 Since the beginning of the conflict, there have been about 40 air raids in the German capital. Bombs actually were dropped on perhaps 30 occasions, but Berlin shows very few scars for the first three months of aerial warfare.
 For a time, RAF raiders appeared over the city four or five times a week, which jolted some of the beer hall oracles who said British fliers never would get this far. Of late, however, the raids have decreased both in frequency and intensity. After each raid, authorities rush repairs.
 Berlin, however, has gotten off much more lightly than Hamburg, Bremen and some of the Rhine-land cities, which from May to mid-November have had very few nights without the warning wail of the air raid sirens.
 There is no mass-scale celling in Berlin as there is in London and no nightly trucks with bedding to subways and public shelters, which here are comparatively small and are intended only for people caught in the streets.
 In this city of 4,000,000, most shelters are converted cellars and nearly every Berlin apartment

British Dancer Says American Attitude Follows the British

DALLAS, Texas.—Rita Lupino, British born dancer and sister of screen actress Mrs. Lupino, said the attitude of Americans that they will not have to fight a war was similar to that of Britons prior to the present war.
 "It is a feeling of apprehension in regard to Hitler," she said, "but there also seems to be a feeling among Americans that they will not be called upon to fight."
 "That was exactly the way people of my country felt two years ago."
 Miss Lupino came to America just before war broke out in Europe. Her mother and sister live in Hollywood. Her father, a comedian, remain in London to give stage performances under government regulations to help keep up the morale of the people.
 She said that her sister and many other stars were giving "so very graciously" to the "aid Britain" campaign.
 "It thrills me to see the pro-British attitude of Americans and the help they are giving," she declared.

RAF Slacks Off On Capitol Raids But Berliners Still Go To Shelters Whenever Air Raid Sirens Sound

By Joseph W. Grigg, Jr.
 United Press Staff Correspondent
 BERLIN, Dec. 13.—An air alarm heralded the approach of British bombers to Berlin and in our apartment house there was a bit of grousing as everyone went down to the cellar.
 One man had a thermos bottle of ersatz coffee. One woman argued heatedly with an air raid warden who wouldn't let her change her mind and go back to bed.
 Another woman thought she had seen a bed bug on the sofa and a wild hunt ensued—without results. Several persons carried sandwiches to the shelter. Most of us tried to sleep through the four-hour raid but without much luck.
 The German capital has escaped far more lightly during R. A. F. raids than many cities of western Germany and recently there has been a period in which no bombers have attacked Berlin.
 But Berliners have had enough to feel they are in the war zone.
 Some houses have special cellars for Jews. A woman acquaintance told me one cellar in her house usually is crowded while the other is comparatively empty. She said she always sat in the empty one because it was much "more cheerful" until she told an air warden about it.
 "But don't you know," the warden said, "those are Jews."
 People in the streets during an air raid must hustle immediately to the nearest public shelter. Mostly the shelters are clean, sanitary and stonily built with gas-proof doors, but often they have insufficient seating accommodations. I was caught once on my way to the office and spent five painful hours sitting on an upturned bucket in a shelter.
 Despite a year on Nazi discipline, many Berliners still show surprising resistance to being herded into cellars and, despite repeated warnings and threats, thousands—perhaps as many as 10 per cent of the people—remain upstairs.
 Many of the truck owners will join in such a movement. Some complain that permits obtained from the state for motor truck operation are no longer desirable but a handicap. The permit holder, they say, is liable for penalties while free lance trucks ignore all sort of regulations and seldom are caught and penalized.

Railroads Not To Fight Truck Limit Repeal Campaign

AUSTIN, Tex.—Railroads, it has been learned, will not make a fight in the next session of the legislature to prevent repeal of the law that now limits motor truck loads to 7,000 pounds, with few exceptions.
 Instead, the railroad folks will direct their energies to seeing that whatever limit is placed on motor trucks there is effective companion legislation to bring about its enforcement.
 Many of the truck owners will join in such a movement. Some complain that permits obtained from the state for motor truck operation are no longer desirable but a handicap. ITALIANS AGAIN FAIL TO STOP ADVANCES OF BRITISH AND GREEKS

