1927. Thirteen years later when the Aggies won the national title, he notified Coach Norton that he wanted

Peanut Warehouse In Ranger To Be Opened On Friday

The Ranger peanut warehouse will be opened Friday for the third year of its operation, it was announced today by J. F. Mosley, warehouseman.

Peanut threshing is underway in nearly every portion of the county, and peanuts are now being accumulated for storage in the various warehouses.

Regular government prices for the peanuts will be paid. It was stated today that some of the peanuts are not up to standard in portions of the country, while in other localities, where the season was more suitable, excellent peanuts are to be found.
