UNITED PRESS SERVICE BRINGS LATE NEWS OF THE WORLD TO TIMES READERS
RANGER, TEXAS, WEDNESDAY EVENING, DECEMBER 4, 1940

PRICE 3c DAILY (6c ON SUNDAY) NO. 140

5,000 OFFICERS MUST PAY FEE BY YEAR END

By United Press
AUSTIN, Tex.—Approximately 5,000 officials scattered over Texas' 254 counties will have to remit a fee of $1 to the secretary of state when they take office at the end of this month, as a result of the Nov. 5 general election.

In past years many officials have neglected this little financial formality. After the 1938 election many neglected it and some time ago Secretary of State M. O. Flowers assigned a department employee to collecting the fee and found it very advantageous to the office revenues.

One official when called upon sent a check that bounced back when an attempt was made to cash it.

A second letter citing the penalty for bad checks brought quick and valid response.

This year each county clerk is being notified what officials in his county are required to make the remittance.

As a result of adoption of the amendment to the state constitution under which notaries public are to be named by the secretary of state, notices will be sent also to the county clerks, giving them instructions on how to make recommendations for such appointments in their counties.

The clerks will be asked to ascertain that the applicants meet with the legal requirements of age and residence in the county. A recent check revealed that some persons hold notary commissions in more than one county though residence in the county is prerequisite.

It is not anticipated that many applications for appointment will be received this year for notary commissions issued now will expire on June 1. After that, two-year commissions will be issued, all expiring June 1, 1943.

Dam Will Enrich Sonora Valley

By United Press
SONORA, Mexico.—Over a century of efforts have been made to make the Angostura Dam project in this northwestern Mexican state on the Bavispe river a reality, but it was not until the Cardenas administration was inaugurated six years ago that the project was begun.

When the huge dam is completed in the near future it will form a lake about 26 miles long and 10 miles wide. Water for irrigation and other purposes will be assured to the vast, arid wastes of the state of Sonora and for the rich Yaqui Valley more than 200 miles south of Angostura. Water will be stored during the rainy seasons and distributed during the dry months.

They Wield the Axis Over Europe

Small Towns Get Air Mail Pickup

By United Press
PITTSBURGH, Pa.—America's small towns, "forgotten" as far as air mail service is concerned, are coming into their own.

Unlike the nation's larger cities on the major air routes, small communities necessarily have been more or less "out in the cold" in regard to direct air mail service.

The so-called pickup service apparently has provided the answer to this problem.

Several years ago, the idea of picking up and dropping mail without landing the plane was conceived by an Irwin, Pa., man, Dr. Lytle S. Adams. Today, the system has been established on a permanent basis, and soon will be operating to 131 cities in five states.

Hook Catches Mail Bag
The pickup system eliminates the necessity of large landing fields, which most small towns could not afford. Under the plan in operation, the mail plane simply lowers a hook as it swoops over the field, and the mail bag, suspended between two poles, is picked up. The plane drops a bag of incoming mail at the same time, and continues on its way.

All-American Aviation, Inc., with headquarters in Pittsburgh, is the air line which operates in the air mail pickup field. It is headed by Richard C. duPont, a member of the wealthy Wilmington, Del., family.

Organized in May, 1939, All-American operated on an experimental basis until Aug. 12, 1940, when the Postoffice Department, convinced of its possibilities, approved the service, and it was granted a certificate of operation by the Civil Aeronautics Board.

Operates From Pittsburgh
The company now operates on four routes, all radiating out of Pittsburgh. Operating every day except Sunday, the service makes a round-trip to all the cities on its routes once a day, going out in the morning and coming back in the afternoon. There are 112 cities in Pennsylvania, New York, Ohio, West Virginia and Delaware on the four routes now in operation, and a fifth route will add 19 more towns.

The company reports it has completed 95.6 per cent of its schedule since the service was placed on a permanent basis Aug. 12. The cancellations were blamed on bad weather and other unavoidable conditions.

All-American now has seven planes in operation, each with a crew of two—a pilot and a pickup man. In addition, a messenger at each city takes the mail to and from the postoffice.

Dr. Adams no longer is connected with the company.

DOBBS NO. 2 IN CARBON AREA DRILLING PLUG

Attention is again focused on the South Carbon oil field as the Dobbs Oil Corporation prepares to bring in their Thompson No. 2, just east of the C. L. Mahaney No. 1 Jackson.

