ARMY WANTS TO ADD 15,000 MORE PLANES

By MACK JOHNSON
United Press Staff Correspondent
WASHINGTON, Feb. 8.—The War Department plans to add about 15,000 planes to its projected fleet of 25,000 aircraft and soon will ask congress for more than $2,000,000,000 to carry out the increase, it was disclosed today.

The program, which would bring the army's eventual strength to about 40,000 planes, will be offered to congress within a few days as part of a supplemental defense bill, authoritative sources said.

It is designed to utilize all available aircraft industry facilities and provide a "backlog" against a sharp production let-down as planes now on order are delivered.

The army now has 19,000 planes on order, most of which probably will not be delivered before 1942. British orders placed before or early in the European war are said to be running out rapidly, thus leaving private manufacturers with idle assembly lines that can be utilized under the new program.

The proposed new program is said to consist of two major phases involving about $1,000,000,000 each.

One calls for about 12,000 planes of all types—some 6,000 trainers and 6,000 pursuit, interceptor and bombing craft. Orders for them would be spread among the aircraft firms as a backlog when present defense and foreign orders run out.

The other would provide funds to pay for the first 4,000 medium and heavy bombers to be assembled at new plants at Tulsa, Okla., Kansas City, Kan., Ft. Worth, Tex., and Omaha, Neb. Parts for these craft are to be made by automobile manufacturers.

Officials said that the proposed new program would mean an upward revision in present plans for ultimate army air force of 54 combat groups. They declined to state how many groups would be added, but admitted that an "increase is planned."

Ranger Teacher Has Story Published In Fiction Magazine

Miss Gladys Maddocks, faculty member of Ranger High School and daughter of Mr. and Mrs. C. E. Maddocks of Ranger, has a short story appearing in the Science Fiction magazine of March, 1941, under the name of John M. Taylor.

The story, "Beliefs of the Days," is science fiction, or the applying of scientific principles and possibilities to imaginative fiction, and has its setting on a moon of Saturn.

Science Fiction has also accepted another story of Miss Maddocks, a Martian satire, and has approved the synopsis of two other stories.

As soon as Miss Maddocks becomes established in the field of science fiction, she hopes to write juvenile fiction and general interest stories.

Your Federal Income Tax

Deductions for Professional Expenses.

A professional man may deduct all necessary expenses incurred in the pursuit of his profession. These include the cost of supplies used in his practice, office rent, cost of light, water, fuel, and telephone in his office, the hire of office assistants, and expenses paid in the operation and repair of an automobile, based upon the proportion of time it is used for professional purposes.

Many physicians use their residences both as their offices and their homes. In such instance the physician may deduct as a business expense the rental value of the rooms occupied for office purposes if he actually pays rent, and also the cost of light and heat furnished these rooms. Also, he may deduct a portion of the wages paid domestic servants whose time is partly occupied in caring for these rooms. Membership dues in professional societies are deductible. Physicians and dentists who keep in their waiting rooms current magazines for their patients may deduct this item as a business expense. The cost of professional journals for the taxpayer's own use is also a deductible item.

The cost of technical books is not a deductible item, being a capital expenditure, but a proportionate amount for each year's depreciation of the books may be deducted. Depreciation may also be taken on office furniture and equipment. Insurance premiums on office or other professional equipment and liability insurance may be deducted. A premium paid for automobile liability insurance should be apportioned and that part of the premium attributable to business may be deducted as a business expense.

LANDON RAPS BRITISH AID AT A HEARING

By WILLIAM H. LAWRENCE
United Press Staff Correspondent
WASHINGTON, Feb. 8.—Alfred M. Landon, 1936 republican presidential nominee, today denounced the administration's all-out British Aid Bill as a "guess and a damned policy" under which congress would abdicate and give President Roosevelt unlimited powers to police the world by force, using all U. S. resources and man power.