Fascist Editors Blame Badoglio With Reverses
 ROME, Dec. 13.—Two foremost fascist editors discussed the Italian military reverses in Albania and Egypt today with Roberto Farinacci, former secretary general of the fascist party, launching a bitter attack on Marshal Pietro Badoglio, "resigned" chief of staff.
 Virginio Gayda admitted in the Giornale D'Italia that the outcome of the battle in Egypt would prove decisive so far as Italy's place in the war was concerned and he went so far as to recall Italy's famous retreat from Caporetto during the World War.
 Writing in the party organ Regime Fascista, Farinacci said that military commanders alone were to blame for the situation in Albania and that Italy's political command had done its utmost to aid the ill-fated Italian campaign against Greece.
 Apparently referring to Badoglio, Farinacci said that a "certain person" had promised to conduct the campaign against Greece with forces already stationed in Albania. The promise was made before Italy attempted to invade Greece, Farinacci said.
 "The new chief of staff, Gen. Ugo Cavallero, aided by Gen. Ubaldo Soddu is solving the situation in Albania," Farinacci said.
 "A certain person, who should keep quiet, is saying in drawing rooms and to friends on hunting trips that he did not want the Greek campaign and such undertakings needed a greater number of divisions. It should be known that this same person had promised to carry out the action with forces already stationed in Albania. Anything to the contrary is untrue."
 "It is childish to place responsibility on the political command when military conduct of the war belongs alone to the technical side."
 "The government was not stinging with the army but allotted 170,000,000,000 lire (before Italy entered the war the lire was worth about five cents) to its preparation. Therefore we had the right to expect that the armed forces at the moment of test would be completely prepared for war."
 Gayda said that Italy was sure of attaining victory and he recalled that during the World War Italy defeated Austria even after the Italian retreat from Caporetto.
 "In current weeks the British have been engaged against Italy in one of the most decisive battles of the war," he wrote. "The British fear that the winter will be terrible. So they are making a supreme effort to diminish the probabilities of an Italian attack."

Smith Asks Rule On Term Length

AUSTIN, Dec. 13.—Chairman Lon A. Smith of the Texas Railroad Commission has asked Atty. Gen. Gerald C. Mann when his term of office expires.
 Minutes of the railroad commission for Jan. 15, 1935 show that Smith was sworn in that day for a six year term.
 In 1937 the 45th Texas legislature passed an act saying that thereafter state and district officers should take office on Jan. 1 following the general election at which they were elected. Terms of this act would make Olin Culberson become Smith's successor on Jan. 1.
 Exceptions named in the act are the governor, lieutenant governor, senators and members of the house of representatives.
 Smith contends that the act does not govern his term because he was elected for a six year term that began before the act was passed. He believes it cannot be made retroactive.
 The amendment to the state constitution under which the railroad commission was established provided that when the legislature created such a commission it should consist of three members elected for six years terms.
 Research was begun today in the attorney general's department on the question propounded.

Election May Bring Legislative Action

AUSTIN, Texas.—Failure of 33 counties to forward election returns of the Nov. 5 general election in time to have them included in the official canvass is expected to lead to some action by the new legislature.

 A law forbidding payment of election officers who fail to make returns as directed by legislative act, may be ordered.

How Fares Our Defense Effort?

Six months ago the American people came to a great decision. Reversing every historical precedent, they decided that they must build great military strength though they were at peace with all the world.

They have not changed that decision. There are differences of opinion as to how we may be forced to use our strength—none as to building it.

How fares the effort after six months? The political campaign being over, we can look at ourselves in the mirror without distortion and ask "How're we doing?"

We believe progress has been such that no American need be ashamed. Most of the disappointments with the defense effort have come to those who expected miracles. Those who appreciated the task and faced it realistically are not discouraged, not displeased. By next June, roughly a year after the intensive preparedness drive began, the United States will be able to show military strength which no power in the world will be inclined to trifle.

Considering that it takes at least 100 days to build a modern cantonment, the progress of building in the camps, factory to remarkable.

Housing, clothing, and elementary weapons are ready for the large influx of men to come after the first of the year. Heavier and more complex weapons are not yet on hand in quantity. Instructors for the men are being rapidly trained.

Industrial leaders believe that American industry is producing all that could be expected as fast as any realistic person could desire. They express the utmost confidence that production of war materials, once started on a quantity basis, will "surprise ourselves," as Chairman A. W. Robertson of Westinghouse put it. With a very few exceptions the co-operation of labor and management in defense work has been freely offered.

LETTERS FROM READERS

(Editor's Note—Following is a letter from an Eastland county boy, who is now in the service of the United States government as a soldier, to John W. Turner, chairman of the Eastland County Selective Service Board.)

December 9, 1940
P. O. Clark, Texas, Eastland, Texas.

Dear Sir:

I will write you a few lines tonight to let you know I have not forgotten you yet. I have been here about two weeks and just got to Dallas Recruiting Office about 9 o'clock Tuesday morning and passed everything all right, and got sworn in to the army about 4:30 o'clock that evening, and left Tuesday night for Fort Sam Houston, Texas, to the Replacement Center and stayed there about eight days. Then I came on down here and this is the Special Weapon Troop, and that is the thirty, fifty and eighty millimeter machine gun group. But I won't get any of them until I have completed my six weeks of Recruit drill. That consists of foot drill in the morning, and horseback riding in the evening. I like it pretty good here. But I would rather have gotten in the tank division. I have gained ten pounds since I left there, so you know whether I am getting plenty of sleep and eat and exercise or not, and I sure feel fine, too. See, boys from out where I came from or not? If so, who are they? If you have, and I know any of them, get some of their addresses for me please. I am just thirty-one miles west of San Antonio, 125 miles west of Fort Sam Houston. Leslie went to Fort McCoy west of Laredo at Fort Mason and Yancy went for they were still at Fort Sam Houston there at the office, and tell Dr. Brown that I am doing fine, and that I have gained ten pounds since I weighed me in there. That I wear a thirty-two in the waist now. Well I will close and hoping to hear from you soon.