Dobbs was scheduled to begin Tuesday afternoon drilling out cement plug on top of the Caddo lime. Pipe was set at 2,560 feet, where the Caddo was topped in other wells of the pool. No show of oil is reported, but it is due to be a good producer as it is located between Dobbs' No. 1 Thompson, a 250 barrel well, and the 800-barrel Mahaney-Jackson No. 14.

The Fox J. H. Vaughn No. 1, north offset to the Mahaney-Jackson No. 1, has been placed on the pump as a small commercial producer.

South of the Jackson Gallagher & Lawson are drilling at around 2,250 feet, and to the west of the Jackson on the Mahaney No. 2 Jackson is drilling at around 850 feet.

Class Business Spur to Pupils In Arithmetic

By United Press
BUFFALO, N. Y.—A successful business is owned and operated here by sixth-grade school children.

The business, now in its third year, is known as the Sixth Grade Co-Operative, and retails pencils, paper, notebooks and similar supplies to pupils at the State Teachers College School of Practice.

The 51 year stockholders, who paid 3 cents for each share they own, also are the store's best customers.

Miss Eleanor Grover, supervisor of the project, explains that the business was begun and is carried on as a "painless" method of instruction. In addition, she said, the naval air force will have its own petrol ship for refueling its planes.

The first contingent which was to have embarked for England early next month, has been delayed until January, 1941, due to slowness of plane deliveries.

The first squadron to be sent overseas will comprise 12 pilots and 138 other personnel to make up a complete unit, including ground crews. The unit will have its own doctor and ambulance car and be independent of the English air force so as not to hamper their comrades in arms, Capt. Riiser-Larsen said.

E. R. Priesing Is Presented Today at Rotary Meeting

Miss Teva Carroll of Rising Star was a visitor at the club today representing the Girls NYA School. C. R. Pruet will have the program next Wednesday.

Elks Will Have a Memorial Service Sunday Morning

Memorial services for the B. P. O. Elks will be held at the First Christian Church of Ranger Sunday morning at 11 o'clock, with Rev. H. B. Johnson delivering the memorial service sermon. It was announced today.

All members of the Elks Lodge have been urged to attend and the public is invited to be present.

All officers of the Ranger Lodge have been urged to be present at the meeting Friday night, in order that arrangements for the service might be completed. A roast beef supper will be served at the conclusion of the meeting Friday.

Senators Get New Stationery Supply

By United Press
AUSTIN, Tex.—Gov. W. Lee O'Daniel, who had an imposing inauguration of his own in the University of Texas stadium in January of 1939, did not go to Mexico City to attend the inauguration of President Avila Camacho, though invited to be one of the Mexican government's guests for the occasion.

Carr P. Collins of Dallas was designated as the Texas governor's representative at the inauguration. The governor's family was represented by Molly O'Daniel, the governor's pretty daughter.

State senators now have their official stationery for the 47th Texas Legislature and can write letters to their constituents on letter heads bearing their names.

Last week the senators each received a communication on his own stationery. The letter was from Senate Secretary Bob Barker, sending them the stationery. Incidentally, the veteran senate secretary intimated that he would be happy to receive the vote of the senator for another term as secretary when the senate meets.

Members of the house of representatives will have to wait until the session is under way before they receive stationery for the 47th session. It is not issued in the house until after the election of the speaker, selection of officers and appointment of committees.

JUNIOR RED CROSS DRIVE IS COMPLETE

The Junior Red Cross, which is the Red Cross in the schools, closes its roll call with a record enrollment in Eastland county.

Twenty-seven hundred children of Eastland county are wearing the Red Cross button this year in comparison to approximately 1,000 in past years.

The entire enrollment of a school room becomes members of the Junior Red Cross by paying a fifty cent fee for the room. This is a small fee, but considering the number of school rooms over the country which become members, the total revenue is of considerable value to the Red Cross fund.

The Junior Red Cross funds are used for the same purposes as the adult Red Cross.

Schools in Eastland County enrolling in Junior Red Cross this year are as follows: Hodges Oak Park Ward School, and Cooper Ward School, Ranger; Colony Grade School, Olden; Deaconess Grade School, Carbon; Deaconess Grade School, Carbon; West Ward, Eastland; South Ward, Eastland; Junior High Eastland; Morton Valley Grade School, Morton Valley; High School, Gorman; Gorman High School, and Young Ward School, Ranger.