Charging that President Roosevelt had made a "dastardly" attempt to gag Sen. Burton K. Wheeler, D. Mont., leader of the bill's opposition, Landon told the Senate Foreign Relations committee that congress "should keep control of the aid we send England."

He advocated U. S. gifts of billions of dollars to help Great Britain's war effort, but said this nation's primary need now is "deliberation in the congress and speed in the factories."

The former Kansas governor, a former supporter of Mr. Roosevelt's foreign policy who reportedly turned down a post in the president's cabinet in 1940, said that the November elections resulted were not a mandate for unlimited powers to the president.

"If an English victory is not essential to our security, then the only fair and decent thing to do is to say to Britain we will help you with money and materials only, and it is your job to get them. A simple appropriation is all that is needed, if that is our only purpose. And it would be agreed to, practically unanimously."

Asserting that it was up to Mr. Roosevelt's supporters to adjust politics, Landon charged that an "organized attempt" to suppress public thinking and public opinion on the all-out British Aid Bill was led by the chief executive, himself, who had hurled "even the charge of pro-Germanism" at a leader of opposition in the United States Senate, Senator Wheeler of Montana.

"I have always believed that one of the blackest marks on the record of the republican party was the attempt to silence Senator Wheeler," Landon said. "I now denounce, as equally dastardly, the systematic attempt of another chief executive to silence his voice and blacken his reputation."

"If this were to go unnoted and unchallenged, there would soon be no brakes on the chief executive. That is not healthy at any time and under any president in a republic."

Political Reasons Cited By Johnson For Losing Job

By United Press
AUSTIN, Feb. 8.—Adam R. Johnson, former director of public welfare, told a senate committee today that he was removed from that office for political reasons.

Johnson contradicted some statements previously made to the committee inquiring into old age assistance administration. Earlier witnesses were members of the welfare board and former Mayor J. S. Muchison of Corsicana, succeeded by the board to succeed Johnson.

Johnson testified that Frank S. Roberts, board member from Breckenridge, had mentioned that they both were veterans of the Spanish-American war and that Johnson's work was praiseworthy. Then, Johnson quoted, Roberts said:

"Sometimes we have to do things politically that we wouldn't do otherwise, and I don't think it is advisable for you to stay in office."

Board member Thomas Taylor of Brownwood had three hours' advance notice that Johnson was going to resign, Johnson testified. Johnson said that he told Taylor three hours before, commenting on testimony that Taylor's first intimation that Johnson was resigning came in Johnson's letter to that effect.

Boys In Jail Still Get Into Trouble

Negro Enlists So He Avoids Trial As Draft Dodger

AUSTIN, Texas, Feb. 8.—Van Darling Wilbarger, 33, a negro, was registered today for military service and the government's case against him apparently ended.

Charges against Wilbarger and his father, John Tom Wilbarger, 62, were heard last week by federal district judge R. J. McMillan. The elder Wilbarger, a preacher, told the court that he advised his son not to register last October 16 because it was contrary to his religious principles.

McMillan deferred sentence until Friday, after explaining that conscientious objectors should register but could explain their objections if they are drafted. When the time came to pass sentence, the judge again deferred it until the June term of court and advised young Wilbarger to register.

He did so within a few minutes after leaving the courtroom. Willard A. Giddens, agent for the Federal Bureau of Investigation, questioned several University of Texas students who attended the Wilbarger hearing. The students said they were members of a pacifist organization.

Schoolboy Awaits Trial For Murder

TEXARKANA, Ark., Feb. 8.—A. L. Tipton, 16-year-old schoolboy, awaited today his trial in Miller county circuit court on manslaughter charges in connection with the death of a chum.

The youth was released under $1,000 bond yesterday in the custody of relatives after a hearing before municipal judge J. D. Cook. A charge of first degree murder was reduced to the manslaughter count on recommendation of deputy prosecuting attorney Dennis K. Williams.

Tipton was bound over to the circuit court after John Dale Hilliard, 15, died from a fractured skull from a blow with a soda pop bottle in a fight at a Fouke, Ark., basketball game.