Your Drafts,

ROBERT C. WILSON,

5th Cavalry Sp. W.

Fort Clark, Texas.

For the first time since 1929, farmers in the United States this year will receive a total cash income of at least nine billion dollars, the Department of Agriculture predicts.

Big Donations Christmas Fund Are Received

A big donation to the Christmas Cheer Fund today totaled the total collected yesterday to $204.25. It was headed by Lee Dockery, chairman of the drive.

The largest single donation received by the Christmas cheer fund was turned in today when the Carl Barnes Post of the American Legion presented the fund secretary with a check for $100.00.

The second large donation, and the second largest received to date, was from the First Methodist Church of Ranger in the amount of $10.

It is estimated by Lee Dockery, chairman of the drive, that approximately $500 will be needed for the Christmas baskets this year.

Barbecue and Dance Monday Will Honor The National Guard

Members of the local National Guard Unit, the Home Guard, American Legion and those who helped to sponsor the event have been invited to a big barbecue to be held at the National Guard Armory Monday evening at 6 o'clock, at which members of the guard will be guests of honor.

At the close of the barbecue a dance will be staged at the Legion
Hall, sponsored by the Carl Barnes Post and the Legion Auxiliary. The dance, too, will be for members of the guard, the home defense unit and the Legion.

Lions and Ladies of Ranger Pull Candy For Needy Children

Members of the Ranger Lions Club, and their ladies, met at the Gholson Hotel Thursday evening, when an old-fashioned taffy pull was staged.

The Lions, aided by their ladies, pulled and wrapped 50 pounds of candy, which will be distributed among the children of Ranger between now and Christmas.

The candy pull was sponsored by the club to take the place of the regular weekly meeting, which was scheduled for Thursday at noon.

ADVICE SUGAR-COATED

JOHANNESBURG—South African Red Cross societies will use gramophone records to fight disease among the natives. The plan, which is being tried out in Johannesburg, is to make a large number of records combining native songs and comic patter with advice on how to avoid or treat tuberculosis, typhoid and malaria.

Raven Mad Over German Air Raid

If Jack, popular raven at the London Zoo, could talk, he'd probably have some sharp things to say about those German airmen who bombed him and his mate Jill out of their 100-year-old cage. Doggily remaining at his smashed home, Jack inspects the wreckage. Jill has not been seen since the raid.

New Farm Business In Far West Is Seen

EL PASO, Texas—A two-million-dollar a year business looms for farmers in the upper and lower valleys north and south of El Paso with the growing of extra long staple cotton there this year. Mushrooming from nothing, the long staple product put a quarter of a million dollars in valley farmers' pockets this fall. Experienced cotton growers say this year is only the beginning.

A special gin of roller-type construction, necessary for the long staple cotton, was built by the White Gin association to handle the new variety cotton. The association introduced the cotton to the valley regions.

The organization's gin will turn out more than 2000 bales this year, and the cotton is of such high grade that some bales are better than U. S. Department of Agriculture standards.

Some cotton men believe that the cotton is of good enough quality to make parachutes. This may prove important in the future to America, as U. S. airmen are

Road To West Point Holds Many Detours

RENO, Nev.—James H. Short of Reno finally is going to West Point, but it took him a long time to get there.

Short started his campaign for an appointment to West Point by enlisting in the coast artillery at San Francisco, where he stayed long enough to obtain a transfer to the West Point preparatory school at Fort Winfield Scott.

Short went to the preparatory school for a year—but failed to receive the West Point appointment he desired. Back in Reno, he enlisted in the Nevada National Guard.

A few months later, Short again obtained a transfer to the Fort Winfield Scott preparatory school and again he took West Point examinations. This time he made it.

Denver Lady Says Hoyt's Brot Back Strength, Vitality

Years of Suffering From Stomach, Kidney and Bowels Relieved Says Mrs. Flo McClain.

MRS. FLO McCLAIN "I had been feeling badly run-down, always tired and my nerves were on edge. I was nervous and upset. I had severe attacks of gas pains and bloating. My kidneys caused me to get up at night and this broke my rest. I had to take strong laxatives. "I have used three bottles of Hoyt's Compound and my food's digest better. I am not bothered with gas pains or bloating and my kidneys seem to be working normally as I don't have to get up at night. My eliminations are more normal than for years. My nervousness has left me and my strength and vitality are rapidly returning. Hoyt's Compound has truly proved a blessing for me so I do take pleasure in speaking highly of it." Hoyt's Compound is recommended by the Texas Drug Store and other leading druggists in this area.