Decision of Lower Court Upheld In Brazos Dam Case

The Eleventh Court of Civil Appeals, in a decision handed down Tuesday afternoon, upheld the judgment of the County court of Palo Pinto county in the case of the Brazos River Conservation and Reclamation district vs. J. C. Reese et al in which Reese and associates had asked for an injunction restraining the Brazos River authorities from closing the flood gates at Pottsum Kingdom Dam. The Palo Pinto court granted a temporary injunction and the Eastland court sustained this decision.

NEW YORK, Dec. 4.—Twenty-nine corporations and 66 individuals were named in six anti-trust indictments opened today in federal court.

GREEKS KEEP WINNING AS U. S. AID FOR THE BRITISH IS DISCUSSED

Greek armies continued to attack the Italian lines in Albania today, despite mud and snow, while Washington sources revealed plans were underway to aid Britain's fight against the Axis bombers and submarines.

Italy called up 250,000 more troops as the Greeks pressed closer to the Fascist Albanian bases at Porto Edda and Argyrokastron.

In Washington, Secretary of Commerce Jesse Jones indicated that he considers Great Britain a "good risk" for certain types of war loans and it was indicated Sir Frederick Phillips, British undersecretary of treasury, will make known his country's financial condition when he arrives in the United States late today.

Some quarters believed that the United States will be asked to send ships as well as money to Great Britain.

The British House of Commons heard today that their experts expected success soon in their search for methods to combat the Axis submarines and air attacks as indications mounted that damage to British industry must be considerable.

Chile at Bat Again

Since President Roosevelt proclaimed the United States would not permit any foreign power to get a new foothold in the Western Hemisphere and obtained naval and air bases in Britain's American possessions, there has been much talk of seeking similar favors in South America.

In Chile this talk has received a decidedly frosty nip. The leading government-controlled newspaper denounced any rumors that Chile was going to give the United States any such bases. It said such action would be contrary to international law. It maintained that even the gravest situation would not warrant such sovereignty, because the sovereignty itself would be worse than the danger "played up as an excuse."

Then the paper added: "Chile can look after itself."

The newspaper's tone is in entire keeping with a certain belligerent, bantam rooster spirit in the Chileans. There was a time when it looked as if in their temerity they would come into armed conflict with the United States.

Back in 1891 the supporters of the Chilean Congress revolted against President Balmaceda and overthrew him. Those who engineered the successful revolt charged the United States had shown favoritism toward Balmaceda. Oct. 16, 1891, a party of sailors landed at Valparaiso on shore leave from the U. S. warship Baltimore. They were attacked in the town. Two sailors were killed and many wounded by knives and clubs.

President Benjamin Harrison demanded an apology and indemnity, but the Chilean foreign minister simply made an insolent statement which excited both sides. The Chileans boasted of what they would do in case of armed conflict. And so weak at that time was the American navy that the Chilean navy was actually superior in certain types of vessels.

Jan. 2, 1892, Harrison sent an ultimatum to Chile and four days later sent what was tantamount to a war message to Congress. But by that time Chile had a new foreign minister, who used his common sense and the troublesome episode was ended by a satisfactory apology.

But the incident illuminates American dealings with Latin America. The Latin Americans have long memories. They don't easily forgive troubles with Uncle Sam. And forces unfriendly to the United States see that they do not forget.

It's well to remember that if you have a good past you can save it for future reference.

Census Bureau reports 150,362,326 persons now living under the American flag. We've had no definite report on how many are dying under other flags.

Mystery Lifts On Old Scout's Disappearance

By Unsub Press

SALIDA, Colo.—The 37-year-old mystery surrounding the death of Smith Steele, Indian scout and pioneer, may be solved with the discovery of a rusted rifle made in 1869 and parts of a human skeleton.

The cranium was the only part of the skeleton recovered. The rifle a double-trigger, 40-caliber Sharp, was so rusted it was impossible to determine whether it was loaded.

Identification is tentative because Fred Ciancio, who made the discovery, found no silver watch near the gun and skull. Steele always carried a one-pound watch and rifle.