Six schoolmates denied at the hearing that Hilliard had reached for a club before Tipton struck him. The youth had told Sheriff W. E. Davis that he hit Hilliard with the bottle to avoid being struck by the club.

Road Project Is Being Approved For $167,000.00

W. S. Adamson, county judge, has received notice from the Texas Highway Department advising him that the Highway Commission has approved a project, the estimated cost of which is $167,000, for reconstruction work on Highway 80, eraching from Cisco west 0.9 miles to the Callahan county line. It will be necessary, however, that this project be approved by the United States Public Roads Administration prior to actual authority for construction.

RAF ATTACKS SET FIRES AT INVASION BASE

By Sidney J. Williams
United Press Staff Correspondent
LONDON, Feb. 8.—Fires were visible on the French invasion coast through dense fog and heavy rain today after British planes, diving through clouds into a rain of fire, hurled bombs for hours during the night on targets between Dunkirk and Boulogne in one of the great attacks of the war.

Though the raids ended in the early hours of the morning, fires could still be seen by daylight. The air ministry said a "considerable" force of bombers attacked invasion ports including Boulogne, Calais, Dunkirk and Ostend.

Boulogne, one of the two most important invasion ports, was attacked for three hours steadily, the ministry said, and large fires were started in supply stores and dock buildings.

"At Dunkirk a number of bursts were clearly observed on shipping and docks," the communiqué said. "Several planes bombed docks at Calais and Ostend."

The ministry said all planes returned. Though weather over northwest Europe was generally unfavorable, the ministry said, visibility was good over the English Channel where the fog was low though dense.

Thousands stood spell bound on the Kentish coast between Dover and Dungeness watching the planes go across the channel and the flash of flame and roar of continuous explosions.

It was indicated that there had been no such raid on the invasion coast since September 15 when the Royal Air Force broke up what appeared to be preparations for an immediate attempt at invasion.

It was the second straight night on which, despite most unfavorable flying weather, the Royal Air Force had raided the invasion coast heavily. The reason for the unusual intensity of the raids was not disclosed.

Nazi Attacks a Success, RAF's Fail, Nazis Say

BERLIN, Feb. 8.—Large scale raids against the British Mediterranean island fortress of Malta, were announced by the High Command today.

The High Command said "reiling attacks" were made on the Lucca and Halfar airfields, docks at La Valetta, the capital of Malta, and a seaplane base.

The High Command said barracks and hangars were destroyed and large fires were caused. The official news agency said weak formations of British planes last night and early today attempted "nuisance" attacks on channel ports but had to drop their bombs aimlessly in open fields because of extremely bad weather.

The High Command said German bombers yesterday made "most successful" attacks on "militarily important" objectives in the British Isles.

Side Glances On Texas History

By CHARLES O. Hucker
University of Texas Library
The notion that Stephen F. Austin's settlement around San Felipe was the only colony in early Texas, though common, is quite false. As a matter of fact, University of Texas Library records show, almost every person living in the state today is living on ground granted to some colonizer before 1832.

Austin, of course, is deservedly remembered as the foremost "impresario" of them all. One reason is that in the beginning it was largely his work that made foreign immigration possible, and he himself got five grants for settlements. But, besides these, there were twenty-one other grants made by the Mexican government, and they covered almost all of the territory now included in the state.

A year after his father, Moses Austin, had received permission to settle 300 families in southeast Texas, Austin in 1822 brought his first group into the granted territory, which extended from the Lavaca to the San Jacinto Rivers and from the Old San Antonio Road almost to the coast. This group has always been called "The Old Three Hundred" and thought themselves the aristocrats of early Texas.

In 1825 Austin was allowed to bring 500 more families into his colony. Two years later he settled 100 families above the Old San Antonio Road, north of the Colorado River, and in 1828 300 families in the strip of land just south of his first grant, along the coast. Then in 1831 he and Samuel M. Williams, secretary of the San Felipe settlement, contracted to bring 800 families into the territory farther to the northwest and west. By the end of that year the number of persons in these settlements numbered 5,665.

There were at least six other successful colonies established before 1832. Among the best-known were those of Martin de Leon, who brought 200 families to the lower Guadalupe and founded the town of Victoria; Colonel Green De Witt, who established Gonzales and settled 400 families around it; and Robert Leftwich, whose grant lay between the

ITALIANS LOSE HUGE STORE OF WAR MATERIAL

By PHILIP S. TAYLOR
United Press Staff Correspondent
CAIRO, Feb. 8.—Britain's army of the Nile in capturing Benghazi completely smashed the entire Italian North African army, it was indicated today.

Thousands upon thousands of Italian soldiers, trapped south of Benghazi by an amazing British forced march, were surrendering to the empire forces.

An enormous store of war materials, which the Italian army had not even time to destroy, fell into British hands.

The Italian armies in East Africa were not cut off from all aid, even by air, and only broken remnants of Mussolini's "Terribili" fleeing westward, remaining between the British forces and Tripoli, near the border of French Tunisia.

An army commander and a corps commander were among the prisoners taken, and the British bag of prisoners since the start of the African offensive had risen beyond 125,000.

A terse special communique of the general headquarters of the middle eastern high command disclosed today that by a forced march of 150 miles in 30 hours through sand storms, a British formation had smashed into the fleeing Italian army south of Benghazi, overwhelmingly superior in numbers and equipment, and trapped the thousands of Italians seeking to flee along the coast from Benghazi toward Tripoli.

Their machine guns and small cannon blazing at knots of Italians whom they passed on a race across the desert south of the El Akdar range of hills, the British force pressed on straight to the coast south of Benghazi while Australian and other troops marched into the city along the coastal road from the east and north.

The high command called the operation a "brilliant exploit."

The story was told in a communique: "Surprised by the speed of the brilliant forced march the enemy, endeavoring to withdraw from Benghazi, found themselves finally hemmed in.

"Numerically superior Italian armored forces, supported by infantry and artillery, then made determined efforts to break through our cordon. Every attempt was repulsed with heavy losses to the enemy. After 60 tanks had become battle casualties the enemy finally ceased fighting."

Salvation Army Surprised Firemen Didn't Have Net

FORT WORTH, Texas, Feb. 8.—Local salvation army workers expressed "surprise" that the Dallas Fire Department provided no life nets to break the fall of transients who jumped from the flaming salvation army rooming house which burned last night.

The officers here rushed to Dallas following the fire to aid in the identification of the injured and the eight who died.

Adj. R. McNeill and Capt. H. W. Holmes, of the Salvation Army headquarters here, said that many who jumped would not have broken bones if a life net had been used.

The two workers highly praised the "heroic actions" of Julius Benson, an ex-service man, who entered "the inferno" to rescue three men and may lose his life for the efforts.

By United Press
KANSAS CITY, Mo., Feb. 8.—Police today asked Milford Loomis, drugstore manager, why he fired his pistol into the air instead of trying to hit two bandits fleeing from his store after robbing him $50.

"Well, I saw one of my best customers coming toward the store," Loomis said. "I'm a pretty poor shot, and I was afraid I'd bug him instead of a bandit."

Un-Huddling the Government

Bitter are the lessons being written in blood across Europe today—and woe to him who will not learn them!

One of them seems to be this: there is danger in too great centralization. That is: if all your government offices are huddled in one small area, all your steel works huddled in another, all your auto and munitions plants in another, all your boat-building facilities in another, so much greater the chance of a single crippling blow by some overwhelming bombing raid. That country is best off whose productive facilities are so scattered that a whole series of successful blows might not necessarily cripple it.

The war has centered attention on decentralization. New powder, plane, and munitions plants are being built in remote places which had hitherto been without great industries, even without great populations. And this at a time when the tide of people flocking to the cities seems to have reversed itself and for the first time the census figures show an increase in the rural population.