He had them with him when he came into a store at Turret—not far from Salida—and ordered some groceries back in 1903. He had been prospecting and was down on his luck. He couldn't pay for the groceries and said he would go over and see a man who owed him $500 and come back for the groceries. He never came back. The last sight of him was he strode away, his rifle over his shoulder. Steele had had many skirmishes with the Indians. When he heard of the Meeker massacre, he rushed to assist the settlers. He was a well-known person and his disappearance was the talk of this part of the state.

So intense was the excitement that an old-timer sought the aid of a clairvoyant in the East. The seer said Steele had entered a cabin and had been shot through the head. He said the body was loaded on a burro and taken to a clump of trees. The woods were searched for weeks for a clump of trees answering the clairvoyant's description.

BRUCE CATTON IN WASHINGTON STIFFER INCOME, EXCESS PROFITS LEVIES DUE IN GENERAL OVERHAULING OF TAX STRUCTURE

By Bruce Catton
NEA Service Staff Correspondent

WASHINGTON.—A general overhauling of the federal tax structure is almost inevitable this winter, and stiffer income and excess profits tax levies are in the cards.

Catton

The administration has not yet formulated the tax program it will set before Congress, but one thing is perfectly obvious: the government has got to have more money.

A record deficit is being created in this fiscal year. Tax revenues from all sources will run to about $6,000,000,000. Expenditures will go above $12,000,000,000. Next year's expenditures will almost certainly be as high as that, if not higher.

As the national income rises the present tax set-up will give a bigger yield. How much bigger, no one knows. Treasury opinion is that the increase wouldn't be nearly enough and that higher levies are imperative.

ANY DEFLATIONARY STEPS OPPOSED

THERE is no thought of seeking to put the government on a pay-as-you-go basis. Secretary Morgenthau, like most other administration high-ups, opposes any really deflationary step just as full recovery seems to be taking hold.

Right now Treasury experts are inclined to feel that about a billion is all that could be added to the "take."

Probably the first item on the administration's program will be strengthening of the economic tax. The President is slightly dissatisfied with the tax that was hurried through Congress last summer. He'd asked for a deeply-graduated bill to prevent the government from being what he got was a set of fairly mild rates, plus an alternative method of computing the taxes, which—in the Treasury's opinion—gives a prodigious advantage to corporations which happened to make good profits in the last few years.

Hence the administration will ask that the rates be stiffened, and that computation of the tax be permitted only on the basis of invested capital.

INCOME TAX BOOST MAY FACE FIGHT

HIGHER income taxes are also in the cards. Present talk in the Treasury suggests a boost in the normal rate—possibly from the present 4 per cent to 5 or 6 per cent. Personal exemptions and credits may be reduced, although the administration opposes too much broadening of the tax base for fear of cutting consumer purchasing power.

It's quite possible the administration won't get its way on the income tax boost without a hard fight in Congress. There's considerable feeling there in favor of boosting the special 10 per cent defense-tax levy on income taxes in place of hiking the normal rates—the idea being that the defense tax is clearly temporary, but that once a normal rate is raised it tends to stay raised.

Nuisance taxes on gasoline, cigarettes, theater tickets, etc., are due to be kept. New sources of tax revenue will be sought. One current suggestion would put a special tax on soft drinks. Such a tax during the World War brought in $50,000,000, and the theory is that with greatly increased consumption nowadays it'd be good for twice that much.

There is also some sentiment in the new deal for trying to put into the tax bill various related financial features desired by the administration. These would include, in addition to the specific increases, the raising of the debt limit to $40,000,000,000 or more and the elimination of tax exemption on securities. The latter item will probably "pick up such a fight" though, that it may get put in.

CHAPTER XVI

COLONEL McDAVID, a brusque but friendly enough man of almost 60 years, was explaining things to Andre Girardeau. He had accepted Thomas Bailey's announcement that Andre was soon to be in the family both personally and financially.

"Terrific waste and inefficiency has been the concern of us all in studying bombing planes," Mr. Girardeau said. "Now take this ship itself—it is as fine a craft as ever entered the skies, an extremely powerful motor, maneuverability that is a dream to any pilot, long range fuel supply, all the best of modern invention in both aviation and military fields. Notice the gun mountings, even the new type armor, light but effective. Only thing lacking is a dependable method of aiming and dropping explosives. And that, sir, is precisely what we have now developed!"

"Excellent!" Andre nodded.

"Step into the ship with me, please," the colonel invited. When they were inside the big army plane Colonel McDavid pointed at one of the bombing controls. "See this? See this odd-looking device?"

"Yes."