But against this tide swims government. The population of Washington has grown 36 per cent since 1930, a rate of increase exceeded only by Miami and San Diego. It has slopped over its limits, and Arlington county, across the Potomac in Virginia, is the fastest-growing county in the United States. Office buildings cannot be built fast enough to hold the bulging bureaus; rents skyrocket.

One answer has been proposed by Representative Everett M. Dirksen of Illinois. He has introduced into the House a resolution which would call for moving many government bureaus bodily from Washington to other cities. Even allowing for Dirksen's probable direct interest in getting some of them for Chicago or for his native Pekin district, maybe this is worth thinking about.

Dirksen argues that $100,000,000 was spent last year by officials in travel from Washington to other places where government business was being done; that many of the functions of government like social security, rail road-control of various kinds, census bureau, housing and home loan work, maritime controls, WPA, CCC, veterans' work, and agricultural aid, could just as efficiently and perhaps more economically be discharged in other parts of the country.

Does too great a concentration of the nation's life blood for safety pass through Washington? New York? Chicago? Detroit? Ought we to begin thinking seriously of doing something about it?

The sewing machine was patented in 1790—making 151 years that neighbors have dropped in to use it.

Life is what you make it instead of what you make.

CHAPTER I

APRIL BURNETT held the telegram gingerly. It was addressed to Ann, but her sister, and Ann was 500 miles away.

Also away from home were Dad and Mother, not 500 miles, but almost as inaccessible as if they were.

"Looks like I have to do the honors," April said, throwing an appealing glance at Octavia, the brown and genial maid-of-all-work who loomed like a mountain in the doorway.

Slowly, with that mixture of bravado and heart-sinking with which all such envelopes are opened, April drew forth the message.

"Meet me 7:45 train tonight. Have three day leave. Love, Kent."

Kent was Kent Carter, Ann's sweetheart. April read the message again, this time aloud for the benefit of Octavia. It was Octavia who spoke first. "Miss Ann's sure going to be a heart-broken little thing, what with her sweetheart home from the army for three days and the way off there by herself in New York."

But with the scared feeling of a young officer who had been an appealing glance at Octavia, the brown and genial maid-of-all-work who loomed like a mountain in the doorway.

Slowly, with that mixture of bravado and heart-sinking with which all such envelopes are opened, April drew forth the message.

"Meet me 7:45 train tonight. Have three day leave. Love, Kent."

Kent was Kent Carter, Ann's sweetheart. April read the message again, this time aloud for the benefit of Octavia. It was Octavia who spoke first. "Miss Ann's sure going to be a heart-broken little thing, what with her sweetheart home from the army for three days and the way off there by herself in New York."

"Ann—Ann, darling!" Kent had said, his hands reaching for her. Suddenly April realized that he had mistaken her for her sister, that he wasn't seeing her at all.

it was up to her to do the sisterly thing. April would have the last word. "Maybe I won't be back at all."

they talked were exactly alike. They were sisterly in size, also, both a trim and tiny five-foot-two and with that smallness of bone and feature which gave them the impression of being petite.

"That was where their similarity ended, Ann was the plain one and April, the beauty."

OCTAVIA walked directly to the picture frame on April's bureau from which Ann's small, uncertain-featured face looked out. "Poor little lamb," she said, and touched the picture with gentle fingers.

"Little?" April's voice had a bite. "Why are you always calling her 'little this' and 'little that'?" Anyone hearing you talk would think Ann was a 12-year-old midget.

"No, Miss April," Octavia said placatingly. "Ah knows she's 20 come her nex' birthday. But seems he's such a frail 'un, always d-ate-like from the day she was born."

"There's nothing very frail about a gal who can march herself off to New York and battle with singing teachers and agents and auditions to get herself a job," April said. "It's a funny thing think Ann never know Ann's not at home."

Octavia's eyes became like big brown-and-white-marbles. She was scared. "They had a little fuss, Miss April. Don't you go sayin' nothing about it. Miss Ann done told me strictly confidential. Ain't another soul knows."

"Oh!" said April. "Then why I am going to all this trouble? Let him wait at the station or take the next train back."

"You're going to march yourself to the train and explain to him how Miss Ann's away and never let on what Ah done told you about the fuss."

Grudgingly, April had to admit Octavia was right. Kent Carter, lean and dark and serious, meant a great deal to Ann. April, standing as she did as Ann's older sister—April was 21—and being the one who had had all the boy friends and the romance, realized

Bart J. Frasier Conducts School On Chick Sexing

Bart J. Frasier of the Frasier Hatchery returned home today from Hamlin, where he has been conducting a class in "The Science of Sexing Baby Chicks." The school was held in Texas' largest hatchery and Frasier sexed 20,000 chicks the last two weeks he was there.

There is more interest being shown in sexed chicks than ever before, Frasier stated. Most hatcherymen of this territory are anticipating a better demand for chicks this season over last.

Frasier's was one of the first hatcheries of Texas to offer sexed chicks to the public.

Brazos and Colorado Rivers and the San Antonio and Nacogdoches Roads.

In addition, Lorenzo de Zavala, later vice-president of the Republic, successfully settled the utmost southeast corner of the present state, east of the Sabine John McMullen and Patrick McGloin introduced Irish immigrants around what is now San Patricio County, and James Fower and James Hewlison settled colonists around Aransas Bay.

Of all these, however, Austin's settlement was the best-organized, the most prosperous and the most firmly established. Its center, the town of San Felipe, was the cultural capital, at least, of the entire era of colonization; and when the Texas Revolution began in 1835 it was named first capital of the provisional government.

Possibly Haden Edwards' colony just south of Nacogdoches was the grandest failure, for the climax of its history was the Fredonian Rebellion of 1826, which was begun there. At its suppression, his grant was divided between David G. Burnett and Joseph Velheim. Burnett's colony soon failed, and he left Texas not to return until 1831, when he became a leader in the revolutionary movement.

"Old Ben" Milam, who took San Antonio in '35, was another who tried to establish a settlement in early Texas, but his grant was north of the San Antonio Road and Indians prevented any success in its colonization. For the same reason, still other grants in present-day West and North Texas were never successfully settled.

100 YEARS AGO IN TEXAS
"The appointment of General James Hamilton, as minister plenipotentiary of this government near the court of St. James," has been confirmed by the senate.

"The hon. G. W. Terrell has been appointed secretary of state," said the hon. A. S. Lipscomb, who signed. The hon. T. G. Chalmers has been appointed secretary of the treasury.

"Gen. Felix Huston returned to this city on Saturday last. The recent news from the west is of a pacific character, that the government has concluded to suspend all military operations for a season."—The Texas Sentinel (Austin), January 30, 1841.

GET IN... STRETCH OUT...

NEW COMFORT was the keynote as we made plans for this year's big, easy-riding Ford.