"All right. Now here is the eye piece, here the manual controls. In a matter of seconds, Mr. Girardeau, a trained man can have the exact range on any target—battle-ship, building, anything—and release his bomb with complete ease and assurance. Almost automatically the correction is made for ship speed and wind. It is little short of phenomenal!"

Andre looked impressed. "Priceless!"

"We expect to give it every rapid test here in New Mexico where air currents are more variable and visibility different from the coastal zones. We will use smaller targets, greater heights. Any detail learned will be of infinite value in training our forces."

"I understand that the operator himself needn't know the exact construction of the sight. Is that correct?"

"It is. Notice that the device is in a sealed metal housing, largely its secret can be kept from the man who uses it."

"What of subversive activity, Colonel? Spies?"

"Oh, bosh! Our Intelligence Department is not asleep. But, of course, every precaution is taken. For instance, we have two bomb sights with us here, and six men. We six will never let these planes out of our sight while these tests are under way. That's why Mr. Bailey built hangars so near his residence for us. We even sleep in the planes."

"I see," Andre nodded. "Wise precaution."

He wondered just how much more comment he could make. He wanted to ask a great many more questions, and to study the way the bomb sight was attached to the ship. But he decided not to press his good luck too hard for the time being.

THERE in the Rainbow Canyon cliff dwelling, Ronnie Bailey stared off with a sense of mounting excitement. She bit her lower lip, turned slowly to look wide-eyed at the young professor beside her. She looked like a little girl on a high adventure of childhood.

"Gee-e-e, Wes!" she breathed.

"It is mysterious. They haven't appeared so they must have concealed themselves behind a boulder."

"Wes, I don't believe it is simply a boy friend. They wouldn't pick a spot like this far away to meet, would they?"

"She is a Mexican girl. Perhaps he is a Mexican. Perhaps one who is not an American citizen and is unable to gain legal entry into the country, but has just slipped up this canyon to meet her."

"No," said Ronnie.

"Why not? I think it's a good guess."

"It shows what you know about girls, I think. Rather, what you don't know. Wes, your binoculars are very strong. I could see that man's face and everything in detail, and I am certain I've lost the answer. For one thing, he was much older than Lona."

"That's so."

"And a more—well, rougher type. No, there's something afoot, Wes. All I can say is that Lona picks strange places and times to meet her men."

Wes nodded. He could agree to that, for he had seen Andre Girardeau leave Lona's apartment. Now here was Lona meeting yet another man under mysterious circumstances.

"Part of my faculty responsibility is to help guard the, uh, general welfare of the students," Wesley was saying, as if to himself, "but I confess that I don't know what GEAR is to—"

Ronnie interrupted. "They're coming out! There they are! ... She's going back toward her horse ... And the man is going off down the canyon, Wes!"

THEY waited and watched for 10 minutes or so, alternating with the glasses.

"Wes, the man is dragging something; a brush, or limb of a tree."

Wes inspected the man closely. "It's too shadowy there now to see well, but I think I understand that. He's dragging a brush behind him to erase his tracks. A strong wind nearly always comes up this canyon; it would conceal the brush marks. Any chance traveler would never suspect a thing."

"Where is Lona now?"

"On her horse again, riding back toward home."

Ronnie, still bright interest and excitement, suddenly grasped her companion's arm. "Wesley, let's go down there!"

"Where they—were?"

"Yes! I'm dying to see if anything's there!"

"Come on!"

Adventure spirit engulfed them. They waited until a long ground rise concealed Lona from possible view of the cliff dwelling, then slid down the ladders and the steep slope to the canyon floor again. In a moment more they were on their horses.

THEY rode as quietly as they could even though there was no apparent need for silence, and presently came to the place where Lona had dismounted. They dismounted too, nursing a sense of danger, real or otherwise.

"Gee-e-e, Wes, I'm all tingly, but—come on!"

They passed the rock enclosure they had seen from afar, and neared the boulders where Lona and the strange man had disappeared. No evidence of mankind was visible anywhere, no slight track or other sign that these two could see. But when Wes and Ronnie had crept past rocks higher than their heads, Wes—in the lead—abruptly stopped. Ronnie already was holding his big hand, like a scared little girl.

"What is it?" she whispered.

"The dark crevice there,—see! It's a cave!"

He squeezed her hand, sensing her alarm. Plainly she understood that their danger was genuine.