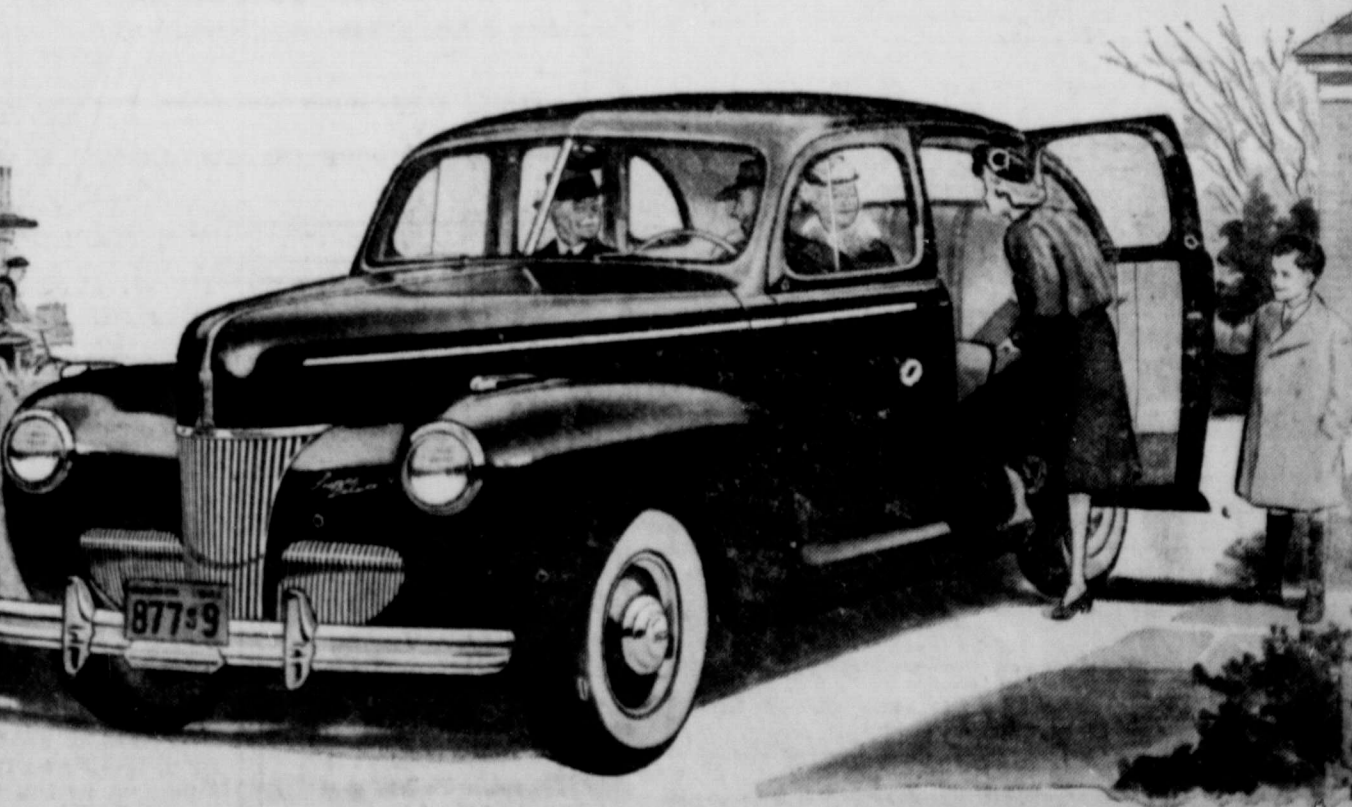

Get in... and notice how easy it is to enter through the new wide doors! Look around... through windows that give you nearly 4 square feet of added vision-area in each 1941 sedan!

Stretch out... in room to spare! Seating width has been increased as much as 7 inches. Inside length and knee-room are greatest in its price field.

Then take the road and test the ride that has been one of the motor-year's most talked-about surprises! A soft, steady, gliding ride that takes good roads or bad in an easy and a satisfying new kind of stride. And notice the new quietness of this big Ford!

You'll find news at your Ford dealer's that is really worth your while! News in comfort. News in value and smooth performance. And in a "deal" that you'll find easy to take!

EXTRA!

"MORE ABOUT NOSTRADAMUS" . . . The most amazing short subject ever produced. We brought last week and revealed it to some thirty local business and professional men and they admitted it was wonderful. Nostradamus, you know prophesied 400 years ago the present war. Germany overtook America. Hitler and Maginot's meeting at Remagen. Pearl Harbor's air and submarine attack and many more things that have come to pass. . . BUT he also in this new reel tells how the world and what the United States will have to do with it. You MUST see this subject and we guarantee you'll be without regrets as the most outstanding short subject ever made. --The Management.
